Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Joseph Milne, the bride was charming in her white, floor-length bridal gown of white Chantilly lace and net, featuring a molded bodice of Chantilly lace over satin, with yoke and sheath-like lily-pointed sleeves of lace; the high, scalloped neckline slightly dipping at the back. The bouffant, crinoline skirt was fashioned in triple tiers of net divided by insertion of Chantilly lace. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion was held by a Marie-Antoinette headdress of seed pearls and rhinestones and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and hyacinth bells. A gold cross and chain completed her ensemble.

Miss Ursula Milne, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, gowned in ballerina silver-embroidered pink net over taffeta with matching jacket and headdress. She carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Mr. Patrick J. McFadden, of Lackawanna, New York, attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. Patrick Moriarity and William (Bill) Moriarity of Paris, Ont., brothers of the bridegroom, ushered the guests.

The wedding reception was held in the Knights of Columbus hall where the bride's table, was appointed with white damask, and centred by a three-tier wedding cake, topped with red Sweetheart roses, and misted about the base with red tulle. The bridal bouquets added a delightful nuptial accent.

The guests were received by the bride's mother and the bridegroom's mother, the former in light blue lace with royal blue accessories, and corsage of rose-colored, feathered carnations and the latter in turquoise blue with black and white accessories, with pink rose corsage.

Following the reception the happy couple left for New York City; the bride travelling in a beige-colored knitted suit with matching accessories and muskrat topcoat, with yellow carnation corsage. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Moriarity will reside in Paris, Ont.

Guests attended from Brantford, Paris, Belleville, Detroit, Sarnia, Toronto, Stoco, Read, Marmora, Lanark and Hamilton, Ontario.

Previous to her marriage the bride was honored by a shower given by Mrs. J. Donnelly, of Toronto.

Fashion Writer Likes Colors

CALGARY (CP) — Shirley Smith of Edmonton, chosen in a magazine poll as one of Canada's 10 best-dressed women, cites her "delight in color" as a possible reason for the honor.

Miss Smith, fashion designer and writer, is Alberta area director for the Canadian Women's Press Club. She works for an Edmonton publishing company.

"Frankly, I don't believe I have a conscious fashion philosophy," she says.

"For daytime street wear, suits and slim wool dresses, often in rather neutral shades, with carefully co-ordinated accessory colors, help to achieve the trim all-of-a-piece effect I especially like.

"Except for certain shades of blue, I wear almost all colors well, and like unusual, subtle—but not startling—color combinations."

Miss Smith concedes a weakness for hats—"the more dashing the better."

An array of silk scarves is indispensable and I feel quite exposed without earrings."

QUECHUA BEAUTY

This colorfully garbed girl is Isabel Mamani, chosen as the most beautiful "Quechua" girl of the Peruvian Andes Mountains from among hundreds of authentic Indians of Quechua or Aymara races. She is shown in Lima, where she will stay a year as part of her first prize.

JAPANESE ORIGIN

The folding fan came originally from Japan and was later popular in China and Europe.

MALE VIEWPOINT

EXETER, England (CP) — A woman's place is in the home, says Dr. E. D. Irvine, medical officer of health in this Devonshire city. "The greatest contribution she can make to human welfare is to make a home for her children and her husband," he said.

Half-Belts Take Curse Off Unfitted Look

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP) — Even the shapeless chemise fails to floor that diminutive but daring designer, Adele Simpson, who remarks demurely:

"I'm neither for nor against any new fashion. Instead I accept it as a challenge to figure how each woman can make it her own."

Showing her spring collection to the fashion press today, Mrs. Simpson illustrates graphically how every woman can wear some version of the current sack silhouette, after it has been refined and revised under the eye of a skilled designer.

VARIED SILHOUETTE

She employs half-belts, back or front, to take the curse off the unfitted look. She shows many bloused tops over slim skirts. She shows a varied lineup of suit silhouettes, with jackets brief and straight, bloused or belted. She uses the jacket-length overblouse as a part of almost every suit costume, often matching it to the jacket lining.

Mrs. Simpson admits to "male robbery" in her choice of suit fabrics, using many of the handsome silk blends that have been used in men's wear for the last few seasons.

She takes a short-cut in both suit jackets and overblouses, ending both at the hipbone or above.

BRIGHT FESTIVE TONES

For daytime street wear Mrs. Simpson likes soft neutral tones or navy, but for festive occasions she shows a brilliant rainbow of colors in flower prints or solid tones such as rio red, tahoe blue and brilliant orange.

Mollie Parnis also modifies the sack with outstanding success using various devices to indent it at the waistline and shape it over the bustline. She calls this the "soft focus" silhouette—slender but far from shapeless.

Most of the Parnis chemises have a half belt in front, hang straight in back She shows a number of wearable dress-and-jacket costumes, with hipbone jacket over a subtly shaped chemise.

PISTOL-PACKING GRANNIE

Mrs. Pansy Mae Stuttard, 84, of White Rock, B.C., checks her sights in preparation for any possible return of thieves who she says took $15,000 in cash from her home recently. Mrs. Stuttard fired two blasts from a shotgun at the fleeing robbers but missed. She said she kept the cash at home because she does not trust banks. (CP Photo) 1958.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. M.F. — John ought to quit carrying that torch.

John F — I'll show them all I'll win in the end.

• • •

Mrs. M.F. — I am very much upset about the way my 28-year-old son, John, has been carrying the torch for a girl who will never marry him.

John has been in love with Ida for the past three years, and has courted her steadily while other suitors nave come and gone. This girl is pretty and has a nice personality, but I don't see anything so very different about her. John has had better girl friends.

I thought John ought to give up after the first year, but he insisted nobody else would do. Now, however, he has run into real competition. Ida has been running around with the wealthiest young man in our community. This man is very handsome. I think she keeps John around just to play him off against the other man.

• • •

John F. — Mom is right about one thing — nobody but Ida will do for me. If I can't have her I'll be a bachelor all my life. Mom keeps telling me that I'd better be careful because I'm going to get hurt. But I've gotten hurt so much already I figure I can take it — if there's still a chance I can win.

Some of my friends say Ida just uses me for what she can get out of me. Sometimes I think they're right. But at other times Ida tells me that I'm her only real friend. She says she loves me like a brother.

Well, anyway, I'm prepared to slug it out with anyone for Ida. I don't care how many Cadillacs this other guy owns.

The Council: Persistence is a virtue. But is John's attitude persistence or insistence?

The persistent suitor will usually drive toward his goal, avoiding every possibility of getting hurt, like a quarterback trying to evade the tacklers. He knows, however, that skill and effort can't guarantee his success. Sometimes he is tackled and loses the ball. Then there's nothing to do but accept that single defeat.

Unfortunately, the love game is not quite so clear-cut. John suspects that he has lost the game, but can he be sure?

We have a suspicion that John already knows the score of this game and is preparing to nurse his wounds as a bachelor all his life. If Ida suddenly turned around and said yes, it is doubtful whether John would be entirely joyful. He wants to go on getting hurt. If he didn't he could not possibly love a girl he suspects of using him.

We aren't in favor of John's bowing out because of the fellow with the Cadillacs. We do think he ought to try to seek happiness and avoid pain. Take it from there, John, and see where it leads.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Would you please settle a point about the serving of a banquet for a hundred people or more? Does one serve from the right or left of the guest? And from which side of the guest are used plates taken away? I am inquiring for a group of ladies having very recently catered at a turkey banquet for 280 guests. I was in charge in the dining room, and the serving was done at the right of the guest, and the used plates were taken from the left, everyone doing the same. Did we make a "faux-pas"? — Reader

Your letter was such a pleasant friendly letter that I hate to have to seem to criticize. But the fact is that the first rule for serving a dining room table is that food is offered at the left of the person served. (And this is really the most convenient procedure for the person being served.) And used plates are generally taken away from the left of the guest.

SHE SHOULD TAKE BIRTHDAY PRESENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My boy friend's mother and father are giving a party in honor of his grandmother, (his mother's mother's) who will be 75 years of age. It is to be a rather small party, mainly relatives and close friends. His mother, who telephoned to invite me, I know quite well, as I have dined at their home several times, but I have met the grandmother only once. She is a darling, and I'm so happy to be invited to this birthday party to be given for her. Mother thinks that perhaps I should take her a present, but I'm not sure this would be right. Do you think I should take a present? — A.R.

Indeed I do think you should take a present to the "birthday lady." I'm quite positive that every guest will bring her a birthday present, on this important occasion and you would feel awkward not to make your present-bow to ner.

HER 17th CHILD WON'T BE ELVIS

There are 16 other children in the family of Mrs. William Bester of Kitchener, Ont., and they have two choices for names for their newest brother. They vote either for Davey (Crocket) of Elvis (Presley), depending on how old they are, but Mrs. Bester has vetoed both names. Her 17th child, who weighed in at seven pounds, two ounces, as yet has not been given a name.

"HAVE YOU NOTICED HOW WELL INFORMED CLARA IS?"

"Yes, indeed! Anytime we meet for Bridge or Tea, Clara's conversation is always worth listening to. She seems so thoroughly well-informed on so many subjects."

"I know her secret—she told me she is an avid reader of the Toronto Daily Star."

"Ah! Now I understand why she is so well versed on current events. See—this Star is so complete with its NEWS and Pictures of what's going on at home and abroad."

"Yes, and see this section containing a wealth of information every woman wants to have about fashions, home management, child care, movies and such."

"I notice that Clara so often mentions what some of the Star's special writers are commenting upon. She says the Star's writers are brilliant in their particular spheres!"

"Yes, my husband has mentioned them. He says that for information, education and entertainment the Toronto Daily Star is a positive Treasure Chest."

"Seems to me I've heard that expression before somewhere. I know everyone in my family wants some part of the Toronto Daily Star."

Grocery Carts Worth $1,671,750 Stolen in Year

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The grocery "cart-napper" is costing millions of dollars annually.

He—or she—is the person who makes off with those four-wheeled carts used by the supermarket customer to haul groceries.

Southern California, which has some of the largest grocery chains and supermarkets, is the hardest hit. Market owners in four Southern California counties last year had $1,671,750 worth of carts stolen. The carts disappear at the rate of 1,000 a week. More than 55,000 carts were taken in the area last year. The carts cost about $30 each.

Who takes the grocery hot rods?

"Most of the carts are pushed away by our customers," one store detective said. "However, we've caught gangs of thieves who make a living peddling the carts, with the store names scratched off, to unethical merchants, junk yards and others."

Nine-Tenths of Canadian Families Have Electricity

OTTAWA (CP)—Pioneering has given way to push buttons in Canadian households.

Modern conveniences are on the increase, the bureau of statistics reported Wednesday.

Kerosene lamps gather dust, the wash board hangs on the wall and the narrow house in the back yard faces oblivion as electricity, modern appliances and conveniences become familiar household furnishings.

Nine-tenths of an estimated 4,055,000 households had electricity in 1957—3,841,000 served by power lines and 26,000 by home generated electricity.

The survey does not cover the Northwest Territories, Indian reserves or other types of lodgings such as hotels, clubs, camps and institutions.

But in Canada's main populated areas, 3,894,000 households had one or more radios, 2,536,000 had television sets and 3,084,000 had telephones.

About 60 per cent of the households had cars last year, compared to 58 per cent in 1956.

Poportionately, Ontario's and Quebec with TV sets in 70 per cent of their households, were followed by Nova Scotia with 60 per cent. About one-half of British Columbia's households had television.

More than four-fifths of the households had piped water, electric washing machines and refrigerators while 70 per cent had installed bath facilities and flush toilets.

More than 58 per cent of the households depended on furnaces for heating and more than half burned oil.

The Inevitable Reducing Routine

By Mary Moore

When I write to you today I'm preaching directly to me.

No more can I hide behind the weak alibi of having to taste my products before passing them on to you. What I will do is make low calorie dishes that all of us with spare tires can conscientiously taste.

LOW CALORIE MENU FOR DETERMINED REDUCERS

Quick Vegetable Soup, Napoli Veal, Garden Salad Ring Low Calorie Steamed Pudding or Fruit Jelly, Clear Tea with lemon or Clear Coffee.

QUICK VEGETABLE SOUP

As you know, hot soup is a great comfort for it takes the keen edge from your appetite at once. Quick cook ½ package each frozen peas and yellow beans. Add 1 cup finely diced carrots and liquid in which they were cooked. Add ½ can undiluted consomme or chicken broth or 2 chicken bouillon cubes and ½ cup water. Slice 1 small onion wafer thin and simmer covered until onion is just tender.

NAPOLI VEAL

Saute 1 thinly sliced clove of garlic in 1 teaspoon olive or salad oil until it turns yellow Pound until it is so thin you can see through it 1 lb. veal cutlet. Cut into 3 or 4 serving pieces. Add this to hot pan and sear quickly on both sides. Add ½ to ¾ cup tomato juice and 1 beef bouillon cube. Cover and simmer ½ hour or until veal is tender. Now comes the heart warmer. Transfer the veal to a flat pan and sprinkle each piece with 1 teaspoon grated Italian or old Cheddar cheese. Pass under the broiler until cheese is bubbly and golden. Spoon any remaining pan sauce over the cutlets.

GARDEN SALAD RING

One tablespoon gelatine, ¼ cup each cold water, lime or lemon juice, sliced green onions, 2 cups boiling water, 1 teaspoon salt, 12 sucaryl tablets, green coloring, 1 cup each diced cucumber and sliced radishes. Soak gelatine in cold water, dissolve by stirring into hot water. Add salt, lime juice, sucaryl and green coloring to tint mint green. Chill until beginning to set. Fold in remaining ingredients. Chill until set in medium-sized ring mould. To serve turn out and fill centre with salad greens.

LOW CALORIE STEAMED PUDDING

One-half cup seedless raisins, ¼ cup shortening, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon sucaryl solution, 1 cup grated raw carrot, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, ⅛ teaspoon each grated lemon rind, baking soda, salt, cloves, cinnamon, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1¾ cups sifted cake flour 2 teaspoons baking powder. Steam raisins until plumped. Beat together shortening, egg and sucaryl until well blended. Add carrots, orange rind, lemon juice and rind; mix well. Sift together flour, baking powder, soda, salt and spices; stir into carrot mixture and add raisins. Steam in 1-quart greased mould covered tightly, for 1 hour. Non-reducers love this too. Be seeing you sidewise in the mirror!

Wonderful Bridal Gown

By ALICE ALDEN

No matter how modern a girl may be, usually she votes for the traditional, long-trained wedding dress. Breath-taking in its gossamer beauty is Jacques Heim's inspired handling of yards and yards of ribbon re-embroidered lace in purest white for a gown that blends charm with gentle modesty—no mean feat. The high neckline, simple bodice and full-length sleeves are set off by the graceful skirt with its wide train. Tulle, falling from the headdress, mists the lace in diaphanous beauty.

The recent holiday meeting of the Wesley W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. R. Percival with 12 members present. The meeting was opened by the president Mrs. E. Bulmer.

After the singing of "Joy to the World", Mrs. Bulmer read a peom "As We Cross the Threshold of Another Year" and led in prayer. A selection of carols were sung by the members.

Mrs. R. Percival gave a reading, "The Runaway Angel", Mrs. E. Burnette read, "The Night Before Christmas" and Mrs. H. Wright read "The Old Year", followed by Mrs. E. Windover who sang, "O Holy Night".

Thank you notes were read from Mr. Brown, Mrs. W. Rutter, Mrs. R. Percival and Mr. R. White.

Mrs Bulmer thanked the ladies for their support throughout the year and asked them to support Mrs Burnette, the new president, for 1958. Mrs. E. Windover was also thanked for the help and guidance she has given while in office.

The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Denyes' home.

Mrs. Bulmer closed the meeting with "Away in a Manger", and after the exchange of gifts, refreshments were served.

Education Authorities See Little Need for Increased Corporal Punishment

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian education authorities apparently see little need for increased corporal punishment in the country's schools, despite the opinion of a member of the Metropolitan Toronto education board.

Ronald Hastings, newly-elected chairman of suburban North York's board of education, aroused comment Monday night when he said in his inaugural address:

"The only way to improve the standard of education and cut down this rate of failures in high schools is more discipline and more competition in the classroom . . . there isn't enough discipline in the schools. Corporal punishment should be used—at the discretion of the principal though."

Mr. Hastings, a 55-year-old machine shop operator, said parents' reaction to his statements was mixed. Most of the country's professional educationists think things are fairly satisfactory as they are.

A typical reaction, gathered in a Canadian Press survey, came from R. E. Marshall, superintendent of Halifax schools.

"There should be more discipline, not necessarily corporal punishment. I think corporal punishment should be a last resort and never taken in junior or senior high school unless the pupil is warned in the presence of witnesses. I would ask the parents to co-operate to help prevent such an indignity to their child . . ."

Hugh Parker, chairman of the Winnipeg public school board, was Mr. Hastings' strongest supporter on corporal punishment.

Last month straps were given to every teacher in the Winnipeg system, a controversial move still being debated. Previously only principals were given straps.

Most others said corporal punishment is of doubtful value in dealing with high school students.

L. A Reiderer, superintendant of Regina's separate schools, said he is skeptical about using corporal punishment on children above grade six.

Mr. Hastings, a product of Scottish schools, also called for homework for all children above grade two, entrance examinations for all grades and a return to percentage marks on reports.

Commenting on these recommendations, W. T. MacSkimming, chief inspector of Ottawa public schools, said:

"We give homework to all children above grade three. I think we should have some homework but not so much that they are deprived of the right to some fresh air.

"It is easier to give a percentage mark in specific answer subjects like mathematics and science . . . it is difficult to give when asking an opinion."

Bulganin's Letters Causing Debate Outside Iron Curtain

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

Western leaders are working up to an exchange of letters with their diligent pen-pal, Soviet Premier Bulganin.

The bland and goatee-ed premier—the "bulgy" half of the Kremlin's Krushy-Bulgy team—must be waiting with a certain amount of anticipation for the replies to his December letter broadside to Western chiefs.

Party Secretary Khrushchev had reason to be proud of Bulganin, who has the appearance of a seedy Santa Claus, for the success of that broadside, which came on the eve of the NATO "summit" meeting.

Bulgy has to please only Khrushy. The Western spokesmen have the more complicated task of striving for at least a basic common agreement in their replies, and that is the purpose of the current NATO council meetings in Paris.

If Bulganin's curiosity is hard to bear—he isn't likely to get replies right away—he could get a fairly clear picture of what is going on in the Western capitals by reading newspapers.

He would thus learn that his proposal for an East-West summit meeting has caused much debate on this side of the Iron Curtain, but has definitely failed to start a stampede toward the diplomatic mountain top.

But he would also know that Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain has reacted favorably, albeit cautiously, to Bulganin's call for an East-West non-aggression pact.

The proposals have caused soul-searching. The over-all feeling in the West seems to be that despite suspicions of Russian sincerity and motives, the Western countries must never be found in the position of rejecting overtures toward peace, doubtful or not.

It appears that the United States and France have reached agreement on the general outline of their replies to Bulganin. These would not close the door to the possibility of summit talks, but would insist first on lower-level conferences and agreements on specific issues.

Britain is said to be at odds with the U.S. and France over a separate Polish proposal for a belt in Central Europe free of nuclear armaments. In some respects, this proposal is similar to one put forward at one time by Sir Anthony Eden, Britain's former prime minister.

The zone would include East and West Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia. It is believed the British consider this theory worthy of discussion. But it has run into opposition from the U.S., which feels it would be a move toward neutralization of Germany.

Just what effect the domestic political situations of the Western countries will have on the replies to Bulganin is hard to say.

President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles are coping with a Congress and public opinion whose self-confidence has been badly shaken by Russian advances.

Prime Minister Macmillan, now on an extended overseas tour, is at the same time facing a storm of criticism following the resignation of the chancellor of the exchequer, Peter Thorneycroft.

Oddly enough, Felix Gaillard—whose position as French premier has a history of instability—seems for the moment to be the least harassed of the big three leaders on the domestic front.

American Mother Finds Son 'Fit' In China Prison

PEIPING (Reuters) — An American mother was reunited with her son in a Chinese prison today and found him "very fit."

Mrs. John Downey spent two hours with her son, John, in the reception room at Peiping's grey-walled Tsao Lan-tse (Grass Basket) prison, where he is serving a life sentence for espionage.

Mrs. Downey is one of three American mothers who were invited to China by Communist officials to visit their sons.

Mrs. P. G. Fecteau was expected to see her son, Richard, here later today. Mrs. Ruth Redmond was waiting in Shanghai for permission to see her son, Hugh, held there.

"Jack has not changed at all and looked very fit and was in good spirits," Mrs. Downey told reporters after her first meeting with her son in almost six years.

Before Mrs. Downey and another son, William, were allowed to enter the prison reception room, a Chinese interpreter read them jail regulations forbidding any questions about John's sentence or his prison treatment.

Candy, fruit cake, cigarets and fresh fruit they brought for the prisoner had to be left at the gate to be checked. A prison official stood beside them during their talk, while an interpreter took notes and a photographer took pictures of the reunion.

RED, BLUE GARB

The prisoner wore Chinese felt shoes, heavy blue denim trousers, a red flannel shirt and a thick blue Chinese quilted jacket.

Downey, 27, and Fecteau, 30, were captured by the Chinese after their plane was shot down in 1952. Fecteau is serving a 20-year sentence.

Mrs. Downey said prison authorities will allow the mothers to see their sons three times a week until their Chinese visas expire Jan. 19. The women's trip here was organized by the Chinese Red Cross and sanctioned by the American state department.

Pearson Given Another Award

OTTAWA (CP) — Hon. Lester Pearson says the best hope of world peace might be the discovery that another planet was inhabited and its space ships circling the globe.

Addressing the Big Brothers annual banquet, where he received an award as Big Brother of Canada for 1958, the former Liberal external affairs minister said Wednesday night:

"Perhaps the best hope of united peace would be the discovery that another planet was inhabited and that its ships were circling our globe.

"Then all of us on both sides of the Iron Curtain would get together and say, 'They can't do this to us.'

"But I hope we can do it on a better basis," he added.

Large Field Enters Bonspiel

GRAVENHURST (CP) — About 350 curlers from the United States and Canada are expected to participate in the 88-rink Muskoka international mixed bonspiel starting Jan. 21.

The competition will be run off in two draws of two days each at Gravenhurst, Bracebridge and Huntsville. Finals will be held at either Bracebridge or Huntsville.

Drawin Curtis of Chicago, Sam Rothschild of Sudbury, president of the Dominion Curling Association, and Albert Dunker of Kitchener, president of the Ontario association, will throw rocks simultaneously at each of the rinks to open the bonspiel.

THROWN FROM CAR

NIPIGON (CP)—Phillip Potvin of Nipigon was killed Wednesday when he was thrown from a swerving car on the Cameron Falls road north of the town.

Says Launching of Sputniks Strategic Blunder by Reds, Awakened West to Its Peril

VANCOUVER (CP)—A leading Canadian scientist has suggested Russia may have made a strategic blunder in launching the Sputniks.

Firing of the two Soviet satellites into outer space awakened the West to the peril it faced as a result of Russian scientific advances, said Dr. Gordon Shrum, head of the University of British Columbia physics department.

"Why they launched them I don't know," Dr. Shrum told a crowd of 2,300 who filled Vancouver's Georgia Auditorium Wednesday night for the official opening of UBC's $7,500,000 building fund drive.

"If they hadn't, we might all still have been asleep."

Seven scientists took part in a panel discussion on the state of Canadian education. They agreed that the country faces a desperate shortage of professional workers, and warned that the shortage will become far more critical unless universities are greatly expanded.

Dr. J. S. Foster, physics professor at Montreal's McGill University and director of Canada's only cyclotron, said Russian students have "more in their heads" than Canadian students.

"But they get it through a kind of discipline we don't have here and we don't want here . . . when they get to use their heads in a free atmosphere I don't know how they'll turn out.

Dr. Foster visited Moscow and Leningrad about a year ago.

Dr. Foster became whimsical over the scientist's place in politics. He said scientists attending a meeting at the Pugwash, N.S., estate of industrialist Cyrus Eaton last summer "turned out to be a group of mostly Communists."

"They kept insisting that we must all act as scientists and we must not be political. They beat the drums a lot but in the meantime they were filled to the gills with politics."

Other panel members were Dr. W. B. Lewis, vice-president and director of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd.; Dr. G. A. Woonton, director of the Eaton Electronics Laboratory at McGill; Dean H. C. Gunning, Dr. C. A. McDowell and Dr. F. A. Forward, all of UBC.

Maritimes and Eastern U.S. Clean Up Mess After Storm

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Maritimes and the eastern United States, staggered by wind-lashed rain and snow, began cleaning up the mess today while Western Canada looked forward to another day or two of unseasonably mild temperatures.

In between, Quebec province and Ontario took in stride normal winter weather — a bit of snow and temperatures ranging to zero in many regions.

In the eastern U.S., the storm which was felt as far south as Florida was blamed for 35 deaths. The Maritime Provinces reported no deaths attributable to the storm, but scores of trees and telegraph poles were blown over by winds which reached 85 miles an hour.

Bitter cold stung the U.S. east coast today in the wake of the snow storm and struck far south for a fresh blow at Florida crops.

The mercury slid below zero in parts of the snow-covered New England and western Pennsylvania.

Early morning temperatures sank into the dangerous 20s in the crop-growing areas of the northern half of Florida. The plunging temperatures came after snow fell over much of the state, including the citrus fruit regions.

Nearly half of Florida's potential orange crop was wiped out by a freeze in December.

Snow fell generally over much of Florida Wednesday, and citrus growers with heating equipment fired their groves during the night.

Nova Scotia was the hardest hit in the Maritimes. In Yarmouth, streets were cluttered with uprooted trees. At Freeport, on the Bay of Fundy, a fishing boat was demolished when waves pounded it against a wharf.

In northern New Brunswick, about a foot of snow fell, drifted, then turned to slush. Central New Brunswick got snow, then sleet and finally two inches of rain.

The weatherman predicts cold air, cloudy skies and a few snowflurries for most Maritime points today.

Western provinces had temperatures well above normal for this time of year. In Regina, 41 degrees was the high Wednesday, equalling the record set in 1902. The average temperature there in early January is two above.

Balmiest spot was Claresholm, Alta., which basked in a sunny 62 degrees. On the west coast, Vancouver and Victoria recorded 46 and 48 degrees respectively.

Another day or two of mild weather is the general outlook for the West.

In Quebec province, much colder air is expected along with light snow. Overnight temperatures were generally expected to be below zero.

Snow lies in scattered spots of Southern Ontario, where 20- or 30-degree readings were expected today.

Northern Ontario, enjoying temperatures a bit above normal, was expected to be colder tonight.

No Point in Summit Parley Dulles Tells Congressmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dulles has told congressmen emphatically there is no point now in holding new summit talks with the Russians.

Both Democratic and Republican members of the House of Representatives foreign affairs committee seemed to agree with Dulles on this point Wednesday after a three-hour secret briefing which also touched on most other major international issues

Committee members gave reporters a partial fill-in on the testimony. Dulles will appear before the Senate foreign relations committee today.

Representative James Fulton (Rep. Pa.) said he made a firm request to the secretary that Harold E. Stassen, President Eisenhower's disarmament adviser, "either fish or cut bait and stop running a campaign for governor out of the White House."

The Pennsylvania congressman said Dulles "seemed plenty interested" in his request. Dulles is reported at odds with Stassen over what the U.S. position should be on negotiating with the Russians.

HAUL CAR FROM RIVER

BRACEBRIDGE (CP)—About the same time Walter Wilson of Toronto was reporting his car stolen Tuesday night, a truck was hauling it from the bottom of the Muskoka River—120 miles away. Police said thieves apparently took the car from Toronto to Bracebridge, pushed it into thin ice and it plunged through.

Civic Officials Wonder How to Pay for Subway

TORONTO (CP)—Four years ago civic officials began dickering over the direction of a second subway. Now they're wondering whether they can scrape up the almost $200,000,000 either of two proposed routes would cost.

So far, the only thing conceded by either side in the battle of the planners is that Toronto must have a second subway. Otherwise, says W. E. P. Duncan, Toronto Transit Commission general manager, by 1978 the TTC will be out of business.

Mr. Duncan spoke Wednesday during the second day of a special meeting of Metropolitan Toronto council, called to debate the merits of two different subway routes. The meeting was adjourned until Saturday.

The TTC wants a straight east-west subway along midtown Bloor Street. Metropolitan planning board says Toronto's needs would best be served by a U-shaped subway with its eastern and western ends along Bloor and its eastward extension, Danforth Avenue, but with a sag south to Queen Street in the middle.

Metropolitan finance commissioner G. Arthur Lascelles threw his thoughts in the ring Wednesday. It Metropolitan Toronto has to begin financing subway construction immediately, he said, other works projects will be drastically curtailed.

Council chairman Fred Gardiner said if the council can't finance it, the TTC won't get its subway. Mr. Duncan said later he is not pessimistic about getting funds from Metropolitan council, representing the city and 12 suburbs.

Toronto first subway, opened in 1954, follows Yonge street for 4½ miles northward from Union Station. It cost almost $58,000,000.

Diamond King Laid to Rest In Rich Earth

DAR-ES-SALAAM, Tanganyika (Reuters)—The body of Canadian diamond king John T. Williamson has been committed to the earth which yielded the sparkling riches that made him a multi-millionaire.

The shy, fabulously wealthy bachelor died Tuesday night in his unpretentious home at the Mwadui mine near here at the age of 52.

Hundreds attended his burial Wednesday in a simple cemetery not far from the baobab tree in Mwadui where 17 years ago he found the lone diamond which led to his discovery of the world's richest diamond deposit.

One of the chief mourners was Indian lawyer I. C. Chopra, who financed the then-young Montreal geologist on the safari which led to his find in 1940 after six lonely years of prospecting in the jungles and plains of East Africa.

The government of Tanganyika was represented at the funeral by the senior provincial commissioner, S. A. Walden.

TRIBAL CHIEFS ATTEND

Almost every tribal chief in the arid, dusty district of Shinyanga trekked into Mwadui. Hundreds of Africans and employees of the Williamson mines stood by the graveside.

Brucker Accepts Gavin's Request For Retirement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker has announced he is "reluctantly approving" Lt.-Gen. M. Gavin's request for retirement from the army.

He said he had tried once more to get the general to change his mind, even after Gavin had informed the Senate preparedness subcommittee Wednesday that his decision to retire was final.

Gavin announced last weekend he was in basic disagreement with several defence department policies.

Card Sharks, Dice-Throwers Enter Cuba as 'Technicians' As Govt. Pals With Gamblers

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Big-shot American gamblers have moved in on this island republic's free-wheeling, million-dollar gambling industry — and they have the blessing of a government that gets a sizable cut of the take.

Card sharks, dice-throwers and roulette wheel operators — all classified for visa purposes as technicians—have swarmed into Cuba on the heels of American bosses who have taken control of 10 big Cuban casinos.

Among them are some underworld characters long identified with old Murder Incorporated and other so-called syndicates.

Among them, too, are two gamblers sought for questioning in the investigation of the slaying of gambler Albert Anastasia in a Manhattan barber chair Oct. 25.

They are Santo Trafficante, alias Louis Santos, 43, of Tampa, Fla., and Joseph Silesi, alias Joe Rivers, 61, of New York

New York District - Attorney Frank S. Hogan announced in New York Tuesday night that they are wanted only for questioning and not as the actual killers.

Americans have poured millions of dollars into the construction of new, super-luxury hotels along Havana's Malicon Sea Boulevard.

And they expect to get it all back in a short time from the tens of thousands of dollars raked in nightly over the gambling tables here.

The crews imported from the United States have come into Cuba under two-year visas. Usually Americans working here get only six-month visas.

The Cuban government's interest in encouraging gambling seems mainly based upon reaping millions of tourist dollars. It issues casino licences to any enterprise that has $1,000,000 or more invested. The fee is $25,000 annually. In addition, the government gets a big cut out of the enormous returns from thousands of slot machines.

Word Blizzard Has Abated, Hillary Will Assist Fuchs

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters) A storm of words as furious as a polar blizzard has abated as both sections of the combined Commonwealth Antarctic expedition. patch up their differences.

Sir Edmund Hillary, leader of the New Zealand team, promised to "assist with all our resources" a bid by the British team led by Dr. Vivian Fuchs to complete the first overland crossing of the Antarctic.

Hillary promised to get more fuel to the supply cache at Depot 700, and Fuchs radioed he would appreciate the move but didn't want risks taken.

Early this week Hillary, whose task is to assist Fuchs, told the British team they should not attempt to complete their 2,100-mile snow-vehicle trek with the dangerous Antarctic winter approaching. Fuchs replied that he was going ahead with the original plans—if necessary, without the help of the conqueror of Mount Everest.

Hillary's stand drew hot support from most quarters here and icy comment in Britain

Fuchs, weeks behind schedule in his advance from Shackleton base on the Southern American side of the continent, Wednesday reported his position at 260 miles from the pole.

In a radio-telephone interview with the New Zealand Press Association, Hillary said Wednesday he was "deeply shocked" when he learned that his advice to Fuchs to call off the expedition for a year "had been battered around in the press."

Charles Bowden, chairman of the New Zealand expedition headquarters, explained here that the Hillary-Fuchs exchange was released to the newspapers in error.

"WHAT ARE YOU DOING THIS EVENING, LILIAN?"

"My goodness! Where are you going for all that."

"I'm not GOING—I'm staying . . . staying at home for it."

"What's this . . . some private tutor coming to your house?"

"In a way, yes. Although this is a public tutor . . . it's the Toronto Daily Star. I'm tired, and I get the best relaxation from a good session with the Star."

"I see what you mean . . . you get information in the Star's complete coverage of the news—in words and the marvellous Picture pages."

"And I get education in all the subjects a woman wants to be well informed about . . . fashions, cooking, home management, movies."

"Well, I take the Star also. I too get a lift from all those things. And I learn a lot from the Star's brilliant contributors."

"I see you and I feel alike about the value of the Toronto Daily Star."

In Australia the home of A.C.W.W. president, Mrs. W. Berry, there are warm sunny skies. She expected that those of us living in Canada were deep in snow. She said there are such different climates, different foods, different ways of life. What a diversity, and still A.C.W.W. has one constant factor all over the world. Each group, everywhere is striving for greater friendship and understanding."

In closing she said: "You are grand people and I am proud to know you. I send best wishes for health, happiness and good fortune in the year that lies ahead."

Skating Makes A Come-Back

Always a popular sport among the younger generation, skating is rapidly finding favor with mother and dad. On Sunday afternoons many families can be seen enjoying themselves on the Belleville bay and harbor and on the many frozen ponds throughout the district. Booth Radio and Television Ltd. have even gone so far as to set up lights at their Marina so that skating can be carried on long after supper when all the family can be together. It's a sport that they can all enjoy together and it pays off in rosy cheeks and a healthy appetite.

Besides bringing the family together, it's an inexpensive pastime! Booth Radio and Television Ltd., 170 Front St., Belleville, will outfit the entire family with skates — from toddlers to mom and dad — with no money down and payments as low as 50c a week. They also have a good selection of used skates priced from $1.50 up for the budget shopper. — (ADVT.)

The factual possibilities of contact with "men" from other worlds are reported this week in THE STAR WEEKLY by Willy Ley, one of the country's foremost authorities on space science. CHICAGO (AP)—Sugar Hart, who won't be 21 until next month, already is being tabbed as a top welterweight title prospect.

He flashed powerful combinations and fine poise Wednesday night against Larry Baker, a clever boxer whose crowding tactics did not give the youthful Philadelphian a chance to show his best.

But Hart handily won the 10-round bout receiving votes under the five-point maximum system of 49-41 by referee Frank Sikora, 49-40 from judge Howard Walsh and 49-42 from judge Harold Marovitz.

Hart weighed 147 and his opponent from Mount Vernon, N.Y., 146. The victory was Hart's 23rd in 27 bouts and he has won 19 of them by knockouts. Baker's record now is 21-12-3.

HODGE-PODGE

Russ Kowalchuk is sporting a new Volkswagon. Calls it Sputnik Third because it has been Russian around in circles . . . Stafford Smythe, the cutie, told Wren Blair when the Dunlops manager asked assistance for his defence corps, "We have a last place team in Rochester which some of your players could help. Anything I could give you would weaken your club. You have the best amateur team in Canada" . . . This from the same guy who, a few weeks ago, said, "Why send those guys (Whitby) over there (Oslo)" . . . Ominous rumors out of Pembroke have it that newly-appointed playing coach Gerry Plamondon is slated for demotion . . . At this time of writing the Lumber Kings had yet to register a win, or score a goal under the Plamondon direction . . . The Dunnies could finish with 60 points in the Eastern League providing they win their remaining six games. And right at the moment, this corner cannot see anything to stop them, unless it is the Macs here January 17 . . . If Wren Blair can sign another top-flight defenceman, the Whitby overseas playing roster will be complete. . . . Bill McCormick draws attention to the first annual swim meet being held at Albert College Saturday. The opposition will be the Peterborough club. There will be 16 events which get under way at 2.30 p.m. . . . Bob Taylor, Nobber Day and Shaker Baker are going guns with the Madoc Blue-and-Whites. Taylor scored four unassisted goals the other day. Manager Ken Holmes says he has the best intermediate "C" club in the district. Time will tell . . . With the Whitby Dunlops showing terrific power of late, and they should, many of their former critics are jumping on the Blair bandwagon. Not a few are saying the Dunnies should win it more or less easily. Being a firm believer that the ball game is not over until the last man is out, we take these statements with the proverbial grain of salt . . . And a lot of people are under the impression that the Dunnies and the Russians will meet for the title. Don't believe it, bubs. Sweden, in case you don't know, are the current world champions. The Czechs and Americans, have teams that are not to be sneezed at. Other nations might pull surprises, too —

MORE HODGE PODGE

Another link in the community centre chain will be forged next week when the Prince Edward County Centre will be unofficially opened. It is the third centre to be completed in this immediate district in the past two years . . . Minnie Menard and Joe Lepine were named players of the week last Friday, with Minnie drawing the Carlings silver tankard . . . Story out of Whitby has it that the CAHA has clamped down on excess personnel accompanying the Dunlops to Europe. It includes injured player Fred Etcher, assistant manager Wally Brabin and two others. Efforts are being made to raise funds to send the boys with the club . . . The plight of other clubs which fell by the wayside is giving Frank (Fearless Fosdick) Orr of the Cornwall Standard Freeholder some solace. He laments the lengthy loss string of his beloved Chevies in columnar doggerel which must have taken some load off his tearful chest . . . The McFarland management is angling for the services of a topflight defenceman who, if obtained, will round out their roster for the season . . . Bart Bradley got a look at things from the official point of view the other night when he assisted in refereeing the Peterborough-Belleville junior game. "It's a lot easier on the eyes," said Bart, "while the change did me a lot of good" . . . Wonder whatever became of the Duncan twins? . . . 'Ice Lawyers' Will Get Gate Says Campbell

MONTREAL (CP)—The "ice lawyer" who illegally disputes official decision on penalties, offsides and other hockey incidents will get short shrift in the National Hockey League starting Saturday, president Clarence Campbell said Wednesday.

"We'll pitch them off the ice," Campbell warned in disclosing that a crackdown was agreed on unanimously Monday by club owners meeting at New York.

"This arguing and yakking has to stop," Campbell said. "It adds nothing to the game and delays it. I don't know where the players get the idea that it adds anything.

"Perhaps they think it makes them look competitive," he said, adding he'd noted 21 protests by one player at a recent game.

The new directive is en route by mail to all clubs and Campbell says he set Saturday as the deadline "simply to make sure that all players have been fully warned to expect penalties."

It is aimed at the captains of the clubs or their alternates, not exceeding three a team, who in the words of the rule book "alone shall have the privilege of discussing with the referee any questions relating to interpretation of [illegible] rules which may arise."

[illegible] rule book states on arguing: "Only the captain or the alternate captain on the ice at the time of the stoppage of play shall have the privilege of discussing with the referee any point relating to the interpretation of rules. Chuvalo Offered Fight With British Champ

TORONTO (CP) — Tommy McBeigh, manager of Toronto heavyweight George Chuvalo, said Wednesday Chuvalo has been offered a title fight March 24 with British Empire champion Joe Erskine.

Mcbeigh said he will not decide on the offer until after Chuvalo's fight here Jan. 27 against Julio Mederos of Cuba.

The offer was made by London promoter Jack Solomon last week. Mcbeigh said terms have not been discussed. He said his answer will depend on the outcome of the Mederos fight and on prospects of a bout with Yvon Durelle of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., Canadian and British Empire light-heavyweight champion.

Bears Blank Indians 7-0

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—Hershey Bears exploded in a scoring spree to defeat Springfield Indians 7-0 Wednesday night in an American Hockey League game.

Willie Marshall, the league's leading scorer, celebrated his return to action after an injury by scoring twice in the first period.

In the second period Lorne Davis, Dune Fisher and Obie O'Brien scored three goals in 48 seconds. Bob Solinger polished off the period with a slap shot that boosted Bears' margin to 6-0. Fisher added the final goal in the third period.

Pintsize Ranger Nabs Three To Become 1st Hat-Tricker; Tops Loop Snipers With 23

By MARTY GOODMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Camille Henry, the National Hockey League's leading goalscorer, is two goals from the point at which New York Rangers start paying him bonuses.

The Quebec City native, who will celebrate his 25th birthday Jan. 31, zoomed to a 23 total Wednesday night when he became the first Ranger to score three goals in one game this season.

The third goal, with 25 seconds left in the game, gave New York a 5-5 tie with Toronto Maple Leafs in the only game scheduled.

Henry's previous high was 24, in 1953-54 when he won the Calder Memorial Trophy as rookie-of-the-year.

WENT INTO SLUMP

He slumped after that and it wasn't until the last half of last season that he started to produce again for Rangers, scoring 14 goals in 36 games.

To keep him scoring this season, coach Phil Watson promised bonuses as soon as he passed his rookie mark.

Camille added his own inspiration—He became engaged to be married.

He scored New York's first goal of the season and he's been hitting at a steady clip since. And Rangers, though they lag 15 points behind Montreal Canadiens, still are in second place, four points ahead of Boston Bruins.

PULLS GOALIE

His third goal came after Watson had replaced goalie Marcel Paille with a forward in the last minute of play.

His first goal gave Rangers the lead in the game and his second, along with one by Andy Bathgate, tied the game at 4-4. George (Red) Sullivan was the other New York scorer. Henry had an assist to go with his three goals.

Leafs went into the lead again with 10 minutes left when Barry Cullen scored while Bill Gadsby and Parker MacDonald were in the penalty box. Other Toronto scorers were Dick Duff with two, Frank Mahovlich and George Armstrong.

The tie moved the fifth-place Leafs to within one point of Detroit Red Wings. Toronto leads Chicago Black Hawks by two points.

Why Shouldn't They Win?

These Poor Slumping Dunnies 'Up' Only Once, Moans Blair

WHITBY (CP)—The way manager Wren Blair tells it, Whitby Dunlops have been "up" for only one game this season—Nov. 22's 7-2 victory against the touring Moscow Selects.

It's a thought that makes the Dunlops' rivals shudder in the Ontario Hockey Association eastern division.

Since the Moscow game, the team that will represent Canada at the world hockey championships in Oslo, Feb. 28 to March 9, has won 18, lost five and tied two and now leads Belleville McFarlands by 18 points.

Dunlops rank one-two-three in league scoring and hold six of the 10 first places.

"Our guys are thinking of only one job," said Blair. "All the other teams are up against us. But before games our guys talk about things like how much luggage they're going to take."

EASY COMPETITION

Consciously or not, Whitby is romping through league play like the class of Canada's amateur hockey talent the 1957 Allan Cup champions are.

Playing coach Sid Smith said: "They hate to lose. It's tough to get up for these games and our first periods have been our worst. But then the boys get anxious and explode in the later stages."

Typical was Tuesday's game against Belleville. Whitby led 2-1 at the end of the second period. Dunlops won 8-2. Or Dec. 14, when Ottawa-Hull Junior Canadiens led Whitby 8-4 at the end of the second period. Dunlops won that game 10-8.

"This desire to win will reach a pinnacle in Oslo," said Blair. "Nor is this team simply satisfied to win. That's a good attitude. Show me a satisfied man and I'll show you a failure."

MAKES IT EASY

Blair is happy with the team's win streak. He says it makes it easier to point out mistakes and keep the team sharp.

"You can appeal to a winning team," he said. "You don't have to harp on them. No matter what you say to a player he's happy so he accepts the advice. He knows you're not on his back. If the team was losing the players would feel you were jumping on them."

Added Smith: "It's best to keep on the win trail. It's tough to get out of a slump."

Whitby's win trail now includes nine straight victories. During the 21 games since Dunlops played Moscow, they've scored 120 goals and allowed 60.

Blair is still seeking one defenceman to complete the team before it leaves New York Jan. 29 for a 14-game exhibition tour in Europe and the championships in Oslo. He's especially happy with the performance of three additions this year—Smith, Jack Mackenzie and Connie Broden.

"They're playing as a line and Broden (obtained two weeks ago) has really given it spark," he said.

Three others ranking high offensively are Bob Attersley, Buz Gagnon and Charlie Burns, who lead the league's individual scoring.

"I don't know if we're going to win but if we do—and I think we have the team—it'll be because everybody played their hearts out," said Blair. "They all know there's no second chance and I think they'll make good the first time."

Texas Tombstone Got Nickname In Navy Fight

NEW YORK (AP)—You know about Hurricane Jackson, Sugar Ray Robinson and Rocky Marciano. Maybe you remember Georges Carpentier as The Orchid Man and Luis Firpo as The Wild Bull of The Pampas."

But chances are you never dug anybody called Tombstone.

Charlie (Tombstone) Smith, from Waco, Texas, is in New York because promoters had to make a hurried sub fight for Friday night when Canada's Yvon Durelle was found to be suffering from food poisoning. Smith was matched with Joe Miceli and Durelle's light-heavyweight bout with Tony Anthony was shunted back to Jan. 31.

Tombstone, a welterweight, was round Madson Square Garden Wednesday. Everybody wanted to know about the name.

"ALL RIGHT WITH ME."

"I was in the navy," he said. "I never fought before but they gave you ten bucks to fight so I thought I might as well try. Everybody had to have a nickname so they put me down as 'Tombstone' and it stuck. It's all right with me. There's an awful lot of Charlie Smiths around but not many 'Tombstones'."

According to another version, a sailor took one look at the rangy six-foot Smith and said "why he looks like a tombstone."

In any event, Smith had an 18-fight winning streak until he lost to middleweight Charlie Josephs in August. Then he went to Italy and lost a decision to Ciancarlo Garbelli in Milan just before Christmas.

The 24-year-old Smith has a 24-5 record for 29 pro fights while Miceli is a 29-year-old veteran of 92 scraps.

Jean Beliveau Working Out With Canadiens

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Beliveau, out of NHL action since Dec. 12 with a rib separation, has been working out with Montreal Canadiens but isn't expected to play for a game or two.

"It's the kind of injury that has to heal itself," said Frank Selke Jr., "and it would be taking a chance to send him back before, perhaps, next week."

Maurice (Rocket) Richard, the other long - term injured Canadien, should be skating next week, Selke said. His return to competition, after suffering a nearly-severed Achilles tendon in November, would involve "getting back in shape."

Selke said Doug Harvey, who pulled up with an ankle sprain during a workout Tuesday, "just might" play here tonight against Chicago. The decision was the doctor's.

McFarlands Hit Seasonal Low As Kingston Hands Them First Shutout

Fail to Dent Davis Armor in Lackadaisical Effort; Barclay in Nets Lone Star

KINGSTON (Special) — Belleville's retreating McFarlands looked anything but formidable last night in the Community Memorial Centre when a fired-up CKLC squad outshot them by 39 to 23 and outscored them by 4 to 0 in a strenuously contested Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" game. It was Belleville's sixth reverse in the last eight starts and the decisive result indicated that the chippy Macs have become demoralized.

Referee Gordon Fevreau, exhibiting the tops in leniency, called only four minor penalties against the overly aggressive visitors and assessed three against the locals whereas stricter supervision would have kept the penitents' beach over crowded. Big Joe Lepine drew three of the sentences while the warring Russ Kowalchuk escaped with one.

Much illicit boarding by aggressors employing the one-arm-free method went uncalled or undetected. There were occasions, too, when the Belles, who may not have heard about NHL President Campbell's latest directive against debaters, argued points with the official. All in all it was not the most appealing attraction staged [illegible] this season.

[illegible]n Barclay who replaced Gordon Bell as guardian of Belleville hemp, did as well as could have been expected under prevailing conditions. He could have sued his teammates for non support or for their laxity in permitting the Cookmen to amass a high total of thirty-nine shots. Barclay, in fact, qualified as being the lone star in the McFarland entourage.

Lepine drew the first penalty at 1.30 in the opening period and during the remainder of that session Feveau refrained from waving anybody away although he did have ample cause to so act. Don Senior, aided by "Whitey" Youngberg and Ken Linesman, opened the tallying at 9.46. Later Kowalchuk was knocked down in a collision with sturdy Joe Levandoski. During the last five minutes competition became unduly rough but Fevreau ignored all incidents.

[illegible]rly in the middle round the Belles infringed the Clarence Campbell edict and "Bep" Guidolin laid hands on linesman Ken Partis when an offside was called against the visitors at the Kingston blue line. Nobody was penalized but later Jean Gauthier, who offended twice, Lepine, Colvin and Kowalchuk were handed enforced rests.

The distraught Macs made the best showing in that middle period when they were outshot by only 11 to 10, but their marksmanship was as faulty as was their penchant for firing at the wrong corners. In fact it did appear that they are in dire need of tutoring or more exercise in this vital department of play.

At 15.37 Levandoski, standing near the crease, propelled the puck into the cage and the goal [illegible] allowed notwithstanding [illegible] visitors heated protests.

Lepine, caught holding, was banished at the 2.37 mark in the final frame and during his absence Billy Colvin, aided by Bob Paul and Brian Anderson, beat Barclay with a close-in sizzler. Kowalchuk's escape following the slash that forced Don Thompson to seek repairs did not amuse the spectators.

As added insurance against an unlikely Belleville uprising, Ted Toppazzini, with Levandoski and Don Bellringer assisting, brought the tallying to a close at 7.22. "Moe" Benoit became a temporary casualty with the game nearing its close when he fell heavily to the ice after having lunged and plunged when attempting to body-check Bob Paul.

Labor Board Reserves Verdict On Application

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario labor relations board Wednesday reserved decision on an application by players of Toronto Maple Leafs hockey club to have the National Hockey League Players Association certified to represent them as bargaining agent.

In his summary argument, association counsel David Lewis said that despite "improper, unheard-of pressure" by the management of Maple Leaf Gardens, the players on the team are still unanimous in their request for certification of the association.

Lewis cited speeches made to Leaf players by Conn Smythe, managing director of Maple Leaf Gardens, and Gardens' lawyer Ian Johnston as examples of what he called "misdemeanors and misdeeds" by management.

ASKS DISMISSAL

Norman Matthews, counsel for the Gardens, asked for a dismissal of the application on the grounds that the players association was not a trade union under the Ontario Labor Relations Act.

He argued that a collective bargaining agent for a professional hockey team falls under federal labor jurisdiction.

Board chairman Jacob Finkelman refused Mathews' request for another vote among players to see if they still wanted the association. He suggested this would open the issue to a bombardment of propaganda by both sides.

Similar applications are pending before the national labor relations board in New York for U.S. players in the six-club league. An application is expected shortly for Montreal Canadiens' players. Detroit Red Wings' players voted against association representation several months ago.

Bowl-for-Ball Battle Rolls Merrily in LA

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Los Angeles Dodgers may be able to steal a base in suburban Pasadena before his opposition there has time to throw them out with a petition movement.

Pasadena's chief legal officer, for one, says he can't see any real obstacle—so far as the law is concerned—to an agreement under which Dodgers would rent Pasadena's Rose Bowl for a season or two.

City lawyer Frank Kostlan made the statement Wednesday night when asked about a threatened campaign aimed at keeping the baseball team out of the 100,000-seat football stadium.

The petition, if it got on the election ballot this June and was approved by the voters, would have the force of law. But the catch is that it wouldn't be retroactive, Kostlan says, and any contract the Dodgers might sign with the city before then would be valid until its specified expiration date.

NEED PARK IN APRIL

If there is going to be such a contract, it will have to be signed before the June election because the ex-Brooklyn club must get into a park by mid-April, when the National League season opens.

Many of the people supporting the petition live in the neighborhood around the bowl and feel the advent of the ball club would adversely affect their property values.

If the petition movement turns out to be an easily-hurdled obstacle, the big problems facing the Dodgers will be reaching an agreement on how much rent they'll pay and making the bowl suitable for baseball use.

Dodger officials are scheduled to resume negotiations with Pasadena officials Friday.

Fines Will Not Stop Brawling Claims Emms

BARRIE (CP) — Hap Emms, coach of Barrie Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, said Wednesday heavier fines will not stop fighting.

A meeting Sunday of coaches and referees increased the fine for joining fights to $25 from $10. Representatives were present from all clubs except Barrie.

Emms said the only thing the fine will do is put more money in the OHA kitty. He said:

"How could they pass a rule at a meeting without it being sanctioned by the OHA executive?"

Emms proposed that players engaged in fights that would call for a five-minute penalty be suspended for the rest of the game and pay a $20 fine.

Emms also proposed that when the number of suspensions are the same on each team, the players be replaced immediately to permit the teams to continue at full strength.

Emms said he will introduce the proosals at the next junior council meeting.

Will Dig for 50,000 Clams In Bing's Annual Golf Bake

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) Bing Crosby's friendly little golf tournament that grew up in a hurry opens its 72-hole stand today with a $50,000 jackpot up for grabs.

The crooner declared Wednesday the growth of his tournament continues to amaze him.

"When we first started in 1937 at Rancho Santa Fe, it was pretty small peanuts. Just a few pros and amateurs getting together to have some fun. It's grown to be one of the biggest in the country."

Crosby will be among the spectators. He's too busy with such things as televising 90 minutes of the final play Sunday to compete.

Most of the big-name golfers plus such celebrities as Bob Hope, Guy Madison, Randolph Scott and Dennis O'Keefe will take part. Three rugged courses on the Monterey Peninsula are played. The huge field of 280 is split into two groups—one plays at Monterey Peninsula Country Club and the other at Cypress Point today. Friday they switch. The final two rounds are over Pebble Beach.

WON LAST YEAR

Last year's winner, Jay Hebert of Lafayette, La., turned in a two-under-par 70 in practice Wednesday at Pebble Beach.

Cary Middlecoff, former U.S. Open champ and winner here in 1955 and 1956, fired a 69 in practice over Cypress Point. Veteran Gene Sarazen also posted a 69.

The weatherman wasn't as optimistic today as he was 36 hours ago. The forecast was for increasing cloudiness with a chance of rain tonight. Wind and rain have accompanied most Crosby tournaments.

Detroit industrialist B. C. Gould boosted the tournament from a $15,000 event in 1957 to $50,000. Of the total, $35,000 will be divided among low scorers in the pro division with a $4,000 first prize. The pro-amateur team prizes total $15,000 with a $2,000 award for the pro on the winning twosome.

All-Stars Whip Teepees 9-4 In Junior Tilt

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — St. Catharines Teepees, having things nearly all their own way in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series recently, Wednesday night found the combined opposition of top players from squads too much for them.

The Ontario Junior All-Stars defeated the league-leaders 9-4 in the first game of its kind ever staged in Ontario junior hockey.

They jumped into a 5-3 lead in the first period, made it 6-3 in the second and outscored Teepees 3-1 in the third.

Rudy Pilous, former Teepees coach now with the National Hockey League's Chicago Black Hawks, returned to coach his old squad for the last time.

Toronto Marlboros' Turk Broda coached the all-stars.

Centre Murray Oliver of Hamilton Tiger-Cubs scored three goals. Others came from Billy Forhan, Barrie, with two, Bob Nevin, Marlboros, Lou Angotti, St. Michael's, Pete Panagabko, Barrie, and Jerry Sullivan, Hamilton.

For St. Catharines, now heading the standings by 10 points, Ed Hoekstra, Stan Mikita, Bob Corupe and Matt Ravlich tallied.

Pembroke Clips Loss String Nips Ottawa-Canadiens 7-5

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Belleville McFarlands and Ottawa-Hull Canadiens, sharing second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A eastern series, failed Wednesday night to narrow the 18-point gap separating them from the runaway Whitby Dunlops.

Belleville fell 4-0 before fifth-place Kingston CKLCs, while Canadiens lost 7-5 to fourth-ranking Pembroke Lumber Kings.

Leading 3-2 at the end of the second period, Pembroke outscored Canadiens 4-3 in the final with two goals by Jim Maxwell and singles by Jack Giesebrecht and Bruce Giesebrecht.

Jack Giesebrecht and Gerry Plamondon, with two, scored the other Pembroke goals. Ottawa marksmen were Bob Boucher, with two, Gilles Tremblay, Bob Rousseau and John Annable.

Kingston, outshooting Belleville 39-23, counted single goals in the first and second periods and added two in the final.

Don Senior, Joe Levandoski, Billy Colvin and Ted Toppazzini were the scorers.

Although Ottawa and Belleville are tied with 30 points apiece, Ottawa has won only 10 games while Belleville's points come from 14 victories and two ties The Ottawa juniors are awarded three points for each win but are ineligible for the league playoffs.

The wins put Pembroke a point behind Ottawa and Belleville and increase of Kingston's advantage over the last - place Cornwall Chevies to seven points.

Unbeaten Madoc Shades Marmora By 5-4 Score

MADOC (Special) — Madoc Blue-and-Whites continued their undefeated way last night shading the Marmora Millionaires 5-4 in one of the best Intermediate "C" games played here in a long time.

The victory gave the homesters four wins in as many starts, but last night's verdict was awful close. They meet Campbellford Friday night on the latter's ice. In another league game Bancroft defeated Campbellford 7-5 in Bancroft.

The teams divided four goals in a close-fought first period with the homesters firing home a pair in the second frame while the Millionaires countered with one. The squads divided a pair in the third period with Marmora staging a closing drive that was too little and too late.

Fred Nickle was the scoring hero for the winners, bagging a trio of goals with Nobber Day firing one with two assists and McLellan getting the fifth marker. Bill Jones, Earl Cousins, Bert Brooks and Darrah were the Marmora triggermen.

The game was cleanly played with Referees Vern Goyer and Tim Williams handing out six penalties, the teams splitting the sentences. A crowd of over 400 fans watched a fast, keenly-contested game.

Bobby Beare, a youngster from Tweed who performed in the Madoc nets, came up with another fine effort, kicking out many Marmora blasts that were labelled.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was starting to get reddy to do my homewerk, and I said, Aw heck, gosh shang the luck, good night, heck.

Now nuthing can possibly be that serious, ma said, and I said, Sure it can. I meant to make a New Year resolution to do my homewerk right after dinner every night, and get it off my mind off my conscience and get it done, and now it's over a week after New Year's and I forgot to make the resolution. Darn it all, I said.

You're in a pritty serioux fix, but dont despair, there must be something you can do about it, pop said, and ma said, Goodness yes, let's all keep cool and maybe we can werk something out.

Well geeroozalem, how? I meen without waiting another whole year I said. Aw G, that's a heck of a note, I said, and pop said, Steddy old boy, it's always darkest before dawn, so keep a stiff upper lip, never say die and dont give up the ship.

That's the spirrit, put your mind to the problem and your shoulder to the wheel, ma said, The Russians put up a Sputnick, so you can at leest put up a fight, she said, and pop said, By gollies I've got a solution. Just pretend there's an exter week in the year, just for you, and today is your own private New Year's to make your resolution on, he said.

It dont seem the same, I said, and pop said, Well, maybe not. I was all prepared to make it absilutely legal by giving you an exter week's allowance, but if it dont werk it wont werk.

Sure it will, pop, I'm going to start right now, I said. Where's my books? I said, and pop said, Yewreeka, and ma said, 3 cheers.

Bankruptcy Petition Lists $51,938 in Debts for Contino

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—How does a well-known star, capable of earning $1,500 a week and not given to high living, manage to go bankrupt?

This is what I asked Dick Contino, the handsome accordionist who last week filed a bankruptcy petition listing $51,983 in debts.

The answer would be simple if the 28-year-old threw his money around. But he doesn't. He lives comfortably, but not lavishly by Hollywood standards. He drives a medium-price 1957 car. He lives in a $140-a-month apartment with his wife, beauteous Leigh Snowden, and their three-weeks-old daughter.

So how did it happen?

"I can't tell exactly," Dick said. "It's all very complicated, and it goes back a few years."

BACK 10 YEARS

The story goes back, in fact, 10 years, to when Dick won the Horace Heidt talent contest. He became a sensation and sued to get out of his Heidt contract so he could make some money on his own. That was the start of his long career in the courts.

Dick eventually got free, and his career zoomed. His top fee was $4,000 a week in Las Vegas. Then came the black day in his life: April 14, 1951. He was due to be inducted into the army, and he didn't show.

He served a term in federal prison, but later went into the army and saw duty in Korea. He returned to resume his career, and despite his fears he did very well

"I earned $80,000 the first year I was back," he explained. "The money was good, but I didn't feel I was progressing as an artist. I wanted to have the chance to do different things. I couldn't get any interest in featuring me on a network television show, so I took a local one, figuring if it was good enough, the networks would sign me."

KNOCKS HIMSELF OUT

Dick knocked himself out on the show, shelling out his own money to achieve quality. But nothing happened. He had a chance to do a dramatic role on Lux Video Theatre, playing a blind pianist. He did an excellent job, but again nothing happened.

The start of his financial downfall, he said, was a engagement in Reno. The income tax people discounted some expenses for his father, who always travelled with him, and the government picked up the entire Reno cheque.

"I suppose I could have fought it," Dick said, "but I was like the kid who touched a hot stove. I didn't want any more trouble with the government. I said to let them take the money."

Night club bookings became scarce. Dick took whatever jobs he could find, jumping all over the country and running up travelling expenses.

STARTED OWN BAND

"Then I was talked into starting my own band," he said. "They told me Lawrence Welk had made a success, maybe I could. But they didn't tell me I would have to foot all the bills."

The band did good business, but Dick was snowed under by the bills Owing money to a former agent and to the government, he had no other choice but bankruptcy. But he's hopeful about the future and wants to organize a new act that will make the most of his talents and get him out of his financial hole.

Initial Offering of Studio One In Hollywood Not Liked

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Let us hope that the initial offering of Studio One (CBS-TV) after it moved from New York to Hollywood is not typical of what is to become of this fine weekly dramatic program. If it is, live television drama is dying a painful death indeed.

Brotherhood of the Bell, the first west coast offering, was corn fresh from the melodrama popper Adapted by two writers from a David Karp novel of some substance, it emerged as a totally insubstantial bit about some global gangsters in 1976.

The stars assembled apparently did their respective best with the material provided. But if "drama" presumes to be a moving experience that casts some insight into human problems and relationships, then Brotherhood of the Bell was merely melodrama.

It was a great disappointment coming after a Studio One fall season in New York which was distinguished by some excellent dramatic offerings. It tempts those who believe in the entertainment value and artistic integrity of first-rate live TV drama to don sackcloth and ashes and chant a funeral dirge.

Will Studio One follow the decline that has characterized those two other live Hollywood-produced CBS-TV weekly drama programs, Playhouse 90 and Climax! this season? Climax! has forthrightly settled for melodrama. Playhouse 90, which had an excellent season last year and has presented a few good dramas this season, is wavering toward mediocrity.

It's an over-simplification to argue the fate of television drama on the basis of the general west coast emphasis on "big name" stars to frequent detriment of drama values. If the television medium cares a whit about the future of live drama, as opposed to melodrama, then it will have to foster some good writing.

The motion picture industry has learned you can't make a good picture without a good script. Why can't television learn the same lesson?

Some movie banking and production sources will trust a writer with a million-dollar investment. Rarely will television entrust him with one dramatic program costing $50,000.

You can buy good writers—up to a point. When you don't let them say what they want to, however, you have bought yourself a piece of second-rate dramatic goods—and second-rate entertainment.

Money certainly is an important element in nurturing good writing. But more important is to recognize that deep-seated desire in every good writer for honest self-expession.

IS IT DEATH EMBLEM?

A spokesman for the native Brotherhood of British Columbia says the totem design on the silver dollar minted to mark the province's centennial is a "death emblem" and no Indian will touch the coins. Other officials, such as Walter Kenyon (left), assistant curator of the Royal Ontario Museum, and Stephen Trenka of Toronto, designer of the coin, says this isn't so. Indian spokesmen say the totem is a mortuary pole but Mr. Trenka says the design is original and he never heard of the mortuary pole. (CP Photo).

Democrats Demanding Eisenhower Produce Specific Blueprints for Action on Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats called on President Eisenhower today to back up with specific blueprints for action the eight-point program he placed before Congress and the American people Thursday.

Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Senate Democratic leader, set the show-me tone of reaction to the proposals Eisenhower outlined in his "state of the union" message. Eisenhower said they are needed to meet the growing space-era threat of what he repeatedly called "Communist imperialism."

"The president has in general terms set forth some worthy objectives," Johnson said in an interview. "He has called for strengthening of our allies, greater understanding and commerce between nations and attempts to bring peace to the world. These have long been Democratic objectives.

"Now we are waiting for his blueprints for meeting those objectives. As soon as he lays them down, our committees will promptly consider his recommendations."

The Democrats control the committees because of their majority in Congress.

Although Johnson and House Speaker Sam Rayburn, (Dem. Tex.) both praised the Republican president's speech in statements Thursday, there was mounting evidence of Democratic disappointment that Eisenhower did not make any spectacular proposals for an immediate buildup in American military might.

Eisenhower was interrupted 41 times by applause during the 44 minutes he addressed a joint session of Congress in the House chamber.

The show of enthusiasm, like the world situation, differed sharply from that at the start of 1957. Only five rounds of applause interrupted the entire 1957 address to Congress.

The White House described Eisenhower as "very pleased" with the reception he received Thursday.

Rayburn said he was "glad to know the president is alive to what the American people are disturbed about—and this is the bickering and dissension among the (armed) services. . . ."

"I hope he gives (Defence) Secretary (Neil) McElroy the authority to get the job done regardless of who stays or who has to go."

A high administration official said Eisenhower has in mind a move to bolster the secretary of defence with additional authority over military spending.

This official said the president will personally direct the defence department reorganization plans and might recommend creation of a staff of military advisers, separate from the joint chiefs of staff, to help McElroy resolve disputes among the services.

Leading off his eight points with his reference to defence reorganization, Eisenhower called for a speedup in production of missiles, nuclear submarines and other modern weapons. Congress seems disposed to give him all the funds he might ask in this field—and possibly more.

There was evident opposition, however, to the president's call for continuation of foreign aid at a high level and continuation of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act for five years.

Cabinet Split May Enhance Macmillan's Public Support

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Macmillan seems to have turned a serious clash inside his cabinet to the political advantage of himself and his Conservative party.

Instead of finding his position with the general public weakened, Macmillan actually may come out stronger from the dispute over the government budget which produced the surprise resignation of the chancellor of the exchequer, Peter Thorneycroft.

For now Macmillan, as he tours the Commonwealth on this first anniversary of his taking office, stands at home as the defender of the welfare services — as the moderate politician who refused to cut government expenditures on such things as free milk for children and aid to expectant mothers.

The announced reason for Thorneycroft's resignation Mcn- that the relatively small sum of £50,000,000 be cut from the estimate of government expenditures for the fiscal year beginning April 1. This would have kept 1958-59 spending at this year's level.

Macmillan's letter accepting the resignation made it plain that the prime minister thought welfare services would have had to be cut if the chancellor had won his fight.

Opposition Leader Hugh Gaitskell and his chief Labor party lieutenants appear to be at something of a loss to know how to capitalize on the opening Thorneycroft's quitting normally would give them.

For years Labor has fought with the battle cry, "No fiddling about with the social services." The party could hardly give full support now to Thorneycroft on what its own followers would regard as a "right wing" policy.

The present happy political prospects for the 63 - year - old prime minister are clouded by two big ifs. His Conservative government will be in real trouble in the months ahead if the pound begins to sink on international money markets or if inflation runs rampant at home.

"IVAN" TAKES REVENGE

BERLIN (Reuters) — Jergen Gradke, 19, an East Berliner, has been jailed for five months for painting the anti-Russian slogan "Ivan go home" on a factory wall, the anti-Communist investigating committee of free jurists reported Thursday. An East Berlin court convicted him of "anti-social" behavior.

Persons Seeking Jobs Doubled

OTTAWA (CP)—Persons applying for jobs with National Employment Service almost doubled between mid-November and late December, Labor Minister Starr told the Commons today.

Registrations totalled 698,153 at Dec. 26, against 352,144 in mid-November. A year earlier, they were 387,327.

The December figure is the highest since the National Employment Service was set up in 1940.

Mr. Starr gave the figures to the Commons in response to a question from Paul Martin (L—Essex East), whose automobile-manufacturing city of Windsor is particularly hard hit by unemployment.

The minister added that the job registrations with National Employment Service do not represent a true figure on increased unemployment.

It had been increased somewhat this year by the fact that fishermen were included, by relaxation of regulations governing married women and by advancing of the date for seasonal unemployment insurance benefits from Jan. 1 to Dec. 1.

Mr. Starr gave no estimate of absolute unemployment. The last government estimate was made Dec. 17, when the figure was calculated at 292,000, as of Nov. 16.

'We Are All Bad Seed' Says Note After Child Killing and Suicide

RENO, Nev. (AP)—"We are all bad seed," read a note left by a wealthy insurance executive's estranged wife.

Her bullet-torn body and those of the couple's three children were found side by side Thursday on a bedroom floor of their $50,000 home.

Victims of what police described as child killing and suicide were Mrs. D. Yvonne Caveenaugh, 34, recently released from a mental hospital, and her children, Anthony, 9, Carol, 8, and Kevin, 4.

Robert Cavenaugh, who had been separated from his wife more than six months, was in Chicago when the shootings occurred, apparently after the two older children returned from school Wednesday.

Police told of blood-spattered and bullet-pocked upstairs walls, indicating that Mrs. Cavenaugh may have chased and shot the children in various rooms before bringing them downstairs to place the bodies in a row on a blanket in her lavish bedroom.

The children's bodies were riddled by bullets from a .25-calibre automatic found beside their mother. Police said more than 20 shots had been fired.

A note tacked to the door said: "We are all bad seed. There never were four more unhappy and unhealthy people, and it's getting worse every day."

Liberals' Convention Will Be Flooded With Motions

OTTAWA (CP) — Most major functions have their organizational frustrations and crises. Trying to fit 300 proposals into five hours of discussion time may prove the big frustration of next week's Liberal convention.

The party, seeking a new leader and possibly some new ideas on how to get back into power, is being flooded with proposals. So many resolutions are pouring in from across the country it appears only a fraction will get an airing at the three - day gathering opening here Tuesday.

George Marler, provisional resolutions committee chairman, figured he would get some 200 resolutions at the most. The former transport minister said he had been happy with that thought, feeling 200 would certainly be an indication of cross-country interest in the party's destiny.

Now he has more than 300 and more may be coming in. And the convention has allocated only five hours for report of committees and consideration of resolutions from the floor.

This compares with some 12 hours allocated to various speakers. In fact the party has scheduled more than 35 speeches, more than double the number scheduled by the Progressive Conservatives at their convention here a year ago last December.

Liberal party conventions are a rarity. The one next week will be only the fourth since Confederation. The last was held in 1948 when Louis St. Laurent, now retiring, won the leadership.

A demand that the party call a convention every two years was voiced by the Ontario Young Liberals Association at its Presqu'Ile Point conference last September. At least one delegate has stated he will reiterate this call when the convention opens.

But perhaps the greatest controversy may touch on the old age pension issue.

Toronto Trinity delegate Ben Nobleman says he will demand the party seek another $10 boost, lifting the pension to $65 a month. The Liberals increased the payment to $46 from $40 early last year and the Progressive Conservatives raised it to $55 last fall. Mr. Nobleman argues that it was the "skimpiness" of the Liberals' $6 increase that caused the party's downfall at the June election.

Will Make Health Insurance Costs Aid Effective July 1

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government's plan of sharing costs of a health insurance program will become effective with individual provinces next July 1, under a proposed legislative change announced in the Commons today by Health Minister Monteiith.

Mr. Monteith said the government intends to introduce legislation to this effect at the next session of Parliament.

At present the federal offer, originally proposed by the former Liberal administration, calls for the entry of at least six provinces with at least half of Canada's population before the scheme would become effective.

The minister told the House the government will propose that this clause in the original bill be repealed.

In place of it, a new section would permit federal participation with any province that has made an agreement with the central government and has a hospital insurance law in force at July 1, 1958.

Mr. Monteith said he is confident that at least three or four provinces will try to have plans ready to go into operation by July 1. He did not identify them.

He felt tha most, if not all, of the others also would soon have plans operating.

He said the change in the scheme will advance the starting date. Previously it had been expected the plan would not start in any province before Jan. 1, 1959, when Ontario plans to put its scheme into operation.

Former Liberal health minister Paul Martin welcomed the announcement. But he asked whether the government has made up its mind to keep its election promise to include tuberculosis and mental patients under the scheme's coverage.

Mr. Monteith said the government is not prepared to make any further announcement at this time.

Stanley Knowles, deputy CCF leader, said his party also wants to see TB and mental patients covered, but it welcomed the announcement.

Four provinces now have hospital care plans in effect. They are British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Newfoundland, and presumably these would benefit from an early start in federal participation.

18 New Letters by Bulganin Outline Summit Parley Plan

PARIS (Reuters) — North Atlantic Treaty delegates meeting here decided today the Western powers would be prepared to hold talks with Russia provided there were thorough preparations beforehand, conference sources said.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia's latest and most insistent demand for an East-West summit conference on crucial cold war issues got intensive study—and a cold reaction—in official Washington today.

State Secretary Dulles was expected to respond informally at an afternoon press conference to the new manoeuvre by Premier Bulganin.

In a message to President Eisenhower, Bulganin said he proposes to call an East-West summit meeting, perhaps in Geneva, in the next two or three months. Moscow radio said similar letters went to 18 other countries both East and West—members of the NATO and Warsaw pacts.

At the White House and the state department there was no evidence that the United States intends to change its basic policy against having a new top-level meeting under present conditions.

SETS CONDITIONS

The policy as set forth by Dulles on various recent occasions is that any such conference must be preceded by careful diplomatic exploration and evidence that the Soviet government is prepared to make concessions in its position on such issues as disarmament and German reunification.

Officials here were aware, however, that Bulganin's new diplomatic broadside may generate new hope in Europe that something can be accomplished toward reducing the dangers of a devastating nuclear war.

LONDON (AP)—Premier Bulganin's latest Russian proposal for summit talks has blunted the impact on western European opinion of President Eisenhower's call for peace through strength.

The American leader had to share space with Bulganin, and in some cases even received less attention than the Soviet premier.

But there were no immediate signs that Bulganin had caused new divisions of opinion in Western ranks.

Rather, western Europe's newspapers gave their readers the impression that Eisenhower and Bulganin were engaging in a dialogue of peace—a conversation that did not fit together too well but was of tremendous importance for the entire world.

Except in the Communist papers, editorial writers support the lines of the president's "state of the union" message. But there are doubts whether the president can secure final congressional approval for his expensive and complex program.

Bulganin's note Thursday to governments of almost a score of East and West governments said the Kremlin is preparing to call a summit conference at Geneva "in the course of the next two or three months."

Newspapers point out that this note amounts to a summary of all Soviet proposals made in the last 12 months. Some say, too, that Bulganin used a tricky kind of timing.

Bulganin not only had his proposals hit world news channels while these channels were handling the Eisenhower message, but the Soviet premier made his latest move while the Western powers still were considering their replies to messages from him last month.

NEW SPECULATION ABOUT ELECTION GOING ROUNDS

Provoked by Reply Given by Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP) — When will it be and which party will precipitate it?

These were central questions in a new round of speculation on the next election provoked Thursday by a Commons reply by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Main attention of speculators was on the Liberals. What will they do once they have chosen their new leader next week?

The prime minister's reply was made to Stanley Knowles, deputy CCF leader, who asked whether another federal-provincial fiscal conference will be called before the next federal election.

That said Mr. Diefenbaker, "would naturally defend on the conduct of my honorable friends opposite (opposition parties) and the degree to which they follow the course of action that they have followed in recent weeks."

INSPIRES SPECULATION

Some observers said this indicated the prime minister might decide to appeal to the people soon on grounds his government can't get on with its program in its present minority position. Progressive Conservatievs hold 113 of the 265 Commons seats.

J. W. Pickersgill (L-Bonavista-Twillingate) asked whether Mr. Diefenbaker's reply meant the government won't go to the voters "unless defeated in this House."

Mr. Diefenbaker didn't reply. But an exchange of shouts arose among members and Mr. Pickersgill finally made this parting shot: "That's what he said."

But while some tried to figure out what the prime minister might have been getting at, others turned to examine possible Liberal moves.

The party chooses a successor to Opposition Leader St. Laurent at a convention here next week. Will their new leader try to topple the government as soon as possible after his selection?

Or will he, as some party strategists are known to favor, do his best to leave the Conservatives in power in the belief they will eventually be their own undoing?

TAKE YOUR CHOICE

At this point, you could pretty well pay your money and take your choice of answers. Both CCF Leader Coldwell and Social Credit Leader Low said they feel that neither the government nor the Liberals are in a position to bring on an early election at this time.

For one thing—how could the government rationalize a request on its part to dissolve Parliament and go for a new vote unless it was defeated in Parliament?

For another thing—what issue before Parliament could the Liberals use to vote down the government? Mr. Coldwell couldn't think of any.

Present tsanding in the 265-seat Commons is: Progressive Conservatives 113; Liberals 106; CCF 25; Social Credit 19; Independents 2.

Bell Telephone Gets Two-Fifths Of Boost Sought

3 Per Cent Rate Increase Will Yield $10,318,000

OTTAWA (CP) — Bell Telephone Company's rates in Ontario and Quebec will go up by an average three per cent Jan. 31 under an authorization granted today by the board of transport commissioners.

It will mean an average boost of about four per cent in monthly rates on residential phones, 6.7 per cent on business phones and slightly over one per cent on long distance tolls within the two provinces.

Charges on calls to points outside the two provinces are not affected. Some long distance rates will go down.

On monthly residential rates, the increases generally are 10 or 15 cents a month for two-party service—the most common type—and 20 or 30 cents a month for one-party lines. The amount varies with the size of the community.

CUT FIRM'S REQUEST

In awarding Bell the first rate increase since 1952 for its 2,800,000 phones in the two central provinces, the board cut down sharply on what the company sought in its rate application filed last August.

The board gave Bell roughly two-fifths of what it asked, allowing it rates which the board calculated would give the company an additional $10,318,000 a year. Bell's operating revenues for 1958, without the increase, were estimated at $334,216,000.

The company had applied for increases that would have yielded some $24,000,000 or a seven-per-cent increase in revenue.

Of the prospective increase sought, the board knocked off $10,000,000—the largest chunk—by calculating rates on a permissive level of earnings of $2.43 per share of common stock against the $2.65 asked by the company.

DEBT-STOCK RATIO

It threw out another $2,000,000 by telling the company that it could pick up this amount by boosting its ratio of debt capital to the more expensive common stock. The debt ratio now is 37.8 per cent, and the board suggested it could go to 40 per cent.

Queen's Drive For $4,000,000 Goes Over Top

MONTREAL (CP)—A $4,000,000 campaign for Queen's University, Kingston, went over the top, campaign Chairman N. R. Crump of Montreal announced today.

Mr. Crump, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, said by the end of 1957 the drive had raised $4,051,500, with some delayed subscriptions yet to come.

It will provide part of the cost of a $9,200,000 expansion program to be carried out by Queen's over the next five years.

Construction already is underway on the university's $1,000,000 engineering building and a $900,000 studet residence.

WILL DISCUSS PENAL SYSTEM WITH PROVINCES

Justice Minister Makes Statement

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Davie Fulton says he hopes to call a conference of provincial attorneys-general "in the reasonably near future" to discuss a revamping of Canada's penal system.

He informed the Commons Thursday night he expects before long to present to the cabinet a number of suggestions, including some 15 to 20 amendments to the Criminal Code, to implement recommendations of the Fauteux committee on remissions of prison sentences.

Action might be taken at the next session of Parliament, but consultation with the provincial attorneys-general was needed beforehand. Some of the 44 recommendations in the 1956 Fauteux report required joint federal and provincial action.

He told Harold Winch, CCF—Vancouver East, during study of his departmental estimates, that the government already has initiated some action on its own.

IN 3 PENITENTIARIES

For example, automatic parole review of sentences — suggested by the committee headed by Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux of the Supreme Court of Canada — already had been instituted in three penitentiaries and would be established in the other five federal prisons as soon as possible.

Mr. Fulton did not name the three penitentiaries, but they were understood to be at St. Vincent de Paul, near Montreal, Kingston, and Stony Mountain, Man.

The present system requires that a prisoner apply for a parole before his case is reviewed by the justice department remissions service.

Mr. Fulton also said he expects to receive in a couple of weeks a report concerning the establishment of a parole board which would replace the remissions service.

U.S. Sometimes Flies H-Bombs Over Canada by Cabinet Permission

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Pearkes today in the Commons confirmed that American planes occasionally carry nuclear weapons over Canadian territory.

Mr. Pearkes said there is no risk to Canadian lives or property.

The U.S. was required to obtain advance permission from him before carrying out such flights, Mr. Pearkes added.

The minister was replying to W J. Henderson, Liberal defence critic, who asked about a Canadian Press report that American planes occasionally carry atomic or hydrogen bombs over Canada.

Mr. Pearkes said the planes carry nuclear weapons but added that he would not like to distinguish between atomic or hydrogen bombs.

Informants said outside the Commons that, in the case of each flight, the U.S. presents a formal request to Canada. This country's permission in each case had to be signed by Mr. Pearkes.

How many bomb-carrying flights have been made over Canadian territory by American planes could not be learned but the practice has been going on for a number of years.

The atomic or hydrogen bombs are in transit to American bases or in Alaska.

Routes for the flights are carefully worked out in advance and none goes near populated areas of Canada.

The bombs, of course, are not fused and there would be little if any danger of one exploding even if the plane crashed. Guards are put on the alert before the flight so that immediate action could be taken to avert any danger in event of an accident. However, there has never been an accident on any such flight.

Atomic or hydrogen bombs are not carried by American bombers on training flights over Canada. Neither do American interceptors carry nuclear-headed air-to-air missiles when they fly over Canadian territory. An agreement exists, however, that they would be permitted to do this in event of an emergency.

NEW ASSOCIATION TO MEET COUNCIL

Members of the Ameliasburg Township Ratepayers' Association will meet their new council at a meeting of the two groups to be held Monday, January 13th., at Tobe's County Gardens. The meeting has been called for 8 p.m.

Wallet, Money Turned in at Police Station

An as yet unknown resident who this morning dropped his wallet at the entrance to an alleyway off Pinnacle Street, is going to be a happy man when he finds it has been turned in at the city police station.

The wallet contained a fair sum of money and car keys—but no identification of any kind. The finder, a young Moira St. man, turned the wallet in at the police station.

The man's wallet in this case is safe, but the owner is no luckier than a Cannifton man who just prior to Christmas dropped his wallet as he got out of his car on Front St.

When he later missed his purse the shopper drove back to Cannifton thinking he had left it home. Finally he retraced his steps and found his wallet lying in the gutter at the entrance to an alleyway where he had dropped it getting out of his car.

The wallet had lain there over an hour, but the purse and its contents of more than $40 in cash, was still intact.

Bobby Hull Weds Girl Met in St. Catharines

"There's a destiny that shapes our ends, rough hew them how we will," said the English bard, William Shakespeare, and so it has proven true with Bobby Hull, native son of Point Anne, rookie player with the Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

When Bobby's exuberant vitality turned to the gleaming blades, he little dreamed that in the not too distant future, they would lead him to the girl of his dreams, lovely Judith Ann Learie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Learie of St. Catharines, when he played in that city with the St. Catharines Teepees.

As speedy with his wooing as with his puck chasing, Bobby "scored" and the young couple were married on his 19th birthday. The parents were given the news at the Leaf-Hawk game Saturday night.

The bride has completed her first term at the Hamilton Teachers' College.

Wing Members Enjoy Meeting At Station

Forty members of 418 (Belleville) Wing, RCAF Association, met in the social centre at RCAF Station Trenton last night to hear an address by Wing Commander Purchase on aviation medicine. The wing commander is senior medical officer at the air station.

Ejection seats, crash helmets, seat packs, oxygen masks and regulators, survival kits — all equipment carried by jet crews — were explained and the visitors learned something of the effects of gravity on aviators manning jet aircraft.

A tin of survival rations was opened and the contents distributed among the ex-airmen.

The February meeting is scheduled to be held in the lower lounge of the officers' mess and a "bunny hop" dance is on the agenda for some time in March.

Several new members were welcomed into the Wing, making the membership well over the 60 mark.

Flying Officer McNamara assisted W-C Purchase.

His licence was suspended for six months. A charge of careless driving was withdrawn. Police said the charge arose from an accident on Queen Street in Campbellford on the afternoon of December 31st when a truck driven by Beggs went out of control, crossed the roadway and clipped off a telephone pole and came to rest on a verandah after tearing up part of a sidewalk and several feet of hedge at the home of Mr. George Lucy on Queen Street. No one was injured in the mishap.

Greater Amount of Chemical Used May Be Due Low Water

Last summer's low water condition in the Bay of Quinte may have been a contributing factor for the necessity of greater amounts of chemicals having to be added to the water supply at the city water filtration plant during 1957.

During the year 258,600 pounds of alum and 19,490 pounds of chlorine were added to the city drinking water. In both instances the amounts were considerably greater than those added in 1956.

"The lower water conditions in the bay may have had something to do with the amount of chemicals required," Mr. O. H. Scott, utilities commission manager stated.

Water pumped to the city during 1957 totalled 1,373,967,000 gallons, as compared with 1,256,397,000 for 1956.

Wash water used to clear the filters totalled 100,670,500 as compared with 87,439,200 the year previous.

Total water filtered at the plant last year was 1,474,387,500, up 131,000,000 gallons over the year before.

The amounts of chemicals used to treat the water were proportionately greater, than the increased amount of water pumped, it was stated.

Backwashing of filters at the pump house is almost a continuous process with the filters being backwashed no less than 2458 times last year as compared with 1855 times the year before.

Maximum number of backwashes for any one day was 23.

The mount of sludge taken from the settling basins is proportionate to the amount of alum used and last year measured just over seven feet or 88 inches. A year ago sludge removed totalled only 55 inches.

As was the case in water usage, consumption of electricity in the city was also up last year.

In 1957 total number of kilowatt hours used was 59,147,460, up about 8.43 percent from the 73,000,960 kw. used a year ago.

Mr. Rollins succeeds John A. Weese, as chairman of the commission.

Only routine matters came up for discussion at yesterday's inaugural which saw Mayor Gerald B. Hyde welcomed to the commission as the city representative.

No one was injured.

More than 150 firemen led by Fire Director Raymond Pare fought the blaze which broke out in the stone building located at Lemoyne and St. Helen Streets in the heart of the city's financial district.

Hoses were mounted on roofs of adjacent buildings and firemen succeeded in preventing the flames from spreading to other structures.

Ont. Municipal Board Gives Zoning Law Temporary O.K.

TRENTON — Temporary approval to the present town zoning by-law was granted yesterday as the Ontario Municipal Board brought down their decision following an all-morning hearing in the town hall.

In giving the decision of the board, chairman William Greenwood said it was a very pleasant hearing giving rise to a very small amount of controversy for a town the size of Trenton. He said it was not uncommon to have a hearing continue all day "with dozens and dozens of citizens appearing before the board."

He said it was his opinion the town zoning plan had been well publicized both through the press and at meetings. He stated it had been explained that it is just a holding by-law to give the town some sound basis to work on, and time to form a final one which will be permanent and a more suitable one.

He said the period granted the town, six to nine months, "was a reasonable time for them to do this."

"The objections," he said, "which have been brought to light today have not been of a serious nature which would call for interference of the board. This is with the exception of the change brought to our attention by Mr. Carr concerning an error in the drawing of the plans. This will be corrected through the form of a by-law and we will instruct the town clerk to take the necessary steps.

"In making our decision," he continued, "the board also has in mind that the people concerned can appeal to the town council and, if they are not satisfied with the council's decision, they can appeal before this board. This by-law is prepared for, and is for, the betterment of the town although some citizens may suffer in a small way, but I do not feel that anyone, who appeared here today, will.

"I therefore rule," he declared, "temporary approval to the Trenton zoning by-law as presented here today until September 30, 1958 and subject to amendments."

Sitting on the board with Mr. Greenwood was C. F. Nunn, also of Toronto.

New Member Inducted Into Kiwanis Club

TRENTON — One new member was inducted into the Kiwanis Club and three other members were presented with perfect attendance pins when they met in the Gilbert Hotel last night.

During the short business meeting the new member, Doug Morphy, an accountant, was inducted into the club by past president Wayne Simmons and the Kiwanians presented with perfect attendance pins were Paul Tripp, six years; Norm McCue, four years, and Gerry Ireland, five years.

A letter from the Salvation Army was read by the chairman which thanked the Kiwanis for their help in delivering the food boxes around town on the day before Christmas. The letter was signed by Captain Bill Brown of the Salvation Army in Trenton.

Howard Aziz acted as treasurer for the evening in the absence of regular Treasurer Larry Beck, and was assisted by Carl Weese.

Members were urged to get cut and sell tickets on the "Follies of '58" show they will be presenting for three nights on February 4, 5 and 6. The show will feature the Rondeaunettes and will be presented at the Trenton High School with show times at 8.30 p.m.

Guest speaker for the evening was Wilf Picard of the Bata Shoe Company and chose "Who Owns Canada?" for his topic. He was introduced to the meeting by Ted Parker and was thanked by Al Duquid.

Shearwater Base Hockey Squad To Meet Flyers

TRENTON — A hockey game of considerable interest will take place on Sunday when the Trenton F.I.S. team will play an exhibition game with a team of Navy men from the Shearwater base in Halifax, N.S.

It is believed the Navy boys will be flown in during the weekend and the game will take place at 11.30 a.m. They will meet in the Community Gardens here in Trenton.

Little is known of the ability of the "boys from Shannon Park" but the F.I.S. team of the RCAF Station Trenton are well out in front in their own league. They have lost nary a game in ten starts during the season and appear to be well on the way to taking the local league championship.

It is expected this will be one of many exhibition games the "fly-boys" have lined up to fill in spare days during the hockey season.

In their first exhibition game the F.I.S. dropped a close 7-6 game with a team in Sudbury, Ontario, last week. This has been the only defeat this officers have suffered.

Bent Highway Sign Causes Car Damage

TRENTON — A bent highway sign caused an accident yesterday which damaged a car estimated at around $125.

A truck being driven by Joseph Annette of 68 Athol Street, Toronto, and owned by a firm in the same city, turned into Loblaw's on Dundas St. East and hit a highway sign which had been previously bent over.

The driver was forced to back up to go around the sign and in doing so ran into a car being driven by Joseph N. Mombourquette of 81 Henry Street, Trenton, which was proceeding west on Dundas St. East.

The right rear door and fender of car were damaged and injury to the truck was nil.

Local firemen again reported an "eventless" 24 hours with no calls recorded. The last call answered will be a week tomorrow when the firemen rushed out to a chimney fire on the Wooler road.

COMMUNITY CONCERT

An evening music which will be long remembered by the many who turned out despite the cold weather, was enjoyed Wednesday night at the new Trenton High School.

The "Nieuw Amsterdam Trio" played selections of chamber music written by the Great Masters in a program which lasted for two hours.

The program was sponsored by the Trenton Community Concert Organization, which has many more evening of pleasure lined up for music lovers during the winter months.

The trio was composed of Edith Mocsanyi at the piano, Joseph Rabushka playing the violin and Daniel Vandersall on the cello.

On January 30, Robert Kirkham, baritone, will be the guest artist. Arrangements for Mr. Kirkham's appearance in Trenton were made through New York Community Concert and will take place at the new high school.

Mercy Flight Ends in Death for Brockville Man

TRENTON — A mercy flight ended in death this morning when Lawrence Cummings, of Brockville, Ontario, died as the RCAF helicopter which was rushing him to hospital landed at the Montreal airport.

Mr. Cummings suffered bullet wounds of the head.

In Prescott, provincial police confirmed his identity as Lawrence Cumming, 61, of Cardinal, Ont. They said Mrs. Cumming found him outside their home Thursday night. They said foul play is not suspected.

The request for the flight came from the Ontario Provincial Police and Dr. Raymond of Brockville to the commanding officer of the local Ground Observer Corps Unit and the helicopter was dispatched around midnight last night.

Flown by F.O. Al Vanderwater of Trenton, the rescue craft picked up the patient and a Dr. Boss. The 'copter landed in Montreal at 6 a.m. but the victim died just as the craft landed.

Rescue Squad Brings Woman To Hospital

TRENTON — A call for help from a constable of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police stationed at Port Harrison on the east coast of Hudson Bay, whose ill wife required hospital attention, was answered by two Dakotas of the RCAF yesterday.

The Trenton plane landed at Uplands in Ottawa at midnight last night where an ambulance rushed Mrs. Gibson to hospital. Her condition was reported as favorable.

The aircraft returned to its Trenton base at 1 a.m., twelve hours after it had left for Great Whale.

Port Harrison is 800 miles due north of Montreal.

Identified only as Constable Gibson the message was received by the RCMP headquarters in Ottawa and immediately relayed to the top command of the RCAF.

It was reported that Mrs. Gibson was hemorrhaging due to a pregnancy complication and was in immediate need of hospital treatment.

RCAF headquarters in turn ordered a plane out from the Trenton base to fly to Great Whale, also on the east coast of Hudson Bay and about 200 miles south of Port Harrison. At the same time another Dakota was sent from a Mid-Canada Line site to bring the woman to Great Whale from Port Harrison.

The plane from Trenton was sent by the 102 Communications and Rescue Flight at 1 p.m. yesterday.

The crew of eight aboard the plane from Trenton were: Pilots, FO D. Leblanc, FO W. W. Godby and F-Lt. W. D. Bailey. Observer, FO L. P. Perry; radio officers, FO A. J. Gillies and FO Butt. Two crewmen aboard are Cpl. W. A. Bookham and LAC I. D. Mader.

Fourth Atlas Missile Fired Successfully

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. Air Force launched its fourth Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile at 10:45 a.m. EST today.

The giant missile took off in a puff of white smoke and a tremendous flash of flame.

It rose slowly through hazy clouds. Its bright trail of fire was visible for almost three minutes.

The thunder of its mighty engines—a primary motor and two boosters—could be heard even after the missile itself vanished in high clouds.

Shortly before disappearing into the overcast, the missile arched over gradually to the southeast, over the test range which extends 5,000 miles out across the Atlantic Ocean.

The Atlas is the American answer to Soviet intercontinental ballistic capability.

2ND "BEAST" OFF

This was the second apparently successful firing of The Beast, as the Atlas is known to its builders.

On the first two tries, the big missile started to get out of control shortly after launching and had to be destroyed.

The third launching last Dec. 17 was successful over a 600-mile range. The air force said the missile landed in a pre-selected target area.

Today's test was believed scheduled for about the same distance. No attempt to fire the Atlas over its full 5,000-mile range is expected until late this year. It is designed to carry a hydrogen warhead that distance in 25 minutes.

MADE SNEAK SHOT

The tall, silvery Atlas was rolled away from its working tower shortly after 8 a.m. EST.

About 10 a.m. the red ball which signifies an imminent shoot was lowered and it appeared that a "hold" had been called in the countdown toward the zero hour, originally set for 10 o'clock.

Forty eight minutes later reporters and photographers on the beach were caught by surprise when the Atlas blasted off with the red ball down. It was the first time such a sneak shot had been tried.

In Washington, the defence department reported the test came off "successfully."

THE STAR AND ITS ADVERTISING

The Toronto Star, believing in the selling power of newspaper advertising (as don't we all?) has been advertising in other daily newspapers in an effort to increase its circulation.

In its advertisements it has declared: "Everybody needs The Toronto Star."

Some of our contemporaries have been pained by this statement. The St. Catharines Standard, the Brantford Expositor and the Peterborough Examiner, each according to its views, have taken issue with the statement. The Standard was indignant. The Expositor called it an example of "mere ballyhoo." The Examiner was facetious, saying that there is indeed a very real need for the Star, for a variety of reasons none of which was those envisioned by the man who wrote the Star advertisement.

We find all this rather diverting. The Star's claim was exaggerated, of course, but no more exaggerated than some of the claims which it, and other newspapers, print for other advertisers. Even if everybody did need the Star, which they don't, that would be no slur on the Standard, the Expositor and the Examiner. We presume the Star paid these papers the compliment of offering them the advertisement (whether they accepted it or not we don't know.) The Star bought advertising space in The Ontario Intelligencer and we thank it for the vote of confidence. It was the nicest way we can think of for it to say to one and all that nobody can hope to bring a message to the Belleville market without using the pages of The Ontario Intelligencer. We like compliments, especially when we get paid for printing them about ourselves.

NATURAL CHILDBIRTH

Styles change — and this applies to more than women's clothes.

Recently there has been an upsurge in the popularity of "natural childbirth" and here and there voices have been raised denouncing hospitals as "unnatural" places for this type of event and advocating a return to the once-universal custom of women giving birth to their babies in their own homes.

There have also been some advocates of fathers being present when their sons and daughters first see the light of day.

Up around Sudbury, though, a trapper, Sulo (Pete) Pakarinen, carried the new styles to an extreme, when he delivered his own son. This was not a case of choice, but of necessity. The baby arrived ahead of schedule and roads were blocked.

Papa Pakarinen appears to have survived the ordeal in much better shape than most fathers, many of whom are reduced to jitters by nothing more nerve-wracking than a few hours spent in a waiting room.

"It's an experience every father should have," said Mr. Pakarinen, after the event.

Before reaching any conclusions, though, we suggest that we should wait until all the ballots are in.

We should hear from Mrs. Pakarinen. Perhaps she would have something pertinent to say on the subject.

SWEDES HAVE NO SECRETS

Customs differ. Over here, information given to income tax authorities is as secret as the latest discovery about ballistic missiles. In Sweden each New Year brings the publication of a book listing every Swedish taxpayer and stating how much money he made — or said he made — during the past year. It can be bought for $10 at any bookstore.

What a best-seller!

Come to think of it, this could be the gimmick we have been hunting to eliminate all taxes. Just jack the price up a bit and the revenue ought to meet all governmental expenses.

We understand now why the Swedes have been so successful in avoiding embroilment in wars. Much too busy on the home front.

Every worker knowing what his fellow worker gets; every person knowing his neighbor's income; every wife certain of what her husband's pay envelope contains before he takes his little rake-off! Wow, what a New Year's brawl that book must promote!

SHE KNEW

She knew she was wrong when they quarreled that night
And she heartlessly sent him away.
She knew that his conduct was perfectly right
But she scorned everything that he'd say.
She knew that the fault was all hers, and she knew
That she meant not a word that she said.
She knew that the charges she made were not true,
And she knew that her love wasn't dead.

She knew when she told him that she'd never be
At home when he wanted to call,
That never again did she wish him to see,
That she didn't mean it at all.
And she knew when he said that he'd never return
And grabbed up his hat in disdain
And angrily left, that tomorrow she'd yearn
And long to be with him again.

She knew, yes she knew she was wronging him then,
But you'd never have guessed it to hear
The way she denounced him that night in the den;
There was never a sign of a tear.
She heartlessly kept up her verbal attack
And her real feelings skillfully hid,
For she knew in her heart that he'd surely come back;
And the very next evening—he did.

Egrets Make Comeback

Roy L. Abbott in Milwaukee Journal

Forty years ago the American egret and the snowy egret appeared almost certain to join the passenger pigeon in the Valhalla of extinct birds. Today, however, the names of these two egrets are nearly synonymous with 20th century bird conservation.

The astonishing comeback of these strikingly beautiful herons is an outstanding example of what determined effort can do to save wildlife — the effort in this case being largely that of the National Audubon Society.

A hundred years ago, both species of these white plumed birds swarmed over the southeastern United States, particularly in Florida. Then, in the 1880's — while men were rapidly exterminating the unbelievable hosts of passenger pigeons — calamity came also to the egrets. Hunters were killing the pigeons to supply the food market, but the egrets were to die because of a price on their feathers.

The millinery industry had just discovered the immensely profitable idea that "the bird on Nellie's hat should be an egret" — not the whole bird, just the "scalp," the "scalp" being any part of the egret's skin bearing the gorgeous plumes. Tens of thousands of Nellies went hat buying, and an army of men went egret hunting for the feather market.

• • •

At breeding time egrets flock together in rookeries, and it was in these nesting places that the ruthless shotgun killers for the millinery industry got in their deadly work.

Gilbert Pearson, a great ornithologist, visited a plume hunters' camp in 1886 and was told that New York paid 90 cents for the plumes of each bird. In the late 1890's, as the demand grew, egret plumes became scarcer; shortly after the turn of the century, they were so rare that they brought the fantastic price of $32 an ounce — literally, their weight in gold.

Plume hunters called the 40 inch long American egret the "long white." The snowy egret only 24 inches long, they called the "little snowy" or "short white." Both species have long black legs, but the snowy has bright yellow feet, this characteristic accounting for another common name — "the heron with the golden slippers."

When not raising a family, egrets are widely dispersed and are difficult to approach. Hence, the plume hunters soon learned to hunt them at nesting time, and even then only when the rockery was "ripe" — that is, when the three to five bluish-green eggs were hatched. Shooting before that time often caused the birds to desert their simple platform-like nests. But when the nestlings appeared, the parental instinct was strong enough to bring the parents back, only to fall easy victims to the ruthless hunters. With their parents dead, the young perished; when parents and young alike were slaughtered, no chance remained to perpetuate the species.

• • •

So remunerative was this vicious trade of plume gathering that the hunters disputed among themselves. When the National Audubon society sent wardens to guard rookeries against this pillage, hunters even murdered the wardens — two in Florida and one in South Carolina.

In spite fo the efforts of conservationists, the nefarious plume trade continued until the egrets became so scarce it appeared certain they were soon to vanish.

"Truly, the egrets were brought low," said Alexander Sprunt of the National Audubon Society, one of their staunch defenders, writing in 1954, but, under the law which now protects them, "they have come back, and today are probably in better state than they were a hundred years ago."

How right he was as to their amazing comeback! For, if conservationists ever become discouraged, they should go into a southern marsh or cypress swamp or take a trip, as this writer did recently, over the long Tamiami trail in southeastern Florida. In all of these places beautiful birds, where a few years before only their ghosts could be imagined as wading belly deep in roadside ditches or floating lightly over the saw grass and mangroves.

• • •

It is fascinating, too, as nature lovers Allan and Helen Cruickshank did, to go into an egret rookery (you will have to get a permit from a warden), set up a blind and get a close-up of the birds at home.

Like all herons, the young are fed by regurgitation, the food being brought home in the throats of the parents.

At first the food, small fish, crawfishes, grasshoppers, even tiny water moccasins and lizards —is coughed up into the nest, but, as the youngsters grow — and they grow fast — they feed directly from the beaks of their parents.

After the nesting season, snowies wander northward and westward in summer, often reaching the north central states in considerable numbers. But immature little blue herons are also white and are commonly taken for snowies.

• • •

Recently, some bird lovers, remembering the former sad state of the egrets, have become jittery and are saying that the egrets, in spite of their present numbers and the watchful eyes of the conservationists, are once more being imperiled because of destruction of nesting sites. However, both the snowies and their larger relatives, the long whites, may be seen almost anywhere in Florida and, in the opinion of this writer, are in little danger of a great decrease in numbers.

It is true that their nesting sites in Florida, with the exception of those in state and national parks, are being reduced by swamp drainage and timber cutting — the encroachment of land development projects in general — and the huge increase in receational use of lakes and beaches. Under such conditions conservationists must be on the alert against excessive real estate and tourist promotion, particularly in a state so vacation minded as Florida. The egrets will doubtless lose some nesting grounds, although there should still be enough left for Florida has hundreds of miles of brush lined bayous, creeks, and roadside ditches. The Everglades National park, a fine egret habitat, alone contains over one and one-half million acres.

What Is Work Anyway?

Christian Science Monitor

A recent conference of Lutheran ministers and laymen in Ohio polled those in attendance on a clergyman's work week. Most of the ministers said they were "on the job" an average of 60 hours. That's a 10-hour day for a six-day week — more likely a nine-hour average for a seven-day week. The laymen thought the clergymen should work 64 hours. But we wonder how specifically they thought about what constitutes being "on the job."

What is work, anyway?

A machinist standing eight hours at his lathe, unquestionably. But that machinist may go home and gladly beautify his house with paint. An engineer leaves his drawing board and painstakingly turns out graceful furniture in his basement shop. A statistician drops his calculations to hoe his beans and tend his roses. An assembly line inspector of farm tractors looks forward during the day to hand carving rare woods at night.

Going back to "on the job": A city fireman loafs in his tilted chair for days on end, and then leaps from his bed in the dark and cold to battle the flames and rescue the occupants of a burning building — for an hour or two. A minister of the gospel spends one hour to 24 (so said the Lutheran clergyman) on his weekly sermon, then sits with the ill, the bereaved, the distraught for a day or a night or his whole holiday to comfort and to bring new strength and courage.

Relaxation to some, tedious waiting balancing intense effort and risk for another, the great reward of helpfulness for another. Does home painting steady the machinist at his lathe? Is the fireman not working while "at the ready?" Is the clergyman less "on the job" while listening compassionately than when composing some ringing phrases?

What is work, anyway?

Reporter Was a Dilly

Napier Moore, writing in the Financial Post, tells about some of his experience with the "dillies" who worked under him on the reporting staff of the old Montreal Daily Mail, where he was city editor more than forty years ago. One of these "dillies" was "Fritz." Mr. Moore writes:

One evening, I assigned him to cover an important church meeting. It was in the opening stages of the division in the Presbyterian ranks which ultimately resulted in the United Church and the Continuing Presbyterians.

When at a late hour Fritz had not returned I phoned the prominent minister who had been chairman for details of the meeting. I got him out of bed, and he was rather cool at first. He said, "I can tell you something about your reporter. He must have tarried on the way, because the meeting had been going on for some time when he arrived. He was a bit unsteady. I observed that, because instead of going to the press table he walked on to the platform and sat down beside the Moderator. Mind you, he was most dignified.

"Unfortunately, as chairman, I had to rule out of order one of the most vigorous opponents of the union. The reverend gentleman was annoyed. He shouted that, denied the right to speak, he would leave the meeting. At which your reporter rose to his feet and said, "I applaud that sentiment. You have my full support. I'll go with you. And he did."

It was long after midnight when Fritz turned up. "What a story!" he said, and weaved his way to his typewriter, which he smote furiously. Then in triumph he laid the copy on my desk. It began: "All hell broke lose last night when Prybsian xxxxxxx". And there were four pages bearing nothing else but lines of xxxxx.

DIVINE NATURE OF SERVICE

Jesus as Servant!

We have become so accustomed to reverence the term "servant" and to apply this term to Jesus that we often fail to realize that servant became a respectable word through the influence of Judiasm and Christianity. Even most of the Greek philosophers looked upon labor as degrading and upon workers of any kind as people of marked inferiority.

The Jews always had a high regard for labor and for the laborer. Christianity furthered this concept. Jesus himself was a carpenter. Paul was a tent-maker. When the New Testament writers sought in the Old Testament for predictions of the coming of Jesus, they found this prediction couched in glorious terms in Isaiah's picture of the Suffering Servant.

Today we are proud to acknowledge as our Lord and Master a man who was a servant and who stands first on the list of all who have ever lived, not in spite of the fact that He was a servant but primarily because He was a servant. For there is nothing so noble as to serve, and the only service worthwhile is that which is conducted in a spirit of real humility.

Praise then be not only to a Saviour but to a Saviour who was a sufferer, and to a suffering Saviour who was a servant. Only through service do we emulate God by whom all things are made.

Personal Health Talks

It Is Not Amazing In Yankee Land

"Keep up your fine work, trying to teach people they don't get CRI (kree, any acute infection or disease in any part of the respiratory tract) from cold drafts etc. I work on temperature controls in schools, churches and other buildings, and it's amazing how many people have not learned their lesson about this.

(T. S. H.)"

These everyday indispositions and illness are in the main preventable, though not if you are dumb enough or dishonest enough to ascribe them to wet discomforts.

"Your teachings about CRI make a lot of sense to me. By trying to keep out of the range of these germ missile throwers, I have kept the common respiratory infections to a minimum, although they are not always easy to dodge. My wife thinks you are full of prunes where "colds" are concerned. She consumes cases of facial tissues which she uses to blow her nose — all because of the changeable or damp weather and bad climate of Indiana.

(A.W.)"

I sympathize with you, sir; but if your wife is past 40, the prospect that she will ever learn any more is dim indeed.

People who insist on calling their respiratory ailments "colds and go about spreading cough, sneeze or polite conversation spray, do so with the assurance that eminent health and medical authorities sanction their conduct.

In view of our present knowledge it doesn't seem radical or unreasonable say that every person who professes to have a "cold" should be isolated or isolate himself until the nature of the trouble becomes evident or the indisposition or illness subsides.

The child should not go to school.

Neither should the teacher.

The worker in store, office or plant should remain home.

Everybody should understand clearly that the usual way of spreading cri (any common respiratory infection) is via the moisture or droplet spray given off by cough or sneeze or by conversation. The only practical difference is that the cough or sneeze spray carries ten or twelve feet, while conversation spray carries less than 5 feet.

Some spray droplets are microscopic in size, yet they may carry the germ or virus of whatever infection the sprayer happens to be coming down with. Of course these microscopic droplets can neither be seen nor felt when they reach the target.

Reader A.W. says sprayers are not always easy to dodge. That is true enough. And sometimes, that the unteachable ones are the most dangerous; they maim or kill countless victims by laughing off the silly notion that moisture spray is given off in polite conversation and by assuring the luckless person who come within range that it is nothing but a "cold".

It is quite a while since we received this little lesson in hygiene here. I expect some readers who think they know better about such things than a mere doctor does will be indignant and maybe tell me off. That's all right with me, if other readers get the suggestion that in any situation, polite conversation carries germs or viruses less than five feet.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of the best things about being poor, or tight-fisted, or in narrow circumstances, is that you always get the best seats in the house for ballet, or symphony concerts, or opera or, indeed, much of theatre. The best seats are those at the back of the gallery, or in the gods. From that vantage, you not only get the full symphony of the music, but the pure vision of the action, the movement and the color. Directors of ballet and opera always go to those positions in the theatre to see and hear it, whole.

Some years ago, when the prejudice of the first war had died down and the first of the great German conductors was touring Canada, there was a program directed by him consisting entirely of Wagner. Finding myself free at the last minute, the only tickets I could get were in the gods. Just back of me sat Vincent Massey, not yet right honorable. He had the score on his knee, and read it while he listened. I knew Mr. Massey was not poor, nor in straightened circumstances, and I had information that he was not tight-fisted. In the intermission, I asked him if he had had trouble getting tickets too.

"No, no" he laughed. "The best seats in the house."

Those seats down front, the $3.50, the $5 seats, are for those who want to get in on the act. They can't get on the stage; so, they take next best.

To be transported by ballet, symphony, theatre, pretend you are poor, even if you are not. At the proper distance, the dream lets you into it.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THOSE STARS

One day I received a very beautiful book called "Come Climb My Hill," by Winston O. Abbott. It is the book by a man who seems to love everything in nature. I was inspired by its brief essays. I give you one of the gems in the book. Here it is: "For grandeur, for humility, I offer you the stars that shine upon my hill!"

How often I have looked into the heavens and could say the same thing about that great canopy of stars, so full of beauty, mystery, and wonder. What a sight it is to look into the starry sky upon a clear night and just pray in silence. The Psalmist looked out upon such a sky and exclaimed: "What is man?"

At the small Nova Scotia island where I have spent so many happy days I have gone out before retiring to take a look at this miraculous sky of stars. Often I would select one and dedicate myself to it. I would pick out one that looked lonely and in need of a friend. We would exchange the love that we owned! And to think that each one of these stars has its place, and that students of the heavens could readily call its name, even with no other knowledge of its life or purpose.

Perhaps all of the stars wonder about us, on this comparatively small earth, as much as we wonder and speculate about them. It doesn't matter, however, for the glory is there, and each gives out its golden light, and perhaps it, too, sends out a prayer and a message of peace and good will the same as we do at Christmas time!

Workmen's Compensation Act Generally Recognized As One of the World's Best

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—When a plantation worker in Ceylon is stepped on by an elephant or a Puerto Rican cane - chopper nicks himself, it's comforting to know that Ontario has the Workmen's Compensation Act.

The connection? Puerto Rico has modelled its legislation on the Ontario plan. Ceylon and the Philippine Islands are drawing up similar plans now. Indonesia and Pakistan have it under study.

In the last year alone, 60 delegations have come to Ontario from outside North America to study the plan generally recognized as one of the world's best.

MODEL FOR CANADA

Pioneered by Ontario, it forms the basis for compensation to injured workmen in all other nine Canadian provinces.

E. E. Sparrow, former paint and varnish executive who became board chairman in 1948, admits:

"We have gained some measure of leadership."

Evidence of this is that when Puerto Rico, the Philippines and Haiti — lands which look to the United States for leadership — came to North America to study the best compensation plan available, the U.S. sent them north to Ontario.

"Probably the most attractive aspect of our act is that it takes compensation out of the courts enabling justice to be humanely and speedily administered," Mr. Sparrow says.

"Justice humanely and speedily administered" was the aim of Sir William Meredith, a former chief justice of Ontario. The act he drew up in 1915 was based on the most attractive legislation then in existence in England, the United States and Europe.

VIRTUALLY UNCHANGED

Since then, the act has been amended only to extend coverage or increase benefist. Two royal commission studies in the last 40 years have left it virtually intact.

In Ontario, there are 1,750,000 men and women covered by the act. Their coverage is paid for by 90,000 assessable employers, whose charges range from 15 cents each $100 of assessable payroll for certain classifications of teachers, to $13.50 per $100 for workmen in hazardous forest operations.

Of the 252,248 accidents reported during 1956, 70,733 rated compensation, another 170,606 were covered by medical aid only. Claims totalling 10,909 were rejected.

Benefits totalled $29,419,000.

Mr. Sparrow, with vice - chairman J. F. Cauley and one commissioner, Dr. E. C. Steele, form the three-man executive board of the Workmen's Compensation Board of Ontario.

"None of us is a civil servant," Mr. Sparrow says.

"The labor minister speaks for us on the floor of the legislature. "We are divorced from politics and this gives us a smoothness of operation over the years."

PAYMENTS TO INJURED

If an employee is off the job for more than four days as a result of an injury, he receives 75 per cent of his weekly pay based on average earnings during the prior four weeks, up to a maximum of $72.11 a week. All medical and hospitals' bills are paid and benefits continue as long as the disability lasts.

An employee cannot sue his employer when injured as a result of an accident covered by compensation. However, he has three stages of appeal within the framework of the board.

In the case of a fatality, the widow receives an immediate lump sum of $200 and up to an additional $200 for funeral expenses She receives a pension of $75 a month until death or remarriage and the allowance for each child is $25 a month up to age 16.

"Every employer in the province contributes a few cents in the event of a disaster," Mr. Sparrow says. The board's disaster fund is maintained at $750,000.

An example of how compensation works, Mr. Sparrow said, was the case of a newspaper reporter who lost an eye. The man was paid 75 per cent of his salary while off work, his medical bills were paid and the board brought him an artificial eye.

LIFE PENSION

"Now, a one-eyed reporter is just as able as a reporter with two eyes," Mr. Sparrow says, "but because he suffered a permanent, although partial, injury, he receives about 18 per cent of the 75-per-cent figure for life."

A noted blind singer's case was another example.

"The man was blinded in a welding accident, so because he is unable to return to his employment, he will receive a pension for life." In addition to medical and rehabilitation payments, the board spent $3,800 in singing lessons.

Another prime aim of the board is to prevent accidents happening, but once they have happened, to heal the injured workman—and 3,437 of the 64,438 compensation cases last year were women—then rehabilitate them and return them to work.

To do this, a $6,000,000 treatment and rehabilitation centre is being built on the northern outskirts of the city replacing the decrepit former RCAF barracks which houses 500 patients at suburban Malton airport.

Cheese Producers Defend Make-Up, Export Practices

TORONTO (CP) — The president of the Ontario cheese producers' marketing board has defended the make-up and export practices of the board against recent criticism by an executive of the National Dairy Council of Canada.

Hector C. Arnold of Campbellford Thursday told the producers' annual meeting that W. K. St. John, the council's executive secretary who criticized the board Wednesday, was unduly pessimistic of the export future for cheese and his criticisms of the board's composition were not justified.

Mr. St. John said cheddar cheese exports last year were only 1-19th of the 1945 total.

Mr. Arnold said the choice of a war year for comparison with 1957 was unfair and that a better choice would have been 1952.

Countering Mr. St. John's statement that processors and consumers are not represented on the board, Mr. Arnold said "most of the cheese is owned by the producers and it seems only right that they should have some say in selling it."

"As for there being no consumers on the board, does Mr. St John think General Motors should have consumer representatives on their board of directors'."

Kingston Council Will Be Asked To Suspend Grant

KINGSTON (CP) — City council will be asked to suspend a $15,000 annual grant to Queen's University until the university gives up efforts to expropriate property for its expansion program.

Strong opposition against the university's expropriation plans crystallized Wednesday when Alderman Leroy F. Grant gave a notice of motion to clerk-comptroller T. J. McKibbin at a finance committee meeting.

The motion, to go before council next Monday, asks that the grant be suspended until the expropriation matter is settled.

The grant has been paid to the university as part of a 10-year, $150,000 gift, due to expire in 1960. A second 10-year plan under similar terms was approved by last year's council to commence in 1961.

Queens' is seeking expropriation rights to several properties through a private bill to be presented to the Ontario legislature.

Note in Bottle Regarding Ship Branded Fake

LUEBECK, West Germany (Reuters)—The owners of the ill-fated sailing ship Pamir Thursday branded as fake a message in a bottle—found on an English beach—that blamed the captain for the disaster that took 80 lives.

The unsigned message, allegedly written by a Pamir merchant marine cadet while the ship was sinking in an Atlantic hurricane last Sept. 21, was found Sunday on the southwest tip of England.

The message was read before a maritime board investigating the sinking. A representative of the owners, the Pamir and Passat Foundation, said the note is a fake and defamed the dead. He added that the owners have filed a complaint alleging "libel, slander and defamation of deceased persons" against persons unknown.

PRESUMED DROWNED

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP) A massive air and sea search for three men aboard a missing fishboat was called off Thursday. The three were presumed to have been drowned. They were Ed Cottrell, Ted White and William Cooper, all of the Port Simpson area north of this coastal city.

Natural Causes

TORONTO (CP)—An elderly woman found dead Thursday in a rooming-house bedroom littered with liquor, beer and wine bottles, died from natural causes. An autopsy was performed to determine the cause of death.

The woman was identified as Mamie Braithwaite, about 60. Clarence Eddy, 60, whom police said lived with the woman, was found beside her in a semi-conscious state. He was in fair condition in hospital.

Police said they believe the woman had been dead for at least two days.

Farmers Dumping Surplus Milk Into Manure Pits

ST. JOHN'S Nfld. (CP) — The Telegram says dozens of independent dairy farmers in this area are "dumping surplus milk into their manure pits" while city dwellers pay 33 to 40 cents a quart for it.

One farmer, says "the price of milk to the consumer ought to be at least 10 cents a quart lower so that people can afford to buy it and so we can sell what we produce.

"No other city in Canada consumes powdered and canned milk or anything like the scale of St. John's. It's ridiculous for us to be dumping milk by the thousands of gallons while canned milk is being imported by the thousands of cases a week."

NO GUARANTEED MARKET

The paper says many farmers are reducing their herds. The big problem appears to be lack of guaranteed market.

Milk here is handled by distributors who operate pasteurizing plants. They buy most of their milk from independent farmers in the suburbs. But farmers have to bring the milk to the plant because there is no collection system.

In addition farmers have no contract for daily sale to the dairies. The plants take what they need on a day-by-day basis. One small producer says he can sell 35 gallons one day and 10 the next, while on another he may have to dump it all, despite the fact fresh milk is almost non-existent outside St. John's and Corner Brook.

A six-ounce glass of milk in Corner Brook restaurants sells for 20 cents, about $4 a gallon.

The farmer sells it to distributors for 95 cents a gallon.

Senate Blocks Govt. Legislation For First Time

OTTAWA (CP) — Government legislation Thursday was blocked in a Senate committee for the first time since the minority Progressive Conservative government took office last summer.

The committee on which Conservatives are outnumbered nine to 40 delayed passage of proposed changes to the Territorial Lands Act although assured by two federal cabinet ministers they do not interfere with provincial rights, and told by Mines Minister Spooner of Ontario that he has withdrawn earlier objections.

The Senate resources committee adjourned an hour and a half meeting without passing the bill because members argued it interfered with provincial rights.

Resources Minister Hamilton and Justice Minister Fulton said the amendments seek to make it clear that the federal government has control over resources beneath waters abutting on the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

SPOONER OKs CHANGE

Mines Minister Spooner withdrew previous objections to the bill when Mr. Hamilton proposed a change in the bill to specify that the federal power over resources applied only to land "underlying any of the waters included within the boundaries of the provisional districts of Mackenzie, Keewatin and Franklin."

However, several senators appeared dissatisfied with the explanation on the ground that the bill still did not make clear the status of lands under the waters of Hudson, James and Ungava bays.

Quebec has lands abutting on all three and Ontario on both Hudson and James Bay.

Justice Minister Futlon said that, if oil were discovered two miles off the shore of Quebec, for example, it would likely belong to the federal government.

Annual Meeting of Shareholders

The Royal Bank of Canada

James Muir declares Electors and Government jointly responsible with Business and Labour in curbing inflation

Creation of new financial institution suggested to fill need for more adequate long term export financing. Time ripe for Money Market to assume more positive function.

Although the round-robin of cost and price rises is undoubtedly an inflationary factor, even the best intentions on the part of both labor and management cannot long resist an inflationary environment created by excess spending through errors or inefficiency of monetary and fiscal management, declared James Muir, Chairman and President of the Royal Bank of Canada in his address at the bank's annual meeting in Montreal on Thursday, January 9th. "In such a situation, wages would rise even without trade unions to press for them," said Mr. Muir. "The employer finds that to increase production in response to rising demands, he must bid for labor at a higher price. He may often find it necessary to raise prices, but these higher prices can be paid only because the original inflationary environment makes it possible for his customers to pay them. Under these conditions, wages and profits rise together, but they are symptoms rather than the cause of inflation.

"However, once the circle is broken, by effective monetary and fiscal policy, mutual restraint is clearly in order. Profits fall first and unions might well at this point temper the wind to the shorn lamb. In fact, if we are to obtain not merely full employment and growth, but stability as well, the exercise of restraint in making demands must become the responsibility not only of labor and business, but of electorate and government as well."

FREE EXCHANGE RATE

Mr. Muir mentioned that among the 'built-in-stabilizers' of the economy is Canada's free foreign exchange rate, and pointed out that in the absence of flexible price levels and with a domestic fiscal policy geared to 'full employment,' the floating exchange rate provides the only mechanism of adjustment, other than rigid exchange controls, to the ever-changing requirements for equilibrium in Canada's international accounts. "It is sometimes argued that the investment flow covers our trade deficit," said Mr. Muir, "and that any stoppage of this flow would be disastrous. But we should remember first that a large part of our imports are the result of the inflow of investment funds; and, second, that, should foreign investment (and the investment-induced imports) fall off, our flexible exchange rate provides an automatic device for adjusting any deficit remaining in our trade in goods and services with the outside world."

HELP FOR EXPORTERS

Mr. Muir pointed out that deserving businessmen seeking export markets may be hampered by inadequate export financing compared with that available to their foreign competitors. "As matters stand at the moment," he explained, "we have an absurd situation. A Canadian industry, for example, obtains on order from abroad amounting to millions of dollars and the export Credits Insurance Corporation guarantees to any lender the repayment of this paper over a period of years. However, when the exporter considers his own financing, we have no device within this country suitable to his needs.

"What he requires is the discount of paper maturing over a period of years or a term loan for a similar period secured by that paper. During a period of tight money, the chartered banks do not have available in any quantity funds for this purpose. The result has been that some of our Canadian corporations have had to go outside the country to arrange their credit requirements with non-Canadian banks. We have actually seen cases in which the absurdity arises that a Canadian bank is asked to lend its customer money which he, in turn, deposits with a non-Canadian bank to facilitate that foreign bank's lending operations.

"I would like to suggest that a consortium of Canadian banks, Canadian exporters, and perhaps other interests, should consider the formation of a company with power to discount commercial paper covering the kind of long-term export transactions which I have here described."

SMALL BORROWER NOT NEGLECTED

"Generally speaking, banks are in position to take care of the legitimate needs of all credit-worthy small to moderate borrowers," said Mr. Muir. "In the past few months, however, there has been a great to-do about scarcity of credit for this sector of our economy; and government authorities have apparently become exercised about it. Frankly, I am baffled when I read of these things and I cannot escape the impression that the whole case must be grossly exaggerated, or that, perhaps without realizing it, we may be witnessing an evolution in this field. It may be that a fundamental change is taking place in our economy and that the small merchant is experiencing something that credit cannot help. There is some evidence not only that sales outlets are becoming more and more concentrated, but that sales and production units are developing an increasingly close relationship with one another.

"From the inception of the tight money policy, your bank has made it clear by word of mouth and by repeated written communications to all of our branches that they were still required to deal sympathetically with applications for personal and small business loans.

"In spite of our lending policy there has been a reduction not only in the number of borrowers but a substantial reduction as well in the amount borrowed in this particular field. As far as this bank is concerned, the credit facilities have been available, our Managers have known of this policy, and yet it would seem that small borrowers have not taken advantage of their opportunities to obtain credit."

Total Assets have now passed $3¾ billion mark

K. M. Sedgewick, General Manager, noted that not only had the assets of the Royal Bank reached the imposing total of $3,760,544,617, but that mortgages under the National Housing Act had increased by more than $30,000,000, reaching a figure of $216,590,000 which represents approximately 38% of the total for all Canadian banks.

Mr. Sedgewick reported the year's net profits at $13,919,550, an increase of 11.6% over the previous year, and that capital funds now stand at more than $202,000,000. "The Balance Sheet confirms that the cash position of the bank is strong," he said. "Assets in this form, coupled with Canadian Government Treasury Bills and Day-to-Day Loans represent 22.5% of the bank's aggregate liabilities to the public."

"Because of the period of so-called digestion through which we are now passing," remarked Mr. Sedgewick," we look for no particular increased demands from industry as a whole, but we wish to emphasize that the real needs of our credit-worthy customers, small or large, are of concern to us, and are needs which will be satisfied within the limits of our ability."

Discussing the Bank's extensive building and renovation program, Mr. Sedgewick reported that the bank now operates a system of 821 branches in Canada and 82 abroad — a total of 903, representing an increase of 31 during the past year. Included among new branches was one established at Frobisher Bay, the first Canadian bank to be opened in the Arctic Islands.

ROYAL BANK ABROAD

"Due to experience gained in more than 50 years since our first branch was established abroad, we are well equipped to deal with the peculiarities of international banking," said Mr. Sedgewick. Referring to the British West Indies area where important constitutional developments are taking place, Mr. Sedgewick mentioned that the bank is playing a part in assisting in the economic growth of this newly developing member of the Commonwealth family. He also spoke of the unusual opportunities which exist for young men with the aptitude and desire for a career in international banking pointing out that there are openings in the bank for a select number of such young men each year.

BROADER MONEY MARKET

Four years ago, Mr. Muir recalled, he had mentioned that it might be worth while to investigate the possibilities of a short-term money market in Canada. "Such a market," he said, "did come into being about six months later. We should, I believe, now study the possibilities of broadening the base of our money market. As of now, the only instruments available for use within this market are Government Treasury Bills and government bonds with a maturity not exceeding three years. What I have particularly in mind is a study of possible steps to achieve the stature of a real money market, that is, a market that would include commercial paper in the form of bankers' acceptances. Useful as our present money market is, it would, I believe, be worthwhile to determine whether or not it is ready by this time to outgrow its swaddling clothes and become a more lusty and an increasingly independent part of our financial system."

Waistline Goes Down, Hemline Goes Up, Up

NEW YORK (AP) — The waistline goes down, down, down—and the hemline goes up, up, up . . .

That could be set to music as the theme song of Maurice Rentner's spring 1958 collection, shown Thursday to visiting fashion editors.

More than most New York designers, Rentner adopts the silhouette of the 1920s for daytime outfits featuring hip belts and short pleated skirts. But even this extreme example of the return of flapper styles is not entirely shapeless, as the designer adapts subtle shaping to achieve a slender but not sacklike silhouette that he calls "mobile."

In his collection of evening gowns, Rentner features the uneven hemline, short in front, long in back, which also was popular in the '20s and '30s.

Included in Thursday's openings were those of the House of Hattie Carnegie and Ben Reig.

Ben Reig shows a varied collection of suits with loose jackets and pleated skirts, with brief bolero skirt jackets and slim skirts, with bloused or peplum jackets. His collection also includes dress-and-jacket costumes, cocktail and evening gowns, all with the accent on femininity.

'Christian Citizenship' Topic at W.A.

"What is the coming year? It is a door, by which we reach new fields of service for our God and fellow man, a door by which we can explore wide spheres of usefulness, our world to bless and reap the sheaves, God's Word of witness yields. We stand at the open door of a new year. Ahead of us will be great opportunities and responsibilities. To make the most of these we must meet them with faith, courage, hope and prayer. Then, through God's grace we shall be able to carry out His will in all we do. Our influence as individuals will be more Christlike. Our influence as a Woman's Association will be more widespread, stressing always the deepening of our spiritual life. Let our watchwords be "Love, Service and Witness" as we dedicate this new year to Christ and mankind. Be strong and of good courage, fear not, nor be afraid, for the Lord thy God, he it is that doth go with thee."

This was the opening theme used by the president, Mrs. Frank Davidson, for Tabernacle United Church Women's Association which met in the church parlor on Thursday afternoon with a good attendance.

Mrs. Jack Stoliker conducted the devotional on the subject of "God always has a way and helps us find the right way."

Annual reports from the various secretaries told interesting stories of the life of the Association. Donations were made to the local church treasury, W.M.S., V.O.N., Red Cross, Albert College Bursary, Boy Scouts, Camp Quin-Mo-Lac and the Consecon Girls' Camp and two student ministers Many acknowledgment were read from members and friends who had received Christmas remembrances.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. J. E. Marsh, president of the Hastings - Prince Edward Presbytery Women's Association, was guest speaker for the afternoon. She chose "Christian Citizenship" for her subject and gave the details of the wide scope of work entailed in this department. It is a four-fold project and much study can be given to it, much thought should be centred on it and as Christian women, much action is required for it.

"We must make the Church's stand, our stand, that of total abstinence and definitely support the Temperance program. We must interest ourselves in the social welfare of our neighbors and we must remember that every human being is a child of God regardless of race, color or creed thus putting away all racial prejudices. These things will lead us to world peace. It has been said 'The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world.' 'In unity there is strength' and we women must remain organized. Our one aim should be that we are raising honest, alert, Christian citizens who one day will guide our country."

The one-piece model is done in lastex in a chenille weave that copies the cool look of knit. The stripes form a yachting-flag bodice motif, then run horizontally around, molding the figure.

Girl Guides Pay Tribute to Late Founder

CAMPBELLFORD — The First and Second companies of the Campbellford Girl Guides met on Monday night to resume their winter program. Original plans made for the meeting were cancelled in respect to Miss Grace Payne, who passed away on Monday.

She was held in high esteem for her work and received many awards from the Canadian Girl Guide Council. She taught Guiding to many of the mothers of the girls who are in the present companies.

Beverly Beaudoin, who is now a Gold Cord Guide, started as a Brownie nine years ago under Miss Payne, as did Gayle Greenly, who is also a Gold Cord Guide.

Both companies observed one minute's silence in her honor at the Monday night meetings.

9-Month Family Quarrel Almost Ruined Irish Town

FETHARD - ON - SEA, Ireland (Reuters)—The Protestant minister in this Wexford County village announced Thursday a Protestant mother has returned to her Roman Catholic husband after a nine-month family quarrel.

The religious issues, almost wrecked the commercial and social life of this little community in the southeast corner of Ireland and led to discussion in the republic's parliament.

Mrs. Sheila Cloney, 30-year-old wife of Sean Cloney, left the village last spring with her children, Eileen, 6, and Mary, 3.

Rev. J. Fisher said he was "very happy" to announce that Mrs. Cloney and her daughters have returned and a "family reconciliation has taken place."

CATHOLIC WEDDING

Mrs. Cloney, a Protestant, married her husband in a Catholic church. She agreed that any children would be brought up as Catholics.

But she disappeared with the children last April. Her 33-year-old farmer husband followed her trail to Belfast, Northern Ireland, but he could not find her.

Sheila's only communication with Sean was an ultimatum reported to demand that he emigrate with her to Canada, allow the children to be brought up as Protestants and consider changing his own religion.

The Catholics in Fethard launched a boycott of all Protestant-owned stores and businesses. They declared the boycott would continue until the Cloney children were returned to their father. The social life of the community broke into two camps.

QUESTION IN DAIL

In July a member of the Dail (parliament) asked Prime Minister Eamon de Valera for a statement on the boycott "in view of the grave and growing disquiet throughout Ireland."

De Valera described the boycott as "ill-conceived, ill - considered and futile."

The boycott was called off in August after Catholic and Protestant representatives met in Dublin and agreed to call a truce.

Sean Cloney appealed to his wife through newspapers to return home with the children.

The Protestant minister who announced the reconciliation did not say what had been decided about the religious upbringing of the children.

British Ballet Dancer Back From Russia

LONDON (AP) — British ballerina Beryl Grey, first Westerner to star with Moscow's world-famous Bolshoi Ballet, says the West still has much to learn in the ballet line from the Russians.

The 30-year-old dancer has just returned from a triumphant four-week tour in Russia, dancing leading roles with the Bolshoi in Moscow and in Leningrad; Tbilisi (Tiflis) in Georgia, and Kiev, capital of the Ukraine.

Although ballet in Britain and the United States has advanced "by leaps and bounds," Miss Grey said, "I think the Russians express themselves more freely than we do."

Miss Grey said the Russian tour was the greatest artistic experience of her life.

"Everywhere the audiences were wonderfully warm and enthusiastic."

First Woman To Hold Cabinet Rank Now 90

ALIX, Alta. (CP) — Dr. Mary Irene Parlby, one of the first women in the world to hold cabinet rank in parliamentary government, celebrated her 90th birthday Thursday.

The first woman cabinet minister in Alberta—she was appointed in 1921 — Dr. Parlby passed her birthday quietly on her son's farm near this community 120 miles north of Calgary.

Made a minister without portfolio, she served for 14 years in the provincial United Farmers of Alberta government. She was re-elected in the Lacombe constituency in 1926 and 1930.

Dr. Parlby was born in London. In 1896 she came to Canada, married and settled on a farm in central Alberta. She immediately became interested in community affairs and politics.

When the United Farm Women of Alberta was organized, Dr. Parlby was one of its first members. She became provincial president in 1915 and held that post until 1919.

Dr. Parlby was a key figure in the fight for women to sit in the Senate. She was one of five women who petitioned the Privy Council to pass the ruling that "women are persons under the British North America Act" and therefore eligible for appointment to the Senate.

The discussion of new projects for the year 1958 took place with more data on this at the meeting on January 9th., which was called to order by the Sr. Regent, with officers, escorts and committee chairman taking part.

The recorder, Grace Bartlett, read communications and notices and thank-you cards from members. The Sr. Regent, Nora Kaiser, read a letter from Zola Kenny, referring to mid-winter conference in Brockville, Sunday, January 26th.

Women's Hat Workers May Settle Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—Slight progress was reported Thursday night in efforts to end the contract strike by some 22,000 workers who make women's hats.

Negotiations were held around the dinner table in a midtown hotel. Alex Rose, president of the striking United Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers Union, said of the employers: "They're not really our enemies."

Negotiations resumed today.

In walking out Wednesday after a contract deadlock, the union accused retail syndicates of sures" on the industry, but chided their employers, the manufacturers, for failing to fight back.

It is the first time the union has called a strike in 25 years.

Readers' Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I read your column very carefully and enjoy it very much. Could you please help me with a problem. I am new to this country and don't know how to store brown sugar after using 1 cup or so when I buy it in four pound lots. It's as "hard as a rock". How can you revive it? Sonia.

ANSWER:

Welcome to your new country Sonia and I sincerely hope that it lives up to your expectations. I know all of our Readers wish you luck.

Now about the brown sugar problem. Store it, once it has been opened in an airtight container or wrap it up in a sheet of wax paper and then foil. As for the hardened brown sugar, it may be softened by steaming it. Please write again if I can be of any help to you.

LETTER:

Thanks so much for sending me the recipes for a wedding reception. Am looking forward to the pleasure of preparing for it . . . happy to send you an Apple Dumpling recipe . . . read your column and know just how involved you can get with your grandchildren, I have [illegible] and they are wonderful . . . Grace.

APPLE DUMPLING

(Courtesy of Grace):

Make your favorite pastry — I use 1 lb. of pure lard to 6 cups pastry flour. Roll dough into 3-inch squares. Have apples peeled and sliced. Put as many apple slices on each square as it will hold and pinch dough together, sealing it tight. In a baking dish put 2 cups maple syrup and ½ cup water and a large tablespoon butter. Heat together and then arrange dumplings in this sauce and bake. Serve the sauce over the dumplings. [illegible] may like cream with it too.

ANSWER:

Thank you for the recipe and do hope that you have a wonderful time preparing the food for the reception. Know that you will.

QUESTION:

. . . Would it be possible to get more meat and vegetable dishes? . . . that old-fashioned vegetable recipe you gave was super . . . best soup I ever made. Thanks a million . . . are we supposed to wash dates? If so, how C.M.K.

ANSWER:

Dates don't need washing usually. But if you want to, steam them to separate them, then rinse in sieve under cold running water.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Frances D. — Mother shouldn't have to take guff.

Dolly M. — Why don't they treat an older person with respect?

• • •

Frances D. — My mother is a widow in her late 50's. Not having worked for some 30 years, she recently took a job in a neighborhood shop.

I hated to see her go to work, but Mother says she is better off working. One day, however, I came into the shop and Mother looked as though she was passing out on her feet. Just the same, her employer told her to hurry up and do something she had neglected. Mother complains that he treats her like that all the time.

Mother can get by without this salary, so I don't see why she should take that kind of guff from anyone.

• • •

Dolly M. — Frances makes me feel like a real old woman when she tells me how awful it is that I should have to work so hard. The work is hard, true, but I can take it. If I didn't work hard I'd brood around the house.

The work isn't what I care about anyway. It's the disrespect. Can't people realize that they shouldn't just make demands on an older person — send her running this way and that and never a please or thank you? Young women come in and demand service from me, fast — as if I were a teeager or something.

It's hard for me to get work, so I can't change jobs.

The Council: Many older persons complain of just this problem. It is true that customers and employers are often inconsiderate and even rude, but Dolly should recognize that this will bother her less and less as she gains confidence in her ability to handle the job.

Dolly should realize that she is making a tremendous psychological adjustment. For 30 years she has been boss in her own home. She had complete independence and, despite the hard work involved, considered herself rather a queen in her own household.

Now she not only must take orders from a boss and from customers, but is hardly recognized as an individual at all. She is merely looked upon as a service. It's a very big change to make, and it is natural that Frances too should be upset by her mother's "comedown."

Both Dolly and Frances should remember that discourtesy is far more o fa reflection on the person who delivers it than the one who receives it. Unfortunately, a certain amount of brusqueness is inevitable in the business world and Dolly should learn to accept this without hurt. In a sense, she should be pleased that she is treated as naturally as though she had been working all these years and that nobody even notices she is an "older person."

More Color in Cottons Canadian Survey Reveals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TORONTO (CP) — Homemakers can look forward to more color in cotton, a survey of Canadian household cottons now available reveals.

The fashion trend to color in the home ranges from solid color choices, candy stripes and multicolored prints to woven borders of every description.

Polka dots, stripes, plaids, lacy or floral designs are shown in endless variety says the Canadian Fabrics Foundation which conducted the survey.

FINE SHEETS

White cotton sheets and pillow cases still account for the bulk of Canadiar production. However, the demand for smartness is growing steadily. One of the newest sheets is a fine quality white with elegant border pattern woven with metallic thread.

Cosy flannelette sheets and blankets have also been glamorized. They are not only made in plain colors but also in stripes or screen-printed floral patterns.

The survey showed that Canadian -made staples are unsurpassed in quality as well as in variety. Better-known brands are guaranteed for 200 washings or "seven years" of normal wear.

When buying sheets the Canadian Fabrics Foundation recommends that you examine the weave carefully as closely-woven, evenly - threaded fabrics give the best wear. Also check for surface fuzz as better quality cotton threads have a smooth finish.

Look at the hem as small, even stitches, firmly finished at both ends permanently prevent ravelling. And also check selvage edges. This is where greatest strain comes in washing. Closely woven, sturdy edges assure long wear.

Correct lengths should be bought for comfort and wear. Allow for at least a six-inch tuck-under at top and bottom of the bed. Canadian sheets are marked "true" or finished length.

NEW RECLINING CHAIR

A major innovation in reclining chairs will make its appearance at the Canadian Furniture Mart in Toronto this month. Chicago furniture designer Henry Peter Glass has designed a different type of reclining chair.

This chair operates with a unique strap construction that gives a floating feeling as the chair glides into many reclining positions. The strap is attached to the back and to the foot rest which is raised to lounging position when the sitter applies his weight to the back. There are no mechanisms to jam.

One model features off - the-floor lines raised on tapered legs capped with footed brass ferrules. It has elongated oval side panels, tapered foot rest and a high-tapered back, angled forward at the top for head - rest comfort.

The chair can be seen in combiations of textured fabrics with fabric used on the central seating areas for comfort.

There are no gears, metal linkage or other mechanisms. Foam rubber back and seat cushioning results in resiliency and form-fitting comfort.

NO OBLIGATION FOR GUESTS TO BRING "WEDDING" PRESENTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckmakn:

Our daughter had been going steady for two years with a very nice young man, when in the first week of November, they eloped and were married without telling us. Neither his family nor ours understand why they should have eloped, for both families approved of the friendship and rather took it for granted that when he finished his service they would be married. Now he has been transferred to a camp not so far from here, and they write us that they will soon be able to come home for a several-days visit. His family lives here, and he has always lived here. On either the Saturday or Sunday of their visit, we would like to give an informal reception for them if this would be really proper. My husband thinks that perhaps this reception would look like a "suggestion" that the guests bring the couple the presents they might have brought to a real wedding if there had been one, instead of an elopement. What is your advice about our giving this reception? Mother

Please do give this reception for "the bride and groom," to welcome them to your home and to their home town, and to show the relatives and friends of both families that you and your husband approve of the marriage. About the bring-a-wedding-present suggestion . . . your husband need not worry about this, for an invitation to a reception of this kind does not at all mean that guests have any obligation to bring (or to send) a present.

Canadian Pacific Liner Purchased By German Firm

HAMBURG (AP) — Purchase of the 26,313-ton Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Scotland by the recently-founded Hamburg-Atlantic Line was revealed Thursday.

It is the second big passenger ship acquired by a German line within the last 12 months. Last January the North German Lloyd bought the 30,477-ton French liner Pasteur.

The Empress of Scotland was built in 1930 for the Liverpool-Quebec-Montreal run and was used as troop transport during the war.

Sale of the Empress of Scotland leaves Canadian Pacific with three empress liners in service—the Empress of England, Empress of Britain and Empress of Fance.

The Empress of Scotland once was known as the Empress of Japan. At that time she was on the Pacific route.

Tight Trousers Do More Harm Than A-Bombs

STOCKHOLM (AP) — All men who think in terms of future generations should swap their heat-producing pants for the kilt, say three outstanding Swedish geneticists after extensive research.

Their report will be published soon in the British scientific journal, Nature.

They found a "dangerous" increase in the frequency of genetic mutations because of higher temperatures produced by the wearing of modern tight pants. A genetic mutation causes children to differ from the characteristics of their parents to some noticeable degree, usually in an abnormal way.

The doctors estimate that tht genetic risks resulting from pants are 100 to 1,000 times greater than that from radioactivity.

They recommend more ventilation, obtainable with such a garment as the kilt. Part of their research was done in a nudist camp.

He Gets Grant To Ride Bicycle Through Paint

LONDON (Reuters) — "Abstract" pictures painted by riding a bicycle over canvas flooded with paint were on sale today to London's art lovers at 100 guineas each.

Black - sweatered William Green, 23-year-old artist, stood beside three strange paintings, all called "asphyxiation" and numbered one, two and three.

He solemnly explained his revolutionary technique to baffled visitors at an exhibition run by London's Institute of Contemporary Arts.

For smaller works of art, he said, "I lay the board on the floor, throw paint on it and then paddle around in it in special rubber shoes, worrying it and displacing it.

"For big paintings, I ride a bicycle over the paint, throw sand at it or flood it with paraffin and set it alight to create surface quality."

Green, a scholarship winner, gets a special grant to study at the Royal College of Art, where he "worries" his abstract paintings into shape.

Know Your Heart

Leading Role for Canada in Heart Research

By John D. Keith, M.D.

(Article 1)

In 1954, Hugh Munroe, an assistant branch manager at the Bank of Montreal in Leamington, Ontario, died of a heart attack at the age of 49, and left $5,000 to the Canadian Heart Association to aid in developing research in heart disease in Canada. Mr. Munroe's wife had died from rheumatic heart disease three years earlier.

The Munroes' bequest came at a time when doctors in the Canadian Heart Association were considering how they could best develop and stimulate heart research in the various Canadian medical centres. With the funds from Hugh Munroe and his wife available, the doctors were able to establish the Heart Foundation of Canada as a federation of provincial foundations across the land.

Though the heart ailments of Mr. and Mrs. Munroe still represent major medical problems of our times — as yet only partially solved — the organization to deal with them is taking shape.

The Ontario Heart Foundation was formed in 1952; the British Columbia Heart Foundation in 1955, and the Quebec Heart Foundation in 1956. Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba have now followed with established foundations, and it is hoped the Atlantic provinces will join the ranks in the near future.

In 1957, the Canadian Life Officers Association of the insurance companies provided additional funds to start the national body in its work and Dr. John Armstrong took office as the Medical Director of the national organization.

THREE MAIN FIELDS

The National Foundation and each of the Provincial Foundations represent a combination of medical and lay effort and knowledge directed toward the war on heart disease in Canada. The scope of the foundations' work is, of course, very wide, but for the present they will be concentrating in three main fields.

The chief one is research. The national and provincial foundations will give financial and other support to the doctors across Canada who are engaged in a persistent struggle to discover the causes and the best methods of treating all forms of heart disease. The second field is in helping doctors in practice by keeping them informed on the most recent developments in the diagnosis and the treatment of heart disease. This will be done through meetings, lectures, demonstrations, courses, films and reprints.

The third field in which immediate action will be concentrated is in providing the public with information on the heart and various aspects of the problem.

A special word is required about the research program as it is in this field that the value of the Heart Foundations' work is most evident. Canadian doctors have pioneered many heart research projects. Numerous examples could be set down, but a few of them will indicate something of the part Canada is playing in helping solve the world problem of heart disease and of the areas in which the Heart Foundations' aid to research is required.

Dr. William Bigelow of Toronto, began his researches into lowering the body temperatures as a preliminary for surgery shortly after World War II. Experimenting with a groundhog, he discovered that if the animal's temperature was brought down to a few degrees above freezing the heart could be opened and operated on for nearly an hour without doing any harm to the brain or other body organs. At the completion of the operation the heart could be closed and the circulation returned to normal. This work was soon picked up by centres throughout the world as it is especially suited to correct certain defects inside the heart. Many children are running about and leading active, normal lives today because of this technique developed by Dr. Bigelow and his associates in Canada.

FATS STUDIED

For many years it has been recognized that some fats in excessive amounts produce hardening of the arteries in a variety of animals. However, the extent to which this can be applied to humans is difficult to determine. One of the most useful contributions on the subject has been made recently by Dr. J. M. R. Beveridge and his associates at Queen's University. They have studied the differences between various fats and discovered that corn oil does not cause as much rise in the blood cholesterol (one of the offending blood fats) as do several other fatty substances. These results are particularly valuable because the experiments were done on humans. A group of Queen's University medical students co-operated by living on various types of fatty meals as prescribed by the researchers during their investigation.

Dr. Kenneth Evelyn in Vancouver has done valuable work in studying the problem of high blood pressure. He has evaluated its natural course and the effect of various farms of treatment and has discovered that many people with this complaint responded astonishingly well to treatment over the years.

In 1947, Dr. W. T. Mustard, following his interest in blood vessel surgery during World War II, began his studies on a heart-lung pump at a time when such methods were considered in the same category as a trip to the moon. Now the technique is being used in many centres, and Dr. Mustard is one of a growing group that is doing successful surgery inside the heart.

HEART VALVE SURGERY

Dr. Edward Gagnon of the University of Montreal was one of the first medical men in Canada to take up and develop surgery on the scarred and narrowed heart valve caused by rheumatic fever. He has now operated upon five or six hundred cases with excellent results in the majority.

One of the chief problems of our times is that of high blood pressure. Some advances are being made in this field. Recently a particular hormone called aldersterone has been isolated. When this hormone is injected into animals experimentally, it can produce an elevated blood pressure. Dr. Jacques Genest of University of Montreal is carrying on research in this field and has discovered that certain people who have high blood pressure excrete an excessive amount of this hormone.

The results of all these researches are appearing each year in the medical journals. All doctors, no matter what their duties or specialties, are interested in heart disease — party because they may have it themselves some day, and partly because so much can now be done in the way of treatment. A doctor is therefore continually re-evaluating the knowledge that becomes available through research year by year, and will support the thesis that the Heart Foundation of Canada are providing a way for Canadians to invest in their own health.

This is the first of a series of articles being published on behalf of the Canadian Heart Fund. Contributions may be made at your local bank. Another article appears next Friday.

Sunday School Lesson

The Divine Endorsement

By ROY L. SMITH

The Sunday school lessons we are studying during the first three months of this year are all drawn from the writings of an extremely intelligent young Greek physician named Luke.

The young man wrote two books, both of which are to be found in the New Testament, the two of them representing slightly more than one-fourth of the entire Testament. Many scholars are of the opinion that the young doctor may have intended to write a third, but of that we cannot be sure.

It seems to have been the firm belief of Luke that Jesus had received divine endorsement at the time of his baptism, when strange and amazing portents appeared.

Only on the basis of divine approval was the physician able to explain the amazing life of Jesus of Nazareth. And the teachings of the Galilean became important, and were accepted as being credible, because of the life he lived and the spirit he manifested.

The Greek physician had been born, probably about the time that Jesus was crucified. He was not an eye-witness of the events he described in his Gospel, but he was a careful reporter, and he had enjoyed unusual opportunities for observing the later effects and for knowing eye-witnesses.

As a consequence, of all his investigations he had become convinced that Jesus of Nazareth had been the divinely commissioned messenger and representative of God. This conviction he undertakes to convey to his readers.

THE CHURCH WAS ENDORSED

The second factor in the physician's faith was the amazing experience of the Christain Church .

Just as Jesus had received a divine endorsement at the time of His baptism, so the Church had been granted an equally holy and sacred endorsement at the time of Pentecost.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for January 12: "The Source of the Church's Power," John 16:1-15; Acts 1:1-14; 2:1-41.

Admittedly, the record of the pentecostal experience is incomplete, and some of the description makes room for a variety of interpretation. But that something awesome occurred can hardly be doubted.

The important thing about the experience of Pentecost was not that flames of fire settled down upon the heads of the 120, but that those who shared in the experience went out to become flames in a world that was in desperate need of consolation and encouragement

The proof of the validity of any religious doctrine is to be found, not in the description someone gives us of the event, but in the transformation of the lives of the believers.

In the case of the Christain Church we know that a force was let loose in Jerusalem that day which has had the effect of influencing history more profoundly than any other single event that ever occurred among men.

The amazing thing about the Christain Church was that when the returning pilgrims arrived back home and told the story of the pentecostal experience, it was repeated in one form and another again and again.

As a matter of fact, whenever the Holy Spirit inflows upon the life of a believer, even to this day, it is a repeat performance of Pentecost.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The sweet smell of success is being sought by officials of the Highland Park zoo.

And if they're successful, carniverous and herbivorous inhabitants of the zoo will no longer be oderiferous, too.

The elephant and lion cages are being sprayed with sweet-smelling detergents in a trial effort to eliminate odors repellant to squeamish visitors.

ABOARD MISSING YACHT

Coast Guard planes and surface craft are combing offshore waters in the Florida area for trace of the long-overdue racing yacht Revonoc, owned by Harvey Conover, New York sportsman-publisher. Conover, shown with his wife, their son Lawrence and the latter's wife, Laurine, are aboard the missing yacht. So is a friend of the family, William Fluegelman of Scarsdale, N.Y. The yacht was due in Miami Jan. 4, when the worst storm of the year was whipping South Florida. Two fishing vessels with four aboard are also missing.

Just in case the McFarlands do not know it, those dark shadows looming over their shoulders are Wally Lenser's Pembroke Lumber Kings and Bun Cook's Kingston CKLC's. And their hot, hungry breath is beginning to ripple the Moirans' cervical region.

Both clubs swapped their spots in the doldrums with the McFarlands. Now they are getting ready to take over second and third places unless the Hildebranders start doing something about it.

The Cook-Allen crew from Mike Rodden's bailiwick have won four of their last six starts, coming up from the cellar and leaving the Cornwall Chevies in their place. They are now but three points in arrears of our side. The Kings after dropping three straight, took the bit in their teeth and thumped the Ottawa Canadiens Juniors 7-5 to snap out of their lethargy and climb to within a point of the McFarlands.

Except for a brief splurge against the Cornwall Chevies here last Friday night, the Hildebranders' effectiveness in front of enemy forts has been deplorably lacking. They have scored twelve goals in their last six times out, and that includes the five racked up against the Chevies. And if you are in doubt here are the scores: Ottawa 7, Belleville 1; Belleville 2, Kingston 1; Whitby 10, Belleville 2; Cornwall 1, Belleville 5; Whitby 8, Belleville 2; Kingston 4, Belleville 0. And they have lost four of these six starts.

Whatever the cause, the Macs are just not doing what should come naturally. As a matter of fact they have not stunned the league by their scoring efforts all season. The best counts they have racked up are that 7-1 victory over the Ottawa-Hull Canadiens in Hull on November 24, and the 7-3 win over Kingston on November 22.

Their record to date over 30 games is 3.56 goals per tilt.

Whether the 8-2 defeat at the hands of the Whitby Dunlops the other night, which was nothing to be ashamed of, after all, had something to do with it, the fact remains the Macs went back into a more or less lethargic state in Kingston. As Michael J. Rodden wrote in his story, "Barclay should have sued his mates for non-support . . . and they need tutoring in their shooting."

As was said, barring that outburst against the Cornwall Chevies last Friday night when they showed their former spirit and drive, the club has not been shooting par hockey over the course for the past three or four weeks.

Whatever the reason, it should be pulsed soon for time's afiittin' and those playoffs are just beyond the horizon.

They meet the cellar-dwelling Cornwall Chevies here tomorrow night in an eight-thirty game and it is to be hoped their home-win record stands up. To date they have won 12 of their 14 starts on home ice while they have been defeated the same number of times on foreign hockey pastures. They have split a couple of ties.

The Chevies, however, will be in a desperate mood and the Hildebranders had better get their shooting eyes realigned and their goal-front effectiveness back in line or they will be facing standing demotion. The Chevies have lost eight games in a row and they will be battling for a victory on Saturday night, come hell or highwater. The teams clash in Cornwall again Sunday afternoon and the Macs had better wear their space suits in case the peanut-shooting, bottle-firing pews brigade is again out in force.

Bill, who coaches the Belleville team, looks for big things from John and Paul Peoples in the diving and free-style events; David Craig and Les Hall in the free-style and Robbie Blaker in the breast-stroke. The team practices three times a week and is said to be in fine shape for the meet.

The meet gets under way at the college pool at 2.30. Those interested in swimming, and others, are cordially invited to attend.

Dozen Share Points Jackpot In Season's High 11-3 Score; Red Wings Thump Bruins 6-1

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Coach Rudy Pilous' Chicago Black Hawks' bubble has burst with a bang heard around the National Hockey League.

Hawks won their first two games under rookie coach Rudy and seemed destined for a better thing than last place. But Thursday night Montreal Canadiens brought them back to reality, smothering them 11-3 in Montreal in the season's highest-scoring game.

In Detroit, Red Wings gave new coach Sid Abel a more cheering prospect, beating Boston Bruins 6-1 for their best display this season, and moved into sole possesion of third place, their highest position yet.

Twelve Habitants shared in their team's 30-point kitty. Bernie (Boom-Boom) Geoffrion collected one-sixth of the total with three goals and two assists and Gene Achtymichuk, called up from Montreal Royals of the Quebec Hockey League, rapped in two goals and picked up an assist.

SCORE ONE EACH

Other Montreal scorers were Henri Richard, Dickie Moore, Jean Guy Talbot, Andre Pronovost and Marcel Bonin.

The Hawk scorers were Billy Dea, Glen Skov and Pierre Pilote.

League statistics show Richard jumped into a tie with Moore at the head of the points race. Each has 46 points. But Geoffrion's splurge gave him 21 goals and 20 assists this season for fourth place and the best goal-production on the Canadien team.

The Habs hurled 42 shots at hapless Glenn Hall in the Chicago nets, getting five past him in the first period, one in the second and another five in the third. The Hawks got two of theirs in the first and the other in the third.

Canadiens now have an almost insurmountable 17-point lead over second-place New York Rangers and have two games at hand.

HOWE GETS 21ST

Six Red Wings divided the scoring. Gordie Howe, in third place in the points column, collected his 21st goal to tie Geoffrion for second in that department. Rear - guard Al Arbour scored his first this year, Bob Bailey and Nick Mickoski got their first since coming to Detroit from Chicago and Johnny Wilson and Jack McIntyre bagged the others. It was McIntyre's sixth this season and all have been scored since the Hawks traded him. Vic Stasiuk scored the lone Boston goal.

Wings had a 39-13 shooting edge over Boston and the target was Al Millar, up from the Quebec Aces of the QHL to fill in for Don Simmons.

The man on the spot this weekend is Ranger goalie Marcel Paille, given two games by coach Phil Watson to improve or face banishment to Providence Reds of the American Hockey League and replacement by Lorne (Gump) Worsley.

It won't be easy to avoid it. Paille faces Canadiens in Montreal Saturday and is host to Red Wings Sunday. Other Saturday games see Toronto Maple Leafs host to Boston, and Chicago at Detroit. Sunday, Toronto is in Boston and Montreal in Chicago.

Bob Rosburg Leads Bing's Golf Clambake

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif, (AP) Bob Rosburg, one of professional golf's great putters, headed into the second round of the $50,000 Bing Crosby tournament today with a two-stroke lead and a tough course facing him.

Rosburg, sinking putts up to 30 feet, fashioned a seven-under-par 65 over the Monterey Peninsular Country Club layout as 280 amateurs and pros tackled two courses.

The 31-year-old pro from Napa, Calif., goes over the second one, Cypress Point, for his second round and judging from opening scores there, he faces a tougher assignment. Eight of the nine tourney leading scores were shot over Monterey where the winds and occasional rains didn't bother as much.

Bo Wininger of Odessa, Tex. posted a 67 at Cypress, though, the same score as Tommy Bolt of Chattanooga, Tenn., had at Monterey.

TREACHEROUS COURSE

Six golfers deadlocked at 68 all fired at Monterey and, along with Rosburg, must tackle Cypress, a treacherous 6,317-yard course along the sea cliffs. In the bunch are Wininger, Shelley Mayfield, Ken Venturi, Fred Hawkins, George Bayer, Jack Fleck and Johnny Pott.

The best of three Canadian entrants was Toronto's Al Balding, tied with 11 others six strokes behind Rosburg, with 71, made up of rounds of 34 and 37. Stan Leonard of Lachute, Que., and Vancouver and Bob Wylie of Calgary had 78s.

SCORES SIX BIRDIES

Rosburg started by three-putting the first green and then settled down for the day's greatest putting exhibition. In addition to his 30-footer, he dropped one from 20 and two from 15 feet.

He collected six birdies and an eagle in edging to the front in the battle for Crosby's $4,000 top prize.

Rain, a normal occurance at this event—known officially as the national pro-amateur—began falling hard Thursday night. More was forecast for today. Par over each course is 72.

In the pro-amateur division, in which teams play a best-ball, the lead was shared by the twosome of Rosburg and San Francisco sports writer Nelson Cullenward and Bolt with actor Johnny Weissmueller of Hollywood. Each team had a 61.

Tombstone Faces Miceli Tonight

NEW YORK (AP). — Charlie (Tombstone) Smith gets his first chance to show his stuff before a national audience tonight when he faces Joe Miceli in a 10-round welterweight match here.

As Tombstone whipped Miceli in Los Angeles last March, he is expected to do it again. The odds are 2 to 1 in his favor.

Experience is all on the side of the 29-year-old unranked Miceli who has fought 92 pro bouts for a 55-30-7 record.

Tonight's match was rushed in on short notice as a sub for a light-heavyweight bout between Canada's Yvon Durelle and Tony Anthony. When Durelle became ill Tuesday that fight was set back to Jan. 31.

Joe Louis Makes Tax Deal With Uncle Sam

CHICAGO (AP) — Joe Louis says he has signed an agreement with the United States government to make payments on his back income taxes of $1,250,000 at the rate of $20,000 a year.

Arthur J. Wilson, Louis' accountant, indicated that an understanding has been reached with the internal revenue service to the former heavyweight boxing champion's tax delinquencies.

"However, I want to make it clear that the government has not entered into any agreement to accept less than the amount owed," Wilson said Thursday night. "We have some hope that if he follows the plan we have agreed upon the government in a few years may call matters even."

Under the agreement, Louis said he will turn over to the internal revenue service the $20,000 he receives in salary each year from the International Boxing Club, of which he is director.

Louis earned $4,606,721.69 in his 17 years as a professional, and once commented that "I just don't know where all the money went."

Argonauts Sign Texas Quarter

TORONTO (CP) — Quarterback Ken Ford of Hardin-Simmons College in Texas, ranked as the leading passer in U.S. college football last season, has been signed by Toronto Argonauts for the 1958 Big Four Football Union campaign.

Managing director Lew Hayman of Argos, the team which had quarterback problems throughout last season, hopes the 190-pound six-foot-three quarter will be the man to guide them out of the Big Four cellar and into the playoffs for the first time in three years.

The 21-year-old signal - caller was voted the outstanding player in the all-star North-South Blue-Grey game last month. He completed 12 of 23 passes, one for a touchdown and sparked the South to a 21-20 victory.

Ford, coached at Hardin-Simmons by the former great professional passer and quarter Sammy Baugh, last season threw 14 touchdown passes as he completed 105 of 205 passes for a total 1,254 yards. He also scored touchdowns himself and is rated a tricky ball-handler as well as a fine runner and passer.

Parks Committee Approves Plan For Grandstand

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto parks committee Thursday voted unanimously in favor of a plan to build an addition to the Canadian National Exhibition grandstand which would make it a football stadium seating 34,000. The scheme, which still needs city council approval, would cost $450,000.

The plan was put forward by Controller Ford Brand as an amendment to a CNE plan presented earlier which would make the stadium suitable for both baseball and football.

The CNE plan called for the stadium to be built in three stages. The first would be a new grandstand facing the existing one. It would be built at an estimated cost of $1,250,000 and would increase seating capacity to 37,000 from the present 21,000.

The second stage would have been an L-shaped addition to the new grandstand swinging around to meet the old grandstand. A double - deck second and third stage of the stadium would cost an estimated $3,500,000.

TWO-THIRDS LESS

Controller Brand told the parks committee that by using a steel-type of seat the city could cut their costs by almost two-thirds. These seats now are used in Hamilton, Vancouver and Calgary football parks.

His plan would not preclude baseball, Controller Brand said, but if and when Toronto did get a major league franchise the steel-type seats could be replaced with permanent ones.

The CNE's plans for the first stage would put 16,000 additional seats on the south side of the field, 11,500 of them between the goalposts.

Controller Brand said his plan would put all 13,000 additional seats between the posts.

56 Nags Enter Grand National

LONDON (AP)—A smaller-than-usual field of 56 was named Thursday for this year's 112th running of the Grand National Steeplechase.

Esb, 1956 winner, and Quare Times, first in 1955, were nominated to seek new laurels over the gruelling 4 1-2-mile, 30-jump Aintree course March 29.

Also named among the [illegible] were Wyndburgh and Tiberetta, second and third respectively last year, plus Carey's Cottage, third in the 1955 National.

CAUSED BLACKOUT

MONTREAL (CP) — A sudden unexplained increase in the city's demand for electricity caused Monday's 47 - minute blackout, Quebec Hydro officials said Thursday. Hydro-Quebec engineers were working now to prevent such a failure happening again.

Boston's Ted Williams Named Outstanding Male Athlete

NEW YORK (AP)—Ted Williams, baseball's king of the batters at the age of 39, today was named the United States' outstanding male athlete of 1957 in the annual Associated Press year-end poll.

It was the first time in his long and stormy career that the Boston Red Sox slugger was chosen for the honor.

The recognition came seven weeks after he was nosed out by Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees for the most valuable player award of the American League. The selection by a committee of baseball writers kicked up a storm because one writer picked Williams for ninth place and another named him 10th.

VICTORY MARGIN WIDE

In the AP poll, Williams won by a whopping margin over Milwaukee Braves pitcher Lew Burdette, the star of the world series, with middle-weight boxing champion Carmen Basilio a distant third.

Mantle, winner of the poll in 1956, finished in a tie for 13th this year.

Williams, who broke into organized ball with San Diego in 1936 and served two stretches as a Marine Corps pilot, hit .388 this season to capture his fifth American League batting title. He set a record by winning the title at 39 and it was the highest mark in the majors since Ted himself won in 1941 with an almost incredible .406.

The sharp - eyed outfielder clouted 38 homers.

Considering his age, this probably was his greatest year. And he accepted it by playing most of the season with the enthusiasm of a rookie and despite several ailments that benched him at times.

Aussie Girl, 13 Breaks World Swim Record

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Thirteen-year-old Ilse Konrads, newest of Australia's swimming prodigies, Thursday broke the world free-style records for 880 yards and 800 metres in winning the New South Wales championship. It was her first competitive race for the half mile.

The Latvian-born high school girl took huge slices off records set by Australia's great Lorraine Crapp. She was timed in 10 minutes, 17.7 seconds for 880 yards and 10:11.1 at the 800-metre 875 yards mark.

Ilse clipped 16.9 seconds off the listed 880-yards record of 10:34.6 and 19.8 seconds off the recognized 800-metre standard of 10:30.9. The old marks were set by Miss Crapp, Olympic champion, in the same 55-yard North Sydney Olympic pool Jan. 14, 1956. Lorraine, now 19, was clocked in 10:34.2 for 800 metres and Honolulu last July 12.

Miss Crapp did not race against Miss Konrads Thursday night. She competed in the 110-yard championship, which she won by a touch over Cookie Gastelaars of the The Netherlands. Australia's Sandra Morgan, 15, was third. Lorraine was timed in 1:04.7, 1.5 seconds behind her own Australian record.

Yogi's Salary Cut to $50,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Yogi Berra has taken a "slight cut" in pay after his worst season with New York Yankees. He signed Thursday for a reported $50,000.

As the first Yankee signing to be announced by Lee Macphail, director of player personnel, the slice was taken by many as notice that wholesale increases were not to be expected just because the club won another pennant. They were beaten in the world series by Milwaukee Braves.

The sturdy Yankee catcher dipped to a .251 batting average during 1957, poorest of his career. Despite the drop, Yogi led major league catchers with 24 homers, 82 runs bated in and a fielding average of .995. So what was a bad year for Berra would be considered good by most others.

Since the world series he has been given a physical check and received a passing grade.

"I took a slight cut," Yogi said. "Maybe this will help me get back on the beam this year."

When asked about his 1957 slump that found him hitting almost 40 points below his .290 lifetime average, Berra shrugged it off as "one of those things."

Dutchies Play American Team

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, who have already got some measure of revenge against one country which humiliated them during Olympic hockey in 1956, will get a chance at the other Jan. 30.

The Dutchmen, in second place in the OHA - NOHA Senior A league, are to play the United States team which will represent that country in the world tournament next month.

At Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy, in 1956 the Americans whipped the favored Dutchmen 4-1 and though few of the same players are with the 1958 squad, Kitchener hopes to reverse the Olympic verdict as they did against the touring Moscow Selects last month.

In all, the Americans will play 52 exhibition games in Canada, the United States and Europe before the Oslo tournament. So far they have a 5-1 record.

Yankee Curlers Defeat Canucks

DETROIT (CP) — United States curlers defeated Canadian rinks for the second time in nine years Thursday to win the J. J. Ahern Trophy at the Detroit Curling Club's 72nd annual international bonspiel.

Despite losing the international match, Canada has seven of 16 entries which will continue play today to Sunday in singles matches for the Michigan Trophy.

The U.S. curlers outscored the Canadians in the total-point competition 193-172. Canada won the first six matches with the U.S. getting its first win in 1956 Canada won last year 211-153.

Surviving Canadian teams are Howard Reid, Ayr, a double winner; Maurice Chilton, Sarnia; James Nowlan and John Tolton, Toronto; Jim Broomfield, Galt; and George Gerald and Nick Burnett, Windsor.

The Sudbury entry of George Moore lost 12-6 to Walter Hatch of Duluth, Minn., last year's winning rink, while Harry Doughty, Walkerton; Earl Green, Toronto; and Ed Smith, St. Thomas, all lost by six points and Roy Chisholm, Sault Ste. Marie, and Gordon Brock, Kitchener, lost by four.

Edmonton Eskys' Frank Ivy To Coach Chicago Cardinals

CHICAGO (CP)—Soft - spoken Frank (Pop) Ivy, tabbed as the man who can "get the job done," Thursday night signed as head coach of Chicago Cardinals, a club which finished last in the Eastern Division of the National Football League this last season.

The 41-year-old former college and professional star gave up an outstanding coaching career with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union to take on the chore of rebuilding the Cardinals into a contender.

At Edmonton, Ivy had amazing success in leading the Eskimos to the pinnacle of Canadian football for three successive years. His quiet but firm manner with players won him wide respect.

"He's the man we wanted from the start and he'll get the job done," said Walter Wolfner, managing director of the Cardinals.

LIBERAL CONTRACT

Wolfner declined to give details of Ivy's contract but said "it is Labieral one."

Eskimos offered Ivy more money to stay on and finish out his three-year contract which has one more year to run. But Ivy decided to make the move and the Edmonton owners released him from his contract.

The release was mandatory under agreements between the NFL and the WIFUF before the Cardinals could sign Ivy.

It was reported that Ivy found the Chicago deal more suitable as far as financial and family commitments are concerned. It is believed his salary with the Eskies was $18,500 a year.

A native of Skiatook, Okla., Ivy will be at home in Chicago particularly with the Cards. He played for them for seven years from 1940 to 1947.

FINE OPPORTUNITY

"I'm happy to be back home where I started in professional football," Ivy said. "It's a fine opportunity to advance in the coaching profession."

For Ivy the move is a challenge that could pay off handsomely The Cards were picked as title contenders after their fine 1956 season but they fell apart after an opening 20-10 triumph over San Francisco.

Last Saturday Ray Richards resigned, he said, for "the best interests of everyone concerned." The Cards finished the 1957 campaign with a disappointing 3-9 record.

Richards was the 18th Cardinal coach. The Cards had a 4-7-1 record in 1955 when he took over from Joe Stydahar. In 1956 they won seven of 12 games and were tabbed as likely contenders for '57.

ALSO QUIT

Charley Trippi, former Georgia and Cardinal star, also resigned as Cardinal assistant coach.

Ivy signed with Eskies in 1954, replacing Darrel Royal, now with the University of Texas. In his first season he won the Grey Cup and turned the trick twice more in 1955-56. Last season he piloted Edmonton to first place in the WIFU. Eskies had a 14-2 record, losing to Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the playoffs, two games to one.

As a college player, Ivy starred with the University of Oklahoma and was selected all-America end in 1939. After his playing days as a pro were over, he returned to Oklahoma in 1948 as assistant coach to Bud Wilkinson.

An Edmonton spokesman said that Ray Prochaska, 38, assistant coach of Eskies, has been offered the head coaching job but that Prochaska has not yet made up his mind. Prochaska, formerly an end with Nebraska, is in Chicago with Ivy.

BETTER AT NIGHT

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP) — Midnight tapping of rubber trees may be started within a few weeks as a result of discoveries of greater pressure on the trees at midnight, for some unknown reason, with consequent greater yields. Floodlighting of the plantations will be necessary.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Frank (Pop) Ivy, newly-appointed head coach of the Chicago Cardinals, says he does not intend to raid his old team ,Edmonton Eskimos, for player talent for the National Football League squad.

"In the first place it would be illegal," Ivy told the Vancouver Province in a telephone interview from Chicago Thursday night. "Those boys are under contract or option. But in any case I wouldn't try to entice anyone away from the Eskimos. After all, those people in Edmonton treated me real well. I wouldn't want to do anything to hurt them."

Ivy was asked about Jackie Parker, brilliant Eskimo back whose contract is reported to contain a clause permitting him to leave Edmonton to play in the NFL if he chooses.

"That business about his contract seems to have been common knowledge for some time," Ivy said. "However, I can't say for sure. In any case I wouldn't try to take him away. If he ever does play in the NFL it will be for New York Giants. He's their property down here."

Will Abandon Playoffs for Edinburgh Cup

CALGARY (CP)—The Western Hockey League Thursday decided that Edinburgh Trophy playoffs will be abandoned this year.

WHL playoffs this year will send the first-place teams in the Prairie and Coast divisions against each other in a best-of-seven series for the Governor's Cup. The second and third teams in each division will play a best-of-five series and the winner of each section will then meet for the right to oppose the Governor's Cup winner in the final.

The Edinburgh Trophy, instead of being for an established playoff between the WHL champions and the Quebec Hockey League champions, will become a challenge affair with the western winner having the right to challenge for it.

WHL president Al Leader said it was unlikely a challenge would be made this year because time would be too short at the close of the regular WHL playoffs.

'Newk', Brothers Face Grand Jury

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Pitcher Don Newcombe of Los Angeles Dodgers and his brothers, Norman and Harold, waived preliminary hearing Thursday on an assault charge. The case was sent to the grand jury.

James Palmieri, attorney for the complainant, Ulysses Ross, 36, of East Orange, said he thought the Newcombes should be put in jail because they will soon be in California for the start of the baseball season.

But Chief Magistrate Nicholas Castellano, continued them in custody of their lawyer. The brothers were accused by Ross of manhandling him last Dec. 21 when he was told to leave the Newcombe tavern.

All-Girl Line Not Approved By O.M.H.A.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Plans for the Watford pee wee hockey team to play an all-girl forward line in the coming Goderich Lions' Young Canada Week tournament are not being looked upon favorably by officials of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association.

However, OMHA officials said Thursday night that present regulations may handcuff their efforts to prevent the girls from participating in the big tourney.

Jack Oakes of Strathroy, the president of the OMHA, said "we (the OMHA) don't approve of girls participating against boys. I am personally against it but under the rules of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association by which we are governed, I don't believe we have the authority to refuse them permission to play."

Oakes said that the CAHA, through the OHA and the OMHA, is the governing body for senior, intermediate, junior, juvenile, midget and bantam hickey but doesn't take in pee wees.

Petes Shade Biltmores 3-2; Teepees Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Cubs, struggling for the last few weeks to break away from Toronto Marlboros in their see-saw battle for second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, hit a stumbling block Thursday night.

It was a big one—St. Catharines Teepees, sailing along in high gear in first place. Teeps defeated Cubs 5-2 in Hamilton to take a 12-point lead over Cubs and Marlboros, tied for second with 30 points.

In Peterborough, the Petes, flipping coins with Toronto St. Michael's for fourth spot, moved two points ahead with a 3-2 victory over the last-place Guelph Biltmores. Petes now have 29 points. Biltmores have 15, five behind sixth-place Barrie Flyers.

Two stalwarts contributed to the St. Catharines' victory. Jack McKenzie and Stan Mikita, both among the league's top five scorers, each hit for a goal. Ted Wright added two more and Wayne Hillman one.

Murray Oliver got both Hamilton goals to give Cubs a short-lived 2-1 lead during the second period.

The five goals scored in Peterborough were scattered among as many players in a game that was tied 1-1 at the end of the first period and stayed that way until the third. Jerry Brisson, Wayne Connelly and Tom Clark scored for Peterborough. Guelph marksmen were Leon Rochford and Wally Chevrier.

Eastern League Not So Bad Dunlops Bury 'Hounds' 11-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Whitby Dunlops have given Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds a lesson in how a team aspiring to represent Canada in the world hockey championships should play.

Registering their most decisive victory this season, Dunlops, slated to carry Canada's world championship colors at Oslo next month, whipped the Greyhounds 11-1 Thursday night in an OHA-NOHA Senior A game at Whitby. Greyhounds have put in a bid to represent Canada at the 1959 championships.

Dunlops also thwarted the Soo's bid to take over sole possession of first place. They are tied with Kitchener with 48 points apiece. Whitby, whose interlocking games with OHA-NOHA teams count for opponents only, have a comfortable 18-points first-place cushion in their own Ontario Hockey Association Senior A eastern series.

BEAT NORTH BAY

Down in their lower regions of the OHA-NOHA, Chatham Maroons defeated North Bay Trappers 4-2 at North Bay to give themselves a bit of a breather in the race for fourth spot. They now have 30 points to Trappers' 27.

In Whitby, Bus Gagnon paced the Dunlops with three goals. Playing coach Sid Smith and George Samolenko each got two with Charlie Burns, Gordie Myles, Haryr Sinden and Bobby Attersley adding one apiece. John Offidani got the Soo's only goal.

Gord Haidy, with two goals and an assist, spearheaded the Chatham attack. Jack Kane and Jim Connelly provided the other Maroon goals. Ken Gribbons and Gus Karrys, with a 95-foot blooper shot, scored for Trappers.

CANADIANS LOSE

Second-seeded Lois Felix of Boston defeated Ann Sparling of Toronto 6-1, 6-1.

Dinah Shore's 1-Hour Shows Tops in Variety Entertainment

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—"To be a success in show business," said Dinah Shore, "you don't have to be beautiful. You don't have to be smart—or even talented. But you've sure got to be healthy."

Because Miss Shore—who is beautiful, smart, talented and healthy—also is honest, she emphasized that she was quoting from the unpublished remarks of Esther Williams.

At least once a year Miss Shore comes to New York to do a show or two. This season it will be two from New York via NBC-TV this Sunday and next. This Sunday evening her guests will be three broadway stars Art Carney, Julie Wilson and Chita Rivera. A week from Sunday her guests will be Ethel Merman, Cyril Ritchard, Andy Griffith and Gwen Verdon.

SHOWS SCORE HITS

Miss Shore's three hour-length shows every four weeks makes for a strenuous career indeed. Her shows this season speak—and sing—for themselves, and she doesn't need to say a word about them. They're tops in variety entertainment — and that's speaking as an objective so-called critic rather than as a subjective Dinah Shore fan.

The grind has left no visible marks on Miss Shore. She looks grand and still has the bounce of a new tennis ball. How does she do it? Does she diet or sleep 10 hours a night or what?

"Sometimes I cut down a little on food," she said, plunging a fork into a couple of eggs fried in butter after having slept six hours. "My regular weight is 128 and it's quite easy for me to stay there.

CAT NAP ABILITY

"I think I'm lucky in one respect. If you tell me, 'Dinah, lie down and sleep for 7½ minutes,' I can lie down and sleep for 7½ minutes—except at night. I don't worry about catching colds. I try to take sensible precautions—and not worry about it."

There must be something in this common-sense attitude because in the last 10 years Miss Shore has grown an inch and a half. No kidding. Ten years ago she was five feet 4½ inches tall. Recently the same physician measured her as five feet six. Nobody can explain it. Maybe the answer is "bounce."

Three Generations of Lewises Working on Latest Movie

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Three generations of Lewises are working on Jerry's latest movie, but one is due for retirement.

It was a real family scene on the set of Rock-A-Bye Baby at Paramount. Frank Tashlin was directing a shot in which young Gary Lewis sings a song and dances over a hillside of spring flowers.

But Frank had some help on the sidelines. Also aiding in the direction was the producer of the picture, Jerry Lewis, who finds time to act in it, too. Then there was his lovely wife, Patty, who brought along another son, Ronnie. Completing the family picture was Gary's grandfather, youthful - looking vaudeville veteran Danny Lewis, who also has a part in the movie.

The family group gathered in the Paramount commissary for lunch and discussed 12-year-old Gary's budding career, which is about to be nipped.

"This kid has only about 200 tons of talent," said proud papa Jerry. "It's just too bad it's going to be hidden until he grows up."

"This will be Gary's farewell appearance until he graduates from college," Jerry said.

I asked Gary how he felt about that.

"I'll change his mind," the boy said, out of his father's hearing.

He'll have some powerful campaigning to do, because Jerry seems pretty firm in his decision.

"I hate child actors," he said. "I mean the professional kind of child actor. The youngsters who are great as actors and who are really liked are the ones who do things naturally, who act without being actors. Gary is like that.

"But the trouble with most child actors is that they are pushed into acting by an ambitious parent. The kids become phony; they're subjected to all kinds of attention which they shouldn't have at their age. And they usually end up unhappy in their later lives.

"Gary doesn't have to act. He's going to have the advantage of the education I didn't have. I had to quit in the second grade of high school, not because I needed the money but because I couldn't be happy unless I was in show business.

"I've lived to regret it. I've had to adjust to situations I could have coped with more easily if I had gone on in school."

So far Gary has appeared three times with his pa. He did the Sonny Boy routine on Jerry's television show and appeared for a week when the comic played Detroit. "The kid got the biggest hand I've ever heard," said Jerry.

But after finishing his number in the movie, Gary goes back to military academy here and becomes one of th boys again.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Friday, January 10

Aries (March 21 to April 19)— Letters from out of town could give the wrong picture, and it is best not to permit them to disturb the work to be finished now. P. M. see that you prepare to complete other work in more modern and efficient fashion.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)— Before you spend any money or take time for recreation today, make sure you have done all the work promised to meet the expectations of those with whom you have committed yourself. See that you are fair to all and self.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)— Hasty words of others could put discord into family leaf if you do not ignore them immediately, for they were uttered without having cognizance of all facts. P.M. get new gadgets and tackle work at home. Make everything spick and span.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) — Don't let some disturbing influence cause you to lose your temper and make irreparable little damages here and there around the home venting your ire. Tonight, get trips and correspondence planned nicely.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — The right recreation that costs little is far better than that for which you have to pay altogether too much. Try it. Also, disarm dour individuals with a smile. Be sweet, though you may be weighted down with worries.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — While you are dissatisfied with a certain situation at home, remember that you are as much to blame as anyone, so be big and rectify it now. Be all sweetness and light, cooperate and learn a lesson thereby.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Someone has asked for a helping hand. He or she is quite sincere, but don't be overly generous and let your friend lose the incentive for self-help, independence. Be commiserating, but not maudlin. Get your work done.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)— If it is necessary to worry about money matters, see that you do so in a cool, intelligent fashion, and not hurt others by quick temper over large expenses. Best to call in banker, accountant, however.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — While you may have a big chip on your shoulder, it is the height of wisdom today to speak quietly and keep temper in check, thereby getting results instead of a headache for your pains and then regretting at leisure.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Be sure to get your hours set up carefully today, if you want to avoid getting into a stalemate with any partners not in own social sphere whocannotsee cial sphere who cannot see eye to eye with you. Tonight, work on bookkeeping records.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — A bombastic talk from devoted pal, who is unfamiliar with your present situations, finances can be forgiven easily since he or she does think it is for your benefit. Turn a kind ear, but do as you please, what you feel is right.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)— A.M. is a bit trying since your associate who likes to gossip and a perky member of your establishment do not approve of each other. Hold your tongue and tend to own knitting. P.M. think out correct procedure.

If your child is born today . . . The child born today is very pretty and with this is a very vivid imagination, in technicolor, as it were. So it is your duty to tone down or up any understanding of real situations to bring it into proper focus. The creative is so pronounced in this chart that by constant correcting in childhood, the adult life then becomes perfected and the great artist, painter, sculptor is here.

The spokesman said the 400 men laid off were all hired on a probationary basis within the last three months. No further layoffs are expected in Oshawa or at the company's Windsor plant, he said.

LIBERALS

In an article published in the Ontario Young Liberals' Bulletin last August, he charged that party leaders had shown "complete indifference to the needs of the average Canadian."

The social security issue may figure in the leadership fight. Former health minister Paul Martin, one of the main contestants, says that if he wins and returns the Liberals to office, he will continue to expand social welfare policies "which in the past won such enthusiastic public support for Canadian Liberalism."

Former external affairs minister Lester B. Pearson, considered by many to be the leading contender for the Liberal crown, stated last September that the party should avoid the danger of creating the belief that all Canadians are entitled to become "wards of the state" at a certain age.

The danger of inflation nullifying the real monetary value of any welfare increases had to be recognized. He said benefits should be maintained and increased when considerations warrant increases.

Mr. Martin Thursday was the first person in the leadership contest to announce he definitely will be nominated. Moving his nomination will be James E. Brown, former MP for Brantford, who is heading the Martin-for-leader committee.

BELL TELEPHONE

The remainder of the amount that the board knocked off apparently was a built-in figure in Bell's accounts against the possibility of pay increases. No specific figure was given during hearings here, but the board in its judgment said it is disallowing anything for possible wage rate increases in 1958.

On the other hand, the board allowed Bell the benefit of a contentious deferred income tax credit which now is the subject of an appeal to the federal cabinet by provincial governments opposing a board-granted railway freight rate increase that took the same type of credit into account in setting rates.

LONG DISTANCE HIKE

On long-distance service, there are varying ups and downs in the rates with an over-all boost of around one per cent.

Generally, the new scales reduce the discount for night calls and put much of the additional costs on person-to-person calls.

The spread between person-to-person and station-to-station calls is being widened to encourage the coming use of long-distance dial service on a station-to-station basis.

Station-to-station day rates are reduced for all distances greater than 92 miles. Station-to-station rates have some increases and decreases up to 320 miles. Between 320 and 700 the rates are increased, and beyond that they are generally decreased.

Person-to-person day rates increase up to 800 miles and remain stable above that distance. The night rate is generally increased.

NEW ONTARIO RATES

Following are examples of the new rates authorized in Ontario. In each instance the old rate is bracketed:

Brantford, St. Catharines, Sudbury, Welland, Kingston: 2-party $3.60 (3.50) business $10.35 (9.70).

Belleville, Chatham, Cornwall, Guelph, Niagara Falls, North Bay, Oshawa, Peterborough, St. Thomas: 2-party $3.40 (3.30) business $3.95 (8.40).

Galt, Orillia, Owen Sound, Pembroke, Stratford, Woodstock: 2-party $3.20 (3.10) business $7.80 (7.40).

WILL DISCUSS

Rev. Dan McIvor (L — Fort William) blamed liquor as the "worst cause of crime in Canada today."

He said he had dealings in 107 parole cases in recent years, and of that number only three went wrong. "They did so because of drink."

Mr. Fulton said he planned to seek cabinet approval of a method of approaching the provinces on joint problems. But Mr. Fulton said he spoke informally to most provincial attorneys-general last September at the Canadian Bar Association's annual meeting.

His approach to joint federal-provincial action involved in the report had been conveyed to the provinces already in general terms and they had indicated general agreement.

Marine Denies Torturing Men in Brig

YOKOSUKA, Japan (AP) — Sgt. Robert J. Barbuti of the U.S. Marines today denied before a military court that he stamped on a navy prisoner's bare feet, rammed a pencil up a man's nose until it bled, or banged two sailors' heads together to the rhythm of a Mario Lanza record.

The burly former assistant warden at the Sasebo naval base brig in South Japan said he only used his foot to shove the feet of several prisoners into the proper position for attention, tapped a man's forehead with a pencil while bawling him out and struck the sailors' shoulders together — not their heads—"to shake them up."

"In time to the record?" asked his civilian defence counsel, Frank H. Scolinos.

"No, sir, it never happened," Barbuti replied.

The 205-pound, 23-year-old sergeant denied all 28 counts of cruelty to prisoners charged to him except one slugging. He said that man told him: "Sir, I believe you are the fattest man in the brig."

Barbuti also denied earlier testimony that he squirted shaving cream into a man's mouth and ears, kicked a man on the head as he followed orders by crawling on the floor like a dog, or drew a bayonet across a prisoner's bare chest.

WAYNESBURG, Pa. (AP)—Alvin Silbaugh, 17, was excused from classes for a short time Thursday to take his auto driving examination. Silbaugh passed the test and quickly returned to school. But his car skidded on a slippery driveway and smashed into the cafeteria section of the building, bucking a 20-foot section of brick wall.

Winter in Kitimat, B.C. Will Be Hard on Many Due To Layoff of 1,700 Workers

By MARTIN TAYLOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KITIMAT, B.C. (CP) — This five-year-old smelter town of 14,000, born in boom times and weaned on prosperity, finally has become what its reeve calls a normal community.

Carved out of a wilderness, the Aluminum Company of Canada smelter came into production here in 1954 with plans for a city of 50,000 population, the dream of the pioneers.

The dream remains, but there has been a change from the prosperous days and the winter will be hard for many.

1,700 LAID OFF

The change came with the layoff of 1,700 workers when the Saguenay - Kitimat Construction Company, a subsidiary of Alcan, announced it would gradually close down operations by April 1958. The company had decided not to proceed with expansion to seven from five in the number of its "potlines"—series of vats in which aluminum ore is refined.

"No layoff is good news—it is catastrophe for the family man who is left without a job," says Reeve Wilburn Hallman. "But this levelling-off will be healthy for our economy in the long run We are no longer a construction camp—we are a normal community, living a normal life."

No one here says Kitimat is going to be a ghost town. But the community will never forget Oct. 28—"Black Monday."

It was the day the layoffs were announced. It came without warning. Many workers and their families left the town. Many others, though jobless, stayed.

WORLD DEMAND OFF

A slump in world markets for aluminum brought the slowdown.

The giant smelter, where hundreds are still employed, continued operation, a silver stream of aluminum, hot and smoking, pouring from the fiery potlines.

Despite a temporary layoff recently caused by a breakdown in the power line between here and the massive hydro station at Kemano, more than 4,000 workers look forward to steady employment in the town and plant. They make about $1,500,000 a month.

The halt in construction was termed by Howard Mitchell, publisher of the Northern Sentinel, the first bad news Kitimat ever had.

In the first wave of uncertainty following "Black Monday" union officials say nine families auctioned off their furniture at giveaway prices within two days.

UNION'S CLAIMS

Union officials have condemned management for the layoffs. They claim many of the workers were promised permanent jobs when they moved to Kitimat.

Union officers and members, however, are working with a community action committee with plans for aiding the jobless families, and planning for the future.

Reeve Hallman says existence of a labor pool here for the first time will stimulate construction. New housing projects may be started, and a $3,800,000 hospital is planned.

Business and commerce have so far been little affected by the layoffs. Union officials say this is because Alcan workers recently received $600,000 in retroactive pay raises. The extra money is acting as a cushion for trade.

But the Northern Sentinel, a newspaper which became a daily less than six months ago, has had to resume twice-weekly publication. Mr. Mitchell says it will become a daily again as soon as Kitimat recovers from its setback.

COSTLY DEVELOPMENT

Kitimat, 450 miles north of Vancouver on the rugged British Columbia coast, has been developed at a cost of more than $380,000,000, with the ultimate goal planned by Alcan set at $550,000,000.

It is not strictly a "company town." All the land in Kitimat originally was owned by Alcan but some has since been sold to private business concerns and some to individuals for homes. Most families affected by the layoffs live in homes rented from Alcan. An employee building his own home is granted a second mortgage by Alcan, which provides for repurchase of the property by Alcan if the employee leaves before the mortgage is paid off.

Those living in rented houses have had their payments reduced under a "deferred rental" plan. Legally they will owe the company the unpaid amount but Alcan has said it will not ask payment if a laid-off family subsequently leaves town.

Kitimat is a district municipality and its reeve and councillors are elected. Most are Alcan employees since the only other employment in the area is in retail establishments. Reeve Hallman edits The Ingot, weekly newspaper published by Alcan for its employees.

ABUNDANCE OF POWER

Cheap and plentiful hydro-electric power is the reason for Kitimat's existence. Damming of outlets of mountain lakes provided a 350- square -mile reservoir. Water rushes through a 10-mile-long tunnel to a powerhouse in the mountainside at Kemano, 50 miles south of Kitimat. The water drops 16 times the height of Niagara Falls before passing through five huge turbines.

Carpenter Dick Peterson, who came here three years ago from Edmonton and lives with his wife and two children in an Alcan home, was one of the first to be laid off.

The company has reduced his rent to $40 from $90 a month on a "deferred rental" plan.

Meanwhile he has payments to meet on $1 800 worth of furniture which he bought when he moved his family here in April and only $30 a week unemployment insurance benefits to look forward to.

"We can't go anywhere else—the employment situation is just as bad everywhere now. This is our home now," he says.

SEE BLEAK FUTURE

The future looks bleak, too, for Mr. and Mrs. Steve Nagy who moved here from Niagara Falls, Ont., in July, 1956.

The 57- year -old Hungarian-born shoemaker gave up his trade to work as a laborer for the construction company and invested more than $700 in moving a few possessions here. He says there is no hope of getting a job anywhere else at his age.

"What can we do?" asks Mrs. Nagy. "We can only hope — we have often had to get by with hope. This is our home now and we plan to spend the rest of our lives here."

Business agent Ernie Rodda of the carpenters' union says many families like these face severe hardship because they were encouragd to settle in Kitimat.

"We are construction workers, we're used to layoffs at one hour's notice," he says, "but the company insisted this was a permanent job and encouraged men to regard Kitimat as their home."

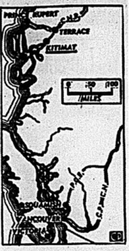
NO ALTERNATIVE

Project manager Jack Kendrick of Alcan says the company had no alternative to the construction close-down.

"The whole economy of North America has lost its drive in the last six months. Many industries have been compelled to re-examine their capital programs."

Mr. Kendrick agrees that the company encouraged men to bring their families to this remote community. But he says it paid the fares for its employees and their dependents to come here and has offered to contribute to their cost of moving out.

PROSPERITY SLOWS DOWN



A slump in the world market for aluminum has brought a slowdown in the prosperous progress of the northern British Columbia smelter town of Kitimat.

The town, 450 miles north of Vancouver, was founded five years ago to make use of the water - power resources of the B. C. hinterland in smelting aluminum ore brought by ship from Jamaica.

Kitimat heard its first bad news last fall when 1,700 construction workers were laid off. The workers were extending the huge Aluminum Company of Canada smelter on which the town's 14,000 people depend for a livelihood.

Many of the idle workers left Kitimat but steady work still was in prospect for 4,000 wage-earners.

Now Kitimat's townspeople are looking toward the day when they will no longer be dependent on a single industry. They hope that Kitimat's location on a good harbor, the vast hydro potential and the proximity of the varied resources of northern B.C. will bring diversified industry.—(CP Newsmap).

Onetime Winnipeg Newsboy Holds Post in Trade Assoc.

By JOSEPH MACSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—J. Gordon Dakins, a onetime Winnipeg newsboy, is executive chief of an association that speaks for an annual business of $19,000,000,000.

Student, salesman, sportsman, traveller, lawyer, credit expert, lecturer, business writer and authority on business letters, Dakins can claim to be something of a philosopher as well.

What sort of a man is he?

"Well, I'm not a dreamer," said Dakins with a smile, interviewed in his Manhattan office.

As executive vice-president of the National Retail Dry Goods association, he heads a headquarters staff of 90, including 20 "senior experts," who boast they can answer any question on the retail trade.

IDEA CENTRE

In 1957, they answered 77,000 inquiries. Dakins, 54, his five - foot, 10-inch frame showing the fitness of the athlete he used to be, has a mild but firm manner as he presides over these hustle-bustle operations.

NRDGA is a sort of vast information clearing house, watchdog and idea centre for member companies whose annual business is estimated by Dakins at $19,000,000,000.

It has 8,200 members in 37 countries, including 200 in Canada.

"There's a great deal of talk these days about Canadians," said Dakins. "Whenever I'm asked how Canadians and Americans differ, I'm liable to talk about myself.

"I could always latch onto ideas better than I could originate them, for instance. Canadians are a practical race. They can take ideas and make good use of them. They have the tenacity to stick to a thing better than Americans, perhaps because they are used to working harder."

WON TRIP

John Gordon Dakins, son of a carpenter - contractor, went into business for himself — Selling newspapers—when he was 12.

He was the keenest newsboy on the Winnipeg Free Press, he and his brother Ralph winning a trip to Victoria as a reward. Gordon kept selling papers until he was in his second year at University of Manitoba, by that time having a couple of youths working for him on his routes.

At night he worked at a bowling alley and a movie house to help finance his education. Yet he graduated in arts with highest honors. Three years later, in 1929, he repeated the performance in winning his law degree.

But before that he was a semi-pro baseball catcher, playing at Weyburn and Swift Current, Sask., Minot, N.D., and in the Winnipeg Senior League. He also had played hockey, lacrosse, soccer—always as a goalie.

TRAVELS WIDELY

"I liked to stay in one place and let the play come to me," he recalled.

Does this theory apply in his business technique?

"Well, I certainly don't believe in the ivory tower type of business," said Dakins. "I travel 50,000 miles a year, including two annual trips across Canada."

In the tough depression days, Dakins left his law practice for work as a shoe salesman in a Winnipeg department store, soon moving into the credit side of the business, and later becoming credit manager for an oil company in Toronto.

"My law training has been a great help — it enables one to strip things of non-essentials and get to the root of a problem," said Dakins.

TACTFUL LETTERS

But it was a hobby that spread his fame in the business world. Dakins, who was called "the professor" by his schoolmates because of his wide vocabulary, became an authority on the "tactful" and precise business letter, and was in demand as a public speaker on the subject.

He moved to St. Louis in 1942, and a few years later joined NRDGA being quickly tabbed for leadership.

Besides writing business manuals, Dakins has lectured on credit procedures at New York University, currently finding time for a new hobby, the science of human relations in business.

"These hobbies have paid off all the way," said Dakins, who reads 60 magazines a month, but no longer has time for reading books.

Dakins, although at pains to say that he is a practical man, not a dreamer, added, "but it is true that business imagination is based on dreams."

Perhaps Gordon Dakins just dreams about practical things.

CANADIAN HUSTLER

J. Gordon Dakins, former Winnipeg newsboy, now is executive vice - president of the National Retail Dry Goods Association in the United States, a group that speaks for $19,000,000,000 worth of annual business. Dakins, called "the professor" at school because of his wide vocabulary, is an authority on business letters, among other things. — (CP Photo) 1958.

Says Tenant Made No Fuss When Bussed

LONDON (Reuters)—A rent collector who also collected a few kisses on his rounds was acquitted Wednesday of molesting a tenant.

Herbert Jeff, 58, said Mrs. Edith Greenland, 53, never objected to bussing him in the hallway when he called to collect the rent.

"I am not very proud of having done this, but she never struggled in any way," Jeff told the court.

Judge G. D. Roberts commented: "I suppose it is rather a dull job collecting rent."

Air Force Chief Critical of Ike's Space Age Plan

Unified Agency Would Duplicate Existing Body

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Air Force's missile chief says President Eisenhower's plan for a unified American space agency would wastefully duplicate air force capabilities already in existence.

Maj.-Gen. Bernard A. Schriever adds that the air force is ready to undertake "at a relatively early date" such space-age projects as unmanned reconnaissance trips to the moon, Mars, and Venus.

Schriever's opposition to Eisenhower's space program, in testimony before the Senate preparedness subcommittee, was labelled today as "unfortunate" by a Republican member of the subcommittee, Senator Ralph Flanders of Vermont.

Schriever's testimony was given behind closed doors on Thursday, the day Eisenhower informed Congress in his "state of the union" message that "all the anti-missile and satellite technology undertaken within the department of defence" would be concentrated in the new advanced research projects agency.

RELEASES TESTIMONY

The testimony of Schriever, who also voiced other criticisms of U.S. missile and satellite policies, was released Friday night by the air force.

Schriever thus became the third high American military officer to criticize administration defence plannng this week n what some have tagged "the revolt of the generals."

In an interview, Flanders said: "It seems the president showed leadership in straightening out the armed forces, and if his first move is publicly condemned by one of the services I think that is unfortunate."

HAS LACKED ROLE

So far, the air force has had no role in the U.S. effort to launch an earth satellite. The navy's Vanguard project had sole responsibility for this until after the Russians launched two Sputniks last fall. Then the army was ordered into the program. Vanguard's first try at launching a test satellite failed on Dec. 6.

Earlier in the week the preparedness subcommittee had heard two other generals voice strong criticism of defence policies.

Lt.-Gen. James M. Gavin, chief of army research and development, said he is retiring March 31 because, he contended, the army is deteriorating rapidly and "I can't get anything done about it."

And Gen. Thomas D. White, air force chief of staff, told the subcommittee that Eisenhower has not asked enough money for a planned stepup in work on 5,000-mile intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Railway Track Not Good Place To Fix a Flat

ROYALTON, Minn. (AP)—Farmer John Albright, 35, stopped his truck on the railroad tracks Thursday night to fix a flat tire.

He crawled under the rear end to set a jack under the axle, heard a loud crash, looked up and the truck was gone.

The Northern Pacific Railway's Mainstreeter passenger train from the west coast had roared down the tracks at 70 miles an hour and pulverized the truck, leaving him only slightly injured on the ground.

Deputy Chief Of Peterborough Resigns Post

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Deputy Chief William (Bud) Clarke of the Peterborough police force ended a 20-year career Friday when his letter of resignation was accepted by the city board of police commissioners.

Clarke, the main figure in the city police probe ordered by Attorney-General Roberts last July 2, will receive a pension of not less than $1,400 a year and will be entitled to all other pension benefits.

During the 12-day hearing evidence was that Clarke had maintained an informer system in Peterborough by letting bootleggers operate unmolested in return for information about major crimes and criminals. Evidence of wire tapping also was heard.

Mr. Justice F. E. Mackay heard the probe and returned a report without recommendation. He said Clarke's practices could not be tolerated.

Turn Attention To Plans to Put 'Moons' Into Sky

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — United States space-vehicle testers, having launched two 5,000-mile missiles within four hours, turned their attention today to efforts to put two baby moons into the sky.

The launchings Friday of an Atlas ballistic missile and a Navaho ram - jet vehicle both were successful. The Navaho took off ballistic-fashion under the power of two liquid propellants rockets considerably longer than the missile itself. The rocket boosters dropped off into the ocean after about 40 miles of flight. After the Navaho attained supersonic speed its ram-jet engine was able to take over.

Both missiles were believed to have flown several hundred miles, far short of their designed range.

One of the satellites, designed as a civilian scientific project under the navy's management, will be an aluminum sphere only 6.4 inches in diameter and weighing about 3¼ pounds. It will be launched by the three-stage, 72-feet-long Vanguard rocket.

The other will be a metal cylinder 80 inches long and six inches in diameter, weighing 29.7 pounds. It will be the final stage of the Army's Jupiter-C missile.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — After a mild day, cold weather and scattered snowflurries have returned. Brisk northwesterly winds dropped temperatures steadily near the lower lakes and in Northern Ontario. The new cold snap is expected to be brief with a trend to milder weather setting in again on Sunday.

Not Forced Down Was Just Lost Over Albania

BELGRADE (AP)—A United States Air Force major said here today that he voluntarily landed his T-33 jet trainer in Communist Albania after he was blown off course with his radio communications broken.

Maj. Howard Curran arrived from Alhania by Yugoslav commercial airliner, leaving behind his plane which had been reported forced down by Communist fighters.

He said he was not forced down. He landed because he lost his way on a flight from France to Italy.

Idling Russian Teleprinter Starts World-Wide Hunt for New Sputnik

STOCKHOLM (AP)—An idling Russian teleprinter brought on a world-wide radio monitor hunt today for a new Soviet Sputnik, the Swedish government's radio monitor station said.

A spokesman of the Enkoping station said the Sputnik - like beep-beeps heard at 20.025 megacycles for hours this morning have been definitely traced to a "typical Russian frequency-shift teleprinter transmitter."

He said the printer had resumed sending clear text in Russian after idling for about three hours.

"It sounded quite like a Sputnik at the start," the spokesman said.

In London earlier BBC engineers had reported hearing signals which conceivably could have originated in an earth satellite.

The BBC engineers started listening intently after receiving reports from Finland and the United States that radio amateurs were picking up strange sounds.

ONTARIO MAY SPEED HOSPITAL PROGRAM START

Will Try to Advance Jan. 1 Target Date

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has announced its intention of enabling a start by July 1 on the national hospital insurance scheme.

The announcement by Health Minister J. Waldo Monteith Friday in the Commons was welcomed from all quarters.

Spokesmen for the governments of Alberta and British Columbia said their provinces are ready to go whenever the federal government is, providing the final agreement is acceptable.

Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan said in Regina the federal announcement is "very welcome news." But he said he hadn't much else to say until he has seen terms "under which we will have to make the sharing agreement with Ottawa."

In Toronto, Ontario Health Minister Phillips said his province might be ready sooner than Jan. 1, 1959, the date previously set as its target date and generally expected to be the earliest starting time for the national scheme.

MANY DETAILS

But he said there are a lot of details still to be smoothed out.

Premier Bennett of British Columbia said in Victoria that his government is ready to share hospital insurance costs with Ottawa before July 1.

"We are anxious to establish the program immediately."

Alberta Health Minister Ross said in Edmonton that his province is ready to participate anytime if the final agreement is acceptable.

Meantime, in Halifax Health Minister Donahoe of Nova Scotia said it will be impossible for that province to join the scheme by July 1. From the beginning, Jan. 1, 1959, had been the Nova Scotia starting date.

Health Minister McInerney of New Brunswick said in Fredericton that he doesn't expect the scheme will come into operation in that province before Jan. 1, 1959.

Premier Matheson of Prince Edward Island said in Charlottetown his province can't be ready by July 1. Its target date was set for 1959.

NOTES REQUIREMENT

Mr. Monteith noted that existing legislation requires that at least six provinces containing half or more of the Canadian population sign agreements with the federal government and have enabling legislation in force before federal payments would be made.

He said the government at the next session of Parliament—expected later this winter unless an election intervenes—would repeal this requirement.

It would substitute a provision that any province signing an agreement with Ottawa and enacting enabling legislation could receive federal payments from July 1 on.

$200 in Old Bills Found

TARA, Ont. (CP) — A wallet containing $200 in 50-year-old bills has been found by two workmen insulating the attic of a home here.

Alvin Morrow and David Speer said they found the wallet Thursday wrapped in heavy lead foil previously used on tea packets. The bills, in $5, $10 and $20 denominations, were dated between 1902 and 1906.

Mrs. C. A. Speer, who has lived in the house for 20 years, has been unable to trace anyone who might have lived in the house as far back as 1910.

SET CAMPAIGNS IN MOTION

Friendly competitors for the role of leadership of the Liberal party, Lester Pearson, left, and Paul Martin have their convention campaigns running smoothly. Both have firm support among the voting delegates and either could emerge from the Ottawa convention to lead the party in the next general election.

Pearson Sidesteps Question Of Election if Chosen Leader

OTTAWA (CP) — Lester B. Pearson says that if he takes over as new leader of the Liberal party his immediate concern will be to get the party back to a "normal opposition" in the House of Commons.

However, the former career diplomat who stopped into the political arena as external affairs minister nine years ago and wound up with the 1957 Nobel Peace Prize, sidestepped a question as to whether this meant he would seek an early general election.

The actual tactics of the party, he said in an interview, "will be decided by the leader in caucus." In other words, he would discuss the matter with his Commons colleagues.

To date this session the Liberals have not formed a normal Opposition — one which seeks every opportunity to overthrow the government in an attempt to gain power itself in an election.

But when the Liberals turned over the government to the minority Progressive Conservative administration last June, retiring leader Louis St. Laurent committed his party to give the new government a chance to carry out the program it promised in winning the last election.

It is understood that the party's consistent refusal to vote against the government has caused some restiveness among rank-and-file Liberals.

However, in addition to giving the government a chance to show its mettle, it has held off any possible election until the Liberals could pick a new leader.

There is growing speculation that if the Liberals adopt a tougher attitude in the Commons after next week's leadership convention it may come on the unemployment issue.

The government announced Friday that job applicants at the end of December totalled about 700,000 — highest since the national employment service was created in 1940.

Like former health minister Paul Martin, his chief leadership opponent, Mr. Pearson emphasized the seriousness of the unemployment situation.

Mr. Martin said it was "alarming." Mr. Pearson said that "outside of war and peace, there is nothing closer to the minds of Canadians than jobs."

"There is definite anxiety in the country," he said. "Full employment is always a big issue. The govennfent has to take steps, to be more active and forthright in meeting this problem."

On a lighter note, Mr. Pearson observed that Mr. Martin has stated that if he should become prime minister he will give back to Mr. Pearson his old job as external affairs minister.

Martin Says He Would Wage An Unprecedented Campaign

OTTAWA (CP)—Hard-fighting Paul Martin, seeking the biggest prize of his political life, says if elected Liberal leader he will wage a campaign on behalf of his party the like of which has never been seen in this country.

And he intimated in an interview that if he became prime minister, he would seek to remove the 7½-per-cent excise tax on automobiles as a means of encouraging employment.

"I will battle tirelessly, relentlessly to bring those things I believe to be true liberalism to the Canadian people," the 54-year-old campaigner said.

"I will visit every hamlet, every village. I will use every means of communication. I will meet (Prime Minister) John Diefenbaker on his own ground. I will work closely with the rank-and-file of the party and put on a battle the like of which never before has been witnessed in Canada."

Mr. Martin, a bilingual lawyer who had to struggle against poverty in his youth, has repeatedly proven himself at the polls in the tough riding of Essex East. It takes in the automotive centre of Windsor, Ont., where some 20,000 men now are unemployed. He has represented that riding for 22 consecutive years, increasing his majority in each fight.

He declined to say, if elected at the party convention next Thursday, whether he would attempt to seek an early general election. He said he would have to consider the situation as it developed and act in the "best interests" of the country and the party.

But he observed that Canada has some "serious" unemployment. The government had announced that the number of job applicants had increased to about 700,000 at the end of December, double the number a year ago.

"This is a very alarming situation. The figures are most disturbing. The unemployment situation now is more serious than it was in 1933."

Dictatorship End Demanded In Venezuela

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Demonstrators in downtown Caracas Friday night demanded "an end to the dictatorship" as President Maccos Perez Jiminey sought to mollify the Vatican by freeing five jailed priests.

Police moved in with tear gas and machetes as several hundred shouting demonstrators, milled about the heart of the capital. Some of the group handed out leaflets calling for freedom for political prisoners.

Authorities finally broke up the demonstration after several shop windows were smashed, and arrested about two dozen persons. No injuries were reported.

Perez Jiminez has been facing mounting political pressure since an unsuccessful New Year's uprising by some military forces. He announced the freeing of the priests shortly after he booted out the unpopular heads of his interior ministry and security police and installed a new cabinet.

(Word reaching New York Friday night said Venezuelan naval forces have thrown their support to rising military pressure for a new government.)

The Vatican was openly aroused by the arrests of the priests the day after the Jan. 1 uprising. An authoritative church source at Vatican City said at the time that a diplomatic break with Venezuela was imminent.

ART BEQUEST

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP)—A bequest of $20,000,000 to the Cleveland Museum of Art is included in the will of industrialist-philanthropist L. C. Hanne, filed Friday in probate court. An inventory valued Hanna's estate at $26,000,000.

FULTON DEFENDS MOUNTIES UNDER FIRE FROM CCF

Dossier-Collecting Activities Assailed

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Davie Fulton says the dossier - collecting activities of the RCMP's anti-subversive branch are valuable and important.

But he said in the Commons Friday that public and individual interests must be safeguarded by secrecy so that the information "is never put to an improper purpose."

Mr. Fulton was replying to a series of criticisms by CCF members of the handling by the anti-subversive branch of its files on individuals.

Arnold Peters (CCF — Timiskaming), who said that as a university student he once was shown an RCMP file on himself, asked whether such files are kept for anti-labor purposes.

Mr. Peters, who is active in union affairs, added:

"I am quite sure there is no one in the House of Commons today on whom the RCMP do not maintain a file."

CITES OWN DOSSIER

He said his own file dealt with such things as a petition to the Commons he had been connected with. Copies of the file were kept at at least two United States border crossing points. He had seen them referred to when he visited the U.S.

RCMP files which did not deal with criminal activities should be cleared out and not "maintained more or less in case somebody may need them some day."

Mr. Fulton, who was dealing with his departmental spending estimates, said he is sure that such files are not used for anti-labor purposes and that there are not dossiers on all MPs.

Referring to criticisms about the manner in which RCMP security information is provided to other countries, the minister said Canada has to exchange information with other countries. It was the only way of knowing about persons who might be unsuitable to enter the country.

"It seems to me the thing to be looked at is that we control the exchange of information . . . and that we control the release of the information."

Alex Macdonald (CCF) — Vancouver Kingsway interjected at one point that Mr. Peters had a part in ridding his union of Communist leadership. He was referring to the International Woodworkers of America.

The Commons finally approved Mr. Fulton's departmental estimates and turned to a discussion of fisheries department estimates. That debate continued today.

Toronto Father Found Guilty Of Manslaughter

TORONTO (CP)—A jury Friday found Marcel Lloyd Bezeau, 29, of Toronto guilty of manslaughter in the death Aug. 5 of his five-year-old son, Richard Michael. He was remanded for sentence.

The Crown had rested its case on a statement by Bezeau that he had beaten the boy for bed-wetting because his motto was "spare the rod and spoil the child."

Detc. Sgt. Aubrey Potter testified that Bezeau had admitted his son "got his clouts" but always for something he did wrong, "like bed-wetting."

Russia and West Reject Other's Parley Schemes

Summit Meeting on Arms Alone Is Possible Result

LONDON (AP) — The Russian newspaper Pravda has rejected Western suggestions for a foreign ministers' meeting instead of a summit conference as a method of breaking East-West deadlocks.

The suggestions have been made unofficially in reaction to Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin's latest round of letters asking for a summit meeting within two or three months. The 15 NATO powers are reported lining up behind rejection of the request, already turned down by the Western Big Three.

In an article broadcast by Moscow radio Pravda says a foreign ministers' meeting "would be more likely to heap fresh obstacles in the way of a summit conference."

The Communist party paper says a summit conference could be a success if the countries taking part showed "a sense of reality."

Most Western leaders feel that a foreign ministers' meeting is the place for the first of the two levels of meetings mentioned by Pravda. The NATO conference proposed a foreign ministers' meeting but the Kremlin scorned it.

REJECTED BID

The western Big Three rejected Bulganin's bid in separate statements Friday. Replies from five unspecified countries also were discussed by the NATO Council in Paris.

Government sources in London said all the NATO partners already are agreed that Bulganin's terms for a top-level meeting in two or three months without preparation are unacceptable.

But Western diplomats say public pressure for summit talks at least on the important disarmament question may be too strong to resist. One veteran ambassador suggested that the West might work out a deal to hold a summit conference with Russia only on the arms race.

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd told a political rally Friday night that a preliminary foreign ministers' conference would be a better idea. Such a meeting, Lloyd said, could break the disarmament deadlock and pave the way for "greater things" such as a summit meeting.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower is expected to send Premier Bulganin a message this weekend holding open the door to an eventual summit conference but rejecting the Russian leader's bid for such a session within three months.

Eisenhower's reply has been co-ordinated with those going from the government chiefs of Britain, France and other Allied powers in response to a series of notes Bulganin sent free-world leaders in December. It is understood that the replies also will cover the substance of new Bulganin messages to NATO leaders and heads of many other governments this week.

State Secretary Dulles gave the guidelines of United States policy at a press conference Friday. He said no summit meeting should be held—as Bulganin proposed Thursday—within two or three months. But he left open the possibility of some future top-level session provided "there is adequate preparation for it and a reasonable assurance that it will accomplish some desirable result."

DENOUNCES NOTE

Dulles denounced Bulganin's Thursday message as a propa- world attention from Eisenhower's "state of the union" message that same day.

He conceded under questioning that the Russians seem to be ahead of the U.S. in propaganda techniques, as they apparently are in the science of missiles. But he accused the Russians of trying to cover up bad policies on such matters as disarmament with clever propaganda.

Throughout much of his press conference Dulles assailed Soviet bad faith in making and then not keeping agreements. But at the end he said "you have got to keep trying and trying" through meetings and negotiations to work out agreements which can be kept.

'Lion of Kashmir' Gives His Foes Verbal Mauling

KIED, Kashmir (Reuters) — Sheikh Abdullah, the Lion of Kashmir, Friday returned to political life in Kashmir after 4½ years in prison without trial.

He expressed himself bitterly opposed to the present regime of Premier Bakshi Vhulam Mohammed, who ordered his arrest in August, 1953 on accusations of "maladministration." No formal charges were brought against him.

The present government, Abdullah said, consists of "cutthroats and hooligans." He denounced the action of Indian Prime Minister Nehru who, he said, "imprisoned me." But he added he still has a warm regard for Nehru.

Abdullah spoke to reporters for the first time since his release two days ago.

24 Embarrassed Bluebloods Up On Carpet After Gambling Raid

LONDON (AP) — Twenty-four embarrassed blue bloods appeared in court Friday after an early-morning gambling raid on Mayfair apartment of Lady Mary Osborne.

It was London's biggest society raid in years.

Among those arrested were:

Pretty Lady Nancy Jane Marie Hearthcote - Drummond - Willoughby, 23, daughter of the Earl of Ancaster and a train bearer to the Queen at her coronation; Lord Willoughby de Eresby, 21; Lady Mary Grace Osborne, 54, and William James Cavendish-Bentinck, son of a former British ambassador to Poland.

Lady Mary was charged with keeping a common gaming house at her apartment, in one of London's smarest residential districts.

Lady Nancy Jane, Lord Willoughby and Cavenish-Bentinck were accused of being found on the premises of a gambling house.

Lady Osborne's son, 31-year-old John Aspinwall, was charged with being concerned in keeping a gambling house. His beautiful wife, Jayne, a former model, was taken in, too.

Magistrate Walter Frampton asked all 24 whether they would put up £25 and be bound over on a promise of keeping away from gambling houses. Sixteen of them—including Lady Nancy Jane, Lord Willoughby, and Cavendish-Bentinck—agreed.

The other eight—including Aspinwall and Lady Osborne—refused. They put up £50 and were asked to appear for a formal hearing Feb. 12.

Can Keep Tax Refund Given By Mistake

NEW YORK (AP)—An 80-year-old engineering consultant Friday won a 10-year-long fight to keep a $2,528.71 income tax refund which the internal revenue bureau sent him in 1945 by mistake.

A ruling by 84-year-old federal Judge Robert A. Inch said that the two-year statute of limitations barred the government from recovering the money from Louis W. Walliams of Brooklyn.

Williams, informed of the decision by his lawyer, chuckled and said: "I spent the money a long time ago."

6,000 Discarded Christmas Trees Make Big Zwick's Island Bonfire

Over 6,000 discarded Christmas trees were set afire last night on Zwick's Island under the supervision of the fire department while hundreds of people drove to the scene from points in Prince Edward and Hastings counties.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance estimated the number of cars in the vicinity at roughly 75, but he said there could have been more since he was too occupied at the fire to notice.

The pile of trees was set afire at about 7.20 and it blazed until around 9.30, when firemen extinguished the embers so there would be no chance of the blaze springing to life during the night when no one would be around.

It was a scheme promoted by the Chamber of Commerce to rid city homes of trees to avert possible serious house fires.

Chief Vance supported the practice and said it was a good idea since Christmas trees could be burned up in one huge fire under supervision, thus eliminating the practice of by-gone years when trees were burned at intervals throughout the winter.

Robert Hamilton, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce congratulated Bellevillians for taking down their trees so that the city works department could collect them and pile them on the island.

Lost Wallet Waiting for Her At Police Office

Thanks to the honesty of a Moira Street young man who turned in to the police station a wallet which he found Friday morning, an Ameliasburg township housewife will be able to purchase her week's groceries.

Yesterday morning Mrs. H. van Vinkood was on her way to purchase groceries at a Pinnacle street groceteria when unnoticed she dropped her wallet.

At the store she selected her week's groceries and then at the cashier's counter discovered she had lost her wallet.

During the afternoon the loss was reported at the police station and on learning of the circumstances and getting a description of the wallet the desk sergeant was able to say the purse had already been turned in.

Certain Combinations Asked When Buying Licences

Know an easy way to remember the final two figure combination of your auto licence number?

And at the same time be reminded of your age every time you climb into the family gasoline buggy?

The secret is to have the last two numbers on your auto markers correspond with your age.

This ,among others, is one of the odd requests which motorists make when applying for the new auto markers.

Other motorists like to have their house numbers tied in in some way with their car licence number, while others have a penchant for numbers that are easy to remember.

For instance, something like a digit followed by three zeros, or a number containing a series of a certain digit, like A-41000 or A-41111.

Local licence issuer George Olsen notes that his office receives quite a number of requests from motorists for certain number combination and says that as far as possible they try to accommodate.

"But it is really a nuisance," he said.

Some motorists with a wish for an easy number to remember take note of the markers being issued and have been noticed to step back several places in the waiting lineup to get the number desired.

Car markers have now been on sale for just over eight days and to date about 900 markers or less than a tenth of the usual quota for the Belleville area have been sold. Normally about 10,000 sets of markers are sold from the local office.

Mr. Olsen's big worry is that with March 15 announced by the Department of Highways as the final deadline for procuring new markers a big percentage of motorists will wait until that time.

"If they do we'll be stuck, because we will never be able to get them all out in time," he said.

Do-It-Now Campaign Gets Under Way To Provide Work for the Unemployed

The National Employment Service reports 1,905 men and 566 women unemployed in Hastings County. Last year at this time 1,325 men and 428 women were without work.

Since the first of the year 33 people have been placed in jobs in the district.

Arthur Murray, a training officer with the service and the temporary manager of the local office, does not consider the unemployment situation serious, since Canadians have conditioned themselves to do most outside work in the summer months. There is always more unemployment during winter than at any other time.

However, there is a distinct need now to employ men and women before spring arrives. Jobless people are not able to assist a community's economic growth and hence it is the task of employed people to provide work for the unemployed, either through the National Employment Service or the city welfare department.

CO-OPERATION ASKED

Because of the unemployment situation in this county, the employment service and welfare department are calling on citizens to do now the jobs they planned to do later. The majority of unemployed people are not without work because they do not wish to work, rather they are jobless because there is just no work for them. The same situation applies almost everywhere in Canada.

As can be expected every winter, the labor group is the most affected. In this district there are 503 construction workers without jobs and small numbers of other tradesmen.

Although the unemployment situation is not regarded as serious by industrialists, economists and many others, to the unemployed man or woman with a family to feed and clothe, it is a depression.

Besides the carpenters, plumbers, painters, laborers, masons, electricians and many others, there is one professional engineer and two accountants who are jobless.

Mayor Gerald B. Hyde has issued a proclamation urging city residents to observe this "Do-It-Now" campaign. In brief, he is asking everyone to fix up that spare room now, or turn part of the basement into a recreation room now, or paint the dining room now, or instal outside water taps now. There are dozens of odd jobs from cleaning out the attic to building an addition to the house that can be done now. There is no need to regard winter as being a time only to ski and skate. It is a season that will always be around and it is time for Canadians to condition themselves to build and repair during the winter. Of course, there are some jobs that just can't be done at this time of the year. But there are many that can.

QUICK RESPONSE

Anyone wishing the assistance of a tradesman has only to telephone a contractor or the employment service, preferably the former, and a qualified workman will be sent at once.

Now is the time to do those odd jobs before summer rolls around when there will likely be plenty of employment.

The labor department at Ottawa expects about 700,000 Canadians will be out of work this winter before the employment situation improves in the spring. And it is bound to improve, it has in the past.

Even with that number of people jobless it is not necessary that skilled, semi-skilled and unskilled workers be given preference over do-it-yourself types of householders. For, if a householder should build his own recreation room, for instance, he makes more work for people in some industries to replace the materials he has used.

When lumberjacks are laid off — as many have been this winter — their predicament is amplified back to related industries. If but few men are felling timber, then it requires correspondingly fewer workers to make lumber for the multitude of uses. And industries not directly related to the logging industry may be subjected to the current unemployment situation, too. Those firms that use by-products from the lumber trade will, likewise, experience difficulties in reducing their output to meet the temporary demand slump, and so they will be forced, through circumstances, to release some employees. Much the same thing can be said of other industries.

Whether a householder does a job himself or hires a tradesman to do it for him, he is helping to reduce the present unemployment situation. But the crux of the matter is to do it now.

Liberal Assoc. to Present 6 Resolutions to Convention

The South Hastings Liberal Association will sponsor six of the more than 300 resolutions which are expected to go before the national Liberal convention scheduled to get underway in Ottawa next week when a new party leader will be chosen.

Included among the six resolutions to be placed before the convention by the local association is one calling for old age pensions, blind and disability pensions and family allowances to be tied to the cost of living index.

Another calls for Central Mortgage and Housing legislation to be amended to allow for minimum of 10 per cent down payments to be applicable to homes already constructed in any area.

The local association would like to see continued efforts for the realization of parity prices on all farm products, and also want Nov 11th to be designated by statute as a national day of remembrance.

Income tax exemptions for single persons of $1,400 and $2,800 for married persons are being asked.

The final resolution to be presented by the Hastings Liberals calls for one per cent of all corporation taxes to be set aside for the assistance of additional education facilities for the training of scientists and industrial technicians.

The resolutions to be presented were prepared by the association resolutions committee consisting of Frank S. Follwell, Robert Temple, Rod G. Cameron, Don McNevin, Gerald Weaver and Frank Barry, Trenton, and Joseph E. Walsh of Tyendinaga.

Association delegates to the Ottawa convention are Senator W. A. Fraser, Frank S. Follwell, association secretary Robert Temple of Belleville, Dr. D. C. McVicker of Deseronto, and Gerald Weaver of Trenton.

Halloway Youth Hurt in Accident

David Ray, 17, of R.R. 1 Halloway, suffered a back injury and scalp and facial cuts, when he was thrown from a car which went out of control on No. 14 highway north of the city shortly before midnight Friday night.

IN MEMORIAM

MARSH. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary Agnes Marsh, who passed away January 12th, 1948.

God gave us a wonderful mother,
Her memory will never grow old;
He fashioned her smile out of sunshine,
He moulded her heart of pure gold.
Always a smile instead of a frown,
Always a hand when one was down;
Always so true and thoughtful and kind,
What a wonderful memory she left behind.

—Sadly missed by her family.

POWELL. — In loving memory of my dear husband, Arthur Harold Powell, who passed away January 12th, 1954.

Four years have passed but still I miss him,
The depths of sorrow I cannot tell
Of the loss of him I loved so well.
And while he sleeps a peaceful sleep,
His memory I shall always keep.

—Always remembered and deeply missed by his wife Rebecca.

BOYLE. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Hugh Allan Boyle, who passed away January 11th, 1953.

—Lovingly remembered by wife Jessie and family.

HAINES. — In loving memory of my dear wife, Sarah Jane, who passed away January 11th, 1954.

My thoughts wander as daylight fades,
To the land of long ago;
And memory paints the scenes of old,
In the gold of the twilight glow.
I seem to see in the soft dim light.
A face I love the best;
And I think of her when the sun's last ray
Goes down in the far-off west.

—Lovingly remembered by her husband George.

ROOT. — In memory of a kind and loving father, Stillman Root, who passed away January 11th, 1943.

Fifteen years have passed and still we miss you,
Never shall your memory fade;
As our lonely thoughts still wander
To the place where you are laid.

—Ever rememmbered by his wife and family.

NORTON. — In loving memory of a dear aunt, Doreen Norton, who passed away January 11th, 1956.

Just when your life was brightest,
Just when your years were best;
You were called from this world of sorrow,
To a home of eternal rest.

—Ever remembered by Ron and Gwen.

Stories of Famous Hymns

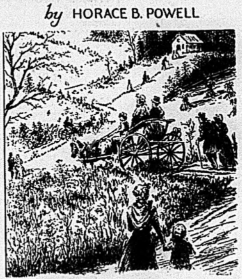
by HORACE B. POWELL

ALMOST PERSUADED

"Almost persuaded," now to believe;
"Almost persuaded" Christ to receive;
Seems now some soul to say,
"Go, Spirit, go Thy way,
Some more convenient day
On Thee I'll call

"Almost persuaded," come, come today;
"Almost persuaded," turn not away;
Jesus invites you here,
Angels are ling'ring near,
Prayers rise from hearts so dear;
O wand'rer, come!"

"Almost persuaded," harvest is past!
"Almost persuaded," doom comes at last!
"Almost" cannot avail:
"Almost" is but to fail!
Sad, sad that bitter wail —
"Almost — but lost!"



If all the hymns written by Philip Bliss could somehow be called out of the song books of the church, they would make a sizeable collection.

Such gems as "Let The Lower Lights Be Burning", "Pull For The Shore", "Wonderful Words Of Life", "Hallelujah! 'Tis Done", "Hold The Fort", "Jesus Loves Even Me", and a host of others would come trooping out to be counted. And somewhere in the group — somewhere very near the head of the column — this favorite hymn, "Almost Persuaded", would be found.

Its popularity through the years in revival meetings is explained, perhaps, by the fact that it was inspired by an evangelistic sermon many years ago. Philip Bliss strolled one night into a London meeting hall where a large crowd was listening to a famous preacher. The theme of the sermon was "Salvation" and the revivalist closed his message with the declaration:

> "He who is almost persuaded is almost saved, but to be almost saved is to be entirely lost".

Those closing words impressed Mr. Bliss so deeply that he went home to write "Almost Persuaded" which, in the years that followed, blessed thousands of men and women in the revivals of Moody and Sankey, and those of other famous evangelists. In one of the Moody-Sankey meetings, held in Agricultural Hall in London, in 1874 Mr. Moody preached a stirring sermon to a crowd of 15,000. As he closed his address, he asked the audience to bow in silent prayer while Mr. Sankey sang "Almost Persuaded". Philip Bliss' hymn won many decisions for Christ that night and it has continued to do so in revivals and prayer-meetings down through the years.

A Lift for Living

God's Pattern for Our Lives

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Are we too busy to see our main business? Sometimes we are too active to see God's pattern for our lives.

One night a number of years ago, I left for a speaking engagement at an Ohio city. I retired early, but the motion of the train began to jostle the ideas in my exceedinly wearied mind. I tried to improve the time by thinking of my address on the morrow. I tried other lines of thought. But my mind would jump from one thing to another. I could not pursue any pattern of thought

Most of us, no doubt, have occasional experiences when our thoughts become so distracted we cannot keep them on the beam. We do not think straight. Our ideas run around in vicious circles. We find our eyes jumping from column to column in the newspaper without following any item through. We live in such a bath of noise and such a flood of impressions that it is increasingly hard to hold attention long to one line of thought.

Minds that are adjusted to the short story, the flashing scenario, the glittering signs tend to lose their appetite for quiet meditation and their capacity for sustained attention.

We rush around trying to take in more sights, do more things, get more thrills. Our senses greedily devour more than our minds and spirits digest. Thus our faculty of attention becomes flabby, our nerves become frayed, our judgments become hasty and faulty. We thus become too active to achieve because we have lost the sense of pattern and priority in our thinking.

Remember Stephen Leacock's description of the man who "mounted his horse and rode off in all directions."

MENTAL DISTRACTION

What can our Christian faith do to correct this mental distraction? Recall how Jesus gave pattern to His Palestinian neighbors. He said to them: "Be not anxious, saying what shall we eat or what shall we drink or wherewithal shall we be clothed?. . But seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

Jesus' principle is that if we make God and His rule our first priority, all lesser interests fall into place in the pattern.

Did you ever watch one of those weavers in Syria or Palestine working on an Oriental rug? He sits behind the loom pulling the threads taut, but every now and then he goes around in front to look at the pattern.

So Jesus took His fellow workers, who were weaving the threads of life, and every now and then He led them off into some quiet place where they could meditate on the master plan or pattern He said to them, "Come ye apart and rest awhile." There, away from the confusion, they tried to see life steadily and see it whole.

If we would deliver our lives from disorder and distraction, we must keep these times of meditation, when we sit down and study the pattern of our living. I know busy men who stop for a few moments of silence in church on their way to work. For that reason our churches should be open during week days; and for the same reason, people should go to worship on Sunday.

One of the enduring heroes of World War I was Marshal Foch, who led the Allied Command to victory. During the most strenuous days of the campaign he went regularly to morning prayers. By taking time off for prayer, he saved time, for he thereby kept his sense of divine direction and went straight to the point at issue.

STUDY THE PATTERN

When we sit in the spirit of Christ and study the pattern of our living, we see what should have priority and we distinguish between means and ends. In Dickens' "Christmas Carol," the miserly Scrooge is confronted by the ghost of his dead partner, Jacob Marley, who in life had been hard and stingy like Scrooge. From the realm of shadow, Marley's ghost tries to save Scrooge from the fate which had over taken him.

As the ghost wrings his hands and bemoans his shortcomings, Scrooge tries to comfort him with the remark, "But you were always a good man of business, Jacob." Whereupon Marley's ghost cries: "Business! Mankind was my business. The common welfare was my business; charity, mercy, forbearance, benevolence, were all my business."

Too late Marley discovered what his real business in life was.

A friend of mine is a worker with boys. When he walks into a crowd of quarreling youngsters, he often exclaims, "What's the big idea?" This may be a slang expression, but it has a serious point. Here on the threshold of 1958, each of us might well ask himself "What's the big idea?"

MORE QUESTIONS THAN ANSWERS?

People who saw last Sunday's television show "Where Do We Stand?" on the Twentieth Century program are still talking about it.

That's a good sign. The program was termed "television journalism at its best" by one critic. We doubt, though, that many thoughtful people, who do a bit of reading as well as watching TV, will be convinced that the program answered the question it posed.

Briefly, the conclusion of the Twentieth Century program was that the United States is behind Russia in the development of intermediate range ballistic missiles, but is running a neck-and-neck race with the Soviet Union in the intercontinental ballistic missile field. Hope was expressed that the U.S. might be able to catch up with Russia by 1961, or thereabouts.

If that conclusion is right, then the dangerous years are those lying between the present and the achievement of equality with the Reds.

Other appraisals of the situation, though, envision the danger time as lying three or four years in the future. It is suggested in these estimates that the U.S. is even with Russia, or possibly ahead, in the intermediate range ballistic missile field, that in any event the U.S. Strategic Air Command is still a powerful deterrent and that it will continue to fill this role adequately until such a time as Russia has intercontinental ballistic missiles ready for operational use, which is estimated to be about 1960 or 1961, ahead of the U.S.

If "Where Do We Stand?" failed to answer that question conclusively, it certainly posed other questions, almost equally important. For instance, it was suggested that the U.S. might have to alter its way of life to meet the Russian challenge, accepting peacetime controls. Major Alexander de Seversky, the noted aviation authority, was already on record as taking issue with such a view. The U.S., he maintained, must produce both "guns and butter"; failure to continue to provide the "butter" of a high standard of living would mean defeat because it would make the U.S. way of life unsaleable to uncommitted nations.

Malcolm P. McNair of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration developed this theme further on Monday, arguing that "in a very real sense the Soviets have already won" because they have demonstrated the U.S. cannot meet the Russian threat "without voluntarily submitting ourselves to a substantial degree of purposive direction of our lives." This seems to be selling freedom rather short; it may be diminished by economic controls but it need not necessarily be eliminated entirely by them.

Secondly, the Twentieth Century program posed the question of the purpose behind it and similar surveys of opinion. Gordon Sinclair of the Toronto Star observed the previous Saturday that "year-end reviews of the dying season and of the time coming were, at the American level, more pessimistic than I'd ever heard before." The same was true, in some measure, of "Where Do We Stand?" Why? What is the purpose behind this pessimism? Is it just the result of an effort to present the facts? This is an admirable aim - - but if that is the explanation, why was not the same policy followed in earlier years? The whole tone of the program is a striking change from the old "America first in everything" era.

The opposite effects were not so much the result of twisting facts, as of the selection of the facts to be presented. The elimination of illiteracy in Russia since the revolution, the annual 10 per cent increase in the gross national product, the percentage-wise closing of the gap between U.S. and Russia in such things as the output of electric power and of steel production - - all these are not facts which have suddenly come to light as the result of two Russian moons being placed in the skies. Why were these facts ignored earlier, at a time when it was the fashion to paint Russia as a nation of backward peasants, threatened with starvation, struggling to imitate the advances made by the industrial complexes of Western nations?

And, come to think of it, what good reason has the reader and the listener to accept as gospel truth everything he is told today about Russian power when the persons and agencies warning him are the same as those who a few years or even months ago told him how weak Russia was?

Many a fellow who married "because of the soft light in her eyes" is scared to go home now on account of a glare! (Ottawa Citizen).

HALF-SERVICE

Try to succeed with all your might.
Give no half-service to your task,
Cling bravely to what you think right.
At twilight then, in peace you'll bask.

The bitterness of failure lies
Not in itself, but in the thought,
As some one else achieves the prize,
That you could have much better fought.

To lose when you have done your best,
To one with greater strength or skill,
Will never leave you so distressed
As to have tried with half a will.

Try to succeed with all your might.
To every task full service give
Cling to the things you know are right
And in contentment you shall live.

Leisure-Time Problem

New York Times

Your pardon, said the gentleman on the train, putting aside an article he had been scanning. What, though, was this leisure-time problem he was reading of? It seemed written up more and more—and often the writer made it out a problem of disaster proportions. It involved, the gentleman on the train supposed, a worry about the idle mind being the devil's workshop. His observation was that it wasn't free time that made minds idle. He himself had often observed minds idling when the possessors thereof were ostensibly hard at work.

He didn't wish to be facetious, the gentleman on the train said, but he did wish to understand the problem. If, as some wishful social planners had predicted, we would all one day do half the work we do now and let automatic factories do the rest, that would mean roughly that we would have double the weekend we have now. The weekend, in that case, could be the major part of the week. If this meant that everyone would be going about, or sitting about, with bored looks, that indeed would be a depressing sight. The gentleman on the train would rather not be around to see it. But, frankly, it didn't seem to him a likely development. After all, the human race has always shown some get up and go.

* * *

The question appeared to be, then, not so much what people wouldn't do as what they would do, said the genaleman on the train, who had nothing if not a remorseless logic. (A commuter town not unlike his own shot by his window, under his elbow.) He was acquainted with a few people who would spend too much time in front of entertainment screens or at stageside tables. They spent too much time at those activities now; they would doubtless spend much too much time at them under the hypothetical circumstances being discussed. Was there a hint here? Would, for better or worse, everyone simply do more of the same he had been doing on his off-hours? An interesting speculation, said the gentleman on the train — a real bird dog of an idea, and one that pointed his own doom. His fate, should leisure time be so increased, would doubtless be self-destruction by overwork.

• • •

In his circumstances, said the gentleman on the train, the very concept of off-the-job time being leisure time was absurd. Look at him for a moment (he indicated his collar, tie and freshly pressed suit). What did you see? — a business man on his way to work on a Monday morning. His colleagues in the office would receive him as the business man they had parted with last Friday. But actually what sort of man was beneath the disguise? A rockcrusher, no less. The gentleman on the train flexed his biceps. Those biceps and their community of supplementary muscles had spent the weekend wielding a sledge at fieldstones for a garden wall. By work-week's end he would have fit back into his business man role, but of the moment he was a rock-crusher disguised as a businses man.

His Monday morning disguise, said the gentleman on the train, often hid vocations other than that of rock-crusher. It concealed, betimes, a housepainter, a plasterer a washing machine repairman and a faucet-drip stopper. It often amused him to think, when his Monday morning workday began, that his colleagues never dreamed that they were talking not to a business man, but to a wallpaper hanger. Or to a snow-shoveler, gardener, chauffeur, roofer, baby sitter, electrician, carpenter. These, said the gentleman on the train, were just some of his off-hour roles.

• • •

For people like himself, the gentleman on the train granted, there might be a bit of a problem in this increase in leisure time. But it wasn't the type of which the writers spoke. People like himself weren't going to get into mischief or be corrupted by some gnawing lethargy. He and his kind would merely work themselves under a headstone more rapidly than otherwise. On the other hand, said the gentleman on the train as he picked up his brief case and reached for his coat, what better way to die than in harness? Or, in his case, at work at the rock pile, the washing machine, the leaking faucet, the clogged flue, etc.

Good Advice But No Soap

Manchester Guardian

An American tourist's criticism of the London County Council has been published verbatim in the council's staff gazette. The visitor from Washington complains:

"Three times I have visited the London County Council (Socialist). Everybody was mighty pleasant and helpful, but the London County Council (Socialist), as all Socialists do, goes into your private life to a considerable extent. In the course of one of these it was necessary to go to the men's room. It was spick and span and apparently had been built since the war. This is not the point. It is the toilet paper. On each sheet of toilet paper, printed in blue at the top of the sheet, is 'London County Council', and at the bottom, also printed in blue, is this piece of advice: 'Now will you wash your hands please?' Not a bad idea at that. But the London County Council would make this ablution more efficient if they provided soap. There was no soap."

Ontarians or Ontarioans?

Hamilton Spectator

There must be a final authority to decide this burning issue, but we've never been sure whether residents of our province are "Ontarioans" or merely "Ontarians."

The citizens of the State of Michigan, U.S.A., are in the same predicament. A recent news report suggests that they are rushing, panic-stricken, up and down the main streets of their populous cities, or reflecting sombrely on their prosperous farms, as they seek the answer to this question: "Are we 'Michiganites,' 'Michiganians' or 'Michiganders'?"

For no sensible reason that we can muster at the moment, their quandry has brought to mind an Irish - American aunt, a resident of Chicago, Ill., who spent the summers in Michigan. This aunt, whose sense or humor touched even her politics, once was asked by a young nephew: "Are you a Democrat?" She replied, "No, I'm a Republicat."

This pungent piece of dialogue was spoken many years ago, but we are convinced that were our aunt asked the following question tomorrow: "Are you a 'Michigander'?" she would reply in the same tone of happy enlightenment: "No, I'm a "Michigoose'."

And so far as we are concerned the rest of the people in the state can look after themselves — Michiganders and Michigeese alike.

It may easily be that there would be greatest good to the greatest number if more concern was given to physical training and adequate equipment for the student body generally, rather than lavish attention on the competitive sports which engage only a few.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A LOVE OF BEAUTY

Beauty is a thing that is world-wide. You see it everywhere in Nature and in the skills and purposes of those who love beauty. Book publishers recognize this fact as they make the jackets of their books most attractive and beautiful, even to the quality of paper used, and the typography. You can't make a great book too attractive and beautiful.

Silence is beauty. So is great writing that comes from the soul of a writer. So is every stroke of a great artist's paint brush, or the lines of a masterful etching. How great in art and beauty are the oriental rugs that are woven from the heart! I am spellbound in the presence of a great example of sculpture. Something by Rodin or George Grey Barnard.

There is beauty in the lines of a blade of grass, of a maple leaf at Autumn time, and of a rose in June. The naked trees outside my library are things of great beauty. You see limbs bending and reaching for room to celebrate their beauty in Springtime. How lace-like are the small clusters of new branches awaiting the days of warmth and sunshine!

Into everything beautiful is to be seen the touch of God, our Creator, and the Creator of all things beautiful. Wherever we look in Nature can we see the touch of divine hands that have left their mark. Waterfalls, rivers, lakes, the sea, mountains, the redwoods of California, and the drops of dew in the Summertime, how glorious is beauty — beauty that puts luster to the eye that sees and loves! A love of beauty can conquer more than any warrior!

THAT INNER SECURITY

A woman was asked by a neighbor sometime ago whether or not she would object to a fence being erected along their common property line.

"Not at all," said the gracious lady. "I have loved fences ever since I was a child. When I was very, very young my father put a high-spiked-iron fence around our quite large property and we were told that we were never to go out without permission. That fence meant security for me. I shall never forget the comfortable feeling I had as a child because of that fence. My parents were not unreasonable. When it was necessary or desirable that we should open the gate and go out they quite readily gave their consent. I and my sisters were not prisoners. We were just little girls, filled with a feeling of real comfort and security because of the fence."

All children have to some degree a haunting feeling of insecurity, and the more self-assertive they are the more genuinely insecure they are. And when we grow up we are insecure also. Nobody wants to be a prisoner. We want gates in our fences which open out. But also it is extremely comfortable to feel that around the exigencies of life there is a protection which makes us secure.

Friendship and faith are morale builders par excellance. We may have many possessions, but if we do not have inner security we have nothing at all.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A trapper friend of mine sent me a New Year's card written on birch bark.

"What do you people want to go South for?" it says. "Come on North. Never saw anything like this morning. Blue, silver, green. Air like crystal. Impossible to be unhappy. Vestibule of heaven. Come on."

I have written him in reply. My letter will be dropped January 15, on a prearranged frozen lake, by a passing aircraft, along with his other mail, some provisions and fresh trapping supplies.

"I bet you, Joe," I said, "that within ten years, some imaginative and daft American will build a winter resort up in the Arctic, on Victoria Island, or Baffin Land, a swank resort, reached only by aircraft on some of the air routes developed by the Dew Line people. The thousands and thousands of people who have been up there working, or on air or army duty, are now spreading the word of what the Arctic is like. When I was a boy, nobody dreamed of going south. Too many alligators, snakes, jungles, yellow fever mosquitoes. Once the northern trend starts, you will have to elbow your way through the traffic to get at your traps. The last time I was in Florida and Nassau, everybody looked bored. They want something new. The Arctic has it. You have it."

Meanwhile, I have pressing engagements that will keep me very cosy and unbored, right here.

Personal Health Talks

What's Wrong With Medical Schools?

"The young physician at the beginning of his career is practically compelled to be clinic minded these days." So says the head man of a phony "clinic" who tells me "you are right when you deflate the phonies of which there are more than you seem to suspect. Clientele rate the young doctor higher," the head man continues, "if the word "Clinic" appears on his stationery."

Thank you, Doctor. I believe there are a good many physicians who, like you, are engaged in the "clinic" racket, but would be honest doctors if they had the courage and/or the means to carry on in their present style of living while readjusting.

Although I naturally mistrust a doctor who practices under other than his own name, I confess that, when I want medical care for myself or for a member of my family, my first choice is a doctor who is actually if not officially the head man of a phony clinic. But this is only because I discovered him years before his colleagues persuaded him to join the "clinic" racket. I regarded him as a kind of twentieth century Osler, and it was a painful blow when he converted from profession to business. Nevertheless he is still the ideal physician in my book, or as nearly so as one can be in these parlous times, perhaps. Just as the medical student is virtually compelled to become a trick specialist, so the doctor who would prefer to practise under his own name may be forced by circumstances to join a "clinic."

My mail is full of complaints about the way the business men of medicine push customers around, refuse to answer reasonable questions, keep them waiting for hours in the outer office like humble supplicants (as indeed they are) and treat them generally with little courtesy and consideration.

I can't sympathize with such complaints. After all, I feel, any one with the brains God gives a goose will give trick specialists and phony "clinics' a wide berth and scout around (it's too bad, but it takes scouting these days) for a doctor who practices under his own name—a general practitioner, a family doctor.

You poor souls don't realize that, so far as the law is concerned, any doctor who has a licence to practise may practise any specialty or any branch of medicine, surgery or obstetrics he or she chooses. Real specialists do take more or less postgraduate instruction and special hospital training in the field to which they limit practice. But this is entirely voluntary and the law is not concerned with it—all the law requires is that the doctor have a licence to practise medicine — which includes surgery, obstetrics and every branch or specialty thereof.

Belleville in the '90s

Editor's note: The author of a new historical series of articles, which appears each Saturday is a former newspaper editor and publisher. Harry Moore knows the Belleville district well having owned the Deseronto Post and Trenton Courier Advocate for a number of years. He now resides at Pembroke, Ontario.

(ARTICLE 2)

As of July, 1895, Belleville had a population of 9,914, big town size. According to Bradstreets of that date, the town was situated on the Grand Trunk Railway, only that and nothing more. No mention of the Bay of Quinte or the Moira River. The Canadian Pacific Railway was not here at that time. And of course that was many years before a third railway, Mackenzie & Mann's Canadian Northern or Canada Atlantic was built through from Toronto to Ottawa plus a short cut to Montreal, a railway that was to use the CPR station instead of one of its own. It may be added here that the M & M railway was torn up in the 1930s, and that Deseronto was left at end of a short spur from Napanee. However the railway mentioned did serve its purpose during the First World War years when it carried men, materials and supplies to Camp Mohawk on the Tyendinaga Reserve and Camp Rathbun, north of Deseronto.

In looking over the list of business places in Belleville in 1895 one is soon made aware that in the matter of hotels, for instance, it had its share, possibly more than its share. Bradstreets lists no less than 24 such hostelries at that time.

For the benefit of older residents, who like to recall the days long gone, here are the hotelkeepers in Belleville at that time: Belleville Hotel Limited; James and William Brown; Burke Bros.; D. Callaghan; J. Cochran; Daniel Coyle; S. Curry; Daniel Deacon; William Docter; Norah Feehaney; R. A. Gibson; J. E. Ketcheson; Mary Kyle; James Logan; McCormick & Power; Elizabeth G. Taylor; Margaret Truaish; James P. McGuire; John Mackie; Allen Moon; J. A. O'Neil; Thomas A. Vanaltan and Martin Wims.

In addition to the above hotels there were other liquor outlets: Corby Distillery; Leavens & Deschane; Wallbridge & Clarke, while the brewery was run by James Roy.

Skunks Saved Ducks' Lives

Nature Bulletin

A farmer of New York state complained to a biologist friend of his that wild ducks were disappearing from his property. The problem interested the naturalist who took the trouble to return to the farm several times in order to clear up the mystery.

Finally he advised the astonished farmer to stop snaring skunks for the sake of selling their skins.

The skunks dig up and eat the eggs of snapping turtles; naturally as the number of skunks diminished the turtles swarmed in profusion and, because they were famished, devoured the ducks.

Although unconvinced, the farmer followed his friend's advice and protected the skunks from capture: he was delighted with the result.

Tire Condition Affects Steering

By EUGENE MILMOE

Good steering involves much more than the condition of the actual steering gear and linkage mechanism.

Take front tires, for example; they must maintain equal contact with the road surface. If one is softer (e.g., flatter) than the other, it will set up more rolling resistance on its side of the car, and in forward motion the car will tend to bear toward that particular side.

This difference in rolling friction will also occur when one front tire is worn a lot more than the other or has a different type of tread.

In addition to tires, many other factors influence steering control. Some are wheel balance, front end alignment, spring and shock absorber condition. Keeping front wheel bearings in good shape and brakes properly adjusted is important too.

B.V. writes: "Please explain the principal function of the intake manifold on every car engine."

(A) The intake manifold is the pipe or passageway through which the fuel mixture passes (and is vaporized) on its way from the carburetor to the engine cylinders.

• • •

J.Z. asks: "I am thinking of buying a used 1954 model from the original owner, a neighbor. The car has standard shift and seems to run all right, but I have noticed a transmission humming when it's in neutral. The owner doesn't know what it is, nor do I."

(A) A humming noise such as this is generally caused by worn or scuffed transmission gears.

• • •

From F. O.: "There's been a regular tapping from my engine which I cannot pinpoint. It sounds like a valve noise, but it isn't. Cruising and high speed performance of the car has fallen off lately, too, and I am convinced these two troubles are due to the one cause."

(A) You may quickly find out if you're right by checking the fuel pump closely. A troublesome pump sometimes sounds off and is readily mistaken for valve tappet noise. Naturally, faulty fuel pump operation will also affect engine performance.

• • •

N.H. writes: "My 1954 car is equipped with power steering. On a few mornings when the temperature was close to zero, I have heard a groaning noise when the car was first started. But I have been reassured that the power steering is O.K. and it's normal to hear such sounds from it in very cold weather. I would still like to know the reason for it."

(A) The noise occurs because oil in the power steering system congeals or becomes heavier in near-zero weather. When it thins out after running a few minutes, there's no longer a strain on the hydraulic system and the noise disappears. If you are not already doing so, try using the same viscosity oil in the power steering system as you use in the engine.

Prince Philip Invites Self To 'Punch' Lunch

LONDON (Reuters) — Prince Philip will attend a working editorial luncheon with the editors of Punch, but one former editor won't be there to greet him.

Former editor Malcolm Muggeridge started a royal row when he discussed the place of the monarchy in modern times in an American magazine last October.

Although as an ex-editor he is entitled to attend the famous weekly sessions of staff members, Muggeridge does not plan to be there when Philip lunches with Punch in March.

"We certainly had no social dealings with the Royal Family in my time," Muggeridge said today.

The News Chronicle says Prince Philip invited himself to the "Punch table."

This Man Is 'Living Like a King,' Says Retirement Is an Adventure

By THOMAS COLLINS

"Every man at some time has dreamed of going far from home to an island, and living free and unfettered.

"That, on the salary of a downtrodden school man, is what I have done in retirement. . ."

The man saying this was Hollis H. Todd. With Mrs. Todd he is "living like a king" for under $3,000 a year, and his home is a trailer. His "island" is a trailer park in Melbourne, Fla.

Mr. Todd taught school in Glens Falls, Rochester and Amsterdam, N.Y. Eight years ago he retired.

"For six years after retirement," he says, "we held to our big house in the north and spent our winters in Melbourne. But the trips north became a tedious bore. We decided it would pay us financially to sell our property, buy a trailer with a cabana, and put our house money to work.

"Two years ago we did that and settled in our trailer park. We have no regrets."

The Todds discovered some facts about the cost of living and about the mechanics of living.

"We now had no house taxes. Our heat bill was $15 a year instead of $250. Our clothing costs were way down. Our food costs were about the same as in the north, but our trailer cost about a fourth of that needed for a house.

"Mrs. Todd found she had much less housework to do. Modern trailers are more completely furnished than any house. And they've got mobility. You have no outlay of $3,000 to $5,000 for furniture, rugs, draperies, etc. You just move in with your personal effects and start to live. . ."

Mr. Todd says they have 300 neighbors in their trailer park, and have the neighborliness "found only in a place like this." His yard, he says, is full of color. His garden encyclopedia is getting dog-eared, and so are the bulletins he gets from the Florida Department of Agriculture.

"It isn't what you earn that makes a good retirement," he thinks. "It's what you do with what you earn." To prove his point he drives a secondhand Cadillac convertible, and twice each year he and Mrs. Todd spend a week at some hotel.

"And happiness. . ." he continues. "Happiness comes from inside you. It doesn't depend on climate, location, income, children, grandchildren, making a new bathroom or playing shuffleboard.

"It has been our observation that people who were unhappy in the north are equally miserable here."

Mr. Todd believes every person who retires should do a Bridey Murphy — go back at least to the dreams and desires of childhood. "Perhaps they will find, as I have, some feeble little talents that can be fostered into something worthwhile."

He went in for whittling again, began carving figurines. He progressed to clay modeling, then to lettered trailer signs, and finally to oil painting. Meanwhile he and his wife have started investigating nature — all the way from where pelicans raise their young to the wild grasses that grow in Florida lawns.

"Retirement," says Mr. Todd, "is an adventure. It should be regarded as a long-awaited trip to a new land. It's the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow."

Queen Juliana Greets Refugees

SCHIPHOL, The Netherlands (AP) — Queen Juliana of The Netherlands Thursday night spent some three hours at this windy airport in an emergency Red Cross station to greet some 50 repatriates, mostly women and children, from Indonesia.

The queen brought tears to the eyes of one Dutch woman arriving alone with three children as she said: "It must be hard for you that you had to leave your husband behind."

Some 3,000 repatriates have arrived here since early December, when the Indonesian authorities started ousting Dutch citizens.

Board Finds Man Killed Self in Crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board said Thursday Saul F. Binstock, a heavily insured passenger, dynamited himself out of an airliner over the Mojave Desert in California last summer.

Binstock hurtled 7,500 feet to his death after a blast ripped a 40-foot hole in the Western Air Lines Convair he had boarded at Las Vegas, Nev.

The CAB said evidence gathered in the plane and parts recovered from the ground indicated a blasting cap of dynamite exploded in the plane's rest room from which Binstock was blown by outrushing air.

The plane with 21 passengers and a crew of three made an emergency landing a few minutes after the blast. It was reported Binstock had taken out two $62,500 flight insurance policies. Both had named Binstock's wife as beneficiary.

A. Maxwell Klum, board chairman of Mercury International Insurance Companies, said during the investigation that payment would be resisted on both policies if Binstock was found to have committed suicide.

Mindszenty's Secretary Given Life

BUDPEAST (Reuters) — Rev. Egon Turcsanyi, former secretary to Cardinal Mindszenty, Primate of Hungary, was sentenced today to life imprisonment for "counter-revolutionary" activities during the Hungarian uprising, it was reported unofficially.

Fifteen other Roman Catholic priests and theology students and one layman, who faced similar charges, received sentences of up to 10 years, the report said.

No official statement was made immediately, but news of the sentences was contained in reports emanating from the courtroom.

The press and public were not admitted to the final stages of the trial, which began Dec. 3. Most of it has been held in camera.

The public prosecutor had asked for "a very severe sentence" on Father Turcsanyi, who is 65, but not the death sentence, an authoritative source said Thursday.

The priest was alleged to have organized a raid on the state office for church affairs during the uprising, when documents were seized and burned.

The Week's News

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President Eisenhower placed before the United States Congress his plans to jolt the U.S. into a stronger position in the cold war.

"Safety through strength" was the phrase he used in his annual State of the Union message, which admitted that Russia has pulled ahead in "some areas of long-range ballistic missile development."

Eisenhower expressed confidence that the gap can be closed "if we make the necessary effort." Among his proposals were more effective foreign aid, exchange of atomic secrets with the Allies, increased spending on education and research and co-operation with Russia on a "science for peace" program.

BULGY'S LETTER

While Eisenhower spoke, new letters were arriving from Russian Premier Bulganin, who surely must be the greatest letter writer among world leaders.

Bulganin's letters to Eisenhower and others called for an East-West meeting.

A more sensational piece of news out of Moscow during the week turned out to be false. Rumors without basis in fact gave rise to a report that Russia had fired a rocket, with a man aboard, to a height of 186 miles.

BRITISH CRISIS

British political circles were rocked by the sudden resignation of Chancellor of the Exchequer Peter Thorneycroft, who quit because his cabinet colleagues would not back his plan to keep government expenditures at their current level.

Left-wing newspapers and Labor politicians called for the resignation of Prime Minister Macmillan as well. But Macmillan, apparently unperturned, set out on an extended Commonwealth tour as planned, visiting India, and Australia. Agriculture Minister Derick Heathcoat Amory took Thorneycroft's place.

BATTLE JOINED

Paul Martin and L. B. Pearson were engaged in a pre-convention battle for the Liberal leadership.

Some 1,500 delegates will decide between Martin, former health minister, and Pearson, former external affairs minister, in a three-day convention which begins in Ottawa next Tuesday.

The two candidates fired off letters to the delegates, outlining their claims for the post which former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent will vacate when a new leader is named.

WHEAT GIFTS

Canada announced a project to make available $50,000,000 worth of wheat to Colombo Plan countries. Trade Minister Churchill announced the plan in the House of Commons. Most of the wheat will be shipped on a long-term loan basis, but $15,000,000 will be in the form of outright gifts, mainly to India, Pakistan and Ceylon.

The announcement was interpreted in some quarters as an indication that Canada, harassed by U.S. farm disposal practices, is quietly dopting a similar system. The Chicago grain market immediately showed concern.

FAMOUS DIE

Death wrote "finis" to the unusual stories of three famed Canadians.

John Thorburn Williamson, 52, the bachelor native of Montreal who discovered vast diamond riches in Africa and lived there almost as a recluse, died at his jungle home, apparently from throat cancer.

Walter Callow, 62, blind, legless, paralyzed "human log" who directed large welfare projects from his bed, died in Camp Hill Hospital in Halifax after lying almost motionless for 20 years.

Margaret Anglin, 81, a star on gas-lit Broadway at 18 and one of the most commanding theatre figures in the 1920s, died in a Toronto nursing home. In private life, she was Mrs. Howard Hull.

GIRLIE SHOWS

Police director Albert Langlois of Montreal warned night clubs to clean up their girlie shows.

"Girls are okay in your shows—if they are decent," Langlois told 40 club operators whom he summoned to a meeting.

"A girl must come on the stage properly dressed and remain dressed."

"Severe steps" will be taken if former practices are not stopped, said Langlois.

Appeal Court Refuses Request For CBC Order

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal Thursday refused a request by the CBC for an order barring hearing of a charge brought against the CBC under the Lord's Day Act. The decision was by a 3-to-2 vote.

The judgment, written by Mr. Justice Wilfrid D. Roach and concurred in by Justices W. F. Schroeder and A. M. LeBel, upheld a ruling made last June by Chief Justice James C. McRuer of the High Court of Justice.

A longer dissenting judgment was written by Mr. Justice R. E. Laidlaw and concurred in by Mr. Justice F. G. MacKay.

The CBC had asked the court to quash an information laid last March by Roy Elmhurst, charging contravention of Section 4 of the act.

CHARGES ADJOURNED

Charges laid against Toronto's three daily newspapers and radio station CKEY have been adjourned several times since last spring while the outcome of the CBC's appeal has been awaited.

Section 4 makes it unlawful for any person on the Lord's Day to "carry on or transact business of his ordinary calling . . ." The fine is set at not less than $1 and not more than $40. "Person" in the act is given the same meaning as in the Criminal Code, which specified it includes "Her Majesty and public bodies, bodies corporate . . . in relation to the acts that they are capable of doing."

Mr. Justice Roach wrote: "If Parliament did not intend by including Her Worship in the defenition of "person" to thereby make the act . . . binding on the Crown, then what was intended? I have searched in vain for any other possible explanation . . . Indeed, I have been unable to even imagine one."

Mr. Justice Laidlaw wrote that the CBC could not be prosecuted as an agent of the Crown for an alleged offence under the Lord's Day Act and suggested a revision of the law concerning Lord's Day observance would be in the public interest.

PROCLAMATION

By virtue of the authority vested in me, I strongly urge the citizens of Belleville to give their wholehearted co-operation to the Belleville Special Employment Committee in their "Let's Do It Now" campaign, in their endeavor to provide employment in the slack winter months for tradesmen and laborers.

Annually, in the months of April through December, skilled tradesmen are at a premium, and there is every indication that this condition will continue in 1958. However, for the first three months of each year, there is a greater availability of skilled tradesmen anxious to undertake repair, remodelling, and alteration work, and I call upon all citizens who are giving consideration to effecting repairs to their premises — industrial, commercial or residential, to have that work done NOW!

By providing work for tradesmen in their slow period of the year, you will be helping your city, and your country, as well as benefiting yourself.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

Changeable weather, deep snow, and heavy winds are all harder on our winter residents than severe cold, when the only exposed parts, their feet, suffer. A rising temperature with rain followed by a drop is extremely bad for a variety of birds. Their feet become coated with ice, as also do branches and twigs, making it difficult to perch. But food is fundamental.

A thaw first, then sub-zero weather, gives seed eaters no chance to reach weeds and buds sealed by ice. Woodpeckers and nuthatches cannot get at dormant insects, their eggs, or the larvae when a glaze covers the bark of tree trunks where they lie hidden. But worst of all is the plight of grouse.

This word "grouse" includes the ruffed and the spruce grouse, birds of the woodlands, bob-white, prairie chicken, and sharp-tailed grouse of open, prairie, or brushy country, and ptarmigan of the extreme northern barren lands. In summer all these birds get their living by scratching; in winter, though they scratch through light snow, they depend upon food lying above the snow. Although ground birds, they can roost in trees, and there they feed on seeds, leaves, buds of birches, apple, and cherry; fruits of dogwood, hawthorn, and grape; acorns, beechnuts, and so on.

LIVING DIFFICULT

Deep snow makes living difficult for grouse, filling up shelters and covering much food; but a high wind with drifting snow supplies an extra hazard. At night sharp-tailed grouse and prairie chickens roost on the ground, under the snow. During days of extreme cold and high winds ruffed grouse dig themselves snow shelters, where they rest until the storm has stopped. Sometimes all these plans for lying low are useless, because huge snowdrifts form and the birds become trapped in their own dugouts.

If the temperature goes above freezing and then dips down, these grouse are not snow bound, but ice bound, sealed in by the crust. There they remain and starve to death.

We imagine our migrants meanwhile enjoying summerlike weather in their southern playgrounds. But those that winter in the U.S. are not always fortunate. Every now and then cold snaps kill off insect life, and unexpected snowfalls cover up normally available food supplies. Tornadoes near the Gulf of Mexico take their toll of birds. Yes, winter is a time of hazards for both residents and migrants. It is actually only the minority which survive to carry on the traditional spring courtship.

Extra Light for Indoor Plants

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Until recently it was believed that sunlight was necessary for plants to manufacture their food for leaf and stem. Scientists have proven that many plants do very well under artificial lights. Some plants require a great deal of light, others will tolerate only a limited amount of light.

During the dark days from November through January when the sunlight is weak, the days shorter and many days are cloudy, light loving plants suffer. Additional fertilizer will not prevent these plants from becoming spindly. In fact they need less fertilizer during these semi-dormant days.

There are several ways of coping with the problem of reduced light. You can grow only those house plants which are satisfied with low light intensity, or you can provide extra light by using artificial lighting to insure good growth and bloom. Most blooming plants need more light than the foliage type plants.

SWITCH WINDOWS

Perhaps just moving the plants you have had in north or east windows to south, or west windows will give enough extra light to keep them healthy. Plants grow toward the source of light. Keep turning the plants every few days to insure balanced growth. Then too you should consider such items as trees shading the windows, smokey atmosphere which may film your windows, and cut down light intensity from the outside.

Smoke, gas fumes and dust may clog the pores of your plants. A weekly wash with tepid water will cleanse the surface and provide extra humidity. Many plants thrive on a daily spray with tepid water.

Artificial light may be provided with the equipment you have on hand, or you may buy a special stand with lighting attached. A 100 watt bulb placed two feet from the plants will supply enough light to induce bloom if the light is on 12 to 14 hours a day. However; I have found that Saint Paulias (African violets) bloom well all winter in a northern window in the dining room. Three 100 watt bulbs in the ceiling fixture are turned on only for family use. During the dark days this may be from six in the morning until daylight and off and on through the day if necessary. In the evening it is on from dusk to midnight.

LAMP LIGHT

A plant stand full of plants or a table full of plants will respond well to floor lamp light if it is placed close to them. A table lamp with strong light and a wide shade will provide light for quite a number of plants and keep them in bloom.

For those of you who have dreamed of a small green house and discarded idea as impossible may I recomment Peggie Schults' book "Growing Plants Under Artificial Lights." Publisher M. Barrows ($3.50) She says that $20 for equipment will set you up in the business. Illustrations and ample instructions are provided for making the equipment and growing seeds, tubers and bulbs into the perfection of florists plants.

Daylight flourescent lamps, white flourescent lamps, incandescent lights or a combination may be used. When you learn the techniques you can control the exact amount of light your plants receive and they will respond more quickly than plants grown on window sills. Leaves look healthier, colors more brilliant and the danger of sun spots on African violets and gloxinia leaves is avoided. Equal illumination on all sides develop plants in perfect symmetry.

Is Your WILL Up to Date?

Many people review their Will at the beginning of each year. Your executor may have moved away or become ill or become unable to give sufficient time and attention to administer your estate. In view of the considerable changes in dollar values your Estate has probably changed in value.

You may have given too many legacies, or too large in amount, under your Will and have deprived your wife and children of sufficient to provide for their care and keep. You may have to adjust some of the shares going to beneficiaries. Births, marriages and deaths in your family may have made your estate plans obsolete. Increased succession duties and income taxes may affect the estate plans made by you for your family.

Your Will is one of the most important documents you will ever be called upon to sign. If you have a Will, we suggest that you review it now — and if not make your Will now and appoint Victoria and Grey Trust Company as Executor.

It costs no more to have group judgment and financial responsibility.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. William Sharpe, Belleville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Yvonne Evelyn, to John Raymond, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Turcotte, of Belleville. Marriage to take place in Bridge St. United Church, Belleville, Saturday, January 25, 1958, at 2 p.m.

Surprise Party Marks 45th Anniversary

Relatives and friends gathered recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Osborn, Lonsdale, in celebration of the 45th wedding anniversary of the happy couple.

Taken completely by surprise as to the nature of the gathering, Mr. and Mrs. Osborn greeted their guests in their usual hospitable manner, assuming that the arrival of so many callers from different points was purely co-incidental. However, the nature of the occasion became more apparent with the production of the many lovely gifts presented and the reading of the cards sent by friends unable to be present.

Guests were present from many points, including Galt, Belleville, and Napanee.

Overwhelmed by surprise, the couple fittingly responded and expressed their warm appreciation to the callers for their kind good wishes.

The rest of the evening was spent reminiscing of the days long gone by. A game of euchre was enjoyed, and delightful refreshments brought a happy occasion to a close.

Mrs. C. Hyde Heads Albert College W.G.

Miss Evangeline Riley, accompandied at the piano by Miss Mary Cameron, both students of Albert College, sang "The Lord is Our Comfort."

Mrs. T. Franklin introduced the speaker, the Rev. C. W. Coleman, minister of Holloway Street United Church, who spoke on "Success." He stated that "Success is man's highest aspiration and his deepest drive. Success is a virtue. Success is a worthy achievement."

Mrs. Spragge thanked the speaker.

After the meeting closed, a social hour followed.

Tricks to Entice the Tourist All Part of Fascinating Game

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

On the road of life, Lifemanship — Stephen Potter's art of outwitting the other fellow without actually doing anything improper — isn't exactly cricket.

But on the roads of America, where beating the opposition involves Tricks to Entice the Tourist, it's all part of a game which has kept us fascinated for years. Highly developed though it is throughout the continent, nowhere is it practised with more subtle skill than on the snowbird route from the northeast to Florida, part of which we explored in a preseason test run last month.

Here, where winter after winter North America's most sophisticated tourists ply their Eldorados and Continentals, it should be known as Businessmanship, or Touristmanship.

ATMOSPHERE

Of the many techniques used to get blase travellers to eat, sleep, buy, or go someplace other than they might if left to their own devices, one of the most intriguing is Atmosphere. Roadside entrepreneurs just south of the Mason-Dixon line, where motorists first think of stopping, do everything but stand on the highway and whistle "Dixie" at tourists.

In Virginia, for example, any motel or restaurant worth its salt has "Southern," "Plantation," "Old Dominion," "Manor," "Colonial," or "Cavalier" in its name and a green, white and pillared sign at the edge of the road which looks prerevolutionary as all get-cut. One motel we stopped at even had a mint julep motif in the carpeting. The theory seems to be the more non-Yankee a place appears, the more it will attract Yankees in search of that elusive Change.

Some proprietors reach pretty far. There's a Cadillac Court, complete with the standard of the world's crest on its neon sign, presumably conceived to draw the carriage trade. And there's a Wigwam Court, with units designed by some feverish genius in the shape of wigwams and a sign suggesting "Sleep in a wigwam tonight" (our answer: Why?).

But Touristmanship really becomes high art where the competition is heaviest and the customer most likely to be bewildered. On a non-access highway, where all the motels are off on side roads, one operator gets his licks in with a sign that says "Three miles ahead and no turns." A motel without an auto club recommendation sour-grapes "approved by travellers," and in an area where some television stations are on the UHF band, another court boasts "All channel T.V."

EXTRA INDUCEMENTS

Filling stations, which can offer little but the familiar services and brands of gas, trade on such inducements as premiums, ranging from free cokes with each five gallons of gas to free grease job with oil changes, and lower prices. "Baltimore city prices" declare signs in rural Maryland. (Alas, a few miles farther north, in Delaware, gas is as much as five cents a gallon cheaper than in Baltimore.)

Yankees are supposed to associate pecans with the Deep South, and roadside pecan shops which purvey everything from nuts to fruits, with Virginia hams, Shenandoah apple candy, and Miami Beach souvenirs in between, do a thriving business.

The choice travellers have among the various routes to Florida has led to regional trade groups with the aim of inducing motorists to use the roads on which their businesses are situated. Each major intersection has a big billboard advising that this or that route is the fastest or shortest.

The ultimate in this nonsense is a pair of signs outside of Savannah, Ga., one of which reads, "Save 60 minutes by using bypass," and the other, "Save 40 minutes through Savannah."

Does this mean you can save 100 minutes by going both ways?

This --- and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

To lead off today, we will give you the text of an appeal by the Prime Minister of Ceylon, the Honorable Mr. S. W. R. D. Bandaranaike.

"As you may be aware, Ceylon is experiencing unprecedented floods over a large part of the country and about 300,000 people have been rendered homeless and destitute. A number of deaths have also taken place but we are yet unaware of the total number involved. Great damage has been due to buildings, roads and bridges, telephone telegraph and rail communications and to large extents of cultivated lands. We are faced with a very serious task of rehabilitation and reconstruction and any assistance which your government and people can give will be very much appreciated by the government and people of Ceylon.

Immediate assistance required will principally be in the nature of food (including milk foods, infant foods, flour and sugar), clothing and medical supplies such as chlorine tablets, multi-vitamin tablets and tahalazole tablets.

Subsequent rehabilitation and reconstruction work will undoubtedly require large quantities of building material and special equipment of which no estimate can at present be made for want of precise information regarding the extent of the damage caused. This information will be collected as soon as the floods subside and normal communications and administration are restored."

The letter which accompanied this appeal came from the Ceylon Embassy in Washington, D.C., and contained an address to which private and voluntary contributions may be sent. We set it down here in the hope someone will use it.

Two other sentences we think are very significant. "It is indeed a remarkable expression of Commonwealth solidarity, but more than that perhaps, an indication of the essential humanity and brotherhood which unite the peoples (and not merely the governments) who are fortunate in belonging to the Commonwealth of Nations. A glance at the nations which responded to our appeal in a time of need is indeed sufficient evidence, if further evidence were required, of the strong bonds of the Commonwealth."

And so disaster at home and abroad brings forth all kinds of remarkable expression. We are sure we have told you before of the expression, "Aren't people wonderful?" made by a Red Cross worker last year after an appeal has been made and very generously responded to. The same thing could have been said this week after the fire which left many families homeless on Wednesday. Individual sympathy expressed itself in many ways while groups and committees went into action. We are sure it would be nothing new to say that both the givers and the receivers are helped. The Bible has already said it.

"Alas for the rarity
Of Christian charity
Under the sun!"

It may be that those lines of Thomas Hood's are not now so true. Yet we agree with Alexander Pope of an earlier century when he says,

"In faith and hope the world
well disagree,
But all mankind's concern is charity."

Mother's Helper

MOST of the games and diversions you plan for your children during a long auto trip require a writing surface. Take along a large tray for each child, to use as a sort of "lap desk." Pencils, crayons, puzzle pieces, etc., will be kept from rolling off by the sides of the tray.

More Trained Librarians Are Needed

WINNIPEG (CP) — More trained and experienced librarians are needed urgently in Manitoba.

Miss Vera Patrick of Souris, Man., told the annual general meeting of Manitoba Provincial Council of Women that recent increases in provincial library grants would make it possible to establish more libraries.

"But we need more librarians—not bookworms in the accepted meaning of the word—but fully qualified and experienced persons who like working with people and who realize the importance of books and reading."

In presenting the report of the library committee, Miss Patrick added that Canada has 2,400 librarians but 4,000 are required to meet increasing needs. She suggested that some organizations could offer bursaries to assist young people to train as librarians.

The meeting passed a resolution urging the provincial government "to do all within its power to make it possible to procure and retain a sufficient number of qualified librarians to meet the needs of the province."

Holloway WMS Reports Most Successful Year

Mrs. T. F. Townsend presided for the January meeting of Holloway Street W.M.S., which was held in the church parlors on Tuesday afternoon.

Music was provided by the pianist, Mrs. Hubbs, and the soloist, Mrs. Downes.

After the president had expressed her own welcome and timely thoughts for the new year, she read the message from Mrs. Dorothy E. Long, the new president of Dominion Board for 1958, and closed with prayer.

The World's Day of Prayer was announced for February 21. A spring tea is being planned for the W.M.S. of Holloway St. Church. Delegates were chosen for the Presbyterial, which convenes in Napanee on February 7, on the theme, "What doth the Lord require of us?"

Mrs. W. Johns said Christian stewardship was three dimensional, God, ourselves and others. "Our relationship to God determines our relationship with others."

Mrs. Bunnett reported the presbyterial allocation for the supply work was a complete layette. Money was voted to carry out this project.

Mrs. M. B. Weese, reporting on the community friendship, said a fine job had been done during the past year by the ladies: 232 calls had been made in hospital and homes, among the ill, shut-ins aged and newcomers.

Mrs. Scott reported 50 cards had been sent to the ill and bereaved during the year.

The treasurer, Mrs. W. Phillips, reported a successful year, financially, having over-reached the allotted allocation by $150.

Mrs. Grills opened her fine devotional, "The Second Mile," with prayer. Mrs. Rigby read Paul's words in Philippians, referring to his two faithful friends, Timothy and Epaphroditus. The meditation on this passage was given by Mrs. Johns, stressing the thought expressed in, "For he nearly died for the work of Christ, risking his life to complete your service to me; serving those for whom Christ died is the true way for us to serve Christ Himself."

The offering was received by Mrs. Holmes and Mrs. Green and dedicated by Mrs. Townsend.

Mrs. Holmes introduced the film, "The Split-Level Family," which challenged all to a rededication of time, talents and possessions for the work of our Master.

The officers for the new year were duly installed by the Rev. T. F. Townsend.

Mrs. Grills expressed her thanks to all those who assisted with the program and invited all to remain for a social half hour over a cup of tea prepared by her group of ladies.

Sweet, the Marmora Women's Institute enjoyed a travelogue with colored slides taken from Canada's East Coast showing important cities and the farming country in Quebec, Quebec City, and Montreal; also many different shots of the seaway and surrounding countryside. Then down through Washington, D.C., showing the buildings of State and White House.

The slides were shown by Robert Sweet and were taken where he and Mrs. Sweet were on holidays.

Bob also showed pictures from a trip he had taken last year in Cuba, Florida, The Keys and the beautiful Cypress Gardens. One picture was shown of Mr. and Mrs. James Rice, of Marmora, at their winter home in Florida, and of their lovely flower garden.

Thanks were extended to Bob for his interesting and educational program.

Current events covered both local and world wide topics.

The business on hand was planning for the making of lamp shades which course will be held the evenings of January 15, 16, 17.

Mrs. H. P. Nayler offered her home for the event and Miss Richards and Mrs. G. Papp will instruct.

Club Activities

KEEN AGE CLUB

The Keen Age Club of Tabernacle United Church held its first meeting of the new year at the home of Mrs. Albert Mulvey, 102 Moira Street East, with the president, Mrs. Gordon Priest, presiding.

The devotional portion was under the leadership of Mrs. Lathangue and was opened by the reading of a poem, "The New Year," followed by a reading entitled "The Power of Love is the Greatest," pointing out what the country and the church would be like without God, encouraging Christians to work together in harmony, and to keep God in the home and in the church.

The business portion was conducted quietly and various items discussed.

The program followed and consisted of fun and lively games, led by Mrs. C. Brown.

After the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. J. Whiting, assisted by Mrs. R. M. Carmichael. A social half hour was enjoyed.

Handy Helpers

By TRACY ADRIAN

If you are one of many of us who do most of the chores around the house you'll be happy to hear about these utility gloves that will protect your hands while you are working at the most chafing of jobs.

The gloves are beautifully made with the painstaking care that goes into those used by doctors. They are lined and insulated to protect your hands from hot water or harsh cleansers and have adjustable cuffs that are long enough to protect your arms when plunged into a laundry tub or a deep sink full of suds. We think them quite a boon to homemakers.

GOOD MANNERS

[illegible]EE BRIDESMAIDS TO WALK SINGLY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My only sister will be my maid of honor. I would like to have my three cousins as my only bridesmaids (they are of the same family, we have always lived next door to their family, and we have all been inseparable friends). I would like to have these bridesmaids walk up the aisle singly, rather than one pair and one single. But I have never seen this "single file" procedure. Would it be correct? — Bride-to-be

Yes . . . this is correct, sometimes done. And it would be a particularly good procedure in your case, and, I think, very effective.

ENGAGEMENT GIFTS Vs. WEDDING GIFTS

D[illegible] Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently we attended an engagement party given in honor of a relative of ours. Her fiance's family brought gifts such as one would bring to a shower or would give as wedding presents: electric coffee percolator, goblets and other kinds of glassware, blankets, and so forth. Our family brought only small personal gifts to the bride-to-be, thinking this was the proper thing to do. Naturally we felt somewhat out-of-order, and we would like to know just what kind of gifts are considered proper for engagement presents, engagement parties. — Reader

Generally engagement presents and presents brought to engagement parties are something personal for the girl herself or for her personal trousseau. This is really as it should be, for the wedding presents are supposed to be presents for the new home. You and your family needn't feel at all out-of-order for you brought the right kind of presents. Some people take a special delight in giving important and expensive presents, especially when there is a family wedding in the offing, and apparently this girl's fiance's family wanted to express their enthusiasm about the engagement in this way. But don't worry about it . . . you and your family did the right thing.

CONCERNING EVENING HATS AND BOUTONNIERES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My husband and I have been invited to a formal wedding to be given at 8 o'clock in the evening in our church. In our church it is a requirement that a woman wear some kind of headdress in church in either daytime or evening. To wear with my short chiffon dinner dress, I have designed and made a very small, close-fitting evening hat of net and lace. The ceremony is to be followed by a reception and dinner-dance in the ballroom of our largest hotel here. Must I wear my small hat all during the reception, or would it be proper for me to remove it and check it with my wrap when I arrive at the reception?

2. My husband will wear his tuxedo. For a wedding may he wear a boutonniere? (He is just a guest, not a member of the wedding party.) — Helena M.

1. It is proper for you to remove your hat and check it when you arrive at the reception.

2. No . . . no boutonniere for a man guest. Only the men in the wedding party, and usually the bride's father and the groom's father, wear boutonnieres.

St. Anthony the Woman Hater

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Friday, Jan. 17 — St. Anthony of Egypt just couldn't stand women It was not just a passive indifference — he even organized a crusade against them.

He did not, admittedly, understand women. He was never quite sure what they were up to, but he was sure they were the devil's closest and most unscrupulous allies, and that there would be no peace on earth unless women were strictly boycotted.

It is not on the record that he never stopped to consider what would happen to the human race if his advice were taken seriously.

Anthony has always been popular with artists. He gave them a great deal to paint about. Pictures of him always include fire, a crutch and a pig — and behind each of these symbols there is, of course, a meaning.

The fire symbolizes his battles with, and triumphs over, the demons of hell. It was because of this symbolic association with fire that St. Anthony was invoked in 1089 when an epidemic of erysipelas was sweeping over France. The disease in those days was known as "the sacred fire." When the plague ceased almost overnight, St. Anthony naturally got the credit and from then on erysipelas was called "St. Anthony's fire."

The pig also has to do with Anthony's temptations. It stands for sensuality and gluttony, both of which the saint successfully resisted. The presence of this animal in all Anthony's pictures resulted in his being proclaimed the patron saint of swineherds.

And his association with swineherds led to a curious figure of speech still in use in many parts of Europe. The smallest pig in any newborn litter is always called "St. Anthony's pig." and the same name is frequently applied to a pet pig.

Psychologists would probably have no trouble at all explaining the trouble between St. Anthony and women. Having been brought up in wealth and ease, and all the social activity that goes with such an existence, Anthony suddenly at the age of 18, gave it all up and retired to the desert to be a hermit.

It is not surprising that a healthy young man, living alone in the desert, should be constantly beset by visions of lovely women. To Anthony, however, they were not the normal products of a young man's imagination but actual emissaries of the devil.

The crutch which always is shown in pictures of Anthony is included as a symbol of his feebleness during the last years of his life. He died in 356, at the great age of 105.

ST. PETER'S CHAIR

Saturday, Jan. 18 — Today is the Feast of The Chair of St. Peter at Rome. It is a very old festival, having been noted in a church calendar for 354, although it was then celebrated in February.

The present Jan. 18 date is thought by some historians to be the actual anniversary of St. Peter's first occupation of his office as Bishop of Rome in the year 42

There is an ancient chair, kept today in the Vatican, which was quite possibly used by St. Peter, although no definite claim is made for its authenticity.

The point of the festival is not that the actual chair is still preserved, nor that the Apostle first sat in it on Jan. 18. These are details of romantic interest but not of real importance.

The deep meaning centres around the fact that we speak of a chair as a symbol of office. In a college or university reference is made to the "chair of history" or the "chair of economics," and what is meant is that the man who occupies the chair is the head of the department.

In committee meetings or other formally organized gatherings we say "the chair" makes a ruling or recognizes a delegate. "Chair," in popular usage, has a connotation of authority.

This is what the Feast of the Chair of Peter is about. It celebrates the authority of the first Bishop of Rome and all his successors.

CHAIR OF UNITY

In 1908, under the leadership of an English priest named Paul J. F Wattson, a movement arose to make this festival the beginning of an Octave (eight-day period) of prayer for the reunion of all Christians with the Church of Rome. First called Church Unity Octave, the name has now been changed to Chair of Unity Octave and its observance has become world-wide within the Roman Catholic church.

Each of the eight days has its own special intention. The universal scope of the Octave is seen in the fact that one day is devoted to prayers for the conversion of the Jews to Christianity.

During this period faithful Roman Catholics are asked to say the Octave prayer each day, to receive Communion each day, to recite the Rosary for the day's intention, and to bring non-Catholics to special Octave services.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Greta S. — Henry can't keep his eyes off young girls.

Henry S. — It's natural for a man.

• • •

Greta S. — I am 45 years old and have some gray hairs and some lines in my face. Just the same, I don't consider that I'm exactly an old hag yet.

My husband, however, seems to disagree. Whenever he sees a streamlined young thing on the street or on TV, he gives forth with the wolf whistle. He seems to be constantly looking over all the young girls whenever we go out together. If he is introduced to them he pays them all kinds of compliments. They are flattered and play up to him.

Henry insists that it doesn't mean a thing, but it sure makes me feel discarded.

• • •

Henry S. — I can never make Greta understand that there is a difference between a man's point of view and a woman's point of view. A man is naturally attracted to pretty women, no matter what the difference in ages. As long as he is decent and doesn't mean any harm by it and his wife knows he is faithful, what has she got to kick about?

Looking at it from another point of view, young women are naturally attracted to a mature man and are flattered by his attentions but that doesn't mean they are ready to snatch him away.

Greta should just wise up to the facts of life. I still love her.

• • •

The Council: What a life! What facts!

Looking at it from still another point of view, Henry, we have often heard of mature women being attracted to handsome young men, and we have also heard of young women being very much annoyed by the attentions of older men. Sometimes they pretend to be flattered in order to avoid being rude.

If we take Henry as an example of the male sex, we'd say that the real difference between the points of viw of the two sexes is a colossal and blinding egotism on the male side. Henry is like a little boy looking at the exciting candy in the store window, fancying it is all for him.

Henry's fantasy may be comparatively harmless, but it is really unworthy of a mature man. His argument that his behavior is natural for a man just won't hold water. People don't always do what is natural — and sometimes they avoid doing the natural and wiser things.

For example, we think it is natural for a man of Henry's age to put his thoughts on such matters as how to benefit his community and family and how to improve his business or job skills. This would leave him less time for window-gazing.

The only advice we can give to Greta is to remind her husband by an occasional long, low whistle that women also notice attractive humans of the opposite sex — if they want to put their minds to it.

Readers' Saturday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I have read your column in the paper and think that you may be of help to me. The Ladies' Auxiliary are in charge of entertainment and could you give me some idea of how many sandwiches would be needed for approx. 125 to 150 people? The sandwiches are to be bologna, eggs, and salmon. Some of the ladies thought about 3 doz. eggs, 4 tins salmon and how large a piece of bologna should we have? There would be celery and cheese sticks and pickles and cookies. Mrs. C. A. H.

ANSWER:

Thank you for telling me the exact fillings you are using. It helps a lot when figuring the quantities. Under separate cover I am sending two articles that deal with sandwiches that have appeared before. Caterers figure on 3 slices of bread per person when the food is not to be served as a meal and used in dainty collation. In other words one and one-half full-sized sandwiches per person. Bologna — a 4-lb. piece of bologna, ground, with some sweet green relish and enough mayonnaise to moisten will make 64 full size sandwiches. Salmon: 4 1-lb. tins of salmon with liquid. Flake salmon and add to it enough mayonnaise to spread easily and some chopped gherkins. Eggs: hard boil 2 doz. eggs. This will give you 8 cups of chopped eggs firmly packed. Add to this some finely chopped onion and enough mayonnaise to moisten to spreading consistency. Makes 64 full size. This amount of filling will give you thinly spread or regulation sandwiches. If you wish to use more filling then increase amounts by 1½ times. Conveners! This would be a good thing to clip for your files for future reference.

SATURDAY

Porcupine Casserole (see Friday); Spinach with Garlic Butter; Baked Squash; Shredded Raw Carrot Salad; Citrus Fruit Compote in Almond-flavored Syrup; Perfect Gingersnaps (see Wednesday); Coffee.

QUESTION:

Your baked fish (10 lbs.) was perfect. The fish beautifully flavored and appearance magnificent. A lot to say for a mere fish, isn't it? Thanks for your instructions and the Smorgasbord was a great success. You are quick to detect errors so perhaps you can solve this one . . . I've tried these cookies twice and they are as hard as mortar. Hattie.

ANSWER:

Yes, I would think that the cream quantity given is where the error is. How would you like to have tried and true recipe for a really soft cookie?

SOFT DROP COOKIE:

Beat together until light and fluffy 2 eggs, 1 cup soft shortening, and 2 cups brown sugar. Stir in ½ cup sour milk or buttermilk. Sift together 3½ cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon soda and 1 teaspoon salt. Stir into egg mixture. To this add 1 cup chopped nuts. Chill 1 hour. Drop rounded teaspoonfuls about 2-inches apart on a greased cookie sheet. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for approx. 8 to 10 minutes until just set. (When touched with the finger lightly there is almost no imprint made).

I am so glad the Smorgasbord was such a success and also that you were so delighted with the fish.

NATIONAL PRIDE, EH?

A letter-writing Rip Van Winkle, who, if he enquires might learn that World War II ended quite a while ago, writes an open letter to the CAHA in a Canadian sports journal. He wanted to know "Who arranged the Russian Selects visit? What was the degree of insistence on the part of what Russian negotiator that international rules be imposed on the nation that invented the game? Who selected the teams for the Russians to play? What were the financial guarantees made the Russians? How much and to whom was the residue of the money paid?"

He probably missed having a couple of editions of the local daily read to him some time prior to the Russian visit.

But what should cause raucous guffaws to emanate from the greater majority of hockey-minded Canadians, and also the hackles to rise on the battle-scarred necks of CAHA secretary George Dudley, the "Voice of the Dunlops" Wren Blair, and some others we know is, the commentary offered by a supposed hockey "authority" of the mag. Here 'tis:

"There is a strong feeling on the part of hockey fans with a little bit of national pride that hockey prestige in Canada is being 'sold down the river' by those who are willing to let the Russians capitalize at our expense, beating our fourth raters until finally they will rise up and beat our best.

"In our office a 20-year-old Greek girl, two years in Canada, watched the Russians whip the junior Canadiens. She was greatly impressed with the Russians' phony passing (which can't be done when there's a bodycheck around) and raved about them. She further emphasized that she 'knew' we sent our best teams to Europe and that men like 'Rocket' Richard, Howe, Lindsay, Harvey, etc., had played and were defeated.

"What does the rest of Europe think? It's fine to play 'footsie' with the Russians but it might shock a great many people to know that Moscow today thinks Selects beat Les Canadiens 6-3 and 10-1. After all, they just had to leave our the word, 'Jr.' Our final question: Are you going to send a bunch of fourth raters to Europe again this trip? If so, why bother? It sickens sports lovers to watch this dollar sign and/or lack of national pride making monkeys out of us in the only thing we can do the best. After all, in hockey we still have the 'Sputnik.' But if we mess around a few years the Russians will have passed us legitimately. Why give them the satisfaction of doing it year after year before then?."

These fellows should get around a little more; read the papers and find out what is actually going on, instead of swallowing the statements of isolated "Greek girls" tabbing the Russian passing as "phony" and classifying the Whitby Dunlops as "fourth-raters." They should travel a little and watch senior "A" hockey as it is played in Ontario, especially by the Dunlops. After all you cannot judge the nation's best by the top squad in the hometown bush league.

It should be interesting to note the comment of this expert should the "fourth-rate" Dunnies whip the best Europe can produce and bring back the country's borrowed hockey prestige. Remind me, Miss Jones, to borrow a copy of this publication.

Speaking of the Dunlops, Eastern Ontario Senior league squads note with some satisfaction that the Blairians are no respecters of hockey clubs. Public prints to the west of us, and other news outlets have pointed out more than once, the "ease" with which the Dunnies have marched through their part-schedule of the eastern circuit.

The Dunlops have defeated practically all of the eastern league clubs by substantial margins. They have also met defeat on five occasions. But they have beaten the highly-touted Kitchener Dutchmen twice in league play and as many times in exhibition tilts.

Thursday night they handed Eastern League prestige a decided boost when they buried the Soo Greyhounds beneath an 11-1 score, the biggest margin they have attained thus far in senior "A" competition. The Greyhunds, it should be noted, were tied for first place in the OHA-NOHA group, with the Kitchener Dutchmen. That should cause some noggin-scratching in west-north circles.

Closer to home, the Cornwall Chevies are here tonight in a desperation battle with the Macs. Let's hope the Hildebranders are "up" for this one.

Bisons Blanked By Rochester; Barons Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With right winger Ron Hurst back in action, Rochester Americans appeared set today to make their big push in the American Hockey League.

Hurst, 26-year-old native of Toronto, has been on the sidelines for a month with a broken bone in his right hand. He returned to the ice Friday night and promptly scored the first goal in the Americans' 3-0 victory over Buffalo Bisons.

The triumph left Rochester and Buffalo tied for fourth place in the league standings each with 32 points.

For Rochester goalie Gerry McNeil, it was his third shutout of the season. He turned aside 30 shots.

All the Americans needed was Hurst's goal, but Mike Nykoluk and Ken Girard added insurance tallies in the second period.

In the only other game of the night, Cleveland Barons came from behind to whip the last-place Springfield Indians, 5-4.

Bo Elik scored three goals for Cleveland, his final one the winner just two minutes before the end of the game. Johnny McLelland and Dan Poliziani also counted.

Jack Caffery turned in a three-goal effort for Springfield with Bob Beckett getting the other.

No Further Action Taken Against Player

MONTREAL (CP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League announced Friday there will be no further disciplinary action, other than the match penalty and automatic fine of $100, against Ian Cushenan of Chicago Black Hawks for an incident during a game Dec. 8.

Cushenan struck defenceman Doug Mohns of Boston Bruins with his fist. Mohns' jaw was fractured.

Campbell said evidence of the game officials and of principals showed "very little indication" of a deliberate attempt to injure.

Rookie Goalie Bags Packed In Case of No Improvement; Blues, Habs Clash Tonight

By RON ANDREWS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Who is the New York Ranger goaltender? This might be the big question around the National Hockey League early next week.

At the moment Rookie Marcel Paille is the man with the job but he won't be in the same position after this weekend if he doesn't improve. At least that's what coach Phil Watson says.

Watson isn't happy with his team's performance of late and, although he doesn't blame Paille entirely for the slump, he is willing to summon Lorne Worsley back to New York if Paille doesn't make a better impression tonight when Rangers meet the league - leading Canadiens at Montreal and Sunday at Detroit when Red Wings entertain the Blueshirts.

SUFFERED BACK INJURY

Worsley was the regular Ranger goaltender when the season started but a month later he suffered a back injury and Paille was called up from Providence Reds as an emergency replacement.

Paille's performance was the talk of the league and Rangers went on a winning streak. Worsley was sent to Providence and Watson said at the time that the Ranger netminder's job was Paille's "until he loses it."

In the last two weeks New York couldn't beg, borrow or steal a win, losing four games and tying another. What was a comfortable second-place dwindled and Rangers are only eight points from last place, although still clinging to second by three points over the third-place Red Wings.

Opposing snipers have poured 26 shots past Paille in Rangers' last five games. Watson isn't a coach to stand pat under those conditions.

SAFE FOR TWO GAMES

"Paille's safe for the next two games," the coach says. "If he hasn't snapped out of it by that time, I'll bring back Worsley."

But Watson still considers Paille a potential NHL goal tender.

"He has the stuff to become a good big-league goalie. His confidence may be shaky right now, but I'm not going to give up on him even if we have to call Worsley back."

Watson thinks that maybe the 25-year-old native of Shawinigan Falls, Que., has been under pressure in recent games because the team hasn't been scoring goals.

Meanwhile, the other teams are concerned about injuries and their position in the standings.

MINUS THREE STARS

Canadiens, who are without three big stars — defenceman Doug Harvey, Jean Beliveau and Maurice Richard, all out with injuries—have opened an almost unsurmountable lead over Rangers. They have 57 points, 17 more than New York.

From there on only eight points separate Rangers and last-place Chicago Black Hawks. Red Wings are third with 37 points, Boston Bruins fourth, one point behind and two ahead of Toronto Maple Leafs. Hawks have 32 points, two behind Leafs.

Besides the Ranger games this weekend, Bruins and Leafs play at Toronto tonight after Hawks and Wings play in the afternoon televised game. Bruins and Leafs meet at Boston Sunday and Canadiens visit Chicago.

Martin Signs With Tigers

DETROIT (AP)—Billy Martin, peppery shortstop obtained in a swap with Kansas City Athletics, Friday signed his first contract with Detroit Tigers. Terms were not disclosed.

Martin signed after a conference with Detroit general manager John McHale. He became the second Tiger to sign for 1958 season. Jim Bunning a 20-game winner last year, was the first.

Leafs Acquire Miller Hurler

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League Friday signed pitcher Mike Blyzka, who had a record of seven wins and three losses last year with Minneapolis Millers of the American Association.

Blyzka, 29, hurled for the old St. Louis Browns in 1953 and spent two years with Denver Bears of the American Association.

Eskimos Get Another Shock, Parker May Quit

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos, shocked at the unexpected resignation of coach Frank Ivy, now are set for another blow Jackie Parker may quit, too.

The announcement that Ivy is switching to Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League was followed Friday by halfback-quarterback Parker's confirmation that he, too, may go to the NFL—to New York Giants.

In their four years at Edmonton, Ivy and Parker earned most of the credit for leading Eskimos to three national championships —a string of victories broken by Esks' upset defeat by Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the western finals last fall. Neither coach nor player were tied to Eskimos.

Parker, named Canada's outstanding football player for 1957, began last season with a special contract which makes him a free agent until Jan. 15. If he doesn't decide by then whether to join New York, he remains Edmonton property.

MAY TAKE OFFER

However, Parker, who came here from Mississippi State, indicated he may accept the Giants' offer.

"The offer was a good one and I had pretty well made up my mind to refuse it and stay in Edmonton," he said. "I'm trying to make up my mind but certainly Ivy's departure reopens the NFL issue with me.

"I was a fairly staunch Ivy man, but I also know I would like it with the Giants. They're been after me ever since I turned pro with the Eskimos."

Parker, 25, played halfback behind quarter Bernie Faloney in Esks' first Grey Cup victory in 1954, and replaced Faloney at the pivot to help the Edmonton club retain their championship the next two years.

In all four years he has been named an all-star in Eskimos' Western Interprovincial Football Union. Twice he was named the WIFU's most valuable player.

Biltmores Nip Baby Canadiens; Marlies Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gueiph Biltmores are in last place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series but there are times when they refuse to lie down and play dead.

Bilts have only seven wins and four ties to show for their 28 starts this season and their goal output of 67, an average of 2.4 a game, is the lowest by far in the league.

But they threw away the averages Friday night and did it the hard way for a 5-4 victory over the tough Ottawa - Hull Canadiens. A third-period spurt that produced three goals turned the trick.

Toronto Marlboros squeaked into sole possession of second place in the night's other game by virtue of a 6-6 tie with the Flyers at Barrie. Marlies now have a one - point lead over Hamilton Cubs, who in turn are but a point ahead of Peterborough Petes.

Canadiens appeared to have the game wrapped up at Guelph when they snapped a 2-2 tie with two fast goals late in the second period. Then the Bilts turned on the heat.

Don McGregor shot the winner. Rod Gilbert, Don Grosso, Leon Rochford and Larry Favero scored the other markers for Biltmores, who outshot Ottawa 37-24. Bob Boucher with two, Ralph Backstrom and John Longarini counted for Ottawa.

A gamble paid off for coach Hap Emms' Flyers when Danny Patrick fired in the tying goal in the final second of play after the Barrie netminder had been removed in favor of an extra attacker. It was a 3-3 tie going into the third period and the teams alternated in the scoring thereafter.

Pete Panagabko scored a pair for Flyers with other singles coming from Murray Brydson, Tom Black and Murray Davison. Bob Nevin was a double scorer for Toronto. Bill Kennety, Jack McMaster, Doug Riseley and Ross Morrison got singles.

Will Establish Hall of Fame In Toronto

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League governors have agreed to extend their co-operation and assistance to the Canadian National Exhibition in establishment of a hockey hall of fame at the CNE grounds in Toronto, NHL President Clarence Campbell announced Friday.

The league has appointed a special committee to work with the CNE directors in development of the project.

"This decision will, in all probability, mean that the International Hockey Hall of Fame founded in 1943 under the guidance of the late Capt. James Sutherland and planned to be erected in Kingston, will not be proceeded with, at least not on as large a scale," said Campbell's statement.

"All hockey organizations officially recognized Kingston as the birthplace of hockey in a formal declaration made in 1943 and, in all probability, there will be some tangible evidence of that decision erected at Kingston.

"The Kingston project, which had great promise at the outset, was pretty well doomed when building costs skyrocketed after the war and it was not found possible to finance the increase or assure the maintenance of the project once it was erected.

"This new project has many natural advantages not shared by any other location or auspices, and a vigorous campaign will get under way immediately to ensure that there will be an accessible and suitable hockey museum and shrine for its founders and great players."

Campbell said space for the new development has just become available. It consists of the ground floor of what was the former CNE administration building, in the centre of the exhibition grounds.

"This is an ideal location, not only during the exhibition but at all times of the year."

Laufman picked up three assists as Dutchmen, 6-3 winners, again took sole possession of first place, two points ahead of Greyhounds.

Stan Musial Will Not Retire From Baseball

NEW YORK (AP)—Stan Musial has thrown his retirement time table out the window and now expects to play indefinitely.

Two years ago the St. Louis Cardinal star confided to friends he expected to put in three more seasons. By then, he felt, he expected to put in three more seasons. By then, he felt, he would have achieved the greatest of his goals—the 3,000-hit mark.

A virtual cinch now to pick up the 43 hits to round out the 3,000 total next season, the 37-year-old Musial is convinced he can play top ball for some years.

"I've decided to go on playing as long as I feel I can continue to hit around .300," he said Friday. "And the way I feel now, I think I can hit around .320 or so for several yeears yet. As a matter of fact, I feel better, stronger and younger today than I've felt since 1955."

Musial has another goal. He is eager to win at least one more National League batting title, which would equal the record of eight championships established by Honus Wagner, Pittsburgh immortal. Stan made it seven last year when he finished with a .351 batting average to maintain his lifetime .340 mark over a 16-year period.

Referees Must Curb Squawkers Or Get Fined

MONTREAL (CP) — National Hockey League referees and linesman who fail to enforce a new directive aimed at curbing squawking players will be nicked $25 per failure.

This was made clear Friday when NHL President Clarence Campbell issued the text of the directive, outgrowth of a meeting of club owners at New York last Monday.

Provisions of the directive are effective today. They state that a misconduct penalty will be called against any player, including captain or alternate captain, who disputes the officials' decisions.

A distinction is made between suck squawks and discussions with the referee of any point relating to interpretation of the rules. These discussions are the privilege only of the captain or an alternate captain.

THREE ALTERNATES

The rules provide that in addition to a captain there may be a maximum of three alternates on each team.

The directive was addressed to all NHL clubs, managers, coaches, players, referees and linesmen.

The concluding paragraph said:

"Failure on the part of any official to carry out the letter and spirit of this directive will be equivalent to a misconduct penalty, and the referee-in-chief and the president will be responsible for the enforcement of this provision."

A match penalty carries with it an automatic fine of $25.

Climate Changes Affect Wildlife

It's a changing world and there can be no doubt about it. Our climate, for example, is changing and not, in my opinion, for the best. Now we, in what are laughingly called "the temperate states", have temperatures which average about four degrees higher per day than those of ten or fifteen years ago.

Our nationa water tables are far lower than they used to be. Denuded hillsides, increasing amounts of cleared land, and far less static snow in the winter months than we used to have are telling their story. In addition, our use of fresh water has increased tremendously.

It is only natural to expect that these changed conditions would be reflected in wildlife, both in behavior patterns and in population numbers. Sure enough, that is exactly what is happening.

Having been born in a small town in central Pennsylvania, the outdoors was my habitat a great deal of the time. Most of the native wildlife was familiar to me by the time I was twelve years old. Yet, believe it or not, even though I roamed the woods of Mifflin County, right in the heart of good wild-turkey and deer country, I did not lay eyes on a deer, alive or dead, until I was sixteen years old and had moved to my present home, Williamsport, Penna.

DEER HERDS INCREASED

Today, when driving through our hills, no matter what time of year, it is exceptional not to see several deer. Our deer herd has increased to such proportions that the animals now graze in the fields like cattle instead of remaining in the woods.

Without question, the changing climate has had its effect on this increase in the deer herd. The snow in our hills is not as heavy as it used to be with the result that the deer are yarded for a shorter time and there is a smaller winter die-off.

The increased number of deer has, of course, had its effect on our supply of ruffed grouse. The trees in our forests are browsed until the "deer line," about six feet above ground, is quite plain. All edible underbrush as well as ground cover such as wild strawberry, teaberry and clover has been consumed by hungry deer, thus removing food and cover for the grouse.

The result is that there are not enough grouse in our woods to make hunting them worth while. Oh, of course, there are concentration spots, but generally the grouse supply is approaching the vanishing point all too rapidly.

The effects of fast run-off of rains and the increasing number of dry summers evidently has had its effect on our woodcock supply. These grand little game birds have changed their flight lane. No longer do they strive for food in the baked-out covers of eastern Pennsylvania. Instead, they now come down through the western part of the state and our covers, which used to furnish us excellent shooting, now are empty.

Conversely, the ringneck pheasant is more numerous through our area than ever in my memory. Probably an excellent nesting season during a warm, fairly dry spring has had much to do with this increase. In any event, there certainly are more ringneck than I remember seeing during any previous year.

Unfortunately, the ringneck is not a good dog bird, in the sense that a woodcock, a grouse or a quail will make for good dog work. A ringneck has the distressing tendency to run ahead of a pointing dog and he does not "lay for the dog" until he finds it necessary to cross open country. We who like pointing dogs miss this phase of the outdoor picture greatly.

MORE MOURNING DOVES

The one happy corollary in the changing picture is the behavior of the mourning dove. This little speed king is, as you know, a migratory bird, nesting in the north and spending the winter months in snow-free climate. With the average rise in daily temperatures, Pennsylvania is fast becoming an excellent dove state. Where we had one dove ten years ago, today we have fifty.

To be sure, dove shooting can not, for me at least, ever take the place of the grouse covers or the woodcock thickets, watching my big setter, Spot, locate the birds for us as only he knew how. The twisting rise of the woodcock and the heart-stopping flush of the ruffed grouse are outdoor thrills which stand alone.

But the world moves and, I suppose, we must move with it. After all, the mourning dove is a genuine challenge to the shooting skill of any gunner. Spot is old now — almost fourteen years. Any other dog would be an anticlimax. But we must reconcile ourselves to take things as they are, and accept the changing picture as it is instead of concerning ourselves with what we would like it to be.

Gerry James Back in Hockey; Joins Rochester

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League announced Friday that Gerry James, star of hockey and football, has agreed to a contract to report to their American League farm team at Rochester next Thursday.

Leaf coach Billy Reay said chief scout Bob Davidson phoned from Winnipeg to report James is satisfied with terms.

James said he will ask officials of Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Interprovincial Football Union to see whether they will allow him to play hockey.

He concluded a two-year term with Leafs last spring and was suspended for not reporting for fall training. Leafs have indicated they will lift the ban if James joins Rochester.

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) Australia's Lew Hoad Friday night defeated Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles 4-6, 9-7, 11-9, 18-16 in another gripping match at Kooyong Stadium. Victory gave Hoad a 4-3 lead in their 100-match professional tennis series.

Canadian Wins 'Bird' Highlight

TORONTO (CP)—Martin Sempie of Toronto defeated Bob Williams of Buffalo, N.Y., 15-13, 15-6 Friday night in a highlight match at the opening of the three-day ten tournament.

Sempie, a Canadian Thomas Cup prospect, employed a tricky flat forehand to crush Williams, who has been on every U.S. Cup team, in a quarter - finals match

Other contenders for a berth on the Canadian cup team also fared well. In second round matches Dave McTaggart of Vancouver defeated B. Renner, Detroit, 15-2, 15-4; Jim Carnwath of Woodstock, defeated B. Bedford, Detroit, 15-2, 15-6; Bert Fergus, Vancouver, defeated Jack Moon, Toronto, 17-15, 15-12; and Bev Wescott, Toronto, defeated F Trifinoff, Detroit, 15-6, 15-1.

Ed Hreljac of Creighton Mines defeated Jim Crighton of Toronto 16-17, 15-13, 15-10 in the first round but lost in the second to F. Carmell of Niagara Falls, 15-5, 17-14.

Mile of Future Far Below 4:00 Says Bannister

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Roger Bannister, mho pioneered the four-minute mile with his 3:59.4 performance at Oxford, England, on May 6, 1954, thinks the ultimate record for the event is far below that figure.

Bannister, here with his wife, was one of four guests of honor at a luncheon Friday given by Sports Illustrated magazine at which each was presented a Grecian urn as a trophy for being chosen "sportsman of the year" by the magazine for the four years since the award was originated

Bannister was the first winner, followed by Johnny Podres, Brooklyn Dodgers pitcher, in 1955; Bobby Morrow, U.S. Olympic runner, in 1956, and Stan Musial, St. Louis Cardinals baseball star, the current recipient for his 1957 performance.

POTENTIAL TO BE TAPPED

The tall, red-haired Briton, still looking as if he could run a mile in respectable time, believes the actual potential has yet to be tapped

"Nobody can run a mile in two minutes, or three minutes," he says. "That's physically impossible. But there is a broad no-man's land between 3:30 and 3:50 that might be reached."

Bannister feels that if he had not broken the psychological barrier guarding the four -minute mark, someone else would have.

Concerning current milers he said he believed capable of betterring the present record, Bannister mentioned England's Derek Ibbotson and American Don Bowden, adding that Ibbotson needed competition. Ibbotson holds the current record of 3:57.2.

Patterson May Box Exhibitions In Britain

LONDON (AP) — Boxing promotor Harry Levene says heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson will not come to Britain this month but may box exhibitions here next March.

"I had hoped Patterson would appear in London next week in an exhibition," said Levene. "But he and his manager Cus D'Amato have been unable to get a ship in time."

Patterson was to box an exhibition Tuesday on the same program as a 10-rounder between Willie Toweel, South African holder of the British Empire lightweight crown and Cuban Orlando Zulueta.

Rosburg Has 5-Stroke Lead In Crooner's Golf Tourney

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) Bob Rosburg threatened to make a runaway with the $50,000 Bing Crosby golf tournament today as he passed the halfway point in the 72-hole event with a five-stroke lead.

The chunky putting expert from Napa, Calif., Friday added a five-under-par 67 over the tough Cypress Point course to the 65 he had at Monterary Peninsula Country Club on opening day for a 132 total.

Putts by the 31-year-old pro dropped from distances of 20, 18 and twice from 15 feet.

His 67 wasn't the best round of the day, though, as Bill Casper Jr., of Apple Valley, Calif., fired a 66 at Monterey for a two-day total of 137 and second place.

Toronto's Al Balding turned in a three-under-par 69. Together with his opening day round of 71, that gave him a total of 140—eight strokes off Rosburg's blistering pace—and a tie with six others.

The two other Canadians competing were eliminated. Stan Leonard of Lachute, Que., toured the course in par to give him a two-day total of 150. The cutoff figure to reduce the field to 140 players was 147 or better. Calgary's Bob Wylie had a 78, making his total 156.

Tommy Bolt held third place with 138 as a field of 140 began the final two rounds over a third course—Pebble Beach—in this 72-hole tournament.

Veteran E. J. (Dutch) Harrison made it clear that he, for one, didn't consider Rosburg any cinch for the title and the $4,000 top prize. Harrison with 140, said: "Here anything can happen, you're not in until you finish that last hole."

Crosby set up his tournament with two categories—individual pros and pro-amateur best ball.

Rosburg and his partner, San Francisco golf writer Nelson Cullenward, shared the lead in the latter with Bolt and movie actor Johnny Weissmuller. Both had 61-65—126, the scores including the amateurs' handicaps.

Among the pros, fourth place was shared by youthful Dave Marr of Mamaroneck, N.Y., with 69-90—139 and veteran Chick Harbert of Northville, Mich., with 71-68.

Tied at 140 with Balding were Harrison, Walter Burkemo, Dow Finsterwald, Bob Harris, Bo Wininger, and Jack Burke Jr.

Miceli Beaten By 'Tombstone' In Seven Rounds

NEW YORK (AP)—The jury is still out on Charlie (Tombstone) Smith, the lanky Los Angeles welterweight who thinks he belongs in the championship tournament.

Tombstone took care of 29-year-old Joe Miceli Friday night, stopping the New York veteran on a technical knockout at the end of the seventh round.

However, Smith never did drop Miceli who was gasping in the late rounds. In fact, Miceli moved fast at the start and had piled up an early lead before Tombstone came to life.

Smith impressed many in the small crowd with his quick combinations in the late rounds. Earlier he seemed to be fighting in a daze, unable to keep up with Miceli who kept moving to his own left.

Referee Al Berl stopped the bout after the seventh just as the New York State Athletic Commission doctor climbed through the ropes on his way to Miceli's corner. Berl said Miceli asked him to stop it but Miceli denied that in his dressing room.

Smith, 24, has a 25-5 record and is rated among the top welters in the ring ratings. However, he was not included in the six-man championship tournament now being conducted.

Workmen's Compensation Board Hospital at Malton Going Through Last Winter

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Windows rattle in the wind and rainwater drips musically into buckets, but the old Workmen's Compensation Board hospital and rehabilitation centre is going through its last winter.

Ontario, with one of the most progressive compensation acts in the world, is building a hospital to match.

In 1956, 3,722 persons were admitted to the hospital or clinic at suburban Malton Airport — 22 buildings which were RCAF barracks during the Second World War. They stayed on an average, 42 days.

TO ACCOMMODATE 500

Meanwhile, a few miles away on the northern outskirts of Toronto, a $6,000,000 hospital is taking shape—14 buildings to house the latest techniques and equipment and to take care of 500 men at a time.

The board already owns its own administration building — A completed on the Toronto waterfront in 1948.

"One of the things the Workmen's Compensation Board of Ontario tries to teach the injured is to forget what he has lost and make the best of what he has," said Michael Willan, assistant administrator.

"We have been doing the best with what we have."

Much of the equipment in the physical therapy rooms has been designed on the premises and built by patient-labor. Hand exercise boards designed and built as a rehabilitation project at the Malton hospital have been shipped all over Canada.

FOR RAILWAYMEN

In the back yard is the life-size mock-up of a boxcar so that injured railroaders may practise climbing hte ladders and handling the brakes. Up the ramps convalescing workmen trundle wheelbarrows, carrying heavier loads as they regain their strength.

"I climbed all over, through and under boxcars for a week to get that thing the right size," says Joan Crosby, head of occupational therapy at Malton.

A painter injured in a fall regains the use of his legs and his confidence on a ladder nearby. His waist is snugged by a safety belt.

Delegations from places as remote as South Africa and Arctic Sweden have come to study the techniques developed here.

"We start the patients off gently in our gymnasium," Miss Crosby says.

MEDICAL SUPERVISION

"Always under the guidance of the doctors, we move them along through physical therapy—whirlpool baths, massage and light exercise."

From there the men—there are no women patients at Malton—go to heavier exercises, work on looms or in the carpentry shops.

The last stage is the basement. Here the patients practise the skills nearest to the trade to which they hope to return.

"This is our frustration room," Miss Crosby says. Inside, a man who shovelled coal for a living endlessly shovels coal over a low fence. On the other side, another patient shovels it back. The work is good for shoulder muscles.

Chief problem for the staff of doctors, nurses, physiotherapists and occupation therapists is the language barrier.

"About one patient in three has trouble with the English language and can only understand what we say through an interpreter," Miss Crosby said.

Men speak in German, Swedish, French, Italian and a dozen other languages as they ride stationary miles on wheelless bicycles. Others repair torn leg muscles by pumping power for jig saws and lathes in the carpentry shops. In one corner, a diesel engineman restores for jig saws and lathes in the carpentry shops. In one corner, a diesel engineman restores power to his right arm by endlessly throwing a make - believe brake lever.

"Much of this equipment we have built as we went along," Miss Crosby said. "We'll have to take it with us, you just can't buy these things."

MARTIN

He charged that the "floundering" of the Progressive Conservatives in their trade policy was one reason for the heavy unemployment. The proposal of Mr. Diefenbaker to switch 15 per cent of Canada's imports from the United States to Britain was "reckless." It was not calculated to create any confidence in the U.S., Canada's best customer.

The government should have removed the 10-per-cent auto excise tax, instead of just cutting it to 7½ per cent. The Liberals had considered cutting it when they were in power last spring. But at that time auto sales had increased by 18 per cent.

"This is not the case today. The present government should have eliminated the tax completely."

In the fight for the leadership, Mr. Martin concedes he faces a strong opponent in Lester B. Pearson, former external affairs minister. But the former health minister argued that he had years of political experience and a widespread knowledge of government affairs. This would help the party in the next election campaign.

He recalled the many pieces of social security legislation passed in the decade while he was health minister: health grants and hospital insurance, aid for the blind and disabled and unemployed.

WON SCHOLARSHIPS

Ottawa - born Mr. Martin, a heavy - featured man, clean-shaven and bespectacled, fought poverty and polio in his youth to become a forceful speaker, a brilliant student, educated mostly on scholarships.

His father, a laborer in a Pembroke, Ont., steel mill, was too poor to send him to college. But with the help of a friend, scholarships and earnings from work at race tracks, lumber yards and factories, Mr. Martin financed his law course at the University of Ottawa. He went on to Harvard, Cambridge and Geneva. He joined a law firm at Windsor in 1930.

His first venture into politics, as Liberal candidate for the Ontario provincial riding of Renfrew North in 1928, was unsuccessful. But he was never beaten again. He got the federal Essex East nomination in 1935 and has held that seat since.

Like the present Liberal leader, Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, Mr. Martin is an Irish-French Catholic. The Liberal leadership usually rotates among English-speaking Protestants and French - speaking Roman Catholics.

SUPPORTED ST. LAURENT

Mr. Martin's big decision came in 1948. His friends urged him to contest the leadership convention when the late Mackenzie King stepped down and Mr. St. Laurent was elected.

But Mr. King had indicated he would like to see Mr. St. Laurent as leader, and in what he later termed as "the most difficult decision of my life," Mr. Martin decided to throw his weight behind Mr. St. Laurent.

Now has come the new chance to strike and Mr. Martin plans to make the best of it. He has been conducting a personal campaign, writing letters to all the 1,500 convention delegates, making hundreds of long-distance telephone calls to whip up support.

He has travelled to every province in his search for votes and now feels his chances are bright. What new steps he may take have been kept secret. But his committee keeps hammering away at his main theme: Only with Mr. Martin can the Liberals hope to win in 1958.

PEARSON

"I have nothing to say about that but if I should become prime minister, I would want to use Mr. Martin for his great skill and effective service."

He did not say what role he would assign to the 54-year-old political veteran who entered the leadership race with a formal committee and a public relations officer. Mr. Pearson has been in the federal political field for nine years; Mr. Martin for 22.

So far it appears that a large portion of the Liberal hierarchy is behind Mr. Pearson. The leadership usually rotates between English-speaking Protestants and French-speaking Roman Catholics. Retiring leader St. Laurent is Catholic. So is Mr. Martin. Mr. Pearson is a member of the United Church and the son of a Methodist minister.

The former external affairs minister has entered the leadership race with all the breeziness and informality of a man confident of victory.

He says he has set up no formal campaign committee; has no public relations officer; no grand campaign strategy. In fact his pretty secretary, Mary Macdonald, tries to double as publicity chief.

LETTERS POUR IN

Yet the letters are pouring in, letters which the 60-year-old foreign affairs expert says "are full of spirit and courage—evidence of a great measure of support right across the country."

"We haven't set up any formal committee and I have no manager. All our organization is very informal. But we have letters from members of Parliament and others, all asking what they can do to help. I am very much moved. It looks very encouraging."

Mr. Pearson's friends said he wanted to wage a rather quiet, modest campaign, but Mr. Martin opened up aggressively, writing a letter to every convention delegate. Mr. Pearson took note and also wrote letters.

Mr. Martin said that if elected he will carry the Liberal's platform to every hamlet in the country. Mr. Pearson said he also would plan a cross-country tour. He would have a duty in Parliament where he would be Opposition leader "but I certainly would visit every part of the country as quickly as I could."

VARIED CAREER

The Toronto-born Mr. Pearson, MP for Algoma East in Northern Ontario, entered the First World War as an army private who wound up as flying officer in the Royal Flying Corps. He was in turn a history professor, an ambassador, president of the United Nations General Assembly and chairman of the NATO Council. He has become one of the world's best-known figures.

Last September, he told a conference of Ontario Young Liberals that the party had to chart a "new Liberalism" based on current needs and backed by "concrete results."

The party had nothing to boast about by merely standing in the middle of the road.

"If we stand there looking backward at the evidence of all the good things we have done, we will be pushed aside and we don't intend to be pushed aside —into the ditch of reaction on the right or of socialism on the left."

Young Liberals had to be given greater authority in the party; the flow of ideas from the grass-roots had to be increased. He recalled the words of Senator Charles (Chubby) Power who once had warned that it was "only a step from the private car to the upper berth."

"It is not enough to have tested principles and good policies. We have to put them across to the people who decide whether they want them or not."

KASPER NON - SEGREGATED

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Segregationist John Kasper is working in the warehouse of the federal correctional institution at Tallahassee, Fla., and sharing his 50-bunk cell block with several Negroes. This was the report of federal marshal Billy Robinson, who said he saw Kasper Wednesday when he took other Knoxville prisoners to the prison. Kasper is serving a sentence for criminal contempt of court in connection with racial disorders at Clinton, Tenn., in 1956.

TV NOTEBOOK

By JOHN WETTLAUFER

The chances of lightning striking an outdoor TV antenna aren't the most remote possibility in the world. The items required to minimize the danger and damage if lightning should zero in on your antenna are few and inexpensive: A lightning arrester; enough ground wire to reach the ground and a copper ground rod.

To dispel any worries along this line, it is generally agreed that if lightning does come a-calling it matters little whether the set is in use or not, if the antenna and wall plug have not been disconnected.

However, if you are watching your set during an electrical storm, it is prudent and sensible to sit six feet or so distant from the set.

Incidentally, when it comes to investing in repairs, it is prudent and sensible to rely on a concern noted for quality work. CIRCLE TV SERVICE regularly proves that thorough, quality work costs far less than slip-shod, semi-pro tinkering. Try us for service and repairs on TV and radio sets, Hi-Fi's and washing machines. Minor Hockey

Canadiens, Black Hawks and Barons were winners in the peewee hockey league this morning while the fourth game ended in a tie.

The Red Wings and Rangers split their game points by battling to a scoreless deadlock in the first contest of the morning.

Canadiens held onto first place by shading the Browns 2-1. Bob Skinner fired the winning marker with Ken Pringle getting the other, both unassisted. Don Watch scored for the Browns with Joe Adams assisting.

Richard Eves paced the Hawks to a 4-0 shutout over the Bruins. Eves scored twice and added an assist. Billy Hunter and Richard Woodley each scored one goal while Jerry Muldoon had a single assist.

The Barons whipped the Maple Leafs 6-1 with Freddie Robinson and Walt Clare combining to pace the winning attack. Robinson was the big gun with three goals and one assist while Clare scored twice and assisted on another. Fred Armstrong bagged the other goal with Larry Lupinette helping. Gordon Guiry fired the lone Leaf marker with Paul Sharpe assisting.

BREAKS RECORD

LONDON (AP) — A Britannia airliner of El Al, the Israeli airline, broke the Atlantic air record from New York to London Wednesday. It made the crossing non-stop in seven hours, 44 minutes. Its time was 13 minutes faster than a BOAC Britannia that set the previous record Monday.

Bill Lundigan Giving Up Car Selling for Acting

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After four years as a car salesman, William Lundigan is going back to acting.

Of course, Bill is not the ordinary kind of car salesman. He makes the pitch for Chrysler each week on the television show "Climax!" He is also a high powered travelling salesman, hustling 130,000 miles around the country each year to make friends for the company.

He gave up his role as seller for a brief period recently to go back to his old racket. He appeared as a wire service reporter with a star-filled cast in No Time At All, a filmed show for Playhouse 90, Feb. 13.

How did it feel?

"Just great," he said. "I hope now to do more outside jobs. My contract permits it, but I just haven't had time. Even during this show, I did two Climaxes and went to Miami for the auto show."

NIPPED IN BUD

Bill did well as a leading man at Universal and 20th-Fox but was nipped by the frost that struck the film industry after the war. Let out by Fox, he did a picture in Europe and some TV shows. He went to CBS one day to see about a series.

"I didn't know anything about it, but they were looking for someone to do a selling job for Chrysler," he said. "They had considered dozens of actors, and someone suggested me. I wasn't too convinced about it myself.

"But I tried out for it, and the next thing I knew I was invited back to Detroit. I had lunch with all the big men in the company. It seemed a nice, social affair, but they started throwing questions that made me realize what a research job they had done on me. They had found out things I had forgotten about."

Bill passed the examination and was hired. He enjoys his work immensely, has travelled throughout the United States, Canada and Hawaii.

Bill has had his share of bloopers on TV. One of his first assignments was to introduce Shirley McLaine in a ballet number. He gave the title as: The belly dancers at home.

AT THE PARK — Brian Keith is attacked by gangster Jack Lambert while inspecting the body of co Buddy Lewis in this suspense-filled scene from the United Artists expose release, "Chicago Confidential", coming Monday to the Park Theatre. On the same program "Street of Sinners", starring George Montgomery and Geraldine Brooks. Both action-hits are first showings.

CLEAR BORDER AREA

BUDAPEST (AP) — Hungary's Communist government has warned foreign diplomats and Hungarian citizens that they may not go within 15½ miles of the Austrian and Yugoslav borders without special permits. No restrictions were mentioned on the Czechoslovak, Romanian and Russian frontiers.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) — Members of own family or household are the ones with whom to co-operate and get assistance from this day, evening. Show appreciation, put aside all outside endeavors. Tonight, take it easy and be entertaining.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Rise early, run important errands, do simple chores impossible to you during work week. Spread the sunshine of your smile with all public employees, servants, etc. This will work wonders for self as well as for them.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Don't loaf this Saturday. Contact all authorities on whatever requires special attention, artistry, interior decorating, house painting, anything that increases value and appearance of your possessions, or apartment you rent.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — This is one of those special days when simply by smiling your dynamic smile you get all sorts of entrees, take advantage of aspects, have a grand time. Also, see those persons in different social strain than yours.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Contact any who can give you the date secretly that you so need, and the philosophy that will help you to have a more desirable way of life, great peace, prosperity. Be practical, kind, intelligent. Progress.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) It is quite all right to be forceful and full of life today in following your aims and ambitions, provided your comrades understand you. Co - operate! That is the best method of getting results you covet, should have.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A perfect day to contact that influential personage who ordinarily has you feeling a bit frightened of him or her. You may very quickly get all the support you need to put your ideas across. Be civic minded.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Get away from regular haunts today. Endeavor to meet fine, new people who can help you considerably, and far into the future. Bring your most staunch and respected ally with you for real success. Advance now.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)—You have a very fine, exact intuition today. See that you follow it quickly. Later, contact all authorities, whether cultural or financial, for suggestions based on own experiences. Then, accomplishment through activity.

If your child is born today . . . The child born today is of the charming group of human beings who has a unique quality all his or her own. But it is your duty to quickly make your progeny understand that the only things truly appreciated and enjoyed are those earned by the sweat of the brow. If you fail in this, you may otherwise raise a parasite, which would be most unfortunate. Splendid horoscope for the actor, model, singer, etc.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Sunday, January 12

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Morning is full of all types of situations that are of immediate concern, but which can be handled very intelligently and diplomatically. Tonight fine for cementing associations with all powerful partners.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Are you certain that you have opened your mind to the understanding of the Higher Truths, or are you remaining in a rut because you are not well informed? Consider this quickly. P.M. make a plan for the years ahead.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) This morning you would like to take off to some expensive entertainment, untried activity, but fortunately then decide to stick to tried and true. P.M. excellent for expanding and increasing harmonious living. Be joyful.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) A.M. is a bit tense, since a family tie has a personal worry and is not up to par. Don't complain, try to help by being bright and happy. P.M. is then wonderful for having guests in, resting or just enjoying own fireside.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Morning could be somewhat dangerous if you travel at too great a speed, whether on foot or in a moving vehicle. Also, guard your words or there might be an entrangement with one you love. Tonight, have fun with comrades.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)— You are thinking in radically opposite directions today, letting the fine standards under which you grew up be subordinated by your new concepts of living. Extract best from the old, then make better plan for living.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)— A situation at the house could cause you a good deal of anxiety, nervous reaction if you are not well poised, philosophical. Study is the best medicine. P.M. be a social lion, enjoy yourself, learn and be happy.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A private anxiety does not appear to be assuaged or eradicated by turning to study or other serious activity. However, by maintaining a cheerful attitude, you win out easily tonight, when romance is the forte.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A feeling of depression may come over you this a.m. when you realize that the coffers are quite empty and you cannot enjoy yourself as you wish. Dwell on the real riches: Faith Hope and God. P.M. have a wonderful evening

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) This A.M. your plans seem not to work out at all since you have to adhere to some established rule, or are lacking in strength or time. But keep calm. P.M. finds things working very nicely, and you advance by leaps and bounds.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you take this morning to get a great deal of work done, you will miss out on one of the finest religious talks of your lifetime, take away from your future success. Go to your church, then widen your scope far.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) This is one of those days when personalities clash, finances do not meet exigencies, etc. Think about the most important things in your life, and all is well. Tonight, be loving and very kind to your sweetheart.

If your child is born today — The child born today is one of these youngsters who has an inflated ego during adolescence. So it is your great duty to teach early the spiritual, ethical values that will make your truly unusual youngster a very fine, talented individual who will do great work. And the greatest aptitudes are in professions where others can be helped, such as psychiatry, medicine, the ministry and the like.

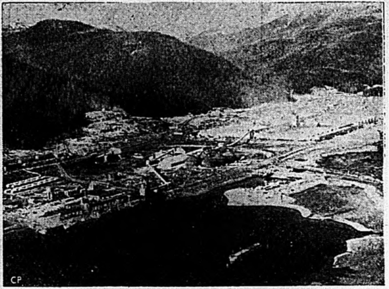
Hopes for the Future



The British Columbia boom town of Kitimat, born five years ago by a huge aluminum development, has run into a setback with the layoff of 1,700 construction workers. But residents of the town still believe it will develop into a great port city with a wide variety of industries and a population second only to that of Vancouver. Most hoped-for project is a pipeline from the Peace River oilfields of northeastern B.C. that would make Kitimat the centre of a petro-chemical industry. This aerial view shows the Kitimat aluminum development. (CP Photo).

Kitimat Residents Looking With Increasing Urgency For Diversified Industry

By MARTIN TAYLOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KITIMAT, B.C. (CP) — A hardy band of pioneers set up homesteads in this picturesque valley 450 miles north of Vancouver more than half a century ago. They based hopes for a great metropolis on the Grand Trunk Railroad, but in the end it went instead to Prince Rupert.

Kitimat residents of today believe they will see the faith of the pioneers justified in a great port city with a wide variety of industries, and a population second only to that of Vancouver.

In the five years since the birth of the new town, Kitimat has seen progress and prosperity seldom displayed by an infant community on the continent. But the danger of reliance on its single industry — aluminum —was demonstrated by the recent layoff of 1,700 construction workers, because of a fall in the rate of expansion of the aluminum market.

BIG PROSPECTS

Now the 14,000 people of this model municipality — with 4,000 neat homes, seven churches, 3,500 automobiles and scores of paved, winding streets—are looking with increasing urgency for a future of diversified industry

They speak of such projects as a pipeline from the Peace River oilfields of northeastern B.C., a road from the asbestos mine at Cassiar, 200 miles north, and proposals for a pulp mill here

The Cassiar road would open up a vast area. By the strip mining of a mountain top the Cassiar Asbestos Company is taking out 20,000 tons of asbestos a year. At present the only outlet is by truck over the Alaska Highway to Whitehorse, Y.T., whence it is shipped by train to Skagway, Alaska.

A road from Cassiar would make it possible to ship asbestos ore from Kitimat to the eastern United States on the return voyage of vesesls which bing aluminum ore here from Jamaica. The terminus of the new road is still undecided.

The pipeline however is the big attraction. It could make Kitimat the centre for a petro-chemical industry that could supply a vast expanding area of the Pacific Northwest

Such an industry would find a ready-made market for one of its products, petroleum coke, in the Alcan operation, Kitimat's only present industry

The pulp project seems nearest to realization. Licence to cut a huge area of adjoining overmature timber has been granted to a specially - formed Kitimat Pulp and Paper Company.

This company, a joint enterprise of Aluminum Company of Canada and the Powell River Company, may start operations in the first half of 1960. The start has been delayed by a recession in the market for pulp products.

All these proposals are based to a large extent on the same natural advantage that brought the pioneers here in 1900—Kitimat's perfect harbor site at the head of the Douglas Channel.

An advantage which the pioneers could not have foreseen is the vast potential of the power project at Kemano, 50 miles south, which supplies the great age of vessels which bring aluminum smelter and provides lighting and heating for the town.

The powerhouse is an engineering wonder. It was built in the heart of a mountain. The generators are in a cathedral - sized vault 1,400 feet underground, receiving water by a 10-mile tunnel from Tahtsa Lake.

Kitimat has attractions matched by few industrial communities in Canada. It has moose, wildfowl and fine salmon fishing within its boundaries. It has no traffic lights, no parking meters, no smog problem and a system by which no child need cross a main road on the way to school.

Five years ago, when the community was little more than a blueprint, planning director C. S. Stein wrote:

"The workers must find Kitimat more than temporarily acceptable. They must be enthusiastic about it as a particularly fine place in which to live and bring up their families."

Most of the people who live here say Kitimat already is just that. Now they hope to see it fulfil the forecast of the pioneers who left 20 years ago, after waiting in vain, and whose derelict farmhouses remain to see the dream come true.

Seaway Cost Down 7 Million From Estimates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress was told Thursday that the cost of building the United States portion of the St. Lawrence seaway will be about $7,000,000 less than what was estimated last year.

The newest estimate came from the St. Lawrence Seaway Corp., in the agency's annual audit report to Congress.

The previous estimate, the corporation said, was about $133,000,000. Now, because of a reduction in dredging estimates in the Cornwall Island section, the figure is $125,935,000.

The school principal, Mr. W. Rothwell, reported the average daily attendance, in spite of the severe 'flu epidemic that affected the attendance so much, was 501.12. On an enrollment of 568, this is a high average and has a definite effect on the provincial grants. Mr. Rothwell also reported the clean condition of the school after the holidays, saying that the janitor, Mr. Jacobs, had cleaned the entire building for which the board expressed its appreciation.

The February meeting will be held on February 5th in the library of the senior school.

Mothers Find Imprisoned Sons Well, Healthy

PEIPING (Reuters) — Three overjoyed American mothers Thursday met their imprisoned sons for the first time since the Korean War and found them all well.

Each mother was allowed two hours with her son—as a Chinese Communist official stood by in the prison reception room.

Mrs. Ruth Redmond of Yonkers, N.Y., saw her businessman son, Hugh, 38, in a Shanghai prison where he is serving a life sentence. It was their first meeting since 1946.

The other two mothers—Mrs. Mary Downey of New Britain, Conn., and Newfoundland - born Mrs. Philip Fecteau of Lynn, Mass.—embraced their sons in the reception room of Peiping's Tsao Lan Tze (Grass Basket) Prison.

John Downey, 27, and Richard Fecteau, 30, were taken prisoner when their plane was shot down in 1952. Downey is serving a life term and Fecteau a 20-year sentence for alleged espionage.

All three mothers said their sons appeared healthy and in good spirits but asked for more books.

U.S. Foreign Aid Increase Planned For Coming Year

Funds 'Critically Needed' To Meet Russian Threat

Spend 64 Cents Of Every Dollar For Security

WASHINGTON (CP) — Sixty-four cents out of every dollar in the new U.S. budget will be spent on protection — the military, atomic, foreign aid and other costs related to natinal security.

The rest of the dollar pie is cut up as follows: 22 cents for civil benefits, 11 cents for interest on the national debt and three cents for running the government.

Where will the money come from? Fifty-two cents from the individual income taxpayer, 27 cents from the corporation income tax, 13 cents from excise taxes and eight cents from customs and other receipts.

The spending comes to $427.86 for each man, woman and child in the United States, based on the official Jan. 1 population estimate of 172,800,000.

Won't Be Last In Leader Race Says Henderson

PORTAGE la PRAIRIE, Man. (CP)—Rev. H. Lloyd Henderson, clergyman mayor of this small Prairie city, will try to break into federal politics at the top this week by bidding for the leadership of the Liberal party.

If he lacks anything in his try to snatch the prize from three other announced contenders, it is not self confidence. He said before leaving for Ottawa Saturday he was going to the Liberal convention "as a candidate shooting for the party leadership who won't finish last."

However, he predicted Lester B Pearson, former external affairs minister, will be named leader to succeed Louis St. Laurent.

Mr. Henderson is making his try on a platform of "moral leadership". He said that Liberal policy of not opposing the government in the Commons during the last few months was "not morally a proper attitude to adopt."

$60,000 Fire At Mount Forest

MOUNT FOREST, Ont. (CP)—An estimated $60,000 fire Saturday and early Sunday swept through the Mount Forest elevator in a spectacular blaze that could be seen for miles around.

The blaze, believed to have started in the upper part of the 75 - year - old landmark, gained headway before firemen arrived.

Besides mill equipment was 150 tons of grain, 40 tons of concentrate, 30 tons of prepared feeds, along with a quantity of salt and flour.

Origin of the blaze is unknown.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — Mild weather is forecast for Southern Ontario today and Tuesday. The cold Arctic air which pushed across Northern Ontario Sunday night, has stalled north of Georgian Bay. A storm is expected to bring rain, snow, and some freezing rain to the Atlantic states tonight and Tuesday. The northern edge of the precipitation will lie over the lower Great Lakes area early Tuesday morning. Light snow is forecast for Tuesday in Northern Ontario.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress was urged today to provide $3,940,000,000 in "critically needed" new foreign aid funds to offset Communist Russia's threats to attack, subvert and terrorize free nations.

President Eisenhower, making the request in his budget message, estimated foreign aid spending during the year starting July 1 at $3,868,000,000, up $119,000,000 from the current year's figure. Much of the spending will be from money already appropriated.

The fund, carrying the aid program into its 12th straight year, would pay for military, economic and technical assistance to 50 or more countries.

MILITARY AID INCLUDED

The request includes $1,800,000,000 for military assistance, $865,000,000 in defence support for economic help to countries getting the arms aid, and $1,275,000,000 in other economic and technical assistance including easy - payment development loans.

Eisenhower also gave notice he might ask for an additional $200,000,000 to begin furnishing intermediate range missiles to European allies who agree to base them on their territory.

Only Turkey, Britain and France among the 14 Atlantic pact allies have specifically indicated they want such missiles.

FOUR ADDITIONAL STEPS

Eisenhower proposed that Congress authorize these four additional steps to back up the aid program:

1. Extend the Reciprocal Trade Act, which expires June 30, for another five years and permit more tariff cutting agreements with friendly countries.
2. Approve U.S. membership in the proposed International Trade Organization which will seek to set up a code of fair commercial conduct.
3. Repeal a law which he said "virtually prohibits normal competitive bidding" by foreign countries on defence contracts.
4. Add $2,000,000,000 more to the capital of the government's export-import bank to back up "its steadily increasing role" in financing economic development abroad.

"If Western help is unavailable or inadequate, these countries may become dependent upon the Communist bloc," he said.

POLITICAL EYES ACROSS CANADA TURN TO LIBERALS

House Will Adjourn Wednesday Morning

OTTAWA (CP)—Political eyes in the capital will look this week to Ottawa's Coliseum rather than the Commons.

The Coliseum will be the site Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of the Liberal leadership convention. The Commons will be the site of debate on government legislation which has already received an initial airing.

Scheduled for Commons discussion today and Tuesday are the government's proposals for a $30,000,000 loan to New Brunswick for the Beechwood power development on the St. John River; for federal financial assistance to the Atlantic provinces for power development from coal - burning steam plants; for price supports on farm products.

The Commons will adjourn at 6 p.m. Wednesday until 11 a.m. Friday so that Liberal members, all delegates to the leadership convention, may attend nomination proceedings and election of their new leader to succeed Rt. Hon. Louis S. St. Laurent.

POWER FAILURE

The Commons occupied itself Saturday with discussion of fisheries department estimates. The debate was interrupted for 65 minutes in mid-afternoon by a power failure in the centre block of the Parliament Buildings which left the Commons chamber in darkness.

The Commons relies on artificial light because, years ago, canvas was placed over its high windows to prevent the sun glaring in members' eyes.

Two main points emerged from the debate: Opposition—by the government as well as the other political groups—to any power development on British Columbia's Fraser River which would injure the salmon fishery; and uneasiness that the United States may impose quotas and higher tariffs on Canadian fish imports.

Fisheries Minister J. Angus MacLean ruled out any possibility of the Progressive Conservative administration supporting any early large-scale power developments on the Fraser.

Mr. MacLean said it is his intention to safeguard in every way the interests of the Fraser River salmon industry.

"As time goes on other sources of power may be developed which will remove this threat to the fisheries completely. We hope that this will be the case."

REPLIES TO CRITICISM

Other developments in the Commons Saturday:

1. Prime Minister Diefenbaker said a start on the South Saskatchewan River power and irrigation project will not be long delayed.
2. Finance Minister Donald Fleming said nine of 11 Commonwealth countries now have accepted invitations to the trade and economic conference proposed by Canada. It likely would be held in September or October.

Auto Workers Ask Profit-Sharing For Selves, Stockholders, Buyers

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union called today for a profit-sharing plan in 1958 wage contracts and postponed demands for a shorter work week.

The union's proposed profit-sharing would begin when a manufacturer's profits topped 10 per cent, before taxes, on net capital. Corporate executives, stockholders, workers and consumers would be included in any sharing.

Under the UAW proposal half the profits above 10 per cent would be retained by the manufacturer for stockholders and executives; one-fourth set aside for hourly-rated workers and salaried employees other than executives, and one-fourth for consumers in the form of rebate on purchases.

It said the division formula is used by corporations in computing executive bonuses.

In postponing demands for a shorter work week, the UAW said it acted "as responsible citizens . . . in the light of the realities of the world situation."

The union proposed an immediate general wage increase, but set no specific amount. It added, however, it should be "based on increased productivity."

The present average hourly wage in the auto industry is about $2.32.

The program was approved by the UAW's international executive board. It will be submitted to the union's special convention which meets in Detroit next week to shape demands to be made on the auto industry in the spring.

The union sidetracked previously-announced goals of a shorter work week coupled with a substantial increase in take-home pay.

It said the new program is unique in that it departs from the usual uniform set of demands advanced by the UAW and served on all companies, regardless of size and profit position.

The HAW statement said "the program emphasizes the need for increased purchasing power and takes into consideration, though not as a collective bargaining demand, the need for an practicality of reduced car prices to consumers in the form of a rebate to be paid out of excess profits."

Ontario Accounts for Most Of Canada's Accident Toll

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario accounted for most of Canada's 28 accidental deaths during the weekend.

A spate of accidents in Ontario brought its toll to 19. Quebec had three fatalities and British Columbia two.

Single deaths were reported by Alberta, Saskatchewan, New Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia reported none.

The fatalities were counted by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. local time Friday to midnight EST Sunday.

Twenty-one were traffic victims, 14 in Ontario. The Ontario list also included three children burned to death, a farmer shot in a hunting accident and a boy who choked to death on a peanut.

The Ontario deaths:

Three of Mrs. Wilfred Turner's five children were burned to death Saturday night at Wallaceburg, 20 miles south of Sarnia. Diane, 4, Albert, 2, and Mary, 3 months, died when their two-storey frame home caught fire. Mrs. Turner helped firemen rescue Lawrence, 3, and Alfred, 7. The father wasn't at home.

Three men were killed Saturday night when their car hit a tree near Palermo, 15 miles east of Hamilton. The victims were Hans Hedegard, 21, of Port Credit, Percy McCombs, 21, and William Banks, 19, both of Lakeview. Two were hurled from the wreckage and the third removed by a passing motorist before the car caught fire.

Five-year-old Donald Spencer died Saturday night while being driven to hospital by his mother, Mrs. William Spencer of Whitby, after he choked on a peanut. They had been at the Lake Scugog home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis DeHart. Mrs. Spencer was caring for the DeHart children while their mother was in hospital.

Bulganin Asks Canada to Be Go-Between in Second Letter

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker is expected to comment early this week on a second letter he has received from Nikolai Bulganin in which the Russian premier urges Canada to take the initiative in getting East and West together to settle international issues.

Bulganin said Moscow would "welcome" efforts by Canada to organize negotiations "as well as the initiative of Canada in drawing together the points of view of the parties on some or other international questions and, in particular, on the problem of disarmament."

The text of the 3,500-word letter, delivered Friday to Mr. Diefenbaker by Soviet Ambassador Dmitri Chuvahin, was released Sunday night by the Russian Embassy. On Friday, the prime minister said in the Commons that the letter would be studied during the weekend and he hoped to comment on it early this week.

Canada has not yet replied to the first Bulganin letter which Mr. Diefenbaker received Dec. 13 as he was leaving for the NATO summit meeting in Paris.

The two letters were quite similar — Mr. Diefenbaker described the first one as "propaganda"—in that they criticized NATO at great length and accused the Atlantic alliance of continuing the cold war and the arms race.

Bulganin pleaded in his second letter for a summit meeting of major East and West powers within the next two or three months, primarily to effect an immediate halt to hydrogen and atomic bomb tests.

The Russian premier discounts the value of a foreign ministers' conference ahead of a summit parley, saying it could be used to prevent an eventual meeting of heads of government by creating "an atmosphere of deadlock through putting forward obviously unacceptable conditions."

Mr. Diefenbaker said in the Commons last week that it would be inappropriate for Canada to suggest a summit conference until she consulted with her Western Allies. Besides, he said, the West should first seek further clarification of Soviet views through normal diplomatic channels. Canada was doing this.

External Affairs Minister Sidney Smith said recently in Calgary that the free world should find out if Russia is serious in some of her propositions. He said Canada intends to prod her NATO partners to see "if there is some way, some place, some how we can sit down with the U.S.S.R. and see if they are not willing to discuss some reasonable proposal."

Bulganin's latest letter to Mr. Diefenbaker, like the first one, included some veiled threats in connection with the proposed stockpiling of American nuclear weapons in some NATO countries.

"It is not by accident," Bulganin said, "that these (NATO) decisions caused a great uneasiness among the people in the NATO countries which, in case of military conflict, will become an area of annihilating atomic war.

"You, of course, know quite well, Mr. Prime Minister, what an explosion of even a single hydrogen bomb over a densely-populated area would mean."

CALGARY MAYOR MAY TRADE HAT FOR BOW TIE

Mackay Likely to Support Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — Mayor Don Mackay of Calgary says he may withdraw from the Liberal leadership race and support Lester B. Pearson.

He said on his arrival Sunday night that he would make his final decision in a day or two—after he has an opportunity to discuss the situation with his colleagues.

"There is a great deal of support for Mr. Pearson out West," he said in an interview. "If I reach a final decision to stay in the race, then I will stay with it right to the end. But if I decide to withdraw now, I will support Mr. Pearson."

The 43-year-old mayor, twice defeated in his bid for a federal seat in Calgary, said his main reason for trying for the leadership is to get his views across that the Liberal party needs a basic reconstruction and a new approach.

"The party has lost ground in the last 25 years. It is being run from the top down instead of the bottom up. We've lost confidence of the various ranks of Canadians and our main job is to get that confidence back."

NOT AFRAID

Earlier, in an interview in Calgary, he said his training in business and public life fitted him for the job and "I am in no way afraid of the responsibility that it entails."

Much of his politics had been concentrated in civic affairs. He was a Calgary alderman for four years before being elected mayor in 1950.

"My whole training in business and political life is organization, and that's what the Liberals need more than anything else. A training of that type prepares a person for executive leadership.

"It's a case of getting the right man on the right job rather than having one key figure."

Mayor Mackay, a native of Southern Alberta and a former radio sports announcer, also suggested it is time the Liberal party began to look to an expanding Western Canada for a leader.

NEED TO LOOK WEST

The Liberals could experience a "healthy rejuvenation" if the party started to look west.

"The Liberals have been forced into a short era of bi-partisan government," he observed. "They can't turn down legislation they themselves created."

He accused the Progressive Conservative government of being concerned while in opposition with destroying public confidence in the Liberals rather than organizing an alternative program.

Active in the Mormon Church, Mayor Mackay is well known for his work with young people. He claims he has a large following among young Liberals. A popular mayor for Calgary voters, he has been turned back decisively by the same supporters in federal elections.

Ready To Meet Bulganin After Preparations

Pre-Conference Talks Must Give Cause to Hope

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has held open the door to an East-West summit conference with word to Russia's Premier Bulganin that "I am ready to meet" on two conditions.

Eisenhower's reply to Bulganin also urged Soviet agreement at this "decisive moment in history" to a far-ranging peace program that would end nuclear weapons' manufacture and testing, curtail production of space-age missiles and dedicate outer space" to the peaceful uses of mankind."

Any top-level meeting, the president told the premier, must be preceded by an airing of issues in negotiations among diplomats and foreign ministers. Furthermore, he said, these negotiations must show "good hope of advancing the cause of peace and justice in the world" by agreements at the summit. He thus rejected Bulganin's call last week for a meeting in three months.

DIPLOMATIC ACTIVITY

Bulganin's reaction to the president's terms could be decisively negative, but diplomats here believe that an active period of East-West diplomacy may be opening up. They hold this view even though basic issues between Russia and the West continue deadlocked and much now being said on both sides gives an appearance of a gigantic propaganda battle.

Eisenhower's 4,000-word personal letter replied to one Bulganin sent him Dec. 10, but also clearly covered the essence of a second Bulganin note last week. The White House released the text Sunday shortly after it was delivered to the Soviet foreign office in Moscow.

It showed no essentially new propositions in American foreign policies but it succeeded in stating these policies positively rather than negatively at many points. It obviously was written for the eyes of the world as well as Bulganin, and state department officials hoped it would overcome recent gains in Soviet propaganda.

Eisenhower's tone was cordial throughout, but at times he struck hard at Soviet behavior as well as Soviet proposals for settling outstanding cold war issues. He rejected or discounted about eight proposals Bulganin had put forward, including those for an East-West non-aggression pact and a German-Polish-Czech zone free of nuclear weapons.

He accused Russia of a "great error" in failing to reunify Germany as agreed at the Geneva summit conference in 1955. He blamed the cold war on the "expansionist policy" of Soviet communism.

He pledged that the United States will never engage in aggression and pointedly expressed hope that "the Soviet Union will feel a similar aversion to any kind of aggression."

LONDON (CP) — Britain gave an official welcome today to President Eisenhower's reply to Russia's proposal for East-West summit talks, but the American leader got a cool reception from most British newspapers.

Western European papers generally express relief that Eisenhower's reply keeps alive the prospect of a summit conference, but the feeling is expressed in some quarters that he may have defined too carefully the conditions under which he would attend such a meeting.

A spokesman at the foreign office here said Britain "warmly welcomes" the United States message which "contains a number of constructive proposals which if accepted could move us forward on the road to peace."

MUCH THE SAME

Britain's reply to the proposals, contained in letters from Premier Bulganin, will be sent to Moscow within the next few days, an authoritative source said.

Asked whether the British reply would follow the same lines as Eisenhower's, the spokesman said: "I do not think it will be widely divergent."

British papers generally are dubious of the value of Eisenhower's reply, but on the continent there has been a widespread expression that an "if" from Eisenhower is better than a "no" in the latest East-West exchange.

CRITICIZES DULLES

The Labor party's Daily Herald asserts that State Secretary Dulles, "with his eternal 'no, no, no,' is becoming as great a menace to peace as was Mr. Molotov in the first years after the war."

The Manchester Guardian, Liberal, says: "Mr. Dulles seems to have won. The reply by President Eisenhower . . . leaves little hope that there can soon be fruitful negotiations at the summit."

Dakota Rushes Nearly-Drowned Child From Lakehead to Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Catherine McGuire, 3, who arrived here Sunday night aboard an RCAF mercy flight from Fort William, was examined by doctors early today to determine whether she is to undergo brain surgery.

Officials at the Montreal Neurological Institute said it may not be known until Tuesday whether an operation will be performed. Further medical examinations, including x-rays, are to be made later today.

But one official said: "I doubt whether an operation will be necessary."

The little Schreiber, Ont., girl is suffering from anoxia, a deterioration of brain cells due to lack of sufficient oxygen. The condition resulted when she almost drowned in a bath tub a week ago.

She was reported in "fair" condition today.

Early Sunday, Dr. James M. Cornell of Schreiber drove the child 132 miles to the Fort William airport from Terrace Bay hospital, nine miles east of Schreiber. There they were met by an RCAF Dakota summoned from Winnipeg. The doctor, a nurse and Cathy's mother, Mrs. D'Arcy McGuire, also were flown to Montreal.

The child was having a bath when the accident occurred. Dr. Cornell and a life saving crew, using a resuscitator, worked for almost 1½ hours before they were able to revive her.

Fire Destroys St. Paul Street Home, Contents

The second serious house fire in less than a week occurred in Belleville Saturday night, caused by an overheated stove, completely gutting the small frame residence of Cecil "Buck" Styles, at 15 St. Paul Street.

Two occupants of the house, Mr. Styles and Mrs. Betty Matthews, had to flee from the house and were taken by police cruiser to hospital for treatment of slight burns. They were released following treatment.

Mrs. Matthews also suffered a cut arm when she smashed an upstairs window and made good her escape over the roof of the adjoining kitchen. All household furnishings in the Styles home were lost.

The fire is said to have started in the living room and cut off access to the phone. Mr. Styles ran to the next door neighbor's to turn in the alarm but this 'phone was out of order as result of the fire in the Styles home and the alarm was turned in from across the street.

"It wasn't five minutes after the alarm was turned in that the flames were going out through the roof," stated Mr. Jos. O'Connor, next door neighbor.

The fire damaged the O'Connor garage and also set fire to the house, but firemen doused the flames and prevented further spread of the fire.

"Firemen did a good job in saving our house," Mr. O'Connor said. Mr. O'Connor saved his car before his garage was enveloped by the flames.

Loyalist Branch To Hear Quinte History Talk

The Bay of Quinte branch of the United Empire Loyalists will meet in Shire Hall, Belleville, on Wednesday night to hear an address by A. J. H. Richardson, chief of national historic sites, Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources, Ottawa. His topic will be "The Quinte Country — A Canadian Frontier in Three Centuries."

Mr. Richardson is a native of Lennoxville, Que., having been born there in 1916. He graduated from Bishop's College there with honors in history and the degree of Bachelor of Arts. On the staff of the Public Archives of Canada, map division, from 1936 to 1942, Mr. Richardson enlisted in the Royal Canadian Navy as a lieutenant and served until 1946, when he returned to the archives as a civilian and became chief of the map division.

In 1954 he was named to his present position. Mr. Richardson has made a study of early Canadian maps, architecture and business.

In Belleville on Wednesday night he will tell about the Sulpician Mission at "Kente" during the late 1660s and 1670s; the pioneer settlements in the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward Lennox and Addington in the late 18th century and the important pioneer industries of Ontario in Hastings County from the 1820s to the 1850s — the square-timber industry of the Trent the Marmora iron works and the Belleville potteries.

Mr. Richardson will try to give a brief word picture of the physical appearance of these small settlements and industries and of the way of life to show as vividly as possible the difference in scale to the present.

The Quinte district was the most thickly populated centre of the Loyalist movement into Ontario after the Revolutionary War.

Police, Jeweller Try to Figure Out Transaction

City police and a local jeweller are today scratching their heads trying to figure out a transaction which Saturday cost the jeweller a new wristwatch without any money in the till to pay for it.

It happened this way.

About Saturday noon a woman called the jeweller on the telephone asking if an allowance was given for old watches on the purchase of a new watch. The woman was informed this was the case.

About an hour later a man came into the store saying that he was the husband of the woman who had called earlier on the phone.

He picked out a new watch, proffered an old one, had deferred payment papers made up and signed, and then left.

Then later in the afternoon a woman entered the store stating she was the person who had called earlier about a trade-in.

"But your husband was in earlier and purchased a watch," the jeweller said.

"Not my husband," the woman replied. "He isn't even in this country."

Steals Auto, Then Gets Gas Without Paying

A car thief who stole a car from the J.B. Boyce used car lot, then obtained gasoline from a Belleville district service station and drove away without paying for it, was reported today by police.

Provincial police had the first line on the car which later proved to be stolen. The car stopped at the district service station Sunday evening, the driver ordering gasoline and then driving away without paying.

The attendant noted the licence number and it turned out to be the same as that on a car which this morning was reported stolen some time over the weekend from Boyce's.

Judge Questions Authority of School Guards

WINDSOR (CP) — Mr. Justice G A. Gale of the Ontario Supreme Court has questioned the authority of school guards in the control of traffic.

In a suit for damages by Archibald Kerr Findlay, 74, struck by a car driven by John Bremner in June, 1955, while acting as a school traffic guard, Mr. Justice Gale said:

"I have heard no evidence which gave him (Findlay) the right to stop traffic. It may exist but I did not hear it proved."

Mr. Justice Gale said Saturday it did not have a great deal to do with the case but "anyone might get out with a stop sign and hold up traffic and expect motorists to pay some attention."

When the jury could not agree on the division of responsibility between plaintiff and dependant, Mr. Justice Gale awarded half the amount asked, or $3,797 to Mr. Findlay.

Mr. Holden was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Holden. His wife, Bertha, died in March 1956.

Merry-Go-Round Car Hits Tree And Gas Pump

A Cobourg man's auto, which acted like a carnival wheel after being in collision with another vehicle, made two complete circuits of a corner gasoline station at Stirling Saturday and knocked over a tree, a gasoline pump and a fence before coming to rest.

No one was injured but damage to the vehicles and to other property was extensive.

Provincial Police Constable James McBride, who investigated the incident, aid that Carl Carlton of Cobourg was northbound on No. 33 highway when at the intersection with the Campbellford Road his vehicle was in collision with a westbound car driven by Clarence Finch of Campbellford.

The force of the impact swung the Carlton auto to the left. It knocked over a tree, cut across the corner Supertest service station lot, back onto the highway and into the ditch, then back onto the Campbellford road and made a second circuit of the gasoline station knocking over a gasoline pump. The car then crossed No. 33 highway the second time and ended up against a fence on the east side of the highway.

'Daily Worker' Dies Quietly

NEW YORK (AP)—The Daily Worker, main voice of communism in the United States, died with today's edition.

Publication was suspended on its 34th birthday due to lack of financial support. Its weekend edition, called The Worker, will continue—at least until next Sunday.

Today's Daily Worker carries two banner headlines: "We'll be back! Fighting for peace, democracy and socialism."

The paper's demise came a few days after John Gates, its editor-in-chief, resigned his post and also quit the party.

Pearson Makes New Proposal In N.Y. Address

NEW YORK (CP)—L. B. Pearson, winner of the 1957 Nobel Peace Prize, has proposed that NATO work out a system of diplomatic negotiations with Russia to try to resolve world problems. affairs minister said Saturday night at the annual dinner and forum of the American Nobel Anniversary Committee that this work "in the valley" should be done before considering a summit meeting

"I would suggest that the council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization should agree on a channel through which negotiations with the U.S.S.R. might be proposed; on the subjects that might be suggested and the priorities and on the governments or two or three (Western) governments that might conduc these discussions while keeping the full council continuously informed of their progress."

SERIOUS DISCUSSIONS

He added:

"What I am thinking of is serious and through discussions, through normal diplomatic channels in Moscow, or Washington or London, where officials instructed and empowered by their governments can, one by one, stage by stage identify and perhaps make some progress in solving the problems that create the arms that could destroy us all."

He found it "difficult" to understand the value of a summit meeting "in secret between President Eisenhower, Mr. Khrushchev and 2,000 reporters."

His proposal, which he said calls for a "new initiative for negotiation," should be "without any of those qualifying conditions requiring proof of good faith before talks can begin."

"The good or bad faith will soon become apparent as talks go on. And our defensive strength—this is a basic assumption—will be maintained while we negotiate. What then is there to lose?"

South Africa Treason Drama In Second Act

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — The curtain rose today on what has been described as the second act of the South African treason inquiry drama.

But it continues with a greatly reduced "cast," for only 95 of the original 156 suspects will be present.

The other 61 were told earlier by the attorney-general that charges would not be made against them at the hearing, which resumes after a four-month adjournment.

The 95 remaining suspects, who include Europeans, Indians and Africans—men and women from all classes of occupatios — now have been facing allegations of treason for over a year.

GETS ATTENTION

World attention has continued focussed on the inquiry—not only in comment, but in the fund started to give financial aid to the defendants. All are on bail, but daily attendance at the hearings has deprived many families of their breadwinners.

The basis of the treason charge was incitement and "preparation to overthrow the existing state by revolutionary methods involving violence and establishment of a so-called people's democracy on the basis of eastern European Communist satellite states and China."

The defence, in answer, has submitted that the proceedings have been instituted in an attempt to silence and outlaw the ideas of alleged suspects. One of the defence lawyers called it a "political piot similar to the period of inquisition and Reichstag fire trial" during Hitler's regime in Germany.

Phillips Threatened

TORONTO (CP)—Police said today a man once suspected in a recent Toronto murder wrote a letter to Mayor Nathan Phillips some time ago which said: "I've been hired to kill you."

The name of the man was not revealed. The letter accused the mayor of allowing too many immigrants into Canada.

Police said the man was committed to hospital. They said the mayor was inclined to treat the letter as a joke.

Ted Steadman Resigns Post As Arena Head

TRENTON — A change in mangership of the Trenton Memorial Gardens took place over the weekend after the resignation of Ted Steadman, who has been handling the post for the past few months.

Cliff Baker, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, declined to make a statement concerning the change saying only "there has been a change in mangership."

Capt. W. M. Bowen, well-known in Trenton, has been appointed as acting manager until the post is filled on a permanent basis. With him is Charlie Drake, known widely for his sports activities and at present manager of the Trenton junior hockey team.

Although many rumors have been flying around during the weekend as to the reason for Mr. Steadman's resignation, no official explanation has been released to the press.

Rockets Seek To Upset Leaders

TRENTON — The Rockets will be out tonight seeking to give the league leading F.I.S. their first whipping of the season. The Rockets are in second place and three points behind the officers. A win tonight would also put them in position to take over top spot.

They will meet in the second game at the Community Gardens and will follow a contest between the Combines and Headquarters. The Comets will meet the 6 R.D. team in the final contest of the evening.

The Falcons and the Sparks will be idle until Thursday night.

The F.I.S. continue to lead the league with 20 points followed by Rockets, 17; Falcons, 15; Comets, 14; 6 R.D., 10; Headquarters, 6; Sparks, 2; and Combines who have yet to win a game.

Firemen Extinguish Three Minor Fires

TRENTON — One fire on Saturday and two on Sunday brought firemen out for the first time since January 5, but none of them was serious and they caused little damage, thanks to quick work of the local firefighters.

On Saturday at 10.35 a.m., firemen put out a grass fire behind the Canadian Pacific Railway station with little trouble. Grass doesn't burn too well during January.

The first call on Sunday came from the home of E. B. Geburt, 25 Kerr Crescent, where it is believed the woodwork of the house was set on fire by a blow torch being used to thaw out frozen pipes. The call came in at 1.20 p.m.

Fifteen minutes later the second alarm was sent in from the home of F/Sgt. R. C. Cowdrey, on Front Street, where trouble with an oil furnace was threatening the house.

MUST LEAVE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Houseboat occupants here have lost their fight against eviction. Supreme Court ruled that city council may evict them without notice or compensation.

Fishing Is Poor, Catches Better Across Bay

TRENTON — Reports that the fish are biting better on the other side of the bay than on the Trenton side followed the first full week of ice fishing.

Between 15 and 20 fishing shanties have been hauled out on the ice to cover the 12 - inch fishing holes but catches have been said very poor with only a few fish biting at the minnow-baited hooks.

R. W. Lawson, employee of the Canadian Pacific Express in Trenton, told the press the number of fishing shanties at this time last year was close to the 70 mark. He blamed the late freeze-over of the bay for this. He said December is the best month for fishing with February and March also good.

He also said he has heard reports of some fairly good catches out near the red buoy "on the bar."

Fish usually caught through the ice are pickerel, pike and perch.

Scrap Metal Prices Lowest In Ten Years

TRENTON — Only once in the past ten years has the price of scrap metal been as low as it is this year, Morty Horowitz of the Reliable Iron and Metal Company of Trenton told this paper over the weekend.

"Prices were down like this in 1954," said Mr. Horowitz, "but they came back during the spring of the same year, and they will again this year, there is no doubt of that."

"The reason for it," he continued, "is chiefly because the demand is way down. Our best customer is the car and the steel industry and this year with their cutbacks in work, they just aren't ordering scrap and when this happens the price of scrap has to go down. We have always maintained:—how goes the steel industry, so goes the rest of Canada."

"Price for scrap steel ranges from $15 to $20 per net ton, down about 40 per cent from other years. Brass, copper and radiators bring from $8 to $15 per net ton and are also down about 40 per cent. Prices for old car batteries have dropped by 50 per cent. Tins and other metals are all down in various amounts."

"These prices are all approximate and of course according to the grade of the metal," he added, "but they give the general picture."

The Reliable Iron and Metal Company is a father and son partnership between Percy Horowitz and his son Morty. Mr. Horowitz started in the scrap business in Toronto about 25 years ago and his son joined with him about five years ago. They have been in Trenton for the past two years but still have their customers in Toronto as well as many new ones here.

At their Trenton yard they employ an average of eight men to operate their trucks, shears loaders and paper balers. They now handle scrap paper, newsprint and cardboard only, where a year ago they had not. This is because there is now a good demand at the mills for it.

During the year they ship out hundreds of tons of metal of all kinds. Everything from tin cans to high grade steel.

Flying Sailors Of Bonaventure Lose to F.I.S.

TRENTON — Fifteen members of the 881st Squadron, serving in the Royal Canadian Navy aboard the aircraft carrier Bonaventure, Halifax, N.S., mixed training and sport on Sunday when they met the local F.I.S. in an exhibition hockey game.

The "flying sailors" from the east coast suffered a severe defeat, 13-4, at the hands of the Trenton station's officers. The Bonaventure team has played only three games this winter. The local boys have a record of winning 11 games and losing only one during the entire season.

The visitors started the scoring at the 3.01 mark of the first period but failed to connect again until the third when they slammed in three more.

F.O. Arthur scored two of the goals for the Bonaventures with his team-mate, F.O. Lavigne, getting three assists. F.O Weber and F.O. Zbitnew both got singles.

F.O. Pelletier was the big gun for the F.I.S. getting four goals and, two assists. F.O. Henderson also scored four, getting one assist. Doubles were slammed in by F.O. McNaughton and F.O. Swanston. Getting a single for the F.I.S. was F.O. Giles.

Referees were S.L. Lemieux and Sgt. Crowder.

Almost 200 fans turned out to see the game, which had no penalties.

The Bonaventure team came to Trenton on Saturday on its usual weekend flying practices. They left for Halifax Sunday afternoon.

Leaves Hospital After 37 Days

TRENTON — Miss Audrey Wessel of Carrying Place, former waitress at the Theatre Bar returned home Saturday after spending the past 37 days in the Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Miss Wessel suffered a fractured pelvis and multiple lacerations and bruises last December 5 when she was hit by a car near her home in Carrying Place. She had just stepped from the bus when the accident happened.

She was able to leave the hospital Saturday on crutches but finds it difficult to get around as yet. She was taken home from the hospital by her mother and brother-in-law, but it is not expected she will be allowed to move about to any great extent.

While in the hospital she was under the care of Dr. W. L. Griffiths.

Fourth Dog Hit

TRENTON — If it keeps up the dogs in Trenton may begin to feel motorists are out to get them.

The fourth dog in less than two weeks was reported hit after it had run out onto the street in front of a moving vehicle.

The incident took place on Edward Street and the dog was reported last seen "high - tailing it" for home. The motorist into the police, was Arthur Raymond of 96 North Murray St., volved, who reported the mishap Trenton.

Of the four pooches hit, only one has stayed around long enough afterwards to show his injuries. The other three left the scene in a hurry and it is not known if they were seriously or fatally injured.

As one local dog owner said yesterday, "A dog that 'nose' better will 'paws' before he enters the street."

Fire Destroys Billiard Hall

ORLEANS, Ont. (CP)—A combined restaurant and billiard hall was destroyed early Sunday in a $41,000 fire in this community five miles east of Ottawa.

The blaze, attributed to defective wiring, began in the restaurant-billard hall owned by Palma Belanger. It damaged the neighboring home of Armand Begin to the extent of $5,000 and caused $1,000 damage to the nearby Orleans Hotel.

The Orleans volunteer fire brigade, called in by Mrs. Begin, fought the fire with water drawn from an abandoned quarry 1,500 feet away.

Truman Hits President Hard

NEW YORK (AP) — Former president Truman said Sunday President Eisenhower was a great military commander because "he had someone to tell him what to do."

Truman also told reporters "I do not think Eisenhower is a good policy maker nor is he a good budget maker."

In an interview, Truman said the president "was a great military commander in Europe and in NATO, when he had someone to tell him what to do."

Truman said a good policy-maker "is one who knows where he is going and carries out his program; Eisenhower doesn't carry out the policies that he proposes."

Truman said Eisenhower should be able to curtail rivalry among the defence services.

"I didn't have any trouble, as they understood who was commander in chief."

Plan to Blast Loose Rock at Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Officials said today that they plan to blast away overhanging rock on the rim of the Niagara River gorge near the site of a new 40,000-ton rockslide.

The slide Friday night carried away part of a footpath and guard rail on the American side of the gorge about a quarter-mile south of the whirlpool and two miles north of the falls.

Sunday a second, but smaller, chunk of rock fell from the gorge top. Arthur Williams, executuve secretary of the Niagara Frontier State Parks Commission, called it "very small, comparatively speaking," but added that "a couple of cracks in the ground indicate other falls could occur at any time."

He said he will call in geologists to recommend ways of trimming loose and dangerous rock.

WAS ROPED OFF

The area, located in a deserted part of the Whirlpool State Park, has been roped off since the slide was discovered Saturday. Hundreds of sightseers turned up at the site Sunday.

Seaway to Earn Annual Costs In 2½ Months

WASHINGTOA (AP)—The St. Lawrence seaway is expected to earn $1,500,000 in tolls for the United States in the first 2½ months of operation, President Eisenhower said today in his budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

He also estimated that the operating costs of the U.S. part of the international waterway will be about $1,500,000 a year, or $125,000 a month.

The seaway, now under construction, is scheduled to be opened to its maximum 27-foot depth in April, 1959.

Prior to that, however, ships drawing no more than 14 feet of water will be permitted to use partial seaway facilities on a toll-free basis beginning on or about July 1 and continuing through late fall when the lakes freeze.

LOWER THAN EXPECTED

The new estimate of annual U.S. operating costs of $1,500,000 is roughly $500,000 under the last such estimate. This, a spokesman for the St. Lawrence Seaway Corporation said, will have the effect of permitting lower U.S. tolls on shipping.

The question of how much the tolls will be has yet to be resolved between the U.S. and Canada.

TWO VERSIONS OF HISTORY

We have just raised our nose out of the wastebasket and come up with "Forty Years of the Great October Socialist Revolution" by N. S. Khrushchev.

In our nose? No, no nose; and let's not be facetious. Here we were, only yesterday, throwing into the wastebasket, without even reading it, the raw material for an editorial. Raw material for editorials is not that plentiful that we can afford to waste it in this manner. If Sir Beverley Baxter, the Canadian-born member of the British House of Commons, can use this pamphlet as the subject for an article in Maclean's Magazine, surely it is worthy of consideration in these columns.

Looks to be rough reading, though. Let us see what Baxter says about it. "Khrushchev's speech could not have been more intentionally false to history if he had been addressing an audience of idiot children just for the fun of it." Hmm. Let us see - - any idiot children reading the editorial page? No? Not much use wading through this pamphlet then. We would like, though, to endorse Sir Beverley's proposition that where there are two versions of history the better one is that which coincides with the known facts. That rules out the report of N. S. Khrushchev to the Jubilee Sessions of the Supreme Soviet of the USSR on Nov. 6, 1957. Let us see how Sir Beverley fares. He suggests that "it might be just as well if we recalled some of the known incidents that created Communist Russia as it exists today." Then he lists seven points.

We quote points 4, 5 and 6: - -

"4—Russia withdrew from the First Great War.

"5—Trotsky, who had run afoul of Lenin, escaped to Mexico where, after a time, he was murdered.

"6—The Kaiser's Germany was finally defeated by the Western allies."

Now does not that suggest that Trotsky ran afoul of Lenin and escaped to Mexico some time between Russia withdrawing from the First Great War and the Kaiser's Germany being defeated by the Western allies?

The facts: Trotsky had his disagreements with Lenin, both before and after the end of the war. But Lenin died on Jan. 24, 1924, and it was not until Nov. 14, 1927, that Trotsky was expelled from the Communist Party. He was exiled to Siberia in 1928, went to Turkey in 1929, to France in 1933, to Norway in 1935 and finally reached Mexico in 1937, 13 years after Lenin's death. He was assassinated there in 1940.

"Forty Years of the Great October Socialist Revolution?" Back into the wastebasket.

"Maclean's?" Back into the overcoat pocket and so home for further perusal - - there's more in it than Baxter.

NEW GARBAGE DUMP

"Now that we have devised a way to shoot stuff into the sun, many of mankind's greatest problems, such as what to do with the garbage, may be solved," says the Hamilton Spectator.

Jesting, of course. And yet - -

One of the big headaches in the coming atomic power age is going to be the disposal of radioactive wastes, isn't it? Already scientists are worried about this problem.

Well, here is a simple solution - - just load these wastes into a rocket and send the rocket far enough out into space to "fall" into the sun. What harm can a few more radioactive atoms do in that big H-bomb? The answer, obviously, is no harm at all.

SIMPLE SOLUTION

Judge Nathan J. Kaufman of Detroit advocates suspending the driving licences of youths who steal automobiles. This, he feels, should help to reduce the incidence of this crime. He believes that teen-agers are more afraid of having their licences revoked than they are of other action by the courts.

The idea that a youth who would dare to steal an automobile would be afraid to drive it without a licence should surely be the height of something or other. Exactly what, we don't know.

Perhaps embezzlers ought to be relieved of their cheque books.

And obviously armed bandits should be refused licences to carry revolvers. That would teach them!

THE SNOW STORM

The snow at twilight floated down
In gentle flakes of fleecy white
And streaked the roofs about the town
With gray; but ere the shades of night
Had fallen, bolder grew the storm
And whiter made all earthly things,
And wrapped in ermine then the form
Of nature, like a snow-bird's wings.

First tinged with gray the world appeared;
But later, when we looked to see,
Old Father Time with snow white beard
We likened to the willow tree.
The snow man that the boys had made
Looked, so declared a little girl,
As though some jeweler by trade
Had made a man of purest pearl.

And when upon the morn we awoke
The storm had passed; but stretched before,
Unstained by city grime and smoke,
A diamond field there by our door—
A drift of dazzling brilliants that
Outsparkled richest gems of kings;
And once again we marveled at
The wonders that a snow storm brings.

Tractor Strike on Farm

By John Gould, writing from Lisbon Falls, Maine, in the Christian Science Monitor

Whenever I go to the big city, I have the chastening feeling that all the hullabaloo and horraw is going on just the same on days I'm not there. It's sort of hard to believe this, now, as I sit here with the morning sunlight streaming in my window, one foot on the wastebasket and the other shoved into the bookcase between Butler's History of Brownville Junction and Nine Orations of Cicero — the companionable Muse perched on my shoulder to tell me how to spell the hard words — for this morning New York seems distant and unreal.

The last time I was in New York I didn't leave the train, but sat in my seat and thought about this. I looked out the window and saw the crowds milling and pushing, reflecting that this unbelievable to-do continued all the whilst I would be up in the woods and alone.

* * *

Of course, while I discharge the daily dues of my up-country career, nobody in New York knows about it, if he cares. This was beautifully demonstrated by the widespread disinterest when I got my tractor stuck in the mud the same day New York subway strike took effect. The result of the strike was confusion, inconvenience, and hardship — and things were in bad shape here, too. The great difference was that all the newspapers devoted front-page space to the subway strike, and the great turmoil of the erst-while patrons, whereas nobody asked me how I felt, and no photographers sloshed up through the ooze to see how I was making out.

* * *

It was a lovely morning here. A thick rime frost had formed in the night, and the rising sun hit it with unerring accuracy and distributed beauty over all. I climbed on the tractor seat, pulling the trailer, and rode pleasantly down behind the barn, up through the hayfield, beyond the orchards, and into the black growth.

I was after some Christmas trees. I like to cut a few and set them by the road in hopes of a sale. I never sell any, much, but this way I can control the giving away. If I leave them up in the woods, people come from great distances to carry them off, and I have no way of knowing who gets them.

So, like all the New Yorkers on this same morning, I went to business, riding along with a good feeling for all, and something of the pre-Christmas spirit dominant. The big tractor wheels crunched on the light snow or the hoar frost along the woodroad, and here and there broke through the thin ice of the wet spots. Shortly I arrived and put the axe to work.

I don't just cut Christmas trees at such a time. I knock a few limbs off pines, and cut out spent Gatchell birches, and tip over defunct specimens of all kinds. There's a lot of cleaning up around a woodlot. I look for beanpoles, and grape arbor material, and maybe hack out a hardwood piece here and there for firewood. I could have cut my Christmas trees in fifteen minutes and gone home, but it wouldn't have been so much fun. The forenoon moved along, and the weather warmed.

* * *

When at last I started for home, the big tractor wheels surged as I released the clutch, gave a deep sigh and settled into the mud. The frost had let go. I got off the seat to see how things stood, and must have felt much like a New Yorker when he got ready to go home and found there was no subway. I considered arbitration and mediation, and pondered the jurisdictional questions. I wondered if I could get a writ of mandamus.

Of course, as I say, I didn't know about the subway strike in New York, any more than those folks knew about me. We experienced this thing separately, without collusion, but we must have both had that same let-down feeling that comes at the other end of the run when your transportation has been annulled.

* * *

I understand the New Yorkers ran for the railroads, and that the alternative failed from over emphasis. I had no alternative, unless you consider myself as such. I dug the shovel from under the Christmas trees, got out a length of chain, and then sat on a stump to think things over. This is a good way to begin, really. You can often do as much good sitting on a stump as you can digging, such as mud. Then I brought some rocks and shoveled a little, and climbed back on the seat to see if the strike was over. It was not.

I then walked home. It was dinnertime, and I was hungry. It's a little over a mile, and it's hard walking on the early winter inch or two of rain-sogged snow. I had my dinner, read the mail, watered the hens, and returned to my problem.

* * *

Now it's a curious thing, but being stuck in the mud is something you can often get out of by going home to dinner. By the time I got back the ooze had settled itself under the wheels, somehow, and when I got on the seat and gently let out the clutch, the tractor came walking out of the mud, trailer and all, as if it had never been stuck. I drove on up to the buildings, and thus ended the adventure.

I itemize the details, because I see no essential difference between my being stuck and the New York subway strike. There were more people involved, but that is purely relative. New York wasn't buttoned up and rendered immobile any more than I was. Yet the subway strike was treated as big news, and nobody knew about me. I merely demand equal time.

Bank Line-up Is a Problem

Chicago Tribune

Friday, being payday, is generally a busy one at the bank; but the Friday before Christmas is far and away the best day to stay away from the teller's window. The trouble is that nobody does.

We must all therefore take our place patiently at the end of one line or another, and the inevitable problem is which. Should we head straight for the shortest line, and perhaps end up behind a fellow who is burdened with problems involving the national debt, foreign exchange, discount rates, and the week's receipts from a penny arcade? Or would it be cleverer to put our faith in one of the longer lines, and trust to luck?

The decision might be simple if it were not for the deception practiced by so many patrons. An innocent looking man may stand in line with empty hands, thus encouraging unsuspecting folk to fall in behind him. Then, when he reaches the window, he will reach into some hidden compartment in his clothing and extract an envelope bulging with assorted transactions. At another line, people may be frightened away by somebody carrying a big brief case to prove he is a man of many affairs. Arriving at the window, he pulls out one cheque to cash and departs quickly.

Some banks have tried to get around this by designating certain windows for patrons with only one or two transactions. But this has not always worked out. One transaction may involve counting $943.87 in change.

The only honest solution is for patrons to show their true colors. If a fellow has a lot of business at the window, he should carry it out in the open, where others can observe it, evaluate it, make mental calculations, and decide accordingly. Then anyone who chooses the wrong line will have only himself to blame.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TOGETHER

An organization grows great and efficient through the interest, enthusiasm and co-operation of all its workers. There would be no more wars if all natins worked together for the good and happiness of each. What a waste of human beings to send them into war, anyway. Over my life's span I can recall a time when there were no great wars and no prospect that there would be wars. There was a healthy interchange of ideas and services. People could work, save, and have dreams that would come true. Today there is little co-operation among nations, and efficient workers are at a premium — if you can find them! The fact still remains, however, that success is founded upon efficient people working together happily, and for a purpose. I recently read of an interview with Herbert Hoover and he was asked how he handled criticism when in office. He said: "Two ways. You use your head and you use your faith." There you have the secret of why this man is so beloved all over the world — and deeply respected. Herbert Hoover has always gotten along peaceably and happily because he has worked with people and has given the best that is in him.

What a great example of peace and good will are the relations between Canada and the United States! Good neighbors, working together for the happiness and prosperity of each. Why should there ever be a war between intelligent nations? Why shouldn't nations always work for the best interests of each? All wars are waste. Mostly are they a waste of human beings. Benjamin Franklin once said, "There never was a good war nor a bad peace". If the entire world were always at peace, what a world this would be in which to live!

Farmers Will Push Buttons

Milwaukee Journal

The day when the farmer "homeward plods his weary way" is drawing to a close. If sciece does what it says it can do, the farmer won't have to go home at all. He can spend his summers in Maine and his winters in Bermuda and let the farm run itself.

Prof. James Bonner of the California Insitute of Technology told a recent meeting that push buttons will one day control the operation of farms. All the farmer will have to do is to decide what to plant. Then "it will be possible . . . to program the entire farming operation and leave the farm run itself from a master control panel".

Well, we've made a start. Mechanical check writers produce the subsidy checks for farms. The post office is planning to let machines and mechanical brains take over the handling of the mail.

Now, if we can figure out a way to replace the mailman, get the checks to the mechanical devices of the banks, ship the crops to government surplus storage spots by push botton operations, farming will be a breeze.

All we'll need then is a mechanical stand-in for the taxpayer.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When we drive on the lesser highways heedlessly through those little almost nameless villages, those relics of villages, we see that the only new buildings are small, neat premises bearing, in smart neon or other lights the inscription "Electric Appliances, TV and Service."

Except for this one modern office, all the rest of the tiny community is in obvious decline. The general store, that used to be the pulsing heart of the village, with everything on sale from sides of beef to overalls, from wheelbarrows to needles and thread, is now a mere dispenser of pop, with a precarious shelf or two of corn flakes and ten cent combs. The blacksmith shop long ago was engulfed by the handsome service station one of the big oil companies set up, in its own particular image. There is no harness shop, no flour and feed store, no chopping mill up at the end of the village; and even the church looks a little stark.

We all know about the Industrial Revolution. Why bother about the local general store when, in twenty or thirty minutes, you can drive to the nearby town and fill your wants at twenty stores? Blacksmith? What does that mean? Flour and feed? A company truck will deliver it to your barn. Chopping mill? My dear sir. . . .

The Industrial Revolution, befinning in 1750, started the destruction of the village. The Transportation Revolution is burying them. All but the "Electric Appliances, TV and Service."

A Stubborn Mental Problem

An Oregon reader writes:

" 'Belly breathing' has just about licked a stubborn colon problem. (W.M.A.)"

All I know is that the practice of the belly breathing excercise once, twice or three times a day can do no harm in any case and may do good in many cases of colon derangement.

The Oregon reader's smug complacency, referring to "a stubborn colon problem", is like that of the sophomoron who refers to his colon derangement as "mucous colitis." Both think they understand the physiology and pathology of the gastro-intestinal tract just a little better than the "ordinary" doctor does.

Most colon-conscious persons eventually develop a morbid fancy that their digestion is very sensitive, their nerves are very delicate and hence they must have only refined, soft, smooth "easily digested" food — no coarse cereals, vegetables, green or fruits.

Following a diet restricted accordingly, they inevitably develop nutritional deficiency manifestations, formerly called malnutrition. The poor souls and their near-doctors generally attribute these manifestations to the "colitis," and so the condition goes insidiously from bad to worse.

Unfortunately colitis, that is, real inflammation of the large intestine, like arthritis, real inflammation of joints, does occur in some instances, say in one or two out of a hundred cases. Actually, however, there is no inflammation of the colon (large bowel) and no inflammation of the joints in the general run of cases labelled colitis or arthritis. The pathology of both conditions is degeneration due primarily to nutritional deficiency (malnutrition) through the years. The colon derangement or the joint disability therefore comes on insidiously — as degeneration does, not abruptly, as inflammation would —and continues indefinitely or becomes steadily worse regardless of any and all standard 19th century treatment.

I haven't room to discuss the "mucous" element of so-called "mucous colitis," except to say that mucus is the normal secretion of the bowel lining, which serves to protect the lining from irritation. So the quantity of mucus depends on the degree of irritation. Thus excessive mucus secretion and the unnatural bowel wash, colon irrigation or enema conduce to chronicity.

In his famous Studies in Deficiency Disease McCarrison wrote (1921):

"I have myself no doubt that" (the familiar features, symptoms or manifestations of colon derangement) have resulted from the long-continued use of deficient foods from childhood onwards."

You should think of this next time the huckster sells your undisciplined youngster a pretty package of sugar pap. And remember, this top nutrition authority drew his conclusions from many years of study and published his book 37 years ago — right after World War I. This book is now available only in photo-lithographic reproduction, Lee Foundation for Nutritional Research, Milwaukee 3, Wisconsin.

HISTORIC BELLEVILLE

(Article fourteen in a weekly series contributed by members of the Hastings County Historical Society.)

AN EARLY DIARY

From time to time important historical documents are uncovered that shed light on Belleville's past. Such a document was discovered last month by Allan Dempsey of Rednersville. While sorting through a collection of old books, Mr. Dempsey found a small handwritten notebook which proved to be the diary of Commander Henry Leviscontc, R.N., an immigrant to this district from Great Britain in 1834.

The diary begins:

"Monday, March 31, 1834, at noon embarked aboard the Brig Oscar, Captain Robert Bankes, and sailed for Quebec in North America with the intention of proceeding to Upper Canada and to obtain the Lands there that I am entitled to according to my Rank as a Commander in His Majesty's Navy, and my length of service . . ."

The next few pages are taken up with the account of the ocean voyage, weather conditions, observations on his fellow travellers, etc.

Commander Leviscontc landed at Quebec, and then proceeded to Toronto. From there he retraced his steps to the Carrying Place, southwest of Trenton. After visiting "the Mouth of the Trent where there is a fine Covered Bridge Building," Leviscontc travelled aboard the steamer "Britannia" to Belleville, arriving there June 8th, 1834.

His chief impression of Belleville was that it was "a very good town with four churches and fine wide streets."

In the fall of 1834 he returned to England, where he sold his farming stock and crops, "having determined to go to Canada with all my family." Earlier, before his first voyage to Canada, he had dissolved a partnership of "merchants at Dartmouth in the County of Devon and on the coast of Labrador in North America."

On Saturday, October 17, 1835, Leviscontc arrived back in Belleville where he lived for a year and a half. His first ten days in the village were spent at Munger's (?) Mansion House Hotel, but then he "removed to a home I took of Mrs. Smith in which I put our goods, and in this house which is a large framed one we remained until we went to Seymour in March 1837."

THE PROBLEM OF MOODINESS

Can we master our moods? Yes. It is true that some people have more moods and stronger moods to master than others. Some people have the good fortune not to be moody at all. From the time they are born until they die, their lives are lived on a certain level — from which they seldom descend and above which they seldom ascend. Such people may have many problems, but they do not have the problems which come with moodiness.

But some people are born moody, and some acquire moodiness, and some make their moods a thousand times more tyrannical by indulging them. Such people have to recognize the fact that they have an emotional weakness, just as some other members of their family may have a weakness of sight or of hearing or of a sluggish digestion. Something has to be done about situations that keep us from happiness and efficiency.

The moody person has to do a whole host of things to overcome his weakness. He has to recognize that he is moody and that his moods constitute a problem. Then he is in a position to handle his moods.

I shall try tomorrow to outline the course I think the moody person must take if he would rise above his moods.

Pearson Support To Head Liberals Gaining Ground

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Mayor Don Mackay of Calgary may trade his 10-gallon hat for a bow-tie.

The colorful, 43-year-old mayor, who tossed his big, white cowboy hat into the liberal leadership ring, now is wondering whether he shouldn't yank it out and get behind the bow-tied Lester B. Pearson for the top spot in the liberal party.

"There is a great deal of support for Mr. Pearson out West," Mr. Mackay said on arrival here Sunday.

The two main campaigners, former external affairs minister Pearson and former health minister Paul Martin, have set up shop in a downtown hotel—Mr. Martin on the first floor and Mr. Pearson cn the fourth.

DRAWS BIGGER CROWD

As delegates began arriving for the three-day party convention opening Tuesday, Mr. Pearson appeared to be drawing a bigger crowd than Mr. Martin. So Mr. Martin trotted down to the hotel lobby, greeting and shaking hands with delegates as they arrived to register.

Some of Mr. Martin's associates conceded that the 60-year-old Mr. Pearson appears to have the edge so far in the fight but they promised to wage an aggressive battle to put the 54-year-old Mr. Martin on top.

Some 2,000 lapel cards, printed in red, proclaimed: "We can win with Martin." These were in the Windsor lawyer's headquarters for distribution to delegates. Mr. Pearson's headquarters displayed a red placard stating: "I like Mike."

The only other professed contender for the Liberal crown is Mayor H. Lloyd Henderson of Portage la Prairie, Man., scheduled to arrive today. He already has predicted that Mr. Pearson will win.

Also appearing in Mr. Pearson's suite was a large group of university students, members of the Canadian University Liberal Federation which holds a one-day convention of its own today.

PREDICT FULL HOUSE

Party headquarters predicted the three-day meeting may see a "full house"—a turnout of possibly the maximum 1,520 voting delegates. Some 1,460 had been accredited Sunday.

As trainloads of delegates started to pour in, reports began to grow that the Liberals may attempt to precipitate a fast test at the polls soon after the convention, using the unemployment crisis as the main issue.

Some party strategists anticipated that the new party chieftain would challenge Prime Minister Diefenbaker within a few days after the convention.

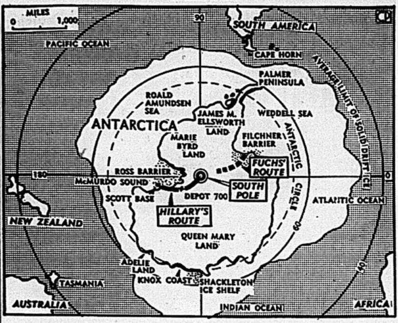
In any want-of-confidence motion against the governmet, it appeared likely Mr. Diefebaker would squeeze through with a narrow victory in the 265-seat Commons. The Liberals have 106 members, Conservatives 113, CCF 25, Social Credit 19, and there are two Independents.

There is some speculation that although Mr. Diefenbaker might squeeze through, with the support of the Social Credit and Independent members, he might accept the challenge and call an early vote. One prediction is that the vote will take place April 14.

GET NEW FACES

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — New faces and other physical repairs through plastic surgery are giving Texas prisoners a new outlook when they are released. O. B. Ellis, general manager of the state prison system, says deformities and other disfigurations "are closely related in many cases to the crime a man commits."

POLAR DASH



British explorer Vivian Fuchs is heading towards the South Pole with the aim of becoming the first man to cross the frozen Antarctic continent.

This map shows his approximate route so far and also that of Sir Edmund Hillary, leader of a New Zealand expedition, which has completed an 850-mile overland dash to the South Pole from McMurdo Sound on the New Zealand side of the continent.

A controversy flared when Hillary advised Fuchs to abandon his journey after he reached the Pole and to return next year to resume it. Fuchs replied that he was determined to go on, without New Zealand help if necessary.

Hillary, conqueror of Mount Everest, now is at Scott Base on McMurdo Sound preparing to fly to Depot 700 to await Fuch's arrival and acompany him the rest of the way across the continent on the route the New Zealand expedition has charted.

The depot is 700 miles from Scott Base and 500 miles from the Pole. Fuchs was last reported 230 miles from the pole with more than 1,000 miles to go to complete his journey from the South American side of Antarctica.

Fuchs had originally hoped to reach the Pole by Christmas but treacherous ice conditions have slowed his journey. The short Antarctic summer is nearing its end it is expected that polar travel will become even more difficult.

Belleville Edged By Peterborough At Swim Meet

Belleville YMCA swimmers acquitted themselves highly in their first scheduled meet of the season against the more experienced pool team from the Peterborough Y at Albert College Saturday afternoon.

Coack Bill McCormick's charges divided sixteen events with the visitors but were defeated on the points system 76 to 51.

Standing out for the Belleville team were Les Hall, who won the 80-yard free style event; John Peoples, who captured the diving event; David Craig who had two seconds; Jim Tilker who won the 40-yard free-style and Robbie Blaker.

Blaker's feat in winning the 40-yard backstroke race was all the more creditable since he defeated Peterborough's Al Dobbins who holds the Ontario YMCA championship in the 14-year-old backstroke division.

Jim McInroy was the Peterborough star, winning four events and finishing second in the 80-yard freestyle.

Peterborough sent two teams of 30 swimmers with Belleville offering 14 in competition.

Officials of the meet were Charles Cawker, Jack Peoples, Jack Bernhardt, Ted Flindall and Jack Perry.

The Y swimmers meet those from Albert College in the second meet of the season on February 1st. Some of the Y boys will compete that night in a city meet in Peterborough.

The meet was well organized and conducted. Belleville was somewhat weaker in the younger divisions than the Peterborough teams, but the older boys held their own with the opposition.

Belleville Juniors Hit Win Stride Defeat Trenton Cubs By 5-3 Score

TRENTON — Dennis Kerruish of the Belleville Lambert-Rollins slapped in an unassisted goal at the 18:48 minute mark of the third period to ensure a 5-3 victory over the Trenton Bear Cubs at the Memorial Gardens here on Saturday night.

Although the Belleville younsters were never behind during the game the Trenton squad was pressing hard for a tying goal during the third stanza but only managed to come close on several occassions.

At the 3:23 mark of the first period Jack Gill took a slap pass from his team mate Goyer to open the scoring and put the Belleville out in front. But two minutes later Guy Austin of the Trenton Bear Cubs connected on a pass from Vickers. At the halfway point of the period Belleville's Gary Rowbotham assisted by Brennan and Mann, put their team ahead to stay for the rest of the game. Jack Elliott's counter on a pass from St. Dennis ended the scoring for the period at the 15:24 minute mark.

Gord Irwin made the only trip to the penalty box in the first.

Belleville opened the scoring again in the second when Gill scored from the stick of Dennis Kerruish at 7:40. But 40 seconds later Trenton's Roger Drake broke clear at centre ice on an intercepted pass and snapped the puck past the Belleville goalie to end the period 4-2 in favor of the city squad.

Vickers and Rowbotham both sat out five minutes in the cooler for fighting during the second and Robertson of Trenton was given a 10 minute misconduct. Lewis and Asseltine were also detained for two minutes. Rowbotham made a second trip to the sin bin.

In the final period Pshebnicky brought the Bear Cubs back into the game at the 16:04 mark when he made a pass from Lewis pay off but the tiring Cubs lost heart when Kerruish got his big goal two minutes later.

Belleville players made three trips to the penalty box during the third with Trenton sending only one player off.

Liberals Have Never Failed To Win First Election After Three Previous Conventions

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal politicians are hopeful that history provides a good augury of events to follow this week's national party convention here.

For the Liberals have never failed to win the first general election after each of their three previous conventions.

As in the present case, the Liberals were out of office when leader Sir Wilfrid Laurier called the first convention at Ottawa in 1893 to patch the party fences for the general election of 1896.

It was not a leadership convention—Sir Wilfrid had been chosen leader by the party hierarchy in 1887. Instead, it concentrated on drafting a fighting program, lambasting the Conservatives of that day as robbers and bribers and generally steaming up voter enthusiasm.

The big themes of the platform were lower tariffs and reciprocity with the United States. Sir Wilfrid swept the Conservatives out of office in the election and stayed in power until 1911.

Liberal fortunes again were on the ebb tide when the second national convention was held in 1919. The aging leader had issued the convention call in 1918—eight days after the First World War armistice was signed—but in the meantime he had died.

It was a free-for-all for the leadership among Hon. W. S. Fielding of Nova Scotia, longtime minister of finance under Laurier who had parted with him over conscription; D. D. MacKenzie of Cape Breton, temporary Liberal leader in the Commons; Hon. George Graham of Brockville, former railway minister, and a 45-year-old former minister of labor named William Lyon Mackenzie King.

Against thei apparently overwhelming support for the powerful Fielding, Mr. King was lightly regarded in the predictions. He had been defeated in the last election. But he edged out Mr. Filding on a fourth ballot.

And once more the Liberals came through with a victory in the post-convention general election of 1921.

It was a different story in 1948, at a convention here which Mr. King sought after deciding to step down as leader. The Liberals were in power, though with a slender over-all majority in the Commons and with a few mavericks in the ranks who on occasion gave him headaches on important votes.

Louis S. St. Laurent, his minister of justice, swept the convention easily on one ballot with the strong behind-the-scenes support of the retiring leader. He more than doubled the combined votes of Agriculture Minister James G. Gardiner and former air minister C. G. (Chubby) Power.

In the subsequent general election of 1949, Mr. St. Laurent not only carried the country but came up with a top-heavy majority over the combined opposition.

Wedding

ADAMS — SMITH

Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, was the setting on Friday, December 20th, at 7:00 p.m., for a pretty, but quiet wedding when the Reverend Harry M. Davis, pastor of the church, united in marriage Barbara Helen Smith, of Belleville, eldest daughter of Mrs. Croft Smith (Helen), of Belleville, and the late Mr. Croft Smith, to William Guy Adams, of Picton Ontario, only son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Guy Adams. Lovely baskets of baby white chrysanthemums and ferns formed an attractive background for the ceremony.

The bride wore a charming cocktail-length gown of nylon lace over taffeta fashioned with fitted bodice having a bateau neckline, and skirt in bouffant style. She wore a satin headdress studded with seed pearls, and tiny veil, with matching gloves and shoes, and carried a cascade bouquet of red, Sweetheart roses mingled with feathered, white carnations and trailing ivy.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. William J. Nolan, (Noreen) who was attractively attired in street-length, Dior blue nylon lace with feathered headdress and matching gloves. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink, Sweetheart roses, white feathered carnations, and trailing ivy.

Mr. William J. Nolan, of Belleville, brother-in-law of the bride, attended the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Queen's Motel, Kingston Road, for the immediate family of the bride. The bridegroom's parents reside at Lockinge, Wantage, England.

The bride's mother, for her daughter's wedding, wore a royal blue gown of crepe with black accessories, and corsage of red roses.

For the wedding trip to Montreal and surrounding district, the bride chose a two-piece ensemble of Dior blue with matching accessories, jacket of muskrat fur, and corsage of red, Sweetheart roses. Mr. and Mrs. Adams are residing at 19 Highland Avenue, Belleville.

Wives Getting Ready to Battle For Husbands

OTTAWA (CP) — There's excitement and suspense in the homes of the two top Liberal leadership contestants. The wives are getting ready to do battle for their husbands.

"Paul will want me right there under his nose all the time—to act as sort of a shock-absorber," says Mrs. Eleanor Martin, wife of the former health minister.

Mr. Martin and Lester B. Pearson, former external affairs minister, square off for the leadership at the convention opening here Tuesday.

Mrs. Maryon Pearson, the woman in the other corner, says she no longer is nervous about her husband's speeches.

"I used to be, but had to give that up when the speeches became so numerous. And besides, I know that he isn't nervous."

THINGS IN COMMON

The two women have some things in common. They both are married to hard-working, busy politicians and admit to some lonely nights at home while their husbands move about the country, to meet speaking engagements and build up political goodwill.

They each have two children, a boy and a girl. The Pearson children are married and have presented their parents with five grandchildren. The Martin children are still going to school.

The Winnipeg-born Mrs. Pearson says she enjoys her role but sometimes wishes she was simply the wife of the history professor she married in 1925.

The Pearsons usually spend their evenings at home when the former career diplomat isn't away on his frequent trips.

"He likes eating at home and is very flattering about my cooking."

Rev. P.B. Smith Talks to Y.F.C. On 'Midnight'

Belleville Youth For Christ held its first meeting of 1958 on January 11, in the Masonic Temple. The meeting opened with the singing of the Y.F.C. theme chorus, "Christ For Me," after which Ernie Belch led in several songs, accompanied by Wilbur Leonard at the piano.

The choir sang, "As A Volunteer," under the direction of the choir director, Carl Green.

Johnny Ambrose, of Toronto, special soloist for the evening, brought greetings from Toronto Youth For Christ, after which he sang two solos, "If You Know the Lord" and "Till I Met Jesus."

During the humming of "Sweet Hour of Prayer" by the choir, the Rev. Paul B. Smith led in prayer on "Prayer Time."

SCHOOL BIBLE QUIZ

Four schools were competing in the quiz, Deseronto High School, Madoc High School, Stirling High School and Belleville Collegiate Institute. The scores were: Deseronto High, 190 points; Stirling High, 70 points; B.C.I., 60 points and Madoc High, 20 points.

Bud Rodgers and Ed Taylor played "Face to Face" on their violins. Johnny Ambrose rendered another solo, "My Wonderful, Wonderful Lord" after which Paul B. Smith brought the message of the evening.

Mr. Smith spoke from Matthew 25, using the topic "Midnight," giving examples of 'midnight' taken from the Bible when the 1st passover was at midnight and when Paul and Silas were praying in jail; the earthquake at midnight; and when Paul was preaching and the lad Eutyches fell from the window and how Paul brought him to life again at midnight.

Mr. Smith said the meaning of "midnight" was the end and beginning of things. For an example, the end of the day and the beginning of the new day.

He also reminded of a midnight that had just passed, the end of 1957 and the beginning of 1958. Another example he used was from a baby to school age child, and then graduation to working days, and on to retirement and finally, eternity.

Mr. Smith stressed how important these midnights are in God's sight. "When God's midnight comes we must be ready or we are lost, because it is the end."

In closing, he gave three reasons for God's midnight: 1st., Jesus returning; 2nd., your rejection and 3rd., death.

An invitation to accept Christ was given and many were counselled by trained counsellors.

'Art of Dress' Topic at Alpha Lambda Chap.

The regular meeting of Alpha Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was held last Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Robert Smith, Eastwood Park Drive.

Mrs. Howard House provided a most interesting program by choosing "The Art of Dress" as the theme for her address. With the wide variety of colors and fabrics available today, it can be quite frustrating as to what particular color or fabric to choose. Mrs. House reminded the members, however, that the basic rules still remain: "Is the color suitable for your individual characteristics? Is it suitable for your purposes — the occasions for which you will wear it? Is it practical? Probably the first question is the most important of all. Complexion, hair and eye colors are so interrelated in making up the individual you that all must be taken into account in your choice of clothing color. You will want to pick those tints and shades that accentuate your own coloring rather than outshine it. Perhaps a fashionable new color may not be complimentary to you but if the desire to use it is strong, you might try using it sparingly as accent or in accessories."

CAREFUL CONTRAST —ACCENT

"Contrast and accent should be handled carefully. A little accent at the throat or shoulder is smarter than a repeated accent in shoulder, belt, cuff and hat. Not only does it make the contrast more dramatic, but it saves your figure from the trying all-over effect of spottiness. If you have a particular figure problem, place your color contrast or accent so that it draws the eye away from the fault and emphasizes one of your good points. Remember always the value in the wardrobe of good basic dresses in dark color that can be made to suit the occasion by the use of the right accessories and to give color pleasure through subtle accent. Color can be a joy and satisfaction — a magic aid to creating a you that you are happy to present.

Following Mrs. House's address, the president, Mrs. Vincent McLean, conducted the business meeting. An invitation to attend a coffee party to be given by Gamma Mu Chapter was graciously accepted. Mrs. H. House was appointed chapter representative to the Women's Hospital Auxiliary. Plans for the forthcoming Black and Gold Ball to be held Feb. 28 at Club Commodore, were discussed. This ball, an annual event, is Alpha Lambda's only appeal to their dance and fun loving friends. The money raised in this venture is used for charitable purposes.

Refreshments were served by co-hostesses Mrs. John Lewis and Mrs. Robert Hinchey.

Neighbors' Aid Presents Gifts To Executive

The January meeting of the Avondale Neighbors' Aid was well attended on Thursday afternoon at the home of Dora Elvidge, Trent Road.

The president, Evelyn Bird, opened the meeting with a New Year's poem by Edgar Guest.

Nellie Chambers read the Scripture taken from St. Luke.

Pearl Holmes gave an inspiring talk on the origin of January and on being a good neighbor — each letter of the word starting a verse.

The annual reports were read and approved.

The executive of 1957, retiring and non-retiring, were presented with gifts in appreciation of their year's work by Lena Reid; who had perfect attendance for the past year.

The roll call was answered by the paying of membership fees.

Doris McLean conducted two games and the prizes were won by Shirley Griffith and Pearl Holmes.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and the lunch committee consisting of Ruth Denike, Shirley Griffith, Phyllis Hall and Ruth Ackerman.

The invitations given by Doris McLean to have the February meeting at her home was accepted.

Jewish Women Honor Wife Of Diefenbaker

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. John G. Diefenbaker heard herself praised Sunday for devoting "much time and energy to the welfare of our future citizens" as she was presented the B'Nai B'Rith woman of the year award.

Mrs. Philip H. Bloom, chairman of women's chapters, eastern Canadian council, B'Nai B'Rith Women, told the prime minister's wife, a former school teacher:

"There must be many men and women today who owe their successes in life to the great interest you showed in them when they were youngsters attending school."

Hurdles High For Women to Get Seats

OTTAWA (CP) — Mrs. Jessie Caldwell, president of the National Federation of Liberal Women, takes a realistic view of women in politics.

She told a press conference Sunday night that she believes women make their greatest contribution to politics through party organizations.

The 56-year-old federation leader is here from Saskatoon for the Liberal party convention which will elect a new national leader.

More women delegates than ever before—an expected 205—are to take part in convention sessions Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and to attend an informal business-social session Friday to which all women convention-comers are invited.

Mrs. Caldwell, who said she has little hope of women ever being represented in legislatures on a 50-50 basis, would nevertheless like to see a 15-per-cent representation.

HIGH OBSTACLES

But the "hurdles are high" for women seeking elective seats, she said.

A woman had to leave home to serve. And there was a certain resistance to single women, who should be good sources of representation and who often had both capabilities and financial independence.

"Women in any party are seldom re-elected," she said. "They sometimes don't get down to the job of electioneering for a new term."

She said she felt the lack of time to work in her own constituency was one reason Mrs. Ann Shipley, Liberal member for Timiskaming, Ont., in the last Parliament, was not re-elected last June 10.

ANNIVERSARY GESTURE

G.C.R. Sister Winslow was asked to give a message of the work of the Grand Division, in which she complimented the Loyal Division on its loyalty and its 53rd birthday party, and hoped it would enjoy many more happy times. She also mentioned the provincial meetings to be held in 1958, stating that this division is the 5th oldest in Canada. The first division, No. 23, in Canada, 69 years ago, gave up their charter after a couple of years.

The Grand Division celebrated the 70th anniversary in Chicago on October 23rd., and 24th when a pageant was presented and all attending report a pleasant time.

THANKS TENDERED

Acting president, Sister Morgan, on behalf of the past officers, extended a hearty "thank you" to Sister Fisher, for once againg presiding; to the Loyal Division 337, a happy 53rd birthday party; to Sister Pearl Buck and her committee for the delightful refreshments, and to Sister Pearl Kerr for the donation of a lovely, decorated birthday cake.

The president, Sister Fisher, asked Sister Winslow to escort Sister Taylor to the table and, as a charter member, she was requested to cut the birthday cake, extending as she did so, good wishes for many more birthdays of the Division.

After the meeting closed, a social time was enjoyed.

FINE MUSIC

The concerto was given its modern form by Mozart, and some modifications were introduced by Beethoven.

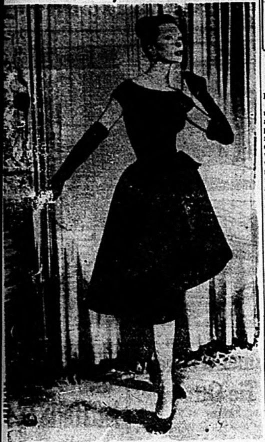
Dressy Woolens



By ALICE ALDEN

Wool, by itself or smartly combined with a material to give contrast, is at home under the bright lights and in gala settings. Pauline Trigere, who does this type of thing so well, is responsible for this beautiful afternoon-into-evening creation, a black sheer wool dress with a difference. She has given the sheath a showy over-skirt of gleaming black peau de soie, curved in front, dipped low in back and bow-tied at the waist.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Sam F. — I feel like a fifth wheel in my own home.

Phyllis F. — What a nerve he has!

• • •

Sam F. — Isn't there any way an erring husband can win his way back to his wife and children?

I have been a first-rate scoundrel most of my life. I admit it. I drank, gambled, ran around with women, was unfaithful and didn't support my family properly. Suddenly I saw what a terrible mess I was making of my life. I asked my wife to take me back and settled down to being a good husband and father in earnest.

Now I find I am barely tolerated in the house. The children look at me with indifference or annoyance. My wife never shows me any affection. I feel like a fifth wheel in my own home.

• • •

Phyllis F. — I just don't know what that husband of mine expects. Does he think ten years of part-time fatherhood can be just wiped off the slate? Does he think the scars on my heart will heal overnight just because he has changed his mind? The fact is that I can't take his reform too seriously.

I know and the children know the real reason Sam came to his ill. He got the scare of his life and was warned to stay off the senses was that he became quite bottle.

It's true that the children are fresh, but I can't say I blame them. As for me not showing affection — that's a laugh! What a nerve he has!

• • •

The Council: It will take great effort on both sides to repair the damage to this home. Phyllis and Sam should make that effort — for their own sake and for their children's.

Sam should recognize that the burden of proof of the sincerity of his reform rests on him. He cannot expect this long-suffering family to welcome him back with a gala blast of trumpets the minute he sets his wandering, mud-smeared boot in the door. His wife has not yet had the experience of having a husband who shows in word and deed that his first concern is her happiness. His children do not yet know what it is to have a devoted father participating in their daily lives.

Sam must think about ways to express his love and concern for his family. He should try to avoid indulging in self-pity about their attitude toward him. As he loses interest in himself, it is very likely that his family will become more interested in him.

On the other hand, Phyllis should try to avoid nursing bitter, vengeful feelings toward her husband. It will only breed further unhappiness for her and the children. The children need to love their father in order to be at peace with themselves. Phyllis must try to help Sam bring out his best qualities and to help the children to see them. Gradually they may learn forbearance toward his weaknesses.

Phyllis is wrong and foolish to scorn her husband's reform simply because it was set off by illness. An outside factor can sometimes force an individual to a deep inner realization. Phyllis should encourage and nourish the germ of goodwill now growing in her husband. Her vengeful feelings would only stamp it out.

TIMES CHANGE . . . AND SO DO GIFTS FOR WEDDING ANNIVERSARIES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The other evening a group of us were having a discussion about the different symbols appropriate for Wedding Anniversaries, and there were certainly differing ideas. It seemed to my wife and me that formerly there was a definite list for these. But now . . . is this so. For example, the majority of the group insisted, as we did, that Paper is the material of the gifts for the First Anniversary, while two or three others said that this has been changed to Clocks. Now what if everyone brought a Clock to a First Anniversary Party! Same thing about the Twentieth, which most agreed always had been China, and which two maintained was now Platinum. Platinum? Whee! We decided to write to you, and ask you: Today is there any really definite list about Wedding Anniversaries?

— Group of Readers

You are so right that formerly there used to be a definite list of presents appropriate for Wedding Anniversaries, and many people, I would say the majority, abided by these traditional suggestions. But as times changed these lists began to change, and changed even more as new products (new electric appliances, for example), and materials (plastics and copper and brass and steel equipment), and new fabrics (as synthetic silks) made it seem sensible and convenient to change the list or to extend it. Here are some special examples of practical changes:

Paper (with today's world of wonderful paper products) and plastics (such an important addition to today's household equipment). To the Fourth Anniversary, which used to be only Linen or Silk, has now been added, in many lists, rayon or nylon or other synthetic silk. For the Tenth Anniversary: in some lists, as well as the traditional tin, aluminum has, very wisely, been added. For the Twentieth Anniversary, most lists still suggest China and I think China and Pottery are sensible suggestions (I agree completely with your "Whee!" about suggesting Platinum for this anniversary!)

The latest list adopted by The Jewelry Industry Council is: First: Clock. Second: China. Third: Crystal and Glass. Fourth: Electrical Appliance. Fifth: Silverware. Sixth: Wood. Seventh: Desk Equipment. Eighth: Linen and Lace. Ninth: Leather. Tenth: Diamond Jewelry. Eleventh: Fashion Jewelry. Twelfth: Pearl. Thirteenth: Textile and Fur. Fourteenth: Gold Jewelry. Fifteenth: Watch. Twentieth: Platinum. Twenty-fifth: Silver. Thirteenth: Diamond. Thirty-fifth: Jade. Fortieth: Ruby. Forty-fifth: Sapphire. Fiftieth: Gold. Fifty-fifth: Emerald. Sixtieth: Diamond.

Important Note: Although today there are varying lists of suggestions, actually not too much attention is paid to them . . . and for any wedding anniversary relatives and friends give the sort of present they can afford and think the couple would most welcome.

Chicken Is Cheaper

By Mary Moore

With chicken cheaper than chuck or chops and the method of preparing it limited only by our imaginations, let us go chicken happy and prepare it a different way every time we serve it.

It is years since I gave you a recipe for Brunswick Stew. A half-tame black squirrel in our garden who is a friend of Gary's put the wicked idea in my head. Brunswick Stew calls for a black squirrel, but there was no murder in my heart, no gun in my hand nor appetite for same. So with that one ingredient missing here is the Brunswick Stew that we made.

BRUNSWICK STEW

One 4 or 4 1-2 lb. boiling fowl, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 minced onion, 2 cups fresh or frozen Lima beans, 6 ears corn or 2 12-oz. tins kernel corn drained, 1-4 lb. salt pork, 6 medium potatoes, 1 teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons sugar, 4 cups sliced tomatoes or thick part from canned tomatoes, 3 tablespoons hard butter. Cut chicken into serving pieces. Add salt to 16 cups of water and when boiling, add onion, Lima beans, corn cut from the cob, pork, potatoes, pepper and the chicken. Cover and simmer 2 hours, add sugar and tomato, and simmer 1 hour more. Ten minutes before removing from heat, add butter cut into pieces the size of a hickory nut and rolled in flour. Bring to boil. Serve in soup plates for 6. This is usually served with hot biscuits or hot yeast rolls.

The recipe for Chicken Supreme calls for 2 cups cream, but those of you who are on reducing or fat-free diets could substitute milk. I have given you variations of this before but this is my all-time favorite.

CHICKEN SUPREME

One 3 1-2 lb. frying chicken, 1-2 cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-4 cup butter, 1-2 lb. cleaned mushrooms, 2 cups table cream. Cut chicken into serving pieces. Shake in bag containing flour, salt and pepper. Fry golden brown in butter. Remove chicken from fat. Drain slightly. Place in 2-quart casserole. Cover with mushrooms and cream. Bake covered at 325 deg. Fahr. 40 to 45 minutes.

CHICKEN CURRY

One 4-lb. chicken, 4 pepper corns, 2 whole cloves, 3 tablespoons each flour, water, 1 bay leaf, 1 egg yolk beaten, 1 chili pepper (optional), 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 2 onions, sliced, 1 or 2 teaspoons curry powder. Clean and cut chicken in serving pieces. Place in saucepan and cover with hot water. Add pepper, cloves, bay leaf, salt and chili pepper, and simmer until chicken is tender — 3 hours. Saute onions; remove chicken from liquid in saucepan and add to onions. Add curry powder and strained liquid from saucepan, and boil 5 mins. Add flour and water paste, stirred smooth, and stir until it thickens. Add well beaten egg yolk. Serve in border of hot rice.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

ONE WAY TO WIN.

For many weeks now, the McFarlands have been subjected to columnar attacks by the Cornwall sports editor to the effect they are fight-baiting, trouble-seeking players who delight in gore-letting and in general believing in man-beating rather than puck carrying.

They have been accused by the same writer as not "being able to take a little ribbing from the fans without acting like kids," or something like that. The "ribbing" he refers to, included bottle-throwing, peanut shooting, water-squirting and verbal attacks that include names that can scarcely be repeated here.

Saturday night the McFarlands clashed with the Chevies here in a game that produced outstanding hockey except for the fact it was marred by a fourteen-penalty sin-bin battle that probably set the stage for the unfortunate happenings that occurred in the return game in Cornwall on Sunday.

Saturday night Kowalchuk and D. LaBelle got minor penalties together. The pair started fisticuffs in the penalty box that resulted in six majors and six misconducts besides the two minors mentioned.

Russ Kowalchuk, who has been the main target of the Cornwall scribe, and of late the Kingston scrivener's barbed shafts, gave LaBelle a punching lesson he won't soon forget and LaBelle has no one to blame but himself. Authority for that, in case the Cornwall and Kingston scribes take the statement as a "home-towner," is Referee Al Promaine,* who told this reporter in his dressing room after the Saturday game that the Cornwall player started the penalty-box fracas.

On Sunday with the Macs leading 2-1 in the second period, Gordie Bell, who came out of his net to clear a puck was charged viciously from behind by Cornwall's Marshall, causing back injuries that necessitated withdrawal from the game. The referee promptly tabbed Marshall with two major penalties, one for causing injury.

Turk Barclay took over and before the game was over, he was involved in a fracas with Muir and was forced to retire for injury repair after a vicious attack by the Chevie. Muir drew two majors, one for causing injury and an automatic misconduct.

In Saturday night's game when every McFarland on the roster gave everything he had with the result the team came up with one of its best games of the season, Gordie Bell kicked out everything the Chevies could throw at him and earned his first shutout of the season. Devaney at the other end was equally as good if not better, and was the only reason the Chevies were not whipped by a half dozen goals. The Macs were that much better.

It looked as though the Macs were on their way to victory yesterday when Marshall launched his behind-the-back charge at Bell. The loss of Gordie, who also has been a particular target of a rowdy element of Cornwall fandom, and the subsequent injury to "Turk" Barclay took the sting out of the McFarland attack.

The Chevies who had lost nine in a row, finally won a game, but let's hear no more balderdash about their being halo'd angels who were picked on by those nasty rowdies from Belleville. After the weekend games it would seem that some "angels" have dirty wings.

As matters happened the McFarlands still clung to their official second place, third if you count the three-point games of the Ottawa-Hull Capadiens. However the Pembroke Lumber Kings' Indian sign on the Whitby Dunlops still holds, it seems, for they defeated the Allan Cup champions 6-4 Saturday night in the northern town to keep them within a point of the McFarlands.

As was mentioned before the McFarlands looked like the powerful squad of early season here on Saturday night. They were flying at top speed, their shooting was deadly and on target and they came through handsomely with Gerry Devaney being their main stumbling block. They played fine hockey too on Sunday until the unfortunate accidents to both goalies, threw them offstride.

All of which points to a real thriller here tomorrow night when the Pembroke Lumber Kings are the Macs' guests. It will be a battle for second, or third place, whichever way you look at it, and with the Macs back in form, and the Kings fresh from their victory over the Whitby Dunlops it should be a classic.

Pattern 4-Game Win Streak With Weekend Victories; Hull Gets Goal, 3 Assists

By MARTY GOODMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

When Sid Abel played for Detroit Red Wings, he was used to a team with a winning habit.

His last season, 1951-52, Wings were in the middle of a streak of seven straight National Hockey League championships. That year they ended 22 points ahead of Montreal Canadiens and swept to the Stanley Cup in the minimum eight games.

When Abel returned to the Wings last week, as their coach, they were in fifth place and for much of the season had been playing tag with Chicago Black Hawks for last place.

For the 39-year-old native of Melville, Sask., the NHL's most valuable player in 1949, the situation had to change—or else.

It did.

WIN FOUR STRAIGHT

Since the former centre officially took over from Jim Skinner, Jan. 5, Detroit has played four games—and won them all. The streak, highlighted by two victories this weekend, catapulted Wings into second place.

Detroit whipped Chicago 4-1 Saturday and followed with a 3-2 victory over New York Rangers Sunday. In other games Saturday, Montreal trounced New York 9-3 and Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins tied 2-2.

Sunday's other games saw Chicago whip Montreal 7-1 and Toronto defeat Boston 5-3.

Wings, ahead of the third-place Rangers by one point, trail Canadiens by 18 points.

EX-HAWK GETS TWO

Forbes Kennedy, who joined Wings from Chicago this season, paced Detroit Saturday. He scored two goals with Bob Bailey and Gordie Howe collecting one each.

Howe, who scored his 22nd, was injured and missed Sunday's game, his first absence after playing the last 235 Detroit games.

Glen Skov counted for Chicago.

Sunday, Nick Mickoski, Johnny Wilson and Alex Delvecchio scored for Wings and Andy Hebenton got two for New York.

It was the eighth straight game without a win for Rangers and marked 28 goals against goalie Marcel Paille in his last five games.

Nine of those goals came Saturday against the Canadiens, who had thumped Chicago 11-3 Thursday. Marcel Bonin scored three times and Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion and Don Marshall got two each. Geoffrion's pair lifted his total to 23. Other scorers were Dickie Moore, who also had four assists, and Andre Pronovost.

Andy Bathgate, Camille Henry and Hebenton scored for New York. It was Henry's 24th, highest in the league.

GET REVENGE

Chicago gained revenge for their whipping when they exploded for a 7-1 victory against Montreal Sunday. Bobby Hull and Ted Lindsay each had a goal and three assists. Other marksmen were Eric Nesterenko, Ed Litzenberger, Elmer Vasko, Bill Dineen and Ed Kachur.

Marshall scored for Montreal, his 18th of the year.

Toronto's victory Sunday pulled them even with Boston in fourth place, three points behind New York and three ahead of Chicago. It was the first victory for Leafs since Dec. 28.

Gary Aldcorn scored two goals and Ron Stewart, Billy Harris and Dickie Duff got one each. Vic Stasiuk, Fleming Mackell and Bronco Horvath scored for Boston.

Saturday the teams each played to their ninth tie of the season. Duff and Stewart scored for Toronto, Allan Stanley and Jerry Toppazzini for Boston.

Isaac Logart Meets Winner Turner, Martinez

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National Boxing Association voted Sunday to endorse a fight between Isaac Logart of Cuba and the winner of next Wednesday's Gil Turner-Vince Martinez bout as a welterweight championship contest.

The NBA's executive committee also decided to instruct lightweight champion Joe Brown to meet challenger Kenny Lane by April 15. If Brown declines, the committee said, the NBA will withdraw recognition of his title.

These were the major actions taken by the committee. It also decided to attempt a revival of interest in the heavyweight ranks by trying to arrange a bout between contenders Zora Folley and Eddie Machen—the winner to get a crack at champion Floyd Patterson.

The NBA action on the Turner-Martinez fight in effect eliminates Virgil Akins of St. Louis and Australian George Barnes from the immediate welterweight title picture. The title has been vacant since its surrender by Carmen Basilio when he won the middleweight crown from Sugar Ray Robinson last year.

Originally, the World Boxing Championship Committee had proposed a six-man tournament to select a successor to Basilio from among Martinez, Logart, Turner, Akins, Gaspar Ortega and Barnes. But Turner had already defeated Akins and Logart whipped Ortega. Barnes has shown little inclination to leave Australia without a solid guarantee.

Teepee Trio Paces Wins Over Irish, Cubs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Teepees, paced by one of the highest-scoring lines in junior hockey, increased their lead this weekend in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

The three are Ed Hoekstra, Jack McKenzie and Matt Ravlich. They picked up 14 scoring points as Teepees beat Hamilton Tiger-Cubs 6-2 Saturday and six points in defeating St. Michael's Majors 3-0 Sunday.

In other games, Toronto Marlboros whipped Barrie Flyers 9-1 Sunday and Guelph Biltmores beat St. Michael's 3-1 Saturday. The results left Teepees 13 points ahead of Marlboros, who are three ahead of Hamilton.

Hoekstra, Ravlich and Wayne Hillman each scored two goals to pace Saturday's victory. Hoekstra also had three assists, Ravlich two and McKenzie five.

Gerry Sullivan and Eddie Cooke scored for Hamilton.

ALL THE SCORING

Sunday McKenzie scored twice and assisted on a goal by Hoekstra. Ravlich and Hoekstra had an assist each.

Bob Nevin scored three goals and had two assists to lead Marlboros. Other scorers were Ian Anderson, Jim Murchie, Doug Riseley, Bob Davidson, Roger Cote and Sonny Osborne.

Jack Cole scored for Barrie.

Rod Gilbert, Gord Brown and Don MacGregor scored for Guelph to move seventh-place Biltmore within two points of Barrie. Dave Keon scored for St. Michael's.

Dutchies Whip Bulldogs Twice Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goaltender Marv Edwards of Windsor Bulldogs will likely want to forget his two weekend meetings with Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen in a hurry.

On Saturday Dutchmen, who grabbed top place in the OHA-NOHA Senior A series away from Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds a couple of weeks back, banged eight goals past him, winning 8-2.

Sunday, Dutchmen, aiming to consolidate their hold on first place, flashed in four more, winning 4-1.

The two wins boosted Dutchmen's lead to five points. Greyhounds' weekend game produced only one point—from a 3-3 tie with Chatham Maroons.

The only other weekend game saw North Bay Trappers defeat Sudbury Wolves 5-1.

CAUSE MOST TROUBLE

Dutchmen's Kenny Laufman and Billy Graham caused most of Edwards' headaches in the first Kitchener - Windsor meeting. Each scored three times.

Edwards kicked out a total of 29 shots, 12 in the second period as Dutchmen pushed their lead to 5-1.

Ted Maki and Ron Howell scored the other Kitchener goals. Mickey Roth and Irwin Grosse scored for Windsor.

Edwards had some of the pressure taken off him in the second game, but then the Windsor forwards found Kitchener goalie Boat Hurley in top form.

Hurley stopped 36 shots and was always on the spot when Bulldogs managed to organize a raid.

Ralph Hosking, Don Rope, Howie Lee and Buddy Horne scored for Kitchener, Elmer Skov scoring Windsor's lone goal.

Chatham, which came from behind a 2-0 first-period lead, put Soo into its fifth overtime game at home this season. Neither side scored in the next time.

Gary Vena, Don Ramsay and Joe Bumbacco scored for Greyhounds. Chatham marksmen were Ted Power, John Chasczewski and Copper Leyte.

Three goals by Ken Gribbons paced North Bay to victory. After a scoreless first period, Trappers hit two quick goals early in the second and were never headed.

Rightwinger John Bobenic got North Bay's other goals. Defenceman Andy Voykin scored for Sudbury.

Whitby Has Dismal Weekend Lose to Kings, Tie Ottawa

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Whitby Dunlops' hoodoo team, Pembroke Lumber Kings, have ended the Ontario Hockey Association Eastern Senior A leaders' 11-game winning streak.

Pembroke, who have lost only one of their last five games against Dunlops, produced the shock result of the weekend, winning 6-4 Saturday.

The defeat ended a Whitby run during which they scored 74 goals twice running up double figures against opponents—and had only 23 scored against them.

In the four previous Whitby-Pembroke meetings, Lumber Kings lost 7-0, won 4-3, won 5-4 and tied 3-3.

TIE OTTAWA

And to add to a gloomy weekend, Whitby Sunday could only tie 6-6 with Ottawa-Hull Canadiens. But they still head the standings by 17 points.

Other weekend action saw Cornwall Chevies lose 1-0 to Belleville McFarlands Saturday, then wallop the McFarlands 8-4 Sunday.

Pembroke banged in three goals in the last nine minutes to beat Dunlops, ahead 3-2 at the end of the second period.

Charlie Burns, Bus Gagnon, Eddie Redmond and playing coach Sid Smith scored the Whitby goals.

Jim Maxwell and Bert Giesebrecht each scored two for Lumber Kings, singles going to Bucky Buchanan and Jim Farelli.

BORROW LONG JOHN

Ottawa borrowed regular Whitby netminder John Henderson for their game with the Dunlops as Eric Reid was in hospital for a check-up. Whitby used sub-goalie Roy Edwards.

Gagnon, Alf Treen, Harry Sinden, Connie Broden, Jack McKenzie and Bob Attersley scored for Dunlops. Claude Richard got a pair for Ottawa, Bob Rousseau, Claude Fournel, Bob Boucher and Bill Carter notching singles.

Chevies, after losing to a second-period goal by Bep Guidolin in their first meeting with Belleville, broke a nine-game losing streak in the second.

Guy Henri, with two, Bob Bingley, Neil Burke, Ray Laplante, Reggie Grigg, Rene St. Hilaire and Frank Marshall scored for Cornwall. Eddie Marineau, with three, and Wiener Brown replied for Belleville.

McFarlands Split Weekend Games With Chevies; Still In Third Place

Bell's Blank, Marineau Trio Penalty-Box Fight, Injuries Mark Home-Home Battles

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

After the smoke of weekend battle and injury had cleared the McFarlands are still in third place in the Eastern Senior "A" League, splitting a brace of games with the Cornwall Chevies while Pembroke upset the Whitby Dunlops to maintain their fourth-place spot.

The McFarlands flashed a brilliant brand of hockey Saturday night, defeating the Chevies 1-0 with Gordie Bell recording his first shutout. But for Gerry Devaney in the Chevie nets, the Macs would have won by a substantial margin.

They bowed 8-4 to the down-east club on Sunday after Gordie Bell was forced to retire from the game following a vicious behind-the-back charge when the club was leading 2-1. Barclay, who replaced him, was also injured and went to the dressing room for repairs after being slugged by a Cornwall forward.

The Saturday night game was highlighted by a penalty-box near free-for-all when five majors and as many misconducts besides two minors were handed out following a fracas between Kowalchuk and D. LaBelle of the Chevies.

Bell, who kept his goal intac t Saturday night and Eddie Marineau who scored three of the Macs' goals on Sunday, provided the highlights of the weekend performances.

EDDIE MARINEAU
Hits For Three—

BELLEVILLE 1 CORNWALL 0

The fourteen-penalty sin-bin fisticuffs fiesta marred what otherwise was a thrilling battle between the Macs and Chevies here Saturday night. The Macs were definitely "up" for this one and but for the sensational work of Gerry Devaney replacing Ray Frederick in the Cornwall net would have won by a larger margin.

Cornwall's Ray LaBelle started the bout when he interfered with Kowalchuk when the big winger was roaring in on goal. Kowalchuk retaliated with a slash over the footpads and both got minors.

LaBelle asked for and got his come-uppance when he needled Kowalchuk in the penalty box and the pair went into the punching act. LaBelle, with his sweater over his head, absorbed some stiff punches, then brother Don got into the act with his stick. Keith MacDonald leaped to the rescue as did Crawford, with Aitken also getting in on the fun.

The net result was a minor, major and misconduct to D. LaBelle and Kowalchuk and majors and misconducts to MacDonald, Crawford, R. LaBelle and Aitken.

The Macs shooting eyes were dead on the target. They blasted hot drives at Donlevy, outshooting the Chevies 36-25 on the night's play in a thrilling battle of the goalies. Gordie Bell, who registered his first shutout of the season, came up with sensational stops on goal-hungry Chevies but he was shaded by his busier opponent at the other end.

Referee Al Promaine handed out 22 penalties, an even dozen going to the Chevies. As it was the best hockey of the night was produced when the teams battled five men a side.

Sparked by the goalies, both defences played outstanding hockey, especially when at manpower disadvantage. The Macs whipped up a terrific first-period pace, pouring 11 shots to five at Devaney. Guidolin, Hildebrand and Menard all broke into the clear but were beaten by the Chevy goalie from point-blank range.

The only goal of the game was scored in the second period after peace had settled over the arena. Joe Lepine sent Minnie Menard on his way and the speedy winger roared into the Chevy zone. He slipped a pass to line-mate Guidolin, who blasted a sizzler at a top corner. Devaney got his mitt on it but it was too hot to handle and the puck zipped into the net off his glove.

The third period saw the desperate Chevies go all out in an effort to snatch their first victory in ten starts. They hemmed the Macs behind their blueline and Bell rose to heights, keeping driving pucks out of the net. The Macs roared back but failed to beat Devaney, firing 12 hard drives at him while Bell turned aside 11.

With forty seconds to go, Devaney came out of the nets but the Chevies failed to beat the stubborn Macs defence.

The line-up:

Cornwall — Goal, Devaney; defence, Bingley, R. LaBelle, D. LaBelle, Marshall; forwards, Savard, Payette, Grigg, St. Hilaire, Muir, Aitkin, Laplante, Henri, Burke.

CORNWALL — The Chevies clipped a nine-game losing streak her Sunday with an 8-4 victory that was costly to the McFarlands. Regular goalie Gordie Bell was removed from the game early in the second period after being charged from behind by Chevies Carmen Marshall, and later "Turk" Barclay sub goalie was also forced to retire after being deliberately high-sticked by Cornwall's Muir.

The McFarlands were leading 2-1 in the second heat when Bell was hurt. Barclay went in cold and the Chevies took a 3-2 lead at period end. "Turk" was attacked after six minutes of play in the third and the double injury appeared to take the drive out of the McFarlands.

The Chevies went on to score five goals in the final chapter with the Macs retaliating with a pair.

Eddie Marineau sparked the McFarland's attack with three goals with Wiener Brown getting the other. Bart Bradley had three assists and Joe Lepine two. Guy Henri scored twice for Cornwall with Bingley, Burke, St. Hilaire, LaPlante, Grigg and Marshall sharing the remainder.

Referee Lou LeCompte, well-known in this district officiated and did not pull any whistle punches. He dispersed 17 penalties all told nine to the Chevies including three majors and a misconduct. Barclay was tabbed with a major. Russ Kowalchuk was benched with a sore knee.

Bell was hurt after 4:41 in the second period. He left his net to clear the puck and while returning was charged from behind by Marshall who was tabbed with a major. Barclay was involved in a hassle with Muir at 6:14 of the third period and both were tabbed majors for fighting. Muir sticked Barclay over the head and was given another major for deliberately highsticking and the automatic misconduct for getting two majors.

The Chevies scored four of their goals while the McFarlands were a man short while the McFarlands goals were scored with the Chevies at full strength.

Bingley opened the scoring at 13:44 but Marineau got that one back two minutes later with Crawford and Bradley. The same player put the Macs in the lead at 7.34 of the second with Bradley and Lepine helping. The Chevies scored two more from Burke and LaPlante to take a 3-2 period lead.

GORDIE BELL
First Shutout—

Grigg and Marshall tallied before Barclay's injury and Henri scored his pair immediately on the goalie's return. Wiener Brown took Johnny Muretich pass to score and at 15:13 Marineau got his hat-trick with Bradley and Lepine again helping. St. Hilaire who had three assists scored the final Cornwall tally.

North Shades South 15-13 In Annual Tilt

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — The North won Saturday's Senior Bowl football game in the line. The 15-13 victory was largely a triumph for the heavier North forewall, plus a better balanced offense

The actual margin of victory was provided by end Rod Hanson of Illinois, named outstanding North lineman. The 198-pound defensive star blocked a punt by fullback Billy Atkins of Auburn for a second-quarter safety and an 8-0 Yankee lead.

Members of the winning team were paid $500 each, the losers $400.

Quebec Hockey

Michel Labadie broke a deadlock after 41 seconds of overtime Sunday night to give Quebec Aces a 4-3 win over Montreal Royals while league-leading Chicoutimi Sagueneens defeated Shawinigan Falls Cataracts 6-4 in another Quebec Hockey League game.

Montreal was leading 3-2 at 9:20 of the third period at Montreal after having scored three goals in four minutes when Bob Sabourin put in the equalizer, forcing the overtime.

Chicoutimi is now leading the circuit by a 10-point margin.

Western League Will Adopt International Hockey Rules

By RICHARD ANCO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CALGARY (CP)—Despite objections from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, the Big Six Intermediate Hockey League in Southern Alberta is going ahead with its experiment to "dispense with the current style of clutch-grab hockey" by adopting International hockey rules.

President John Watson says the seven-team league will use regulations of the International Ice Hockey Federation in two games in Calgary Tuesday night. The new rules will be enforced for the remainder of the regular league season, involving about 40 games.

Watson said in a statement Sunday the league hopes it will speed up the game, reduce injuries and boost spectator interest.

He also released a letter sent to him by George Dudley of Midland, secretary-manager of the CAHA.

"The association cannot permit a variety of rules to be used in the association and there is no authority for you changing to the International rules," Dudley said.

The Big Six in reply stressed that in becoming the first league in Canada to adopt IIHF rules, it was only doing so as an experiment. They are being tried on a "temporary basis and the teams within the league will revert to 1958 CAHA rules before playoff time."

Under the new setup, body-checking is restricted to the defending half of the ice. Icing the puck is not allowed and a player serving a minor penalty must sit out the full time.

Canadian rules allow body-checking the puck-carrier anywhere on the ice. Icing the puck is permitted when a team is playing short handed, due to a player being penalized. And a player sitting out a minor penalty can return to the ice when the opposing team scores.

International rules allow 15 players, including two net-minders, to be dressed while the CAHA stipulates 14 players and two goaltenders.

The Big Six includes three teams from Calgary, one a junior club, and one each from Lethbridge, Okotoks, Canmore and Nanton.

Shore Takes Bob Senior Under Wing

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (CP) — If personal tuition means anything in hockey, goalie Bob Senior of Kingston, may be an outstanding star of the future.

That's the prediction and plan of Eddie Shore, former National Hockey League star defenceman and now president of Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League.

Shore has been giving his 21-year-old protege personal guidance daily since Nov. 10 at the Coliseum where the Indians practise.

Shore got the hockey rights to Senior in a deal with Boston Bruins. Senior played last season with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A loop. Before that, he played with Barrie Flyers, Galt and Toronto Marlboros of the OHA Junior A.

COULD BE STANDOUT

Shore saw Senior in action and decided that—with proper training—he could be a standout. He decided to take him out of action and start the personal instruction.

Observers who have been watching say Senior has made startling improvement since becoming Shore's personal student.

Shore gave no sign of when he thinks Senior will be ready to go onto the firing range again, but he indicated he has no intention of replacing Springfield's regular goalie, Claude Evans, this season.

While it is common for a former star to take a special interest in a youngster of promise and give him personal training, it is rare for the student to be taken out of action for the instruction.

But Shore thinks it will be worthwhile. "He could become a real standout goalie," he says.

Matthews Paces Blackpool Win

LONDON (AP)—Old maestro Stanley Matthews turned on the magic two minutes from time Saturday and paved the way for Blackpool's 3-2 away victory over an Arsenal team struggling to regain some of its old soccer glory in the English Football League.

The 42-year-old Matthews whipped across to head Blackpool's winner just before the final whistle.

The Wolverhampton Wanderers grabbed a point from a 1-1 home tie against Luton Town and stayed in front as league leaders with a six-point edge over Preston North End.

Preston moved into the challengers' spot with a 3-1 victory over West Bromwich Albion. That victory moved Preston into second place with 34 points and dropped West Brom into third place with 33 points.

Manchester United, seeking its third straight English League championship success, tied 1-1 with Leeds United. United now is in fourth place with 32 points.

Juniors Meet Trenton Cubs Here Tonight

Belleville Lambert - Rollins will play host to the Trenton Cubs at Memorial Arena here tonight in a regular scheduled OHA Junior "B" hockey game at 8.00 p.m.

Trenton is in third place in the eastern loop with 11 points while Belleville is just three back with eight points in the four - team league. The two clubs battled in Trenton Saturday night with Belleville pulling out a 5-3 victory. All meetings between these teams have been evenly contested and tonight's game should be no exception.

Peterborough holds down the top spot by a wide margin and the other three clubs, Kingston, Belleville and Trenton, are fighting for the second and third playoff spots. The fourth-place finisher will meet the Petes in the playoffs, a series that none of the teams is looking forward to. Second and third will meet in the other half of the semi-finals.

Following tonight's game, Belleville will play next in Peterborough on Friday night.

Gump Worsley Providence Star Over Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley, hopeful of getting another chance with New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, turned in impressive weekend performances for the Providence Reds.

Worsley, who was farmed out to the American Hockey League in early November, excelled as the Reds whipped Springfield Indians 4-2 Sunday night. Providence and Springfield played to a 2-2 overtime tie Saturday.

Meanwhile, Marcel Paille, who started the season with the Reds, has been having his troubles in the Ranger nets. He has allowed 28 goals in his last five games and his NHL job is in jeopardy.

In other weekend games, Cleveland Barons swamped Buffalo Bisons 12-0 Saturday and then lost to the Bisons 4-1 Sunday night; Rochester Americans defeated Hershey Bears 5-2 Saturday and the teams tied 6-6 in overtime in a return engagement.

In the Providence - Springfield tie, Paul Larivee and Zellio Toppazzini scored for the Reds, Gerry Ehman and Bob Beckett replying for the Indians. The Providence marksmen Sunday night were Jim Bartlett, Larivee, Jim Bedard and Ted Hampson with Ken Schinkel and Beckett counting for Springfield.

HIS SEVENTH SHUTOUT

Cleveland's lopsided win over Buffalo was goalie Johnny Bower's seventh shutout of the season. Four of the Barons counted two goals apiece: Jimmy Moore, Fred Glover, Pete Goegan and Dan Poliziani. Bo Elik, Steve Kraftcheck, Johnny McLellan and Bill Shvetz got singles.

Ken Wharram, with two goals, Wally Hergesheimer and Sam Bettio sparked the Buffalo comeback Sunday night with Glover getting Cleveland's only tally.

In Rochester's victory over the league-leading Hershey club Saturday, Mike Nykoluk, Ken Girard, Ray Cyr, Earl Balfour and Ab McDonald scored for the winners. The Hershey goals were by Al Dewsbury and Lorne Davis.

The Rochester goal-getters in Sunday night's tie were McDonald, with two, Nykoluk, Ed Mazur, Cyr and Balfour. Davis and Dunc Fisher had two tallies apiece for Hershey and the others were by Len Haley and Willie Marshall.

Defenceman Allan Stanley of Boston Bruins whose third-period goal held Toronto Maple Leafs to a 2-2 tie in a Saturday game.

Forbes Kennedy who led Detroit Red Wings with two goals to a 4-1 victory over cellar-dwelling Chicago Black Hawks Saturday.

Detroit goalie Terry Sawchuk who stopped 40 shots to preserve the Red Wings 3-2 victory Sunday over New York.

Bobby Hull and linemate Ted Lindsay, each with a goal and three assists, shared scoring honors Sunday in Black Hawks 7-1 revenge win over Canadiens.

Ed Chadwick, Maple Leafs goaler, who played brilliantly to hold off a belated Boston bid that ended with Toronto gaining a 5-3 triumph Sunday.

Casper, That Is

Big Bill Banks Big Bills After Crosby Clambake Win

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Big Bill Casper, a 26-year-old ex-sailor, banked a fat $5,500 today as his winning share of the Bing Crosby golf tournament loot.

With the $2,200 he picked up as third-place finisher in the Los Angeles Open, Casper's cash register has clinked at an average of about $592 per day for 1958.

The 215-pound Californian captured the $4,000 top prize in Crosby's 72-hole $50,000 event Sunday with an 11-under - par score of 277 for a four-stroke lead. He collected another $1,500 as he and his amateur partner, former Stanford football star Bob Reynolds, finished second with a best-ball total of 261.

That was a stroke off the $2,000 winning pace of pro Jay Hebert and former California amateur champ Roger Kelly.

AL WINS $650

Canada's lone player in the final round, Toronto's Al Balding, ended with a four-day total of 291, 14 strokes off Casper's pace. Balding was tied with four others for 15th place and picked up $650.

Casper hit the most sensational shot of the tourney. It was a 135-yard belt with a No. 9 iron on the 11th hole that bounced twice and dropped into the cup for an eagle two. That sewed up victory for Casper, who won the Phoenix and Kentucky Derby Opens in 1957 while earning about $40,000.

Second place and $2,400 went to 24-year-old Dave Marr of Rumson, N.J., who carded a 281 total.

Deadlocked at 284 were Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla., Jack Burke, Jr. from Kiamesha ake, N.Y., and Ken Venturi of San Francisco. Their payoff was $1,633.

Hampton Pool Will Remain With Argonauts

TORONTO (CP)—Hamp Pool, regardless of the extra security he said he might get with Philadelphia Eagles, has turned down an offer to take over as head coach of the National Football League club to resume the job of pulling Toronto Argonauts out of the doldrums.

Pool said he has a moral obligation to return to Argos. The announcement of Pool's decision was made by Lew Hayman, managing director of the Big Four Football Union club that a few years ago was a power in Canadian football.

And Argos hope Pool is the man to make the team a contender once more. Last season—his first of a verbal two-year contract made with Hayman—Pool began to revamp the listless team.

Pool may have found the answer. After a dismal early season record—they lost their first seven games—Argos began to improve and took three of their last four games to wind up with a 4-10 won-lost record. But the best they could do was last place.

Before coming to Canada, Pool had three good seasons as head coach of Los Angeles Rams of the NFL. He was highly-regarded as one of the game's top offensive coaches.

Will Establish Hall of Fame In Kingston

KINGSTON (CP) — A spokesman for the Hall of Fame committee here says the committee is determined to have the International Hockey Hall of Fame established in or near Kingston.

The statement came after National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell said Friday in Montreal the NHL board of governors agreed to assist the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto in establishing a hockey Hall of Fame on the CNE grounds.

James B. Gavin, Kingston committee president, said the committee "most emphatically rejects the suggestion that the name of Capt. James T. Sutherland be associated in any way with the founding or approval or any other hockey Hall of Fame."

PRIME MOVER

The late Capt. Sutherland, a hockey player before the turn of the century, was a prime mover of an international hockey Hall of Fame here in Kingston. He was at one time president of the Ontario Hockey Association and of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The committee said:

"No branch of hockey can change the historical association of Kingston with the founding of hockey in Canada.

"The committee had worked for many years with the National Hockey League in efforts to establish the shrine in Kingston. These efforts have been unsuccessful and the committee will now turn its efforts in other directions."

Rocket Richard Back on Skates

MONTREAL (CP) — Maurice (Rocket) Richard went to an outdoor rink Sunday and skated for first time since a severe injury took him out of National Hockey League play last Nov. 13.

The Rocket's return to the ice was as a referee. He handled a game between teams of youngsters on a park rink near his home. He was on the ice about an hour.

Rocket said he thinks it will be a week or two before he can even figure on returning to practices with Montreal Canadiens.

The 36-year-old star suffered a severely cut Achilles tendon in an NHL game in Toronto. The final cast was not removed from his leg until around Christmas.

"The foot and leg right now aren't even 50 per cent good enough for hockey," said Richard after the mild workout. "They felt stiff and I haven't much strength in the tendon yet."

On the Tracks

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Frank C. Rand Jr.'s English-bred St. Amour 2nd came flying down the stretch Saturday to win the $64,100 Tropical Handicap by 2½ lengths.

L. L. Haggin 2nd's Manteau was second and Ada L. Rice's Hoop Band third in the field of 12

St. Amour was 10th at the start and dropped back to last as they rounded the clubhouse turn. The five-year-old had only one horse beaten at the far turn.

Then he turned on the speed, quickly moving on the leaders and going to the front soon after they straightened for the wire.

St. Amour 2nd, carrying 120 pounds, ran the mile and an eighth in 1:48 3-5, only two-fifths slower than the track record.

Althea Gibson Is Outstanding Female Athlete

NEW YORK (AP)—Althea Gibson, the first Negro to play at Wimbledon, Saturday was selected as the outstanding United States female athlete of 1957 by an overwhelming vote in The Associated Press year-end poll.

Miss Gibson, Wimbledon and United States women's tennis champion, will receive two large trophies. One is the Fraternal Order of the Eagles-Frederick C. Miller Trophy. The other is the Babe Didrikson Zaharias Trophy, presented in memory of the all-around athlete who was selected six times as the outstanding woman athlete in the AP poll.

The 30-year-old New Yorker, who started out playing paddle tennis on the sidewalks, received 420 out of a possible 516 points in the ballotting. Nearest to her was Patty Berg, professional golfer and 1955 woman athlete of the year, with 95 points. Bowling champion Marion Ladewig came in third with 81.

There was no question about Miss Gibson's supremacy in her own game. She won two of the world's foremost tennis championships and lost her only singles match of the year in the final of a third. That was the Australian championship in January, where she was beaten by Shirley Fry.

Baby Habs Lose 4th Defenceman; Longarini Hurt

HULL, Que. (CP)—Hull-Ottawa Canadiens have lost the fourth and last of their regular defencemen. They have also lost their goalie.

Defenceman John Longarini suffered a possible broken hand in Sunday's OHA Senior A eastern division game against Whitby Dunlops. It was not known how long he would be out.

The Canadiens announced it is dropping regular goalie Eric Reid for medical reasons. For Sunday's game, which resulted in a 6-6 tie, the Junior Habs had to borrow Whitby's regular netminder John Henderson. Whitby used sub-netminder Marv Edwards.

Longarini was the third regular defenceman lost to Canadiens in nine days. Andre Tardif suffered a broken arm a week ago Friday and is out for two months. Nick Murray, who suffered a badly cut foot in a game last Sunday, is out for the season.

The fourth defenceman is Claude Ruel, knocked out for the year early in the season when he suffered an eye injury.

Gerry James Signs Contract With Bombers

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bomber of the Western Interprovincial Football Union announced Saturday that halfback Gerry James has signed his 1958 contract and will be allowed to play the remainder of the hockey season with Rochester of the American League.

Club officials said James, who played two seasons with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League, will report to Rochester today. Rochester has a working agreement with Leafs and Montreal Canadiens.

James, last year's winner of the outstanding Canadian football award, was suspended by Leafs when he didn't report for fall training. Leafs said they would lift the ban if he went to Rochester.

West Whips Eastern Stars In Bowl Game

LOS ANGELES (CP) — The West turned on a powerful second-half offensive display Sunday to ship the East 26-7 in the National Football League's annual all-star game. The victory gave the West a 5-3 lead in the post-season pro bowl series.

A record crowd of 66,634 watched the contest in Memorial Coliseum, eclipsing the previous high of 53,676 which saw the 1951 game.

Fullback Alan (The Horse) Ameche of Baltimore Colts set the stage for the key scoring play of a fierce first half when he rambled 66 yards to the East four.

The East was ahead, 7-6, on an arching pass from Earl Morrall of Pittsburgh Steelers to Ray Renfro of Cleveland Browns, and it was anybody's ball game.

But Ameche's great run led to a nine-yard field goal by Bert Rechichar of the Colts that sent the West in front, 9-7, a lead it never surrendered.

Hugh McElhenny of the San Francisco '49ers was voted the "player of the game" by the sports editors of the four Los Angeles metropolitan papers, which sponsor the game.

Industrial Hockey

Hillcrest Wreckers and Point Anne, battling for the top spot in the Industrial hockey league, won their games over the weekend to draw a little farther ahead of the pack.

The Wreckers downed the Terrors 7-2 to hang onto first place with 11 points, while Point Anne defeated Circle TV 6-3 and now have ten points. The game between Terrors and Don's Delivery, played a week ago and won by the Terrors, has been thrown out and will be replayed.

Bobby Wannamaker fired two goals to pace the Hillcrest attack yesterday. The others were divided among Dave Kelly, George Crabb, Jack Lucas, Rob Burrows and Eddie Richards. Bill Storms and Vern Goyer tallied for the Terrors.

Doug Lucas and Frank Larkin scored twice each in leading the Point Anne victory march. Ron Hull and Pat Maracle added singletons. Bob Outred, Ross Parks and Dick Knattin were the Circle TV marksmen.

Following is the standing including yesterday's games:

Team	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Hillcrest	5	0	1	11
Point Anne	5	1	0	10
Don's Delivery	3	1	1	7
Terrors	2	4	0	4
Circle TV	1	5	0	1
Tweed	0	5	0	0

Minor Hockey

Maple Leafs, Bruins, Red Wings and Canadiens emerged the victors in the bantam section of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association Saturday morning.

The Leafs shaded Barons 2-1. Peter Armstrong and Jim Gillegly scored for the winners with Duminie drawing one assist. Bob Jeffery tallied for the Barons unassisted.

Bruins took a 3-1 victory over the Black Hawks. Rob Burr, John Tooth and Jim Maund were the marksmen with assists for Hall, Gilroy and Nolan. Lyle Adams fired the Hawk marker with Carson and Jones assisting.

Red Wings kept pace with the Bruins by defeating the Rangers 3-1. All Wing goals were on solo efforts by Barry Dafoe, Dave Hannah and Cam Wallbridge. Les Hill scored for the Rangers with Ross assisting.

Canadiens downed the Browns 5-2 with Garry Duvall sparking the attack. Duvall participated in all five Canadien scoring plays, netting the disc three times and drawing assists on the other two goals. Cliff McGrimmon was close on his heels, tallying twice and assisting on another pair. Jones earned one helper. Dennis Ray and Rod Turner were the Browns' scorers with Hull and Kinkaid getting assists.

Northern Electric Hockey

The Indians whipped the Flyers 12-6 in a free-wheeling Northern Electric interdepartment hockey league fixture yesterday while Barons blanked the Aces 2-0 in the second half of the twin bill.

Dave Jones, the loop's leading scorer, participated in ten of the Indians' 12 scoring plays. Jones clicked for six goals and added four assists. James netted four goals and one assist, Wardhaugh a goal and two helpers, and J. Semark a goal and two assists to complete the scoring.

Totten and Bedard scored two each with Skelly and Green getting one for the flyers. Barrett and Green had assists.

A pair of unassisted markers off the sticks of Salter and Taylor was the whole of the scoring in the Barons' narrow victory over the Aces.

Kids Say Darndest Things By Linkletter Best Seller

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Not content with being a television star and millionaire, Art Linkletter has become a best-selling author.

When I met the hearty extrovert he didn't mention the latest rating of People Are Funny or the success of his investments. But he was full of news about his book, Kids Say The Darndest Things.

"I just talked to my publishers today," he reported happily. "They said my book had sold 215,000 copies in the first four weeks, the biggest sales of any book they've had. And they publish Norman Vincent Peale, too!"

Linkletter was born in Moose Jaw, Sask., in January, 1912. His people moved to California when he was three years old.

GAG COMPILATION

The Linkletter volume is a compilation of the things kids have told him on his afternoon House Party TV show. Art has a way with the youngsters that manages to evoke hilarious statements. His favorite:

Linkletter: Was there anything your mother told you not to say when you got on my program?

Boy: Yes, she said not to say that she was pregnant.

Linkletter: Why not?

Boy: Because she isn't.

"That was a beauty, because it has a double kicker," Art said.

He has been collecting these remarks for over a decade. After each show, he dictates the choice ones to his secretary. He always figured he would do something with the material some day. But the opportunity never came until a Prentice-Hall editor happened to catch a House Party broadcast. He phoned Art and suggested the book.

DID IT HIMSELF

Art said he eschewed ghost writers and did the book himself.

"The problem in this book was organization. I knew I had plenty of good material. The job was to put it together so that it wasn't just one disconnected story after another."

Art did his job well, and the results began to show immediately. The Saturday Evening Post took the book for serialization. The sales jumped Art into the best-seller lists almost with publication.

The author is highly gratified, for more reasons than money. A few years back he wrote another tome, People Are Funny, describing his life and career as a radio-TV prankster. The book was a dud.

AT THE BELLE — Paul Newman, Ann Blyth and Richard Carlson, head a large cast in Warner Bros. "The Helen Morgan Story", in CinemaScope, playing tonight and Tuesday at the Belle Theatre. In all the world of great entertainers, never before such a personal exciting story.

Careful With That Puck, Son Mamma Spank

TIMMINS (CP) — Defenceman Gordie McGinn of South Porcupine Porkies ran into a spot of mother trouble during Sunday's Porcupine-Timmins Porcupine Mines Senior Hockey League game.

An angry woman fan threatened to put him "across my knee" after being struck on the side of the face by a puck McGinn had sent out of the rink.

Red-faced, McGinn went across to apologize.

The woman was his mother.

AT THE PARK — Beverly Garland and Beverly Tyler, starring in the thrilling expose film "Chicago Confidential", a United Artists release now at the Park Theatre, struggle against labor goons in this exciting moment from a drama-packed motion picture. On the same program "Street of Sinners", starring George Montgomery and Geraldine Brooks. Both big action hits are first Belleville showings.

Ward Bond Tells of Many Changes Made in Westerns

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Ward Bond, who cracks the bull whip as the wagonmaster of that most adult western, Wagon Train (NBC-TV), isn't sure that he knows exactly what adult means.

"As a matter of fact, I rather resent that phrase 'adult western,'" said the husky veteran of more than 100 westerns on a visit to New York.

There have been plenty of changes in westerns since Bond started riding the movie ranges back in 1929. The Indians have pretty much disappeared from this television and movie entertainment form. The cowboys aren't so populous either.

STORIES OF PEOPLE

"Both in television and the movies," said Bond, "they've taken stories about people and laid them in a western background. The cavalry no longer charges in the last reel, if that's what they mean by 'adult.'

"We try to tell stories about people instead of things. What nearly everybody forgets is that most of the credit for this goes to a fellow named John Ford who made a picture called Stagecoach 20 years ago. And what was Stagecoach? I'll tell you. It was simply a de Maupassant story set in a stage coach.

"If there's any secret to popular entertainment of any form it's this: If you have a good story to tell, people will look at you."

HIGH RATING

People certainly are looking at Wagon Train, which tells a complete story each week about a group of pioneers going West to California in 1868. Its audience rating figures indicate that it will keep on rolling for many TV seasons to come.

As the most seasoned veteran of westerns on the show, Bond finds plenty to do besides acting the role of the wagonmaster. He insists on the greatest authenticity in all details—including the types of actors cast: "We try to get people who represent physically the type of people they were in those days."

When a horse backed into Bond recently and injured his leg, he had a choice of dropping out of the series temporarily and recuperating in a hospital or continuing to play his role on crutches.

He chose crutches. "And I made sure that the research department found out exactly what crutches looked like in those days—and had a pair made for me."

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Aries (March 21 to April 19)—If you use the right psychology today, you can get the most out of financial experts who are self-seeking, and the right tactics will endear you to loved ones for all time. Don't be gullible.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)—It is not necessary to get caught in the middle of an argument between a close tie at home and a stranger. Be neutral since each is friendly to you. Show how unimportant the altercation is and you save the day.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—A private anxiety could get you off the track today that would keep you from finding those bargains, little gems you so want, stocking up on supplies. Worry is only a bad habit so get rid of it now. Go out and shop. Be happy.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21)—While several of your feet-on-the-ground ideas are good right now, you realize that you are also weighted down by some heavy bills or unexpected expenses that make things a bit difficult. Stick to wise work schedule and you succeed.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — If you get out into the world of action, attend to civic matters and pay less attention to personal matters, vanity at home, you will win out. Be certain to follow orders of those in authority, laws to the letter.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—There is a fine chance to step into something very worthwhile today if you do not magnify little troubles, annoyances. Read your paper, meet new people and get out of small dull - doldrum existence. Restore your ego.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Give an ear to a comrade who has a marvelous personality and a heart to go with it instead of some cold individual who thinks himself an authority. Hence, you maintain highest standards and also assist a person who needs you.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—An associate and a higher up do not see eye to eye, and each is coveting your favor in order to gain the support needed. Be wise and paddle your own canoe, thereby avoiding any disturbance now and later on.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) It is possible today to start operating on a cheerier note, devoid of the tensions that have made your lot a rather heavy one of late, doubtless due to the after - holiday blues and tiredness. Change your attitude.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — If you do not concentrate on the truly fine aspects that are visible right now, you will surely permit some ignorant remark or act from a stuffed shirt to get you down. Brighten others' lives, instead, with a warm smile.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Leave the house de bon matin today. This will take away that depressed feeling and put you in contact with live, successful persons in whose sphere you belong. Take time to show associates your happiness with their alliance.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)—It is best to get off to some other atmosphere today instead of permitting regular associates, fellow workers to annoy you to point of throwing things, venting your temper. Seek birds of a feather and do big things.

If your child is born today . . . The child born this day is the type of handsome tot who will not be scared off easily in his or her attempt at something that seems important at the moment, although there may be an element of bravado in the makeup. Take care to intelligently guide in constructive channels, or the slightly deceptive quality could lead to ruination. The religious training is the thing here. If that is right, you have a success.

"I'm sorry if the check is a little wet—my husband was crying."

Two-Thirds of $74 Million Peacetime Budget Asked by Eisenhower to Be for Defence

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower put before the United States Congress today a record peacetime budget just short of $74,000,000,000.

By far the largest part of it, almost two-thirds, is for defence against growing danger from Russia in "the dawning age of space conquest."

The president disclosed that the government now expects to wind up in the red for the fiscal year ending June 30, and he announced his intention to ask for a short-term increase in the present $275,000,000,000 limit on the national debt.

VOICES CONFIDENCE

But he voiced confidence that business will pick up and tax receipts will increase so that the new $73,900,000,000 budget, for the 1958-59 fiscal year, will be in balance. He said he expects a surplus of $500,000,000 or so, compared with the $400,000,000 deficit now in sight for this year.

The White House announced in advance that Eisenhower's budget message, which ran to some 22,000 words with a mass of figures attached, would outline a domestic program largely passed over in last Thursday's "state of the union" message.

It did But, like the earlier message, it put heaviest emphasis on security matters with a $39,800,000,000 request for the armed forces alone. With this expected boost, almost $2,000,000,000 higher than last January's estimate, Eisenhower asked:

1. A $3,800,000,000 increase in spending for missile and nuclear weapon research and production. This would give the defence department an extra $1,300,000,000 to spend as soon as the money is appropriated, plus $2,500,000,000 more than it now has on hand for 1958-59.

2. A $500,000,000 reserve fund to rush development of any breakthroughs in the weapons field, together with authority to switch $2,000,000,000 around within the armed services "in order to take prompt advantage of new developments."

3. For foreign military and related aid, $3,868,000,000 to be spent in the coming fiscal year. This is a $119,000,000 increase over the current figure.

All told, the new budget calls for 1958-59 spending at more than $1,000,000,000 over the current rate even allowing for recent speedups in missile and other weapons programs And the current spending program, running at $72,800,000,000 a year, is the highest in American peacetime history.

Eisenhower called for cuts as well as increases in the new budget. For the armed forces, he recommended a $1,500,000,000 slash in manpower, installations and older type weapons, including B - 52 bombers and some other aircraft. And he proposed "curtailments, revisions or eliminations" of many non-military programs, ranging from federal payments to farmers to expenditures for veterans' services and benefits.

Eisenhower said:

"Americans have a tradition of uniting in action when their freedoms and welfare are threatened. We do not shirk our clear responsibilities when new challenges arise.

"I feel confident that this budget expresses the way in which the American people will want to respond to the promises and dangers of the dawning age of space conquest."

He told Congress, too, that his program reflected the administration's "gradually but substantially" changing emphasis in the light of "growing danger" from Russian military advances.

And as the White House forecast earlier, no general tax increases are proposed. Eisenhower suggested, in fact, some tax cuts to aid small business, while recommending higher taxes on aviation fuels to reduce the cost to the government of its activities in the air traffic field.

Likewise, the president included in his message a previously announced plan for a four-year $1,000,000,000 program aimed at helping the states improve education standards. But he said he was not repeating at this time his proposal of federal aid for school construction.

He came up with at least one recommendation which, like his foreign aid plan, is sure to meet opposition: A five-year extension of the reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, with more power for the president to make tariff-cutting agreements with other countries.

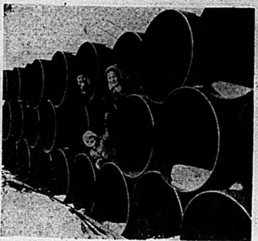
MAKE PLAYGROUNDS OF PIPE



Children at points between Bracebridge and Maple, Ont., have found a new world to explore. Once inside the 40-foot lengths of the pipe left for use in construction of a natural gas line, the children are content to play happily for hours. Since the pipe is of metal, they do no damage.

Demarcation Line Between East and West Germany Now Effectively Guarded Barrier

EDITOR'S NOTE: Ten years ago a German AP staffer sneaked across the border into Communist East Germany. The other day he made a trip along the same Iron Curtain border. What did he find? Here are his impression of a decade of change.

By HELMUT von BRAUCHITSCH

BONN, Germany (AP)—It was late afternoon when I jumped over the small creek that marked the border between the British and Soviet zones of occupation in Germany.

I had reckoned this a good time to cross into the east zone. It was about dinner time for the Soviet army soldiers who patrolled the fields and woods on the east side of the border.

But the Russians in this area apparently had a late dinner. I had been under observation by a Soviet guard.

Shouting "stoj" (stop) and pointing his machine-gun at me, he stepped out from behind a bush. He searched me thoroughly and transferred my cigarets, matches, a pocket knife and comb to his own pockets and then forced me to return west over the same route I had taken.

My second attempt was more successful. After walking about a mile along the Western side of the demarcation line, I crossed again into the east.

This time I reached a railway station about eight miles from the border and made my way through the Soviet zone into the freedom of West Berlin without mishap.

10 YEARS AGO

All this happened 10 years ago. It was then—shortly after the war—not an unusual way for German citizens to travel between the two parts of Germany. the "green border" every day in both directions, with more or less luck.

Today such adventures belong to the past. The former demarcation line has become a closely and effectively guarded barrier—

Illegal crossings of the 850-mile frontier separating West from

A regularly plowed strip of East Germany have dwindled down to fewer than a dozen a week.

ground about 10 yards wide today marks the boundary between West Germany and what the Communists call the German Democratic Republic.

To step onto this strip—often called Pieck Alley after East German President Wilhelm Pieck—most likely means death at the hands of East German machine gunners. Additionally, for about one-third of its length, the Soviet zone border is barricaded with barbed wire.

Behind the plowed death strip comes a 300-yard-wide "barred area" where border troops with trained dogs patrol day and night.

MANY METHODS

There are more than 400 wooden watchtowers, hundreds of ground shelters and intricate systems of trip wires connected to various alarm devices in this area.

On the Western side the frontier is marked only by a sort of traffic sign saying "zonengrenze" (zonal border). Regular customs men keep an eye out for smugglers. So far as the West Germans are concerned, any East German may cross if he is not a smuggler or agent.

The strength of the east zone border guard is estimated at nearly 50,000 men. The guards are garrisoned and can be regarded as part of East Germany's Peoples Army.

Their counterpart on the Western side is the West German frontier police comprising nearly 15,000 men.

The only open surface traffic connections between West and East Germany today are four roads, seven railroads and two waterways. Interrupted at the border are 157 highways and country roads and 27 railroad lines.

Millions of Germans have been legally channeled every year through the few official crossing points in both directions.

The number of people from East Germany visiting friends and relatives in the West is expected to reach 2,700,000 this year.

People from East Germany must have exit permits from their home authorities and they are not allowed to take any money with them.

Diefenbaker Arranges Study Of U.S.-Style Pension Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker, without committing his government on future policy, has hinted at a possible broadening of the old age pension system by a contributory plan similar to the United States program of social security.

He announced in the Commons Monday the appointment of Gordon Huson, English-born professor at the University of Western Ontario at London, Ont., to report on whether a system similar to the American plan "could be fitted or adapted to our Canadian requirements."

His announcement came on the eve of the three-day national Liberal convention here, where one of the major concerns will be the drafting of a Liberal party social security platform for a general election expected soon.

Commons reaction to his statement was mixed.

James Sinclair (L—Coast-Capilano) called it "window dressing."

Alistair Stewart (CCF — Winnipeg North) asked with a straight face: "Does the prime minister realize that he is wrecking the Liberal convention by this announcement?"

Mr. Diefenbaker made no reply, but CCF whip Hazen Argue commented: "I am sure the prime minister realizes what he is doing."

Mr. Diefenbaker listed some of the benefits available under the U.S. plan: Average monthly retirement pensions of $76 for single workers, $128 for married couples $65 for aged widows; survivor benefits of up to $200 a month for families of insured workers dying before normal retirement age; retirement pensions starting at age 65 for men and 62 for women.

He said all this is provided for by an average contribution of $27.08 a year from each person, compared with the average per-person cost of $22.70 a year for the special taxes which finance Canada's $55 monthly pensions to all 70 and over.

He emphasized that the government is thinking of a contributory plan which would be in addition to the present old age pensions.

Smiths Falls Gang Ordered To Disband

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Magistrate D. C. Smith today ordered a gang of seven teenagers, calling themselves the Brooklyn Dukes, to disband after the boys pleaded guilty to a total of 10 charges including theft and breaking and entering. Three of the boys are 14; the others 16.

Six boys were placed on six months' probation under an 11 p.m. curfew. The seventh, charged with negligence in connection with a $200 barn fire, was remanded after evidence was given that he had no place to live.

Three Dukes pleaded guilty to breaking and entering and theft of $6 worth of chocolates from a bread company warehouse. Six pleaded guilty to another theft of $6 in cookies from the same firm.

Smiths Falls is about 45 miles southwest of Ottawa.

Plane Circles Field 6 Times Before Landing

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) A Trans - World Airlines plane from New York with 51 passengers and a crew of 10 landed safely here today after overflying London airport with undercarriage trouble.

Four fire engines and an ambulance were rushed to the runway at Frankfurt's Rhine-Main airport in case the plane had to crash-land.

The big craft circled the field six times, apparently in an effort to use up its gasoline supply or to give the crew time to correct the trouble with the undercarriage.

Margaret's Portrait Sweeps World News Off Front Pages

LONDON (Reuters) — A lustrous-eyed, full-mouthed portrait of Princess Margaret gazed out today at millions of Britons.

Margaret's long - awaited portrait by Italian painter Pietro Annigoni swept world news clean off the front pages of British newspapers.

Nearly every paper dubs the painting The Mona Lisa Princess after Leonardo da Vinci's famed picture.

The artist's third royal portrait—he has painted Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip—was commissioned by Queen Mother Elizabeth.

She is said to be "delighted" with her daughter's portrait.

The painting of the 27-year-old princess shows her dressed in a simple white sleeveless gown, her hands holding a dark taffeta stole which has slipped from her left shoulder.

Annigoni is quoted as saying: "I have painted the princess as a woman of mystery not completely understood by anyone. The princess has so many moods —sometimes sad, sometimes smiling, sometimes mysterious. It was very difficult for me to get the right interpretation."

The Daily Mail's art critic enthuses over the "large, luminous eyes and that witty, fleshy mouth" in the portrait.

Annigoni first blazed into national prominence with the sensational success of his portrait of Queen Elizabeth, painted in 1955.

Overnight the artist, now 47, became a national celebrity.

But Annigoni's portrait of Prince Philip, painted a year later, aroused hostile comment from art critics and laymen alike. Many newspapers complained that the picture made the Queen's husband look "sinister."

CONGRESS FINDS FISCAL PICTURE FAR FROM BRIGHT

Afraid of Deficit Despite High Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The spectre of deficit spending and continued high taxes haunted submission of a peacetime record $73,900,000,000 federal budget.

Reaction in the Democratic-controlled Congress was that the fiscal picture painted by the President Monday in his annual budget message was anything but bright. But Congress had not expected a rosy report in the light of currant defence needs.

There is little doubt that Congress will approve all or most of the $39,800,000,000 outlay projected for the defence department. But argument is expected over non-defence spending proposals in an effort to widen the narrow gap between expected spending and expected revenue during the coming fiscal year.

Even as it put the finishing touches on an emergency $1,260,000,000 defence fund, the House Sunday called hearings for Jan. 27 on the military budget for the year starting July 1.

Subcommittee chairman James Mahon (Dem. Tex.) called the new military budget "conservative insofar as ballistic missiles and other weapons of the future are concerned." It might even have to be increased, he said.

The general attitude among the legislators appears to be that as far as security is concerned, the sky is the limit.

The Soviet government today said President Eisenhower had submitted a "war budget" to Congress.

"Never before in peacetime has the United States allocated such big funds for military purposes," the government newspaper Izvestia says in an article broadcast by Moscow radio.

Charge War Hero Tried to Steal Crosby's $40,000

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) A man who says he is a war hero is charged with burglary, assault with a deadly weapon and attempted robbery in trying to take the $40,000 receipts from the Crosby golf tournament.

He was to appear in court today for a preliminary hearing but the Monterey County sheriff's office said positive identification would have to wait two days for a fingerprint check.

The man says he is Lt.-Col. Melvin Russell Blair, 42, who retired from the U.S. Army with a distinguished record. Blair once threw a .45-calibre automatic pistol in the face of a Communist after running out of ammunition during a battle on Razorback Ridge in Korea.

Blair was wounded in the Second World War and twice in Korea, and was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross twice, the Silver Star, the Bronze Star three times, the Air Medal, and three Purple Hearts (wound decorations).

Attempts to find Blair failed Monday night at Washington, Alexandria and in Kansas towns where he has lived.

Irked by Statement in Martin's Publicity, Pickersgill Throws Support to Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — J. W. Pickersgill today threw his support publicly behind Lester B. Pearson for the Liberal leadership shortly after the party's national convention opened.

The former citizenship and immigration minister, angry at an article quoting him in a convention newspaper issued by supporters of Paul Martin, said the article misrepresented his position and prompted him to announce his backing of Mr. Pearson.

Speaking to reporters during a convention recess, Mr. Pickersgill said the article contained misleading propaganda and added:

"I am extending my support to Mr. Pearson because I consider him incomparably the best person available for the leadership."

He added that he is sure Mr. Martin had nothing to do with the article that stirred up the first display of open anger at the three - day convention called to choose a tsuccessor to retiring leader Louis S. St. Laurent.

The article that riled the former minister consisted of a transcript of some remarks by Mr. Pickersgill on a recent CBC press conference. Under the transcript was a statement that "more and more people in these parliamentary parts are saying Martin's the man."

Mr. Pickersgill regarded that as having been attributed to himself, but said he did not say it.

Excerpts from the transcript had him saying that it would not be proper to say there is a tradition that a French - speaking Liberal leader should be replaced by an English - speaking one.

Mr. St. Laurent and Mr. Martin are of French extraction. Mr. Martin told reporters he had no hand in the paper's production, adding: "I am sure my workers are doing their best to ensure my election."

"However, the important thing is Mr. Pickersgill's statement of principle that there is no tradition of alternate English- and French-speaking leaders in the party. He does not deny that now.

"It is important that the convention be given an opportunity to make a choice on the basis of qualifications and on no other and Mr. Pickersgill's comments were considered important on that account."

Mr. Pickersgill was fuming when he ran across the article in the pro-Martin Liberal Convention Daily while the convention proceedings were on.

He hustled to the platform and showed it to Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland, Mr. St. Laurent and Mr. Pearson before moving into the press room to summon reporters for his announcement of support for Mr. Pearson.

Waving a copy of the four-page tabloid above his head, he referred to it as "this thing."

It had been generally known that Mr. Pickersgill was supporting Mr. Pearson, but he said he had not intended previously to make any public announcement of this.

Police Capture Second Suspect In Cheque Racket

OTTAWA (CP) — RCMP said Monday night they have captured a second suspect in connection with the theft Friday of cheques from the federal treasury office.

They also said they have been run ragged answering calls as a group of forged-cheque passers cashed about 20 cheques for amounts between $80 and $150. The two suspects were captured outside different stores by the same two soft drink delivery men in a bizarre coincidence.

Ray Jean Ross and Robert B. Dompierre collared the first suspect after he tried to pass a cheque at a grocery store in the northwesterly Wrightville district of neighboring Hull, Que. When cashier Lise Lajoie refused to accept the cheque, the man ran from the store. The delivery men spotted the running man and stopped him.

Later, they were telling the manager of another Wrightville grocery store of their experience. A man picked that moment to try to cash a similar cheque at the store. The delivery men detained him and called police.

RCMP have warned store proprietors of the theft. Inspector H. S. Cooper of the Ottawa division said several men have been trying to pass the cheques.

Six Juveniles Face Charges

TORONTO (CP) — Police said today they have charged six juveniles ranging in age from 12 to 14 years with a series of shopbreakings in the west - central part of the city since mid-December.

Two were arrested Saturday and the others Monday night following an investigation. Included in the loot, police said, were 21 pairs of women's slacks, 30 pairs of boys' trousers, 107 cartons of cigarets, 15 boxes of chocolates and a small amount of cash.

Missing Royal Navy Vessel Found Aground

OBAN, Scotland (AP)—Searchers today located the missing royal navy vessel Barcombe aground near the entrance of the Firth of Lorne and reported that some of her crew of 30 were suffering from exposure.

The 750-ton boom defence vessel had been missing for 17 hours off Scotland's fogbound western coast.

One unconfirmed report said the Barcombe had been abandoned.

A search by land, sea and air went on Monday night and today for the ship. The Barcombe reported herself aground and in difficulty and then was not heard from until her radio broadcast a weak, indistinct signal this afternoon.

Searchers said the Barcombe had been found ashore on the island of Garvelloch off the Argyll coast, about 17 miles west-northwest of her supposed position.

Rescue vessels sped to the small bleak island and arrangements were made to take casualties to Oban hospital.

The report that the ship had been abandoned came from a lifeboat involved in the search. Fog and heavy swells hampered the searchers.

Shot Fired In Holdup Bid

TORONTO (CP) — A west-end service station attendant told police a shot was fired at him today by one of two armed men during an attempted holdup.

John Holland said he came out of the station office when the men drove in. One pointed a gun at him and ordered him back to the office. The other levelled a gun at his back and told him to hurry.

He said he backed to the door, opened it, jumped inside and when slammed the door. Holland said one of the men fired a shot through the window which came close to his head. Then they fled.

General Strike Grips Bahamas

NASSAU, Bahamas (CP)—The first general strike in the history of this British colony has completely paralyzed Nassau's tourist industry, and most hotels will be closed Wednesday unless there is a settlement.

The strike originated in a taxi union's jurisdictional dispute with other transport interests. Hotel workers stopped work in sympathy, and Monday health department workers, garbage collectors and stevedores joined the strike.

A cruise ship from Miami returned home Monday with all passengers and other ships on cruises which are due to call here have radioed agents for instructions.

No immediate changes in schedules were reported by regular ships or airlines serving the resort capital.

9,235 Scientists Urge Cessation Of Nuclear Tests

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Nobel Prize winner Linus Pauling submitted to the UN today a petition signed by 9,235 scientist calling for an international agreement to stop nuclear bomb tests now.

The scientists of 44 countries include 36 Nobel Prize winners, 104 members of the U.S. National Academy of Sciences, 35 fellows of the Royal Society of London, and 216 members of the Soviet Academy of Sciences.

The 1954 Nobel Prize winner in chemistry told reporters that in his opinion the list of signers represents the opinion of a majority of the scientists of the world.

Dr. Pauling is head of the division of chemistry and chemical engineering at the California Institute of Technology Pasadena.

He turned the petition over to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold. The UN takes no action on such documents but makes them available to member governments on request.

Montreal Surgeon Pioneers New Heart Surgery Successfully

NEW YORK (CP)—A Canadian surgeon has told of one phase in the battle of doctors against heart disease.

Dr. Arthur M. Vineberg of Montreal, who has pioneered a new method of heart surgery, said Monday night there has been a high percentage of success in cases that were reached in time. his procedure—is extremely complicated as he described it at a panel discussion at the Clinical Society of the New York Polyclinic Medical School and Hospital.

Vineberg said, however, that his method could be accurately expressed in layman's language this way:

There are two main arteries, the coronary arteries that carry blood to the heart. If they are narrowed or blocked, the life of the patient can be saved by the implanting (a sort of grafting) of an artery to bypass the other two.

Dr. Vineberg stressed in an interview that he does not recommend the operation unless the patient's "angina pain is interfering with his normal life on a daily basis."

On the basis of patients who had no pain while "at rest," and were able to walk, say, half a block without pain, Dr. Vineberg said it has a record of only five per cent of "operative mortality."

"Eighty per cent of these were unable to work prior to operation," the doctor said. "Afterwards, 78 per cent of the survivors were pain-free, or had slight pain or less pain. And 88 per cent of the survivors returned to work."

This was the more remarkable because the patients almost invariably did physical labor. They included a farmer, machine shop worker, crane operator, charwoman, pullman porter, trainman and taxi driver.

Dr. Vineberg said the statistics could be based on 75 cases.

Tabs on the patients have been kept for nearly seven years, and 75 per cent were still alive, 60 per cent working full time.

"The operation has been criticized on the basis that the new artery itself will become blocked," said Vineberg. "There now is irrefutable evidence in many human cases that the artery remains open months and years later. In fact, in one case it was the only arterly left open in the heart."

Liberals Begin Process To Pick Leader, Platform

Betting Favors Pearson But Martin Is Hopeful

OTTAWA (CP) — With customary fanfare but little open evidence of politicking for leadership candidates, the fourth national Liberal convention started today in Ottawa's Coliseum.

Some 2,500 voting delegates and alternates heard a brief welcome from retiring leader Louis S. St. Laurent and then settled down to a morning of the routine business of choosing convention officers and working committees.

As they went through the usual preliminaries, the delegates gave few indications of partisanship either for Lester B. Pearson or Paul Martin, the two chief aspirants to succeed Mr. St. Laurent.

Only a scattering of lapel badges favoring one or another of the two former Liberal ministers was on display, and there were no demonstrations favoring either as they entered the convention auditorium together shortly after the three-day session was declared open at 10:25 a.m.—25 minutes late.

Mr. Pearson, former external affairs minister, and Mr. Martin, former health minister, climbed the platform steps together and, after a brief consultation on seating arrangements, sat down side by side in front row seats.

Beside Mr. Pearson at Mayor Don Mackay of Calgary, who has announced his candidature but hsince arriving in Ottawa Sunday has stated he may withdraw before Thursday night's ballotting and support Mr. Pearson.

HENDERSON LATECOMER

A late arrival was Rev. H. Lloyd Henderson, mayor of Portage La Prairie, Man., also an announced candidate.

Mr. St. Laurent said he was keeping his remarks brief as he would have another opportunity to speak tonight. He was to deliver his retiring address at 8:20 p.m.

It was fitting, he said, that the party's fourth national convention should be in the country's capital and he was proud to have followed in the steps of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mackenzie King in his association with the capital's development.

"Canada is on her way to becoming a great nation and she must have a capital worthy of her status." Much progress had been made.

He extended a "special welcome" to the Newfoundland delegates, attending a national Liberal convention for the first time. Many of them had played a role in the province's entry into Confederation in 1949.

The Quebec delegation's presence, he said in French, symbolized the close collaboration existing in Canada between English- and French-speaking Canadians.

MARTIN PRINTS PAPER

Meanwhile, Mr. Martin's supporters came out with a four-page tabloid newspaper distributed in the Coliseum. An editorial quoted his committee chairman — former MP James Brown of Brantford—as saying delegates should not conclude that the next leader must be an

WEEKLY INCREASE IN UNEMPLOYED LEVELLING OFF

Starr Voices Hope Rate May Decline

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons Monday had an eye on the Liberal leadership convention opening here today and an ear to the latest unemployment situation.

Leadership contender Paul Martin, MP for Essex East, brought up unemployment by questioning Labor Minister Michael Starr about it.

Mr. Starr informed the House that as of Jan. 2, the number of job applications with the National Employment Service totalled 754,640. This compared to 436,163 on Jan. 3, 1957.

It was an increase of 56,487 from the previous week and the minister said the weekly rate of increase had levelled off for the first time since Dec. 1. The average weekly increase had been 65,900.

Mr. Starr said this levelling off gives reason to anticipate that the weekly rate of climb may be tapering off.

NOT ACTUAL

He added that the new registrations cannot be taken as actual unemployment figures since they include persons still employed but looking for other jobs, seasonal workers who normally live during the winter on their summer earnings, persons who have found jobs on their own and neglected to inform the commission and others in similar situations.

But Mr. Starr said there is no doubt "that the figure has been growing steadily."

"There is no doubt, too, that it is a useful indicator of unemployment or at least of the labor situation in this country."

He said that since seasonal unemployment insurance benefits extend to May 15 the rise in registrations can be expected to be maintained until that time.

GIVES BREAKDOWN

National Employment Service figures later gave this regional breakdown with comparative figures in brackets for Dec. 5, 1957, and Jan. 3, 1957:

Atlantic region, 106,114 (60,591 — 62,431); Quebec, 239,274 (147,240—132,707); Ontario, 219,894 (153,305 — 125,868); Prairie, 95,419 (70,113 — 59,330); Pacific, 93,939 (73,608—55,629).

Mr. Starr said he wanted to point out that the weekly increases were lower for the Jan. 2 week in Ontario, the Prairie provinces and the Pacific region than a year earlier.

When the Commons got to other business, the distractions of the Liberal convention preparations were apparent in the dwindling numbers in the Commons. At one point fewer than 30 of the 265 members were present.

Mr. Bentley pleaded not guilty to the charge and was remanded by Mr. Justice Moorhouse until Monday for trial. In the meantime Crown Attorney John Pringle was instructed to secure legal aid for the accused.

The trial is being held at the January assizes of the Supreme Court being presided over by Mr. Justice Moorhouse.

Three Escape Drowning, Truck Goes Through Ice

PICTON — Three men narrowly escaped death by drowning yesterday when a half - ton truck crashed through the ice and sank in the Bay of Quinte. Elgin Scott, who was carried with the truck beneath the ice, was rescued by his brother, Carl Scott who had leaped to safety, before the vehicle sank in twenty feet of water.

The truck was driven by Carl Scott and along with his brother was Bob Clarke. They had driven a short distance from shore near an old wharf at Bongards, seven miles south-east of Picton. The ice is eight inches thick but there was a large triangular crack and this section gave way beneath the vehicle which was loaded with fish nets.

As the truck began to sink, Carl Scott jumped from it and pulled Clarke with him, but Elgin Scott was unable to get the door on his side opened and went down with it. Free of the ice he was able to get the door open and came to the surface. Lying on the ice, his brother and Clarke were able to pull him to safety.

In sinking the truck landed on its wheels. A chain was attached and later in the day, Lawrence Burford's tow truck pulled it back up through the hole. So well was the job done that the truck did not have a scratch, suffering only from water damage. Scott suffered no ill effects from his wintry ducking.

Police Blotter

City and Provincial Police, as well as city firemen, reported a quiet night watch. Firemen reported no alarms and police officers had only routine matters coming to their attention

City police reported a minor accident on South Church St. when a vehicle driven by Harold J. Baker of Great St. James St. was emerging from the waterworks commission yard and in turning right struck the side of a northbound vehicle driven by Charles D. Haley, Foster Ave.

Provincial Police reported no accidents.

City police reported the theft of a number of flood lights from a pole at the Jack Sharland Service Station on Dundas St., while Provincial Police yesterday reported the theft of a set of acetylene cutting torches and 100 feet of hose from the Donovan Construction Company at the corner of Sidney and College Streets.

Govts. to Assist Municipalities

George A. Whitman, city welfare administrator, said today that unemployed men and women can receive monetary benefits from this municipality.

At last count there were about 2,400 unemployed people in Hastings County.

Since the opening of this welfare program on January 2, Mr. Whitman has handled 89 cases. The number is increasing gradually.

What benefits can an unemployed person get from the municipality?

Example: A married man with four children, who is not drawing unemployment insurance, may receive $39.70 per week.

This figure would decrease if he is receiving money from the unemployment insurance commission. Single men and women are also entitled to assistance from the city, but to a lesser degree, of course.

Municipal contributions to unemployment assistance amount to 20 per cent with the provincial and federal governments contributing the rest. The provincial government pays 80 per cent of the cost of medical services to recipients of assistance, while the federal government does not contribute to this. The municipality contributes the remainder.

Effective January 1, the provincial government is contributing to municipally operated homes for the aged about 75 per cent of the net cost of maintenance.

Judge Critical Of Conditions At Courthouse

What was termed the disgraceful condition of the Hastings County Courthouse came in for criticism from The Honorable Mr. Justice E. G. Moorhouse as the January Assizes of the Supreme Court opened here yesterday.

Reference to the condition of the Belleville courtroom and courthouse was made by Mr. Justice Moorhouse following empanelling of the grand jury. The jury was directed by the presiding judge to inspect the county buildings and to report their findings to the court.

"Our ancestors constructed court buildings which in their time were a credit to themselves and their community," stated Mr. Justice Moorhouse, asking if we today should be disgraced by the condition in which many of these buildings have been allowed to lapse.

The condition of the Belleville courtroom came in for criticism from the local bar association last autumn with representatives of the association appearing before the finance committee of county council with a list of recommendations for work which they felt should be done to provide better facilities.

Problems Facing Council Outlined by Mayor Hyde At Rotary 'Municipal Day'

Mayor Gerald B. Hyde, members of city council, and heads of other municipal departments were guests of Belleville Rotary club yesterday for their annual "Municipal Day."

In his address Mayor Hyde outlined some of the problems facing this year's council, among them the innovation of a tax-prepayment scheme, the 12-year-old problem of financing a badly needed municipal sewage disposal system, seasonal unemployment, and annexation.

The proposed tax-prepayment scheme is designed for citizens able to lend money to city council at an annual interest rate of 4½ per cent, he explained. A 1 1/2 per cent discount will be made on the second, third, and fourth payments made between January 14 and April 3.

His Worship noted that a municipal sewage disposal system was first proposed in 1945 at an estimated cost of $367,000. It was defeated when put to a vote.

"In February of last year, another estimate made by the same company set the cost at $1,333,000, an increase of nearly one million dollars in 12 years," he stated.

Two solutions for financing this project have been offered, one by issuing 20-year debentures, which would increase taxes tremendously, and an alternative of through the Utilities Commission, which would be unfair to heavy water users.

"What we need is a combined system of financing — and we must decide soon how to pay for this much needed project," he said.

In speaking of the serious unemployment situation now plaguing the country, Mayor Hyde said "Businessmen are forced to lay off employees now because there is not enough work available." He felt it was only a seasonal condition which would be remedied when business picks up in the spring."

WAYS TO HELP

To help alleviate this situation Mayor Hyde urged Rotarians to take advantage of the "Do It Now" campaign instituted recently. "In the spring men and materials will be less available and the cost will probably be higher", he said. "You can help not only these unemployed citizens but the city as well by having those jobs that you were going to put off until spring done now."

The mayor also suggested the city make room in the Library addition for the display of the Salaman antique collection, a gift to the city, which is now being stored at considerable cost to the city.

What to do with the building behind the municipal parking lot, which was turned over to the Community Centre committee by the city to be renovated as a Community Centre, was also briefly discussed by the mayor, along with the problem of annexation.

"Annexation is the city's only means of survival," he said. "Industry is now stymied, and the only answer is the acquisition of more land so that new industries can be brought in."

Mayor Hyde also expressed appreciation on behalf of council to the Rotary club for extending the invitation to be guests of the club. He noted that the Civic Day meeting has been held annually for the past 20 years and is "one of the pleasant little extras that goes with the privilege of serving as a member of Belleville City council."

The mayor was introduced and thanked by president Joe Demeza, who noted that Mayor Hyde has been active not only in the municipal field but in service club work as well. He has served on the Board of Education, spent five years on city council and is past chairman of the finance committee. He has also been a member of the Y's Men's club, was past district governor of that organization, and is now vice-president of Belleville YMCA.

Prior to his address Mayor Hyde introduced members of his council and other distinguished guests; which included city manager Drury S. Denyes, Police Chief W. R. Probert, and Fire Chief Gerald Vance.

In introducing his council Mayor Hyde said: "The dean of your council, Alderman Claude D. Tice, is commencing his 13th consecutive year on council and this year has been appointed to the Arena Commission and the Industrial Commission.

"In years of continuous service our next alderman is William A. Argue. He is commencing his ninth year and has been appointed to the Industrial Commission.

"Also starting his ninth year as an alderman, the fifth continuous one, is alderman and Rotarian Benjamin Safe, who is absent today. Ben has been appointed chairman of the Civil Defence committee and member of the Parking Commission.

"Alderman Bob Temple, also absent, is commencing his sixth year as alderman and this year is chairman of the city Traffic Commission, a member of the Recreation Commission, the Community Centre committee, the Community Swimming Pool committee, and the Parking Commission.

"Starting her fourth year as a member of council is alderman Mrs. Effie McCabe. She is council's appointee to the VON committee, the East Central T.B. Association and the CAS, and the Hospital Board of Management.

"Also commencing his fourth year is Alderman Frank V. Grandame (who is absent today.) Frank is a member of the Arena Commission, the Board of Parks Management, and the Parking Commission.

"Alderman Ralph L. Graham is another starting his fourth year as member of council and has been elected as chairman of the Parking Commission, the Traffic and Arena Commissions and the Juvenile Court Commission.

"Alderman Doug Moxam is another fourth term alderman. He has been appointed to the Traffic committee, the Suburban Planning Board and the Band committee.

"Alderman Rob Collins is starting his second year as councillor and has been elected to the Arena Commission and the Film Board.

"Another second year man is Alderman Don Whalen, (who is absent.) Don is a member of the Recreation Commission, Juvenile Court and Community Centre Commission, and the Swimming Pool Committee.

"Still another second-year man is Alderman Les Digby, a valuable member of the Traffic Committee because of its tie-up with his everyday work. He also represents council on the Board of Parks Management and the Band Committee.

"There are three first-year men on council. Alderman Dr. Jim Forrester (absent) who is on the Board of Health; Rotarian Alderman Jack Ireland, who is a member of the Industrial Commission, Juvenile Court and Parking commissions, and finally Alderman George Wishart, who holds the unique distinction of being, besides myself, the only man elected last month for a one-year term of office. He is serving on the Moira River Conservation Authority and the CAS."

Other civic guests, introduced by president Demeza, were school board representatives, Jack Trudeau, chairman designate of Quinte High School Board and chairman of the Separate School Board, Carl Casey, Public school board representative, George Olsen, was unable to be present.

A new member of Belleville Rotary Club, Walter T. Elliott, of Elliott Motors, was introduced to the club by Perce McGuire. Since Mr. Elliott was a charter member of the Stirling Rotary Club, no induction ceremony was needed.

Improvement in the condition of Rotarian Harry Ackerman, a patient in Belleville General Hospital, was reported by fellow Rotarian Clair Morgan. It was also reported Rotarian Jamieson Bone has recently been hospitalized.

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market was irregularly higher amid the heaviest morning trading in more than two months.

Volume at 11 a.m. was 734,000 shares, heaviest since Nov. 6 when 849,000 were exchanged in the first hour. Trading at the same time Monday was 600,000 shares.

Confederation Life, an 11⅛-point winner Monday, added an additional 7¼ points to 122 on a 75-share turnover. Rumors unconfirmed, circulated that the company might be considering an extra dividend.

Brokers, however, figured the insurance company stocks, including Confederation Life, were catching up with the rest of the market after selling off near the end of 1957.

Elsewhere on the board International Paper lost two points at 84¼ but other industrials moved in a fractional range with gains holding a numerical edge.

Mines and western oils were quiet although a few penny speculatives had heavy volumes. Dome Explorations gained 30 cents at $6 among western oils and Merrill lost 20 cents at $9.50. Hudson Bay was up ¾ to 43¾ among senior base metals.

Archbishop Asks Test Tube Babes Be Made Illegal

LONDON (AP) — The Archbishop of Canterbury urged today that human procreation through artificial insemination by donor should be made a criminal offence or at least be rigorously controled.

The Anglican primate recalled that a commission of the church which he appointed in 1945 held that artificial insemination by donor "is wrong in principle and contrary to Christian standards."

The archbishop, Most Rev. Geoffrey Fisher, was commenting on a ruling by a Scottish judge in Edinburgh last week that artificial insemination does not, in the present state of the law, constitute adultery.

In a divorce action Lord Wheatley upheld the defence of Mrs. Margaret MacLennen against a charge of adultery made by her husband, Ronald G MacLennen of Glasgow. She contended that a daughter born 16 months after the couple separated was a "test tube baby."

Named as chairman of the Church and School Week Committee was Mrs. Tugnett with other members of the committee being composed of principals of the city public schools, the board superintendent L. A. Kells and a representative from the Belleville Ministerial Association.

Dental Advisory Committee chairman is James Ritchie with William Ironside, William Townson and a representative of the Belleville Dental Association as members.

A special committee of Mac Smith, G. H. Trill and James Ward was named to investigate the possibility of purchasing certain property lying to the north of the Sir Winston Churchill school site. Object of the purchase would be to square out the school site property.

A committee of Mac Smith, G. H. Trill and William VanTassel was named to study problems which would confront the school board in the event of annexation.

The board budget committee will consist of chairman Olsen, school superintendent L. A. Kells and board members Lyle Langabeer, Mrs. Tugnett and Bruce Bishop.

100th Donation Of Blood Given By H. Mowat

The 63-year-old Brantford man who this week will give his 100th donation of blood to the Red Cross has nothing on a Belleville man who has already given his 100th donation.

The Belleville man is Mr. Herbert Mowatt aged 67, of 59 North James street, who last week gave his 100th donation of blood at the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Mowatt started giving blood when the Belleville Kiwanis Club started a blood donor clinic during World War II and when the service club ceased operating their clinic he continued giving blood at the hospital.

He estimated that in the 100 donations he had given about 12 gallons of blood.

He says he has given blood donations as often as once every six weeks although this is oftener than is recommended by the Red Cross. Mr. Mowatt works part time as janitor at the Canadian Pacific Railways station here.

Officers Defeated First Time In Regular Loop by Rockets

TRENTON—Cpl. B. H. Ethier and Sgt. G. L. Crowder of the mighty Rockets teamed up last night to lead their team to a whopping 6-2 victory over the league-leading F.I.S squad in a regular Air Force league game in the Community Gardens.

It was the first time the officers have been defeated in a league game and the win moves the Rockets up to 19 points, one behind the leaders.

The fast-skating Rockets had one man injured against the boards, and may lose him for the rest of the season. Snappy left-winger Buzz Haugh slammed into the wood halfway in the third period, injuring his right shoulder for the fourth time this season. It was only last Wednesday his Medical Officer had given him permission to play again after the previous injury.

Cpl. A. V. Auld of the Rockets was also injured, in the middle of the second frame, but only took a few minutes out on the players' bench before he returned to the ice.

In the scoring department, Cpl. Ethier made a hat trick with a goal in each period and his team-mate Sgt. Crowder slammed in two goals and got one assist. Cpl. Auld collected a single to round out the scoring for the jubilant Rockets. T. Binns and G. F. Garrow were both credited with assists.

F.O. Rhude and F.O. Swanston were the only members of the F.I.S. team to connect with a goal each and assists went to Flying Officers Henderson, Branch and McNaughton.

A goal at the end of the second period by Sgt. Crowder of the Rockets was disallowed after the timekeeper and the referees reversed their previous decision. The goal came just as the buzzer, ending the period, sounded, and many agreed it came before the signal with seconds to spare.

About 100 persons were on deck to see the Rockets get their win in one of the finest games of the season in the Community Gardens.

In penalties, the Rockets collected three while four F.I.S. members made the trip to the cooler.

The officers started the scoring early in the first period with the Rockets tying it up at the 5.00 minute mark. The F.I.S. scored their second and final goal 45 seconds later and the period ended 2-1 in their favor.

The Rockets outscored the officers 2-0 in the second frame and 3-0 in the final period to give then the 6-2 victory.

Both goalies, Cpl. J. L. G. Dupaul of the Rockets, and Prescott for the officers, did excellent work in their respective places of business.

Referees were A. F. Davison, Royal Canadian Dental Corps, and R. L. Lachambre of the weather section, RCAF.

Three Mishaps Since Sunday, Slight Damage

TRENTON — With town streets dry and the weather fine only three accident among motor vehicles have been reported since last Saturday.

Damage in all cases was less than $100 with two of the mishaps occurring on Sunday and the third Monday morning at 9 a.m.

On Sunday morning Kenneth Fode of 11 Marmora Street, reported his brakes failed when he tried to stop his car in the line of traffic. He was following a car being driven by John P. McCaffrey, 342 Dufferin Street, and rammed into the rear of it when the McCaffrey car stopped.

Damage to the cars was estimated at $45 each.

In the second Sunday mishap a car driven by William A. Williamson, 251 Sidney St., came into collision with one being operated by Clare Carr of 215 Dundas St. East. It was reported that the Williamson car was turning into the yard at 101 Dundas St. West when the accident happened. Damage to the Williamson car was estimated at $60 and to the Carr car about $80.

In the mishap on Monday, Florence Smith of R.R. 4, Belleville, was pulling into a parking space at the rear of the library when her front bumper grazed another car parked there. Damage was estimated at about $15 to the parked vehicle.

The second car was owned by C. J. Nelson of 291 Dundas St. East. The accident was reported about 9 a.m.

BOY SCOUTS TO MEET

The local association of the Boy Scouts will hold their regular meeting in the town hall, above the police station, tonight at 8 p.m.

Art Jackson of Brighton will be in attendance. Mr. Jackson is the Field Commissioner for eastern Ontario.

Among the many items of business to be dealt with at the meeting will be the final plans for the Boy Scouts financial drive.

Jim Parker is president of the local group and Jack McManus is secretary.

WASTE OIL BURNING

Many Dundas street shoppers stopped to look skyward yesterday when a huge cloud of smoke appeared over the north end of town. Flames could also be seen shooting up with the smoke.

Although the billowing smoke and flames had all the appearance of a bad fire in the vicinity of the airforce station's repair depot, investigation found it to be waste oil being burnt at the R.C.A.F. dump.

The black smoke went straight up for about a thousand feet and then spread out to hang over the dump in a huge cloud.

The burning of waste oil has happened many times before but has never failed to bring town citizens to a stop when they see it.

Rockets Within One Point of Leading Team

TRENTON — The Rockets flew to within one point of the league leading F.I.S. team in the Air Force hockey league last night when they defeated the Officers 6-2. It was the first defeat for the F.I.S. squad and an important victory for the Rockets.

As one airman said this morning, "It will be the talk of the station today."

All during the year the teams leading in the league have been trying to put the hard-skating officers under, but were unsuccessful until last night when the Rockets, perhaps powered by some new fuel, outskated and outplayed the leaders in all three periods.

Ratepayers Meet At Ameliasburg For First Time

The first meeting of the Ameliasburg Township Ratepayers' Association was held last night in Tobe's County Gardens with more than 100 interested and enthusiastic ratepayers present.

Officers of the association, Ian Morch, chairman, and Stuart McDougall, assistant chairman, officiated. Vern Westfall of Carrying Place, was named to the board of directors with Stan Downey of Rednersville; Mrs. John Kropinak, Rossmore; J. Sprague, Mountain View, and Robert Mitchell, Rossmore.

Robert B. McCullough, R.R. 7, Belleville, was retained as solicitor for the association in an advisory capacity.

It was decided to collect two dollars from each household represented in the association. Also, it was decided to prepare a constitution for submission to the ratepayers at a future meeting.

The directors were empowered to add further directors in order that all trades and districts in the township be represented in the association.

Roly Whitley, ex-mayor of Trenton, gave an interesting address regarding the effect of taxes on property values.

Chairman Ian Morch extended congratulations to Reeve Clifford Smith and deputy reeve William H. Montgomery on their acclamation after recent township council elections, and to councillors George Cunningham, Art Miller and Roy Wannamaker on their election to council. All spoke briefly to the association and extended thanks for their appointments.

Reeve Smith offered the township hall in Ameliasburg as a meeting place, free of charge, for future meetings.

Some discussion took place regarding building restrictions and the possibility of a zoning by-law.

The next meeting will be on January 20 in St. John's Hall, Carrying Place.

Conductor Falls From Podium

NEW YORK (AP)—Conductor Pietro Cimara collapsed and toppled from the podium before a capacity audience of more than 3,600 at the Metropolitan Opera Monday night. He was reported in critical condition in hospital today.

The hospital said the 68-year-old Italian-born conductor had suffered a "cerebral (brain) accident." No further diagnosis was given.

Cimara, who was conducting at the Metropolitan for the first time this season, was stricken just after the curtain rose on the second scene of the first act of Verdi's tragic opera, La Forza del Destino.

Members of the orchestra noticed that the conductor was unable to lead. Someone in the orchestra whispered to Walter Hagen at the first desk of the second violins, "get on the podium."

Hagen, 37, stepped up and took charge. Others from the 92-member orchestra carried the stricken Cimara backstage.

The spectators were aware that something untoward had happened, but there was no disturbance. Later Rudolf Bing, general manager of the Metropolitan, announced from the stage what had happened.

LIBERALS BEGIN

English-speaking Protestant because the retiring leader is a French-speaking Roman Catholic.

Mr. St. Laurent spoke in moving the appointment of joint chairmen.

These are Duncan K. MacTavish of Ottawa, president of the National Liberal Federation, and vice - president Roland Bock of Montreal.

As the convention opened, the betting was heavily in favor of the 60-year-old Mr. Pearson, but Mr. Martin, 54, was expected by supporters to put up a strong fight.

Each had the backing—on a sampling of cross-country politicians taken by reporters Monday night — of politicos across the Dominion.

How strong the support was for each was tough to determine in pre - convention talk, but Mr. Pearson appeared to have the edge.

However, Mr. Martin said Monday night that he thinks "things are rolling" in his direction.

He said he believes this convention is "going to be a possible repeat" of 1919, when William Lyon Mackenzie King came from virtually nowhere to snatch the Liberal leadership from two party giants.

"I feel very hopeful of the results from manifestations we have received from all provinces," he added.

Mr. Pearson was saying nothing immediately, sticking to person-to-person politicking and exuding confidence.

He stated earlier that he expected the result to be decided in one ballot among the 1,520 voting delegates at the Coliseum on Thursday night, and in his favor.

There are two other candidates in prospect at the moment, but not expected to pick up heavily in votes, so a first-ballot decision is a good possibility.

One is Mayor Don Mackay of Calgary, and the other is Mayor H. Lloyd Henderson of Portage la Prairie, Man., neither of whom looms large in Liberal power.

Mayor Mackay has suggested he will retire and throw his support to Mr. Pearson, though he has announced no final decision. Mayor Henderson has stated he will surely let his name go to a vote, though he also has said he expects Mr. Pearson to win.

As between the two top candidates for the leadership that Louis St. Laurent is relinquishing, lieutenants of Mr. Martin concede that Mr. Pearson has the edge at the moment.

But one adds this:

"Paul, if he's going to win, could do it Wednesday night."

That is when the candidates speak to the voting delegates from the platform. The former health minister is a notable spellbinder from the speaking platform.

Sarah Churchill Held on Charge Of Being Drunk

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actress Sarah Churchill, red - haired daughter of the British statesman, will be arraigned in court at nearby Malibu Beach Thursday on a charge of being drunk in public view.

Miss Churchill, jailed five hours Monday, has denied the charge.

Sheriff's deputies said they were called to the Malibu home of the 44-year-old actress on a complaint by the General Telephone Co that she used profane and obscene language over the phone.

The officers said they took the daughter of Sir Winston Churchill to a police station only after she had climbed into their car holding a glass of rum and resisted their efforts to get her out.

SUBDUE HER

At the station, they related, it took two male officers and a matron to subdue her. One deputy's shirt was torn.

Later at the county jail, Miss Churchill, in a pensive moment, quoted from Robert Burns:

"In durance vile here must I wake and weep,
"And on my frowsy couch in sorrow steep."

But she was released from "durance vile" on $50 bond furnished by her lawyer, Robert J. Gottlieb, who told reporters:

"Miss Churchill says the officers who arrested her pinned her arms and slapped her face. She was only trying to protect herself."

The actress denied that she had been drinking but said she often used the telephone, adding: "That's what it's for."

Friends said Miss Churchill had been emotionally upset since her husband's suicide in London last August. The couple had been estranged.

The actress was slated to appear this afternoon in a live telecast of NBC's Matinee Theatre.

HOMEWORK

How much homework should be given school children?

Ronald Hastings, newly-elected chairman of North York's Board of Education, apparently is a homework enthusiast. He believes homework should be given to all children above Grade 2.

W. T. MacSkimmon, chief inspector of Ottawa public schools, is somewhat dubious. Schools under his jurisdiction limit homework to those children above Grade 3 and he says children "should have some homework but not so much that they are deprived of the right to some fresh air."

Homework affects three distinct classes of people - - pupils, teachers and parents.

Speaking from personal knowledge in two of these roles, and from observation of the relationship of homework to those in the third category, as teachers, may we suggest that most of those people who like to debate the value of homework never appear to approach the subject realistically. Almost all of those who enthusiastically favor homework, or deeply deplore it, seem to regard it as an end in itself, rather than as a means to an end.

Surely homework has only two objectives - - to enable a child to acquire an adequate grasp of the lessons being taught him in school and to teach him how to study.

The amount of homework necessary will thus vary widely, being dependent on a great many factors - - the intelligence of the child, the ability of the teacher, the nature of the course being studied and conditions in the home.

It is doubtful whether one of the objectives of homework, teaching a child how to study, can ever be achieved in some homes. Conditions are just not conducive to study.

We are not at all sure that the assignment of large quantities of homework is the sign of a good teacher. It may be; it may indicate that the teacher is eager to make sure that the child really understands the day's lesson. But sometimes when a child comes homes with an armful of books it only proves that his teacher has frittered away time in the classroom, or has been so woolly-minded that the pupils have had difficulty in understanding the lesson.

The children sometimes have to suffer for the sins of the teachers in this matter of homework. And the parent has to suffer for the sins of both, for the incompetence of some teachers and the lack of attention of the child. In most cases, after Grade 5 or so, when a parent helps a child with his homework it is a case of the blind leading the blind.

Perhaps, in the final analysis, this is the sole value of some types of homework - - it forces the parent to re-learn some of the things he or she is supposed to know, but does not.

On the other hand, homework properly assigned after a clearly-taught lesson and undertaken under conditions ideal for the task can teach a child something he might never learn in a classroom - - the art of studying and the joys this art can confer.

U.S. VS. COMMUNIST FOREIGN AID

Monday President Eisenhower, in his budget message to Congress, requested $3,868,000,000 for foreign aid spending during the fiscal year starting July 1. The difficulty will be to prove to some Congressmen that foreign aid expenditures are really defence expenditures.

"If Western aid is unavailable or inadequate, these countries may become dependent upon the Communist bloc," Eisenhower said.

There are still some, though, who will regard Russian promises of aid as being made solely for propaganda purposes.

It is interesting, therefore, to consider a recent editorial in the Christian Science Monitor dealing with Russian performances in the foreign aid field.

During the last 2½ years the Soviet Union and Communist China extended economic aid amounting to $1,500,000,000 to ten underdeveloped nations of southern Europe, Asia and the Middle East. During this period U.S. aid to the same countries totalled $900,000,000.

The Russian program thus is something more than mere propaganda.

WHEREIN WE RIVAL HOMER

There are days when toil is irksome,
When I'd rather sit and shirk some,
Sit and let the hours go whizzing
On their way;
Days when fortune might come wooing
And I'd answer: "Nothing doing!"
Come to think of it, I feel that Way today.

Looking back o'er history's pages,
I discover those old sages
To their labors, on occasions,
Oft
Were prodded;
And I learn that good old Homer,
Quite considerable "pomer,"
When he had to fill his column
Often nodded.

And as I sit here this morning,
Most industriously yawning
And detesting everything that hints
Of plodding,
Comes this cheering thought and sequel,
That I'm easy Homer's equal—
If I haven't got it on him—
When I'm nodding.

From Whence Come P.M.'s?

Windsor Star

In Canada it shouldn't matter in what part of the country our prime ministers originate. What is important is that each should be the best man available, in the party in power, for the responsibilities of his times.

It is worth noting, however, that Western Ontario has a chance to have one of its representatives become prime minister in the foreseeable future. But this depends on two pertinent facts. Hon. Paul Martin will have to win the Liberal leadership this month, and then lead the Liberal party to victory.

Western Ontario has had but one prime minister since Confederation, Hon. Alexander Mackenzie, Liberal, the Sarnia stonemason in 1873-78. But three other prime ministers were born in Western Ontario, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighan at Anderson in Perth County; Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King in Berlin (now Kitchener), and Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker in Normanby township, Grey County.

• • •

Digging back into the history of past prime ministers turns up some interesting facts. How many are aware that one man who became prime minister once favored annexation to the United States? Or that three of our prime ministers were born outside Canada? Or that one died in Windsor Castle while visiting Queen Victoria?

How many are aware one prime minister represented Victoria, B.C.? Or that Prince Albert had been represented by three prime ministers? Or that one prime minister was a Senator at the time? Or that none of our prime ministers was born in Western Canada, though six at one time or another represented Western constituencies?

Sir Mackenzie Bowell was born in England; Sir John A. Macdonald and Alexander Mackenzie in Scotland. It was Sir John Thompson, the only Conservative Roman Catholic prime minister, who died in Windsor Castle.

• • •

As Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick formed the original Confederation, it is natural most early prime ministers should have been from these parts.

Of the 13 prime ministers to date, four could be considered Maritimers, all Conservatives. They were Thompson, 1892-94; Sir Charles Tupper, May-July, 1896 (while he was not a member of parliament); Sir Robert Borden, 1911-20, and Rt. Hon. (later Viscount) R. B. Bennett, 1930-35. Mr. Bennett, of course, had gone west as a young man and represented Calgary West in the Commons.

Five were Ontario men: Macdonald, 1867-73 and 1878-91, Mackenzie, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, 1894-96, who represented Hastings North, Mr. Meighen, 1920-21 and 1926 (who represented Portage La Prairie, Man., mainly but Grenville, Ont., in 1922-25), and Mr. Mackenzie King.

Three were from Quebec: Hon. J. J. Abbott, 1891-92, put in the Senate in 1887, (it was he who signed the notorious annexation petition in Montreal in 1849), Sir Wilfred Laurier, 1896-1911, and Rt. Hon. Louis S. St. Laurent, 1948-57.

Mr. Diefenbaker has most claim to being a real Westerner. He went West as a boy, getting most of his education out there. Mr. Meighen and Mr. Bennett went West as young men.

• • •

It was Sir John A. Macdonald, of all people, who represented Victoria in the Commons. His principal constituency was his home city of Kingston. But, he was defeated there. Also in the early days a man could be a candidate in more than one riding. That is why, at times, Sir John A. represented Victoria and also Carleton, Ont.

Sir Wilfred Laurier never was beaten in Quebec East. But, by running in two ridings, he also sat for L'Assomption (1904); Ottawa, (1908) and the territory of Saskatchewan (1896).

Mr. King was the most peregrinating of our prime ministers, representing in turn no fewer than five constituencies. Elected first in Waterloo North in 1908, he was defeated there in 1911. He re-entered the Commons in 1919 via a by-election in Prince, Prince Edward Island. Then he moved on to York North where he won in 1921 but lost in 1925.

It was in 1926 he came back via a by-election in Prince Albert, which he represented until being defeated in 1945. Then via another by-election, he re-entered the Commons via Glengarry, Ont.

• • •

Quebec East is Canada's most historic riding, being represented by Sir Wilfred from 1878 to 1920 and by Mr. St. Laurent from 1942 to the present.

But Prince Albert, technically, can claim to have been represented by the most prime ministers: Mr. King and Mr. Diefenbaker and, as part of the territory of Saskatchewan, by Sir Wilfrid in 1896.

Eastern Ontario has had it over Western Ontario, by reason of Sir John A. Macdonald; Mr. Bowell and, briefly, by Mr. King in Glengarry.

Penguins Lay Eggs at Home

Wall Street Journal

Congress, we're interested to note, isn't going to be outdone by anybody in the celebration of the International Geophysical year. The House of Representatives fired off five members who will circle the globe once, anyway, Sputnicks or no Sputniks.

The gentlemen, members of the Subcommittee on Transportation and Communications of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce committee, left Idlewild in New York for visits to the North Pole and the South Pole, in, the announcement said, the interests of science and world aviation.

Now we are not numbered among those who think all Congressional trips are useless, unproductive and wasteful of the taxpayers' money. Far from it; we're told some very important information sometimes results from visits overseas to see how foreign aid troops and treaties and U.S. prestige are making out, and we suppose, sometimes it does.

So there's no reason, really, why science and world transportation shouldn't figure in Congressional investigations. And we'd like to point out that mushing around the South Pole could hardly be called a pleasure except for the Abominable Snowman or maybe Lowell Thomas, even in the interests of science.

Further, it would be distinctly unfair not to point out that places like the frozen Poles are kind of hard to get to, world transportation being what it is. We take it that accounts for the fact that the itinerary to and from the Poles includes Copenhagen, Tokyo, Manilla, Australia, New Zealand and, to warm 'em up from the rigors of Antarctica on the way home, some hot-cha-cha capitals in South America.

We do hope, however, that these scientific-minded Congressmen will come home with an acceptable scientific reason for something that has always bothered us: Why penguins lay eggs in snow. Aside, we mean, from the explanation that penguins live in a snowy place, and unlike Congress, lay all their eggs at home.

MASTERING OUR MOODS

What must the moody person do to rise above his moods?

In the first place, if he is born moody (congenital, as it is called), he must recognize his difficulty and constantly guard against it. In the second place, if he is inclined toward depression, he must follow the advice of the Apostle Paul and if there is any virtue or any praise, think on these things. In other words, he must make a definite attempt to look on the sunny side of life and to see the best in all people.

This brings us to an extremely important matter, which is the attitude we maintain toward ourselves, for a moody person is often one who is inclined to despise himself and to enlarge upon his deficiencies and weaknesses. Just remember that the person you have to live with twenty-four hours a day is yourself. Try above everything else, therefore, to get on good terms with yourself.

Seek cheerful friends and surroundings. Avoid alcohol and habit-forming drugs, which give temporary relief but leave one in a worse state than before.

Above all, have faith in a just living, and all-powerful God. He has put us in the world. He is bound to take care of us, and He will. God's will begins and ends in love.

Moodiness often has a physical cause. Learn about this and try to circumvent it. Approach your moods from physical, mental, and spiritual angles. They are all important.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HANG ON!

One of the thrills of my youth, and I dare say of many youths, especially if lived in a small town, was the County Fair. And the outstanding event was the Balloon Ascension with the man dropping from the balloon in a parachute. The balloon is inflated. There are ropes spread around the ground, and the man who is to make the jump from the air cries for everyone to stand still the balloon is off the turf. One old fellow disregarded this warning and was caught by the seat of his pants and carried up with the balloonist. There was excitement, but the performer called for the man to hang on. He did. He had to! And so, soon he was delivered back to good Mother Earth.

How many times in life we are caught off guard and are put to our wit's end for what may be our survival Then is the time when we must Hang On! I have noted that most people who contemplated suicide but failed in their decision are nearly always glad they failed. Hanging on to the glory of earth, and to the love of our friends and kin, usually defeats all thoughts of suicide, and happily so. We were born to fight, to overcome obstacles and to hang on to life courageously and without fear. Our great joy and interest in life is when we are hanging on and fulfilling our appointed mission here and now.

The happy life is primarily one of good and lasting decisions. When temporarily defeated, hang on and make another try! Several if necessary. At all odds it is essential that we keep a grip upon ourself and — hang on!

Surplus of Jobs

A leading U.S. university, with assets of $21,000,000, provides a place to "study, write, think and gab," an observer reports. Seems as though, with all that money, it should be possible to avoid trying all four of these jobs in the same place at the same time.

Africa Buys Used Coats

Stratford Beacon-Herald

International trade today is so complex and diversified that scarcely any shipment should cause astonishment. However, what might appear an unlikely market has been opened up in South Africa in the shipment by Canada of used overcoats, according to "Foreign Trade", a publication of the Federal Department of Trade and Commerce.

One shipment has been made and the outlook for expansion appears bright. Men's and women's overcoats and topcoats which are discarded, because they are a little threadbare or out of style are highly desirable to the natives. However, colored folk of Africa are quite clothes-conscious and demand the best quality. Military overcoats and belted waterproof topcoats of the dashing kind effected by private detectives and newspaper reporters on television are very popular.

There is one reminder from the Government: military overcoats must not be shipped without the removal of all insignia.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

Are You Aware of Your Breathing?

Recently I wound up a discussion of natural or belly breathing with this statement:

"If any reader conceives the idea that constant or very frequent practice of belly breathing" (more than two or three times a day, that is) "will increase everyday absorption of oxygen, I can assure him it doesn't."

Now comes Mr. C.B.S. who says:

"There is no doubt that the practise of belly breathing is beneficial; one has but to try it to prove that.

"You have repeatedly stated that the savage, or the person asleep or unconscious breathes naturally, that is, with the belly. But when awake civilized persons, due to a "chesty" complex, do not breathe naturally.

"That would imply that when awake people are conscious of their breathing. It seems to me that we are aware of our breathing only when we practise belly breathing or other breathing exercise; and that we breathe naturally when asleep only because we are relaxed. Breathing is disturbed only by nervous or muscular tension. Just as complete relaxation results in natural breathing, so belly breathing is a most effective means of relaxing."

Now, see here, C.B. If you believe the B.B. exercise is beneficial, why didn't you just say so and leave me free to wend my wacky way to the bowling green? You've made a chicken-or-egg conundrum out of it.

If belly breathing is correct and we breathe that way all the time in our sleep, continues the inexorable C.B.S., "why this limit to three times a day for conscious belly breathing? It would seem desirable that the habit of correct, natural belly breathing should be cultivated until one breathes naturally all the time. I think that is what regular practise of the B.B. exercise tends to do — establish a habit of natural breathing all the time. What say, Doc?"

Later — if they don't get me meanwhile — I'll tell why I believe three times a day is frequently enough to practise belly breathing.

Wild Life's Storehouses

National Geographic Bulletin

As winter chills the northern hemisphere, nature's little harvesters — the wild animals that store their own food — are beginning to dip into hoarded supplies to sustain life.

Grain, hay, nuts, seeds—even mushrooms—go into the storehouses of animals.

The red squirrel, though noisy and rollicking, is one of the hardest workers in summer and fall, gathering nuts and pine and spruce cones for their seeds. The harvest is hidden in handy places like empty bird nests and hollow trees. The animal also fancies mushrooms which it harvests in quantities and spreads on a limb to cure before storing.

A male pine squirrel in Grand Teton country cached 10 bushels of cones in a resident's garage. To save storage space, squirrels often shell nuts and husk seeds or corn.

Large hoards of acorns and nuts are buried underground. Sometimes a hoarder either forgets the spot or doesn't need the extra supplies. Some of the largest oak and hickory forests are thought to have been unwittingly planted by squirrels.

• • •

Among harvesters, no animal is more ingenious than the cony or rock rabbit, a silky furred little mountaineer that lives above the timberline.

When the days shorten, conies start gathering grasses, sedges, flowering plants and small twigs. These are carefully cured in the sun. If a storm threatens, the entire colony turns out on the run to carry the drying hay to safety. They often work into the night at harvest time.

Conies find sheltered places to store their crop in stacks that may contain a bushel or more of hay. Turning the haystacks into apartments, they burrow into the centre, settle down cozily and proceed to eat their way out.

Many other rodents gather food for winter. Ground squirrels dry grass and tender herbs in the sun, then transfer the fodder to subterranean storerooms. Mice gather seeds, sections of plants and roots.

• • •

Kangaroo rats store enormous amounts of seeds underground, usually separating each type of seed as in bins. It is not unusual for a kangaroo rat to put by 50 quarts of seeds for winter.

In regions where streams freeze over in winter, beavers provide for themselves by fastening green twigs and limbs with mud or stones on the bottom near their lodges.

Harvester ants prepare a dry place for their stores. They clear an area of vegetation, so the soil will retain less moisture, then build huge underground storerooms with a mound on top. Seeds are sun dried before being stowed away. The ants have been observed biting the radicle from each seed to prevent its germination underground.

Some birds also seem to sense the impending famine of winter. Rooks, which are among the most intelligent birds, bury nuts in manure to keep them from freezing.

One type of woodpecker drills rows of holes in trees and posts. It tamps an acorn into each hole as insurance against hunger on a snowy day.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The most interesting downtown office the Packsack has been in lately is that of the vice-president and general manager of a flourishing industry. It is a medium-sized room with the customary handsome desk and matching chairs spaced about it. The interesting things are the pictures. They are all reversible.

By the simple process of calling in his secretary to turn the pictures around, the boss converts his office from a stiff, formal and conventional general manager's sanctum into a cheery, informal, cosy den or rumpus room.

For instance, when he is receiving business associates of the dull, dedicated, efficient type, to which category a great many of the top brass of business belong, he has the formal sides of the pictures out. Over the mantel is a large, grave photograph of the late departed president of the company, of most respected memory. Around the walls are a few artistic representations of the company's various plants and premises. A couple of framed testimonials and diplomas complete the uninspiring atmosphere.

But when interesting visitors arrive, the secretary pops in and reverses the pictures. On the back of the late revered president is a watercolor of a trout stream. On the reverse sides of the institutional prints are color photos of the boss in action at golf, fishing, skiing. The diplomas reverse to reveal cartoons of a hilarious character.

"No reason," says the boss, "why pictures should be one-sided."

Police Testify Accused Said He Killed Wife

HAMILTON (CP)—The trial of John Willis, 38, charged with the hammer slaying of his wife, enters its second day today with most of the Crown's evidence presented

Two statements to police, two letters and a will were admitted as testimony Monday.

Willis is charged with beating his wife to death with a hammer early in the morning of Dec. 3 in the bedroom of their home.

Police were sent to the scene the evening of the same day by the dead woman's mother, Mrs. Ernest Russell. She had received a call earlier from Willis asking her not to open a letter he had mailed to her.

Police testified they broke down the door when no one answered and found Mrs. Elsie Willis lying dead in a neatly made bed in a locked room.

Shortly afterward, Willis entered his home with his three children. Detective James Patterson testified Willis looked in the door of the bedroom. He was asked his name and was then told he would be charged with murder.

Police testified he said:

"I am not denying anything. I did it."

The story of events leading up to the slaying was contained in the statements and letters.

Willis said he had become depressed over the family's financial problems.

In his first statement to police, made the night he was arrested, he said his wife had broken down on the night of Dec. 2, when she told him she had attempted to open an account at a clothing store and found their credit standing was worthless.

"She sobbed and said that if this was the way things were she'd rather be dead," the statement read.

That night, the statement continued, he considered killing her and himself, and making arrangements for the children to be cared for by his sister in England.

The statements told how he rose in the morning, obtained a hammer and bludgeoned his wife. He then washed her body and made the bed, sent the children to school and wrote letters to his wife's mother and his sister in England, and his father.

The letter to his sister, Mrs. A. J. Duffield of London, England said in part:

"I am fully to blame that we are in deep debt, owing to my gambling." He requested his sister care for the children.

That night he attempted to commit suicide by cutting his wrist and taking pills, the statement said. The following day he called a gas company and a doctor's office to obtain information on heating gas as a lethal agent.

At noon that day, Ernest Russell, Willis and the three children lunched together in the house while Mrs. Willis' body lay in the locked bedroom. That evening, the statement read, he took the children to a movie "for the last time."

"When I got back to the house," the statement concluded, "you fellows (the police) were in the house."

Windsor Suburb Will Get Tough With Teen-Agers

WINDSOR (CP) — Suburban Riverside, shocked by the beating of a police constable outside its recreational hall, is getting tough with teen-agers.

Town council Monday night decided to require identity cards at its teen-agers' dances. They will issue cards, carrying the bearer's photograph, to all Riverside students requesting them.

And if that doesn't end trouble at the dances—which have been suspended for two weeks—riot squads will be called in.

Teen-agers aiming to cause trouble at the recreation centre will in future face:

Police and firemen armed with 24-inch riot sticks and a soaking from a 400-gallon fire department pumper.

After a meeting between Riverside Mayor Gordon Stewart, Police Chief Bryce Monaghan and council's recreational committee, Mr. Stewart said:

"We're through molly-coddling these little boys. If they get rough, then we can instruct our police to get rough, too."

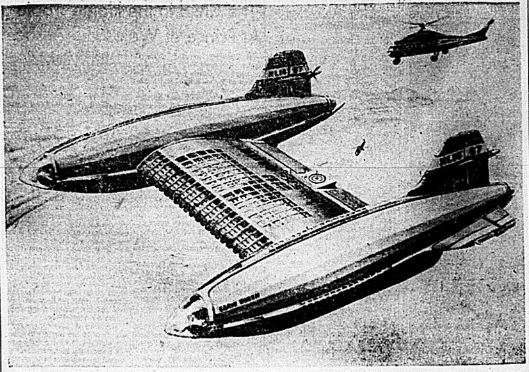
In future, police at dances will be able to get reinforcements via direct radio contact from the arena to the police station—and if necessary to the provincial police.

"And if all this doesn't work, we'll call in the army," said chairman of the police and fire committee.

Mayor Stewart said he is "appalled that 300 children should stand by and cheer" while the constable was beaten — "a sad commentary on the way children are being raised."

Council's decision to toughen up followed an announcement by the Police Athletic League that boxing and judo classes for youths will be discontinued.

DESIGNER FORESEES $50 TRANS-ATLANTIC TRIPS IN GIANT AIRLINER



A dirigible body on either side of a giant wing is the design of future trans-ocean airliners, according to aviation expert Frank Tinsley. He believes the design would allow for hundreds of passengers each trip at a cost of around $50 for a trans-Atlantic flight. His design shows observation areas in forward sections of the wing and on the sides of the dirigibles. He says the ship could fly at around 100 mph. and would be relatively cheap to build and operate.

Liberal College Students Demand Financial Aid

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian University Liberal Federation today sends its 90-odd voting delegates to the national Liberal convention with instructions to seek promises of financial assistance for students.

The federation's one-day convention Monday adopted a four-point program which a 12-man resolutions committee will frame into proper shape for presentation during the Liberal leadership convention.

It includes:

1. 10,000 annual scholarships of $550 each to needy students with better - than-average academic standing. There are some 60,000 university students in Canada.

2. A federal - provincial fund, administered by the provinces, to provide loans to needy students repayable after graduation over reasonably lengthy periods.

3. Exemption from payment to the Unemployment Insurance Fund by students who work during their holidays, and others who do not qualify for benefits.

4. Basic income tax exemption of $1,500 for students who work to pay their way through university.

EAGER FOR TEST

The Liberal students also heard former fisheries minister James Sinclair say "the next general election cannot come too soon"—the first public statement by a member of the Liberal hierarchy expressing eagerness for a fast new tussle at the polls.

The resolutions committee turned down proposals from a number of the federation's 28 clubs asking that students' summer earnings be tax-exempt.

Jean David, Ottawa University law student and president-elect of the federation, said that advice from economists is that such a proposal would establish "a special class of citizens."

The resolutions calling for increased assistance to students came after Jean Lesage, former Liberal cabinet minister, said he believes the Liberal party is ready to endorse the principle of free education at all levels.

COULD BE DONE

He told the convention of some 120 students that this could be done without encroaching on provincial rights in the field of education, just as federal grants to universities, administered by the National Conference of Canadian Universities, were within constitutional means.

The federation also endorsed the principle of diplomatic recognition of Communist China after Mr. Sinclair told delegates that recognition would be required if Canada wants to trade with the Chinese mainland.

The federation also called on the Liberal party to take steps to regain its "historic position as the defender of the rights of labor."

Mr. Sinclair also told the delegates that the government's trade policy will provide ground for a "first-class fight" at the polls.

During a question-and-answer session with delegates, Mr. Sinclair said he favors wider ground for divorce, more scholarships and bursaries for students, a distinctive national flag with a maple leaf instead of the coat-of-arms in the fly of the Red Ensign, abolition of capital punishment, women in the cabinet.

However, he spoke out against eliminating closure to cut long-winded debates in Parliament, wholesale admittance of Negroes and Orientals to Canada, a written bill of rights, a lower voting age in federal elections.

Man Studying Pension Scheme Well Qualified

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—An English-born professor at the University of Western Ontario has been appointed to make a study of the United States social security system to see if it can be used as a base for an expansion of Canada's old age pension scheme.

The appointment of Gordon Huson, a 44-year-old professor of business administration here, was announced Monday in the House of Commons by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Mr. Huson, who says he will begin preparatory work on the survey immediately and go to Washington in April, brings a varied background as economist, barrister, journalist, army intelligence officer and government press officer of retirement benefits into Canada's system of non-contributory old-age pensions.

BORN IN ENGLAND

With UWO since 1953, Mr. Huson was born in London, England, and attended the London School of Economics and the Sorbonne in Paris. He also graduated in law and was called to the bar in 1946.

Before the Second World War he was, from 1932 until 1937, with the London county council information office and until 1939 on the editorial staff of the London News Chronicle and a contributor to The Economist.

He served with the British Army as an intelligence officer in Norway, the Faroe Islands, Iceland and western Europe and after the war investigated Nazi elements in the German civil service and was with the counter-propaganda office of the control commission for Germany.

SERVICE ABROAD

In 1946 he began seven years service as an information officer with various British government bodies, serving in Washington, and Germany before being appointed United Kingdom information officer in Ottawa in 1950. He was succeeded there by novelist Nicholas Monsarrat. He is married to an American and has two children.

Mr. Huson said his report is expected by the government by the end of the year.

The prime difference between the Canadian and the American systems is that the U.S. program is paid for entirely by employees, employers and the self-employed, while the Canadian system is paid for through two-per-cent taxes on corporate and personal incomes and a special two-per-cent sales tax.

Says Free Press Is Foundation Of All Liberty

MONTREAL (CP) — Health Minister Waldo Monteith has described a free press as the foundation of all liberty.

"Indeed, freedom of expression through the press and other information media is the foundation of all liberty," he said Monday night in an address to a dinner here opening International Printing Week. "It is the protector and promoter of every other freedom."

"Where men cannot freely communicate with one another, no other liberty is secure. That is why throughout history whenever a government has moved towards dictatorship, one of its first acts has been to gain control of information agencies."

In our lifetime we had seen what happened when "mass media of communications are shackled to the will of tyrants."

Britain's Trade Deficit Grows

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain ended 1957 with a slightly-worse trade balance than in 1956 despite a record-breaking foreign commerce year, figures released by the Board of Trade showed Monday.

British exports and re-exports rose four per cent to a record total of £3,460,000,000 in 1957. But imports also increased five per cent to another record figure of £4,079,000,000.

The preliminary figures showed total British exports to North America went up 4.5 per cent to £439,000,000, with almost all the increase going to Canada.

Oldest Delegate Picks Pearson

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Canny, old Skuli Sigfusson has taken a cold, hard look at Liberal convention electioneering and has come to one definite conclusion: Mike Pearson is a sure winner.

"I've seen them come and go and I'm backing Mr. Pearson," said the 87-year-old Prairie homesteader, perhaps the oldest delegate to the three-day convention opening today.

"Mr. Pearson is not only best known in Canada but in the whole world. Mr. Martin is a good man but I think Mr. Pearson is the best man for the job."

Colleagues of farmer Sigfusson, an Icelander who came to Canada as a pioneer when Confederation was just 10 years old, say he's a pretty shrewd politician.

For besides building up a 2,000-acre farm in Manitoba's Interlake area and raising a family of seven children, the man with the walrus moustache and the keen blue eyes has been a member of the Manitoba legislature for a quarter-century, holding the St. George's riding for the Liberals.

He can remember 'way back in 1893 when he left his farm and travelled all the way to Ottawa to hear Wilfrid Laurier, the Liberal leader, address the first party convention in the old Rideau Rink.

Now Skuli looked over a convention hall that displayed the latest in organization and showmanship. The podium had been decorated and built especially toward making a pleasing appearance on television screens.

Several miles of red bunting, the Liberals' color, had been pinned to the Coliseum's steel girders and the Coliseum's walls. Huge portraits of the three leaders, Mr. Laurier, Mackenzie King and the present retiring leader, Louis St. Laurent, stared down from the entrance door.

McGill Revue Showed Satire Appreciated

MONTREAL (CP)—One of the authors of My Fur Lady, the McGill University satire on life in Canada, says the revue points up "evidence that Canadians are interested in more permanent expression of their identity than political speeches, football scores and whisky advertisements."

Timothy Porteous, 24-year-old law student, Monday told the Canadian Club there has been increasing awareness in Canada that the creative arts can contribute to "a positive sense of communion."

The McGill revue has won acclaim since its opening here almost a year ago. It played in Stratford, and other Canadian centres and now is booked in Windsor.

Mr. Porteous said My Fur Lady has shown that the audience for Canadian entertainment is "far larger than anyone expected."

Canadians in different towns reacted differently.

"Some of the raciest lines that delighted the Montreal audience embarrassed them in Ottawa, bewildered them in Stratford and frightened them in Cornwall.

"I hope our show will serve as an appetizer for more serious fare to come . . ."

Jayne Mansfield Weds Muscle Man Mickey Hargitay

By JAMES BACON

PORTUGUESE BEND, Calif. (AP)—Actress Jayne Mansfield, who yearned for a quiet wedding, was married Monday night to muscle man Mickey Hargitay with all the hoopla of a community picnic.

Some 1,500 fans—mostly teenagers but some adults carrying babies in arms—screamed and shouted outside the Wayfarers' Chapel during the most tender moments of the non-denominational rites.

Someone even bounced a rock off the top of the all-glass church while photographers, who nearly outnumbered the guests, kept banging their cameras against the glass walls.

Jayne, looking sexy yet demure in a wedding dress that revealed more curves than Highway 66, said she never heard the commotion.

"All I heard was Mickey saying 'I do'," she giggled.

ONLY TWO

Bob Hope, who witnessed the wedding certificate, and actress Marie Windsor were the only Hollywood names who travelled the 30 miles to this remote and lonely site by the Pacific Ocean.

Jayne's dress was so form-fitting that it appeared painted on her. One photographer asked her to ascend to the top step of the altar, but she had to decline.

"If I took that step, the dress would split wide open," she apologized. When she finally left the church, she spied her daughter by a previous marriage, seven-year-old Jayne Marie.

The 29-year-old bridegroom and his 24-year-old bride later took off for the airport to board a plane for Dallas, Tex.

A mob of fans, many of them hanging on trees and strewn over hillsides, greeted Jayne as she finally left the chapel.

"We won't be alone until tomorrow night," Mickey lamented. But his bride answered, "I'm alone now with you darling," as more flashbulbs popped.

After the meeting closed the executive served refreshments.

BAILEY—MAYHEW

The marriage of Loretta Constance Mayhew granddaughter of Mr. James Lawaska, of Pembroke, Ontario, to Douglas George Bailey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Bailey, of Belleville, was solemnized on Saturday, December 21st, at 10 o'clock in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, by the Reverend Peter Murphy.

The bride was charmingly attired in while nylon lace and net in bouffant-ballerina-length featuring a fitted, strapless bodice with matching bolero having long, sheath-like sleeves lily-pointed over the wrists. Her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a headdress encrusted with seed pearls, and she carried a nosegay of red Sweetheart roses.

Miss Charlotte Lawaska, of Ottawa, as maid of honor, was gowned in Dior blue lace with small velour hat in matching shade. She wore a corsage of deep pink roses.

Miss Heather Bailey, sister of the bridegroom, as junior bridesmaid, was attired in pink taffeta and net with blue headdress and corsage of white carnations.

Mr. James Lawaska attended the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the Bayview Motel, after which a reception was held for the friends and out-of-town guests, with the bridegroom's mother receiving, wearing pale blue lace and net with small sequin and feather hat, and corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip to Watertown, N.Y., the bride chose a charcoal wool dress with white fur collar and corsage of red and white carnations and black coat accented by a white fur hat. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey will reside in Belleville.

Women Busy As Liberals Open Rally

OTTAWA (CP)—They're working at registration, information and accommodation, executive meetings and informal get - togethers.

But wherever you find them, Liberal women are in the forefront for today's kick-off of a three-day national Liberal leadership convention.

There are more women delegates than ever before—332 as delegates or alternates — not counting the convention helpers and visitors.

At another convention c[illegible], officers of the National Federation of Liberal Women Monday met to discuss convention resolutions.

Under resolutions chairman Senator F. Elsie Inman (L—PEI) the federation was expected to approve resolutions dealing with housing, social security and education.

A resolution calling for the constitutional appointment of more women from the NFLW as ex-officio officers on Liberal associations at all levels also was expected to go before the convention's resolution committee.

Senator Inman said the housing recommendation calls for extension of the National Housing Act provisions to include the financing of old, as well as new homes.

'The Child in the Home' Topic At Prince of Wales H-S Assoc.

On Tuesday evening, Mrs. C. Cooke, the president, presided at the regular monthly meeting of the Prince of Wales Home and School Association.

The Scripture was read by Mrs. Murray. Mrs. T. Clark read the minutes and Mrs. Miller gave the treasurer's report.

Mrs. Cooke explained that after careful consideration it has been decided to award the attendance prizes on a percentage basis. This will mean that every class has an equal chance of winning whether there are 25 or 40 pupils in the class. She also mentioned that since film strips are to be awarded at the end of the year as first, second and third prizes the children are becoming more interested in the attendance record.

Roll call was won by Mrs. Slack's afternoon kindergarten class.

Mrs. Cooke announced that during January, plans will be made for the annual school fair to be held sometime during February and asked for everyone's support to make it a success.

GUEST SPEAKER

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Clark who introduced Dr. Edith Peterkin, the guest speaker.

Dr. Peterkin chose as her subject "The Child in the Home," and after stating that she did not intend to discuss juvenile delinquency, horror comics and the like, she proceeded to show how parents could help their children grow to be happy well adjusted responsible adults.

"First of all, we should teach our children to know God and love Him, not by simply being sent off to Sunday School once a week but by all joining in family prayer in the home.

"Cutting down on social engagements would enable the family to share more activities with each other such as reading books and poetry, playing games, preparing meals together, staging little plays and playing the piano and singing not to impress anyone, but just the family entertainment. By turning off the television and radio we can help children to have quiet mealtimes learning table manners easily and enjoying pleasant conversation about school and friends.

"It is important as well for children to have their own room or if that is not possible, some little place to call their own in which they can store the many treasures they collect or where they can just sit and think or daydream by themselves.

"Creating a gracious happy atmosphere in the home will encourage children to centre their activities around the home and will help them immeasurably in later years.

Mr. A. Parks thanked Dr. Peterkin.

Refreshments were served by the mothers of Miss Poste's class.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

GOOD QUESTIONS ABOUT SETTING THE TABLE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm a recent bride, my husband and I are now settled in our new house, we are planning to begin to invite guests to simple dinners, and I've been saving several questions which I would appreciate your answering for me.

1. For the main course, I want to serve either a roast or broiled or fried chicken, with one or perhaps two vegetables to be served on the same plate. The salad, which is to be served with this course, will be served on small, individual plates. Where should the salad plate be placed?

2. I will serve some kind of small hot rolls and, of course, butter. Where are the bread-and-butter plates placed? And how are the small individual butter knives placed on the bread-and-butter plates? (I've seen them placed in several different positions.)

3. If I serve a seafood cocktail for the first course, where are the cocktail forks correctly placed, on the left with the other forks?

4. If I serve for dessert a meringue pudding with a sauce (a specialty of mine) may I place the two silver dessert utensils above the plates, when I set the table beforehand?

— Hostess-to-be

1. When the salad is served with the main course, put the salad plate on the left of the dinner plate.

2. Put the bread-and-butter plate on the left of the place, above the forks, which will leave room for the salad plates on the direct left of the dinner plates. Best service is to put the individual butter knives across the top of the bread-and-butter plates, in line with the edge of the table; blade pointing to the left.

3. The small seafood fork is the one exception to the forks-on-the-left-of-the-plates rule. This small, long-handled fork is placed to the right of the spoons, usually parallel to them (but correct also is to place them at an angle, with the tines resting on the bowl of the soup spoon).

4. Yes. Place dessert spoon and fork together, across the top of the individual place, parallel to the table: spoon above, handle to right; fork below, handle to left.

VERY SMART. . .GROOM, BEST MAN, USHERS TO WEAR ASCOT TIES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our wedding, next May, is to be a large, formal, church wedding, and we are beginning to make definite plans for all the details. I will wear a gray Ascot tie, and I would like my best man, my brother, also to wear a gray Ascot tie. Would it be correct for the ushers also to wear Ascot ties? — Bob R.

Correct, sir . . . and in very fine taste! And when the Ascot ties and the waistcoats and the gloves of the men in the wedding party are all of the same shade of gray, the effect of uniformity and smartness shows perfect sartorial planning.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Jack D. — Bea isn't doing right by her father.

Beatrice D. — I couldn't wound my mother.

• • •

Jack D. — My wife and I are having quite a dispute over her parents.

Her mother and father were divorced some ten years ago and haven't seen each other since. Her father remarried, but is now separated from his second wife. He isn't a well man and lives quite far from us. He has written that he would like to come to see us some holiday. That's the only time he can get away from his business.

My wife invites her mother for every holiday. That's okay with me, except I don't think it's fair to leave out the old man all the time. I tell Bea she is not doing right by her father, but she says her mother comes first.

• • •

Beatrice D. — My mother has always spent every holiday with us and she would be wounded terribly if I told her I wanted to invite my father instead. I wouldn't even dare suggest such a thing.

The truth is I would like to see my father and I've told him I'd be glad to have him any time — but not on a holiday. He says the holiday is the only time he can make it. Well, if he can't arrange something for himself in order to see his own daughter and grandchildren, I don't know what I'm supposed to do about it.

I don't see why Jack should interfere in this business, anyway. They're not his parents. I have a right to do as I like about them.

• • •

The Council: Beatrice should not resent her husband's "interference." His concern reflects his interest in his entire family. Possibly he would like his children to know their grandfather. Perhaps, as a man, he can't help identifying with another man. It bothers him that a child's loyalty can be dedicated exclusively to one parent.

It is also possible that Jack sympathizes with Beatrice's own definite desire to see her father. According to her own account, it is really fear of her mother that prevents her from arranging this.

Beatrice must accept the fact that divorce necessarily entails hurt feelings. The old wounds open easily — usually on both sides. Out of fear of hurting her mother, Beatrice continues to hurt her father.

The only answer we can see is for Beatrice to follow her own heart. She should be willing to accept her father's word that he can only make the visit on a holiday. She should tell her mother honestly that she wishes to see her father on some particular occasion.

It is possible that Beatrice's mother would not be quite as wounded as she believes. But even if the wound does go deep, Beatrice should recognize that she has a right to follow her own impulses in such an important matter.

Wants House Used by Nuns Made Museum

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP) — A building completed here recently ended another chapter in Manitoban history.

The house, now occupied by Grey Nuns, replaces their original haven of 1847 when four members of the order came from Montreal to teach in the Red River settlement.

Rev. A. d'Eschambault, Manitoba's representative on the Historical Sites and Monument Board of Canada, has recommended that the old provincial house be made a museum. It is western Canada's oldest continuously inhabited building, having been in constant use for 110 years.

The house, built of logs covered by clapboard, is about 100 feet long and 40 feet wide. It has two main storeys and a third floor with dormer windows.

Plans for building the house began in 1845 but lumbermen ran off with the money.

The next spring lumber was brought in, but the completion of the building was delayed by an epidemic. Later a flood caused further delay and then the lumber was burned in a Prairie fire. The house was finally completed in 1847.

Several relics of the first nuns are housed in the building, including a small statue of the Virgin Mary which the pioneer nuns brought with them from Montreal by canoe.

The Grey Nuns' new provincial building is only a few hundred yards from their original home.

Flap Jack Flap:

By Mary Moore

If so many folks are going in to a flap over flap jacks I want to join the fun.

There are three different versions of flap jacks made scottish style with oats, sent by readers who saw Mrs. E. J.'s request and my S.O.S. on December 13th. I hope Mrs. E. J. sees this.

"Dear M.M.: Your S.O.S. re the English flap-jack recipe . . . has caught my eye, and I hasten to enclose my own recipes which I have adapted and used since my arrival from England ten years ago. Do hope our mutual English friend will find them useful. You will see she is missing out an ingredient . . . I make these often and they just disappear rapidly!

FLAP JACKS

(Courtesy Mrs. A. G. T.)

Melt together 4 ozs. margarine, 1 tablespoon treacle or Golden Syrup. 2). ½ lb. slow or quick Quaker Oats, 6 ozs. (¾ cup) brown sugar, pinch salt. Mix together. Combine 1) and 2) quickly and spread in a well-greased shallow pan; smooth lightly and cook in a slow oven for 20-30 minutes (300 deg.) Whilst still hot, divide into sections. 10 minutes later remove from pan. A beaten egg can also be added to 1) and makes the flap jacks extra nice, of course, but is not essential. Also have used: 4 ozs. margarine, ¾ cup brown sugar, 3 tablespoons molasses, 2-2½ cups oats, and found it quite successful. N. B. The variation as to cooking time is due to the size of pan. I use an English toffee pan — 12" x 5" x ¾" and bake about 25 minutes. Don't over-bake, or they do crumble. Should be soft when removed from pan. They crisp up with storing." Mrs. A. G. T.

"Dear M. M.: I wonder if this recipe for "Scotch Seas" — which I have found to be the nearest thing to English Flap Jacks and which I found in an old Dr. Chases almanac — would be the recipe Mrs. E. J. is looking for.

SCOTCH SEAS:

(Courtesy Mrs. A. G.) One cup brown sugar, ½ cup shortening, (melted), 2 cups rolled oats, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt. Add brown sugar to melted shortening, stir until sugar is dissolved. Add remaining ingredients. Pour into greased pan. Bake 25 mins. Oven 350 deg. Cut when cool . . . I have made this recipe many times and has always been very good . . . Mrs. A. G.

"Dear M. M.: . . . I see a query for English Flap Jacks. I am enclosing a recipe that was used in a big tea room in Worthing, Sussex, twenty years ago, but quantities can be halved of course. One pound 10 oz. butter or margarine, 14 oz. sugar, 10 oz. flour, 1¾ lbs. oats, 1 teaspoon baking powder. (Half amounts in order given: 13 oz., 7 oz., 5 oz., 14 oz., ½ teaspoon. Quarter amounts in order given: 6½ oz., 3½ oz., 2½ oz., 7 oz., ¼ teaspoon.) No salt is added, as I presume there is enough in the butter or margarine." . . . Mrs. A. C.

Thank you three girls for coming to our rescue.

On February 28/57, I gave you my very best Griddle Cake recipe and some of you kindly wrote claiming it the best ever. I still think it is but we must not be complacent. Here is one calling for sour milk or cream — and guess what? — you may use ½ and ½ white and whole wheat flour. Do tell!

EMEM'S SOUR MILK GRIDDLE CAKES:

Two cups sifted flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 eggs beaten until light, about 3 cups of sour milk, sour cream or buttermilk, 3 tablespoons melted butter.

NOTE:

You may use ½ white and ½ whole wheat flour. To sifted dry ingredients add combined beaten eggs, sour milk, and melted butter. Stir barely enough to mix. Bake on hot ungreased griddle until bubbling — flip over and bake other side until golden. If too thin for your liking reduce sour milk These are the "eat-at-once" Canadian type.

PEMBROKE TONIGHT

The Pembroke Lumber Kings, those hardy chasers of the puck who do their home hockey cavorting in Wally Lenser's deep-freeze domain, will be the guests of the McFarlands at Memorial Arena tonight. And a quiet tip to those who have ideas of staying away—don't do it—you will miss what should be the classic of the season.

Colonel Whazziname, boss brain of the touring Russian squad, apparently missed the boat when he did not include Giesebrechts Incorporated in his Canadian itinerary. For it seems the Kinglets are the only club in Ontario who have the Indian sign on the Allan Cup champions from Whitby.

Three times the Kings have sent the Dunlops crashing down to defeat. The teams ended up in overtime stalemate on another occasion while the Dunnies have been victorious four times. The Kings can claim half the defeats suffered by the champions in Eastern League competition.

The Kings apparently do not do things in half measures. Not too long ago, after Ken Campbell retired as playing coach, they started to skid. The Canadiens from Ottawa whipped 'em 6-5 and Boss Lenser, having no luck in faraway pastures in his efforts to secure a playing coach, rushed Gerry Plamondon into the breach.

Things appeared to go from bad to worse. Not only did the Kings fail to win their next two games, but they failed to score a goal in either pastime, being horse-collared 3-0 by Kingston and 7-0 by the Blairmen from Whitby.

But with Cornwall and Kingston in the doldrums, the Kings managed to stay closely behind the McFarlands in third place, aided not a little by the inability, at that time, of the Hildebranders to add to their points column. There hasn't been over three points difference between the clubs in the past three or four weeks.

It was a case of you win one and I'll take the next. Right at this moment the Macs and Kings are in unofficial third and fourth spots with 32 and 31 points respectively. The Ottawa Canadiens, with the privilege of scoring three points for a win, two for the first tie and one for the second, are in second place, but will not take part in the league playoffs.

After the pair of shutouts, Lenser and Plamonden injected some sort of virus into the Kings' system, for as suddenly as they hit the skids they started on the road back. They whumped the saucy Ottawa Canadiens 7-5 and on Saturday night threw back the Whitby Dunlops' bid for their tenth consecutive win by handing them a 6-4 setback that nearly short-circuited the Northern Lights over the Petawawa horizon.

While records do not mean a thing when the chips are down, the McFarlands hold a win-three, tie-one, lose-one record against the Kings. They have beaten them all three times in Memorial Arena, lost one and were tied in the Pembroke hockey academy.

So. Mr. Lenser's happy boys, flushed with success against the two top teams of the eastern circuit, will throw all their power against the McFarlands tonight in an effort to not only increase their victory skein to three but take over third place in the standing

However, the Hildebranders will have something to say about that. Ike has the Macs "up" and rarin' to go, and if they come up with the brand of hockey they flashed Saturday night against Cornwall, Giesebrecht-Lenser Inc. is going to have a very busy evening.

There is a possibility that Gordie Bell may be in harness tonight. Over the weekend Gordie had as much strapping on his back as a mummy. He had X-rays taken yesterday.

"I am going in there if I possibly can," Gord told this reporter, "the boys are in stride now and we are going to collect a few points." He was sure he would be ready for action against Whitby here on Friday night.

It seemed to this reporter that Gordie was as much "mad" as he was hurt. Mad at the behind-the-back attack of hometown hero No. 1 Carmen Marshall, and the deliberate slashing over the noggin' of the "Turk" by the village V.C. "Rooster" Muir. There was something in Bell's mien that does not augur well for either of these hometown medal-seekers should they venture within his domain when next time the teams meet.

However, the "Turk" who is nursing a sore six-stitch cranium is ready for action should the need arise. Perhaps he should have got that "crew-cut" last week along with Minnie, Floyd and company, instead of letting Muir perform the job with a hockey shillalagh.

Teepee Stars Pace Junior Scoring Race

TORONTO (CP) — League-leading St. Catharines Teepees of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A loop, not content with leading the league standings, are monopolizing the individual scoring race.

Ed Hoekstra is in top position with a total of 60 points—24 goals and 36 assists—for a three-point margin over teammate Jack McKenzie's 25 goals and 32 assists.

Pews Few, Car Space Sparse In Miniature L.A. Stadium; Might Get Larger Coliseum

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles Dodgers were all but resigned today to settling down in Wrigley Field, a place where the pews are few and the car space sparse.

But there still appeared to be an outside chance that they would add a surprise finale to the season's daffiest baseball drama by getting a berth in spacious Memorial Coliseum.

The Coliseum commission planned to meet this afternoon and was expected to hear another pitch on behalf of the Dodgers. Mayor Norris Poulson told The Associated Press one of his three representatives on the commission would re-introduce a motion to let the Dodgers set up home plate in the west end of the Coliseum.

The last time this motion was introduced, the commission deadlocked 4-4. But it was presented then with a proviso — that the commission take no action unless the Dodgers stopped negotiating for use of the Rose Bowl in Pasadena. The Rose Bowl negotiations collapsed Monday because of the cost that would be involved in modifying the stadium for baseball use.

PREDICTS APPROVAL

County supervisor Kenneth Hahn predicted Monday night that the Coliseum commission, of which he is a member, would approve the west end home plate location unanimously. The Dodgers want the plate there so the sun won't shine in the eyes of batters.

Should the Dodgers finally choose Wrigley Field, some changes would be needed there, too. There have been objections to the short (345-foot) right-centre field wall. O'Malley said it would be pushed back.

Wrigley Field also would be expanded, from 22,500 seats to about 23,600.

Outside, there is a lot that holds only about 800 autos.

If someone has a solution to this problem he has kept it expertly concealed.

Pete Rademacher Patterson Fight Oddity of Year

NEW YORK (AP)—The pairing of heavyweight boxing champion Floyd Patterson and Olympic champion Pete Rademacher in a bout for the world fistic title has been voted the sports oddity of 1957.

The annual Associated Press year-end poll of sports writers and broadcasters put the June 19 match in Seattle at the top of the list of unusual occurrences. Never before in boxing history had an Olympic champion fought for a world crown in his first professional outing.

Rademacher floored Patterson before the champ rallied to win on a sixth-round knockout.

The Patterson-Rademacher affair received 26 first-place votes from the 122 voters in the poll.

The misjudging of the Kentucky Derby finish line by jockey Willie Shoemaker was favored by 16 voters. Willie, it will be recalled, eased up on Gallant Man and lost by a whisker to Iron Liege.

In baseball, Ted Williams' failure to win the American League most valuable player award after compiling a better batting record than Mickey Mantle was ranked high. So was the listing of the Boston slugger in ninth place on one MVP ballot and in 10th place on another.

Eskimos Faced With Problem Of Replacements

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos, whose club stability helped give them four years of football success, have been jarred to the roots.

They need replacements for coach Frank Ivy and assistant Ray Prochaska. They may have to find someone to succeed club president Cec Ros . Star player Jackie Parker must decide by Wednesday whether to stay with the club.

The club has been faced with these problems within a week. In addition, there have been signs of apathy among Edmonton supporters.

Troubles started last Thursday when Ivy signed as head coach of the National Football League Chicago Cardinals.

STAYS WITH IVY

The club said Monday that in an effort to replace Ivy it offered Prochaska the promotion. Prochaska turned it down. He will follow Ivy to Chicago as an assistant.

Ross has said he intends to resign, though there is a strong move afoot to keep him at the helm.

Parker, who at the start of last season was given a special Eskimo contract allowing him to enter the NFL anytime up to Jan. 15, has not announced a move yet. He said last week he had an offer from New York Giants, but Giants denied this.

Meanwhile, Esks are listening to all applications for the coaching jobs. Ross says several United States college coaches have shown some interest.

Marshall Tops American League

NEW YORK (AP)—Hershey's Willie Marshall has stepped out to an eight - point lead in the American Hockey League scoring race, statistics showed today.

Willie scored eight points during the past week to run his total count to 25 goals and 37 assists.

In the meantime, the Cleveland pair of Fred Glover and Jimmy Moore accounted for 17 points between them to move into a tie with Dunc Fisher of Hershey for third place. Each player has 54 points.

Johnny Bower, Cleveland's goalie, turned in another shutout (his seventh) during the week. His league-leading goalie average is 2.23. He's two away from the league shutout record of nine.

Frick Firm In Opposition To Television

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baseball commissioner Ford Frick said today he has not altered his opposition to plans of six major league clubs to televise Sunday games next season. He said it would hurt minor leagues.

"I think it's a shame," Frick said as he waited to talk over congressional anti-trust investigators.

Frick and Frank Shaughnessy of Montreal, president of the International League, confer this afternoon with Representative Emanuel Celler, Brooklyn Democrat, and Representative Kenneth B Keating, New York Republican, of the house anti-trust subcommittee, which is working on a bill to clarify the legal status of all professional team sports.

Latest indications are that the subcommittee will come up with a compromise along the lines of a proposal by Keating to exempt all but the strictly commercial aspects of baseball, football, basketball and hockey from federal anti-trust laws. In that situation, the much-disputed reserve clause binding a player to his team would probably be excluded but such phases as television contracts undoubtedly would be subject to anti-trust regulations.

One network (CBS) said recently a half dozen clubs had made arrangements to televise a Sunday "game of the week" in 1958.

Frick criticized the plan but told a reporter "we need relief here" in order to do anything about it. He has long argued that under the present interpretation of anti-trust statutes any agreement to limit telecasts would be ruled a violation.

WOULD STOP IT

Shaughnessy said in New York Monday that "if the majors were permitted to run their own affairs regarding television, they would set up legislation that would prevent any club from telecasting its games into minor league territory." He said Frick supports that view.

The Sunday telecast plans include games of Chicago White Sox, New York Yankees, Cleveland Indians, and Baltimore Orioles of the American League, Cincinnati Redlegs and Philadelphia Phillies of the National League.

Although the telecasts would be blacked out in the immediate vicinity of minor league games being played at the same time, officials of the minors contend too much baseball fare on home screens threatens them with destruction.

Shaughnessy contended Sunday gates made up 24 per cent of all minor league attendance last year and said the blackout plan "won't help the minors a bit." He and Frick want to find a way to overcome the impasse under either present or future legislation.

Aaron Predicts Mantle Next .400 Hitter

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Hank Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves, a natural hitter if there ever was one, predicted today that the Yankees' Mickey Mantle will be baseball's next .400 hitter.

"He's a really great hitter," said Aaron. "He has the power, the consistency and the speed to hit .400 and I think he'll do it one of these seasons."

Aaron and Mantle won the most valuable player awards for their respective leagues this past season.

The 23-year-old Braves slugger finished atop the National League in homers, with 44, and runs batted in, with 132, but had to settle for a .322 batting average.

FINISHED SECOND

Mantle finished second to Ted Williams in the race for the American League batting title, .365 to .383, and well down the list in homers and RBI's. The switch - hitting Yankees hit 34 homers and drove in 94 runs.

Aaron said he doubts he'll ever average 4 for 10 for an entire campaign.

"When I leave the bench," he said, "I go up there swinging. The ball may be over my head, but I'll still take a cut at it if I think I can get a good piece of it.

"For my money, though, Mantle has the best chance of all. He has the speed to beat out those infield dribblers. That adds up to a lot of points over a season."

Says Giants, Dodgers Move Baseball's Biggest Mistake

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—After 10 years of silence, Larry Macphail finally has popped off about baseball.

"The greatest mistake baseball ever made was when the National League gave the Giants and Dodgers permission to go to the Pacific coast," Macphail said Wednesday night at a baseball writers' testimonial dinner to Babe Hamberger, Dodger official.

"I am willing to bet even money that the Dodgers never play in the Rose Bowl or the Coliseum," he said. "And I'm willing to bet even money they never will play in the Ravine (Chavez). I think Mr. O'Malley (Dodger president Walter O'Malley) has something else in mind."

After his impromptu talk, Macphail elaborated in response to the writers' questions.

COUNTING ON TV

"I believe he hopes to sell baseball through television," he said, indicating he thought O'Malley was counting on pay-as-you-go TV to pay the bills over the long haul.

"When I left the Yankees in 1947, I promised I'd never pop off about baseball for 10 years," said Macphail. "Well, I kept my promise, except for the time I had to testify before Congress when they were investigating baseball."

The former Brooklyn general manager and New York Yankee president who sold out his Yankee interest in 1947 now operates a horse racing farm at Bel Air Md.

Among other things, Macphai revealed he had favored workin toward four major leagues a long ago as 1947.

"Baseball made its first bi mistake in 1947," he said. "Whe it refused to give the Pacifi Coast League exemption from th draft and refused to let it star on its way toward a third majo league. If they had been able t take in cities like Dallas, Kansa City and Milwaukee, th American Association and national League could hav merged into a fourth majo league."

astrano, Turpin Fight Ban aised British Writers' Ire

— By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ONDON (CP)—The burden of complaint against the ban by British authorities of the pro-se ht between Willie Pas-ano and Randy Turpin seems be that Pastrano wouldn't ve hurt the British light-heavy-ight champion too badly in the ocess of murdering him.

Additionally, critics of the de-sion by the British Boxing oard of Control offer convincing idence that a fight between urpin and the world's fourth-nking heavyweight would have rawn a capacity crowd.

If the loss of a sure-fire box ffice attraction weighed most eavily with the fight's promot-rs, it was the implied slur on e prestige of British boxing at brought an indignant outcry om most of the sports writers.

RYING COMEBACK

A , Turpin is the only ac-iv riton who has ever held a orld title. But six years have one by since he outpointed Ray obinson for the middleweight rown, only to be stopped by obinson in a return match hree months later.

Currently he is on a modest omeback campaign after suffer-ing knockouts at the hands of taly's Tiberio Mitri in 1954 and Canada's Gordon Wallace the ollowing year. He has never ought in the heavyweight divi-sion.

Pastrano, 22, gave Britain's Dick Richardson a boxing lesson in a recent London appearance but is a notoriously light hitter.

The sports writers notorious believers in the ability of any British fighter to annihilate any American despite repeated evi-dence to the contrary, were di-vided in their views on the ad-visability of a Turpin - Pastrano m g.

when the BBC banned the match under a rule permitting them "to prohibit any contest which in their opinion is not in the interest of boxing," there were anguished cries of dissent.

TURPIN SUPPORTERS

"A raw deal," said Bill Mc-Gowan in The Evening News. "Turpin has always been a fighter who has produced his best against boxers."

"The board has implied that British champions are no good," L. N. Bailey complained in The Star. "Turpin is experienced enough to look after himself."

Gerard Walker argued in The News Chronicle that the question of Turpin's fitness to oppose Pas-trano should have been decided in the ring. He called the board's decision "a panic measure" in re se to criticism of the fight.

the board had its defend-ers. Peter Wilson of The Daily Mirror said it had faced its responsibilities "promptly and courageously."

And Steve Fagan wrote in The Daily Sketch: "Who but a sadist could have enjoyed the spectacle of the speedy Pastrano ripping Randy to pieces?"

Will Race at Picton for $10,000 Trophy

TORONTO (CP) — Commodore Bob Finlayson of the Canadian Boating Federation announced Monday the $10,000 Duke of York T y, the world's most expen-s powerboating award, will be competed for in Canada this year for the first time, by royal con-sent.

All previous races for the tro-phy, donated by the late King George VI in 1924, have been held in England. The most recent competition was in 1951 when Art Hatch of Hamilton won with his boat Costa Livin' on Lake Winder-mere in the English Lake dis-trict. The trophy has been in Can-ada since then.

Commodore Finlayson said the races—three 30-mile heats—will probably be held this summer near Picton, Ont., where Miss Supertest, owned by James Thompson of London, Ont., re-cently set a world record, since broken, for propeller - driven boats of the unlimited class.

Boats competing for the trophy a winged figurine flying over a boat on a sea of gold—are lim-ited to 12½ gallons of gasoline each heat, which eliminates com-petition from boats of the unlim- class.

LONDON (AP)—South African Willie Toweel, British Empire lightweight champion, tonight challenges a long, straight left, recognized even in his camp as one of the best in the world. The left belongs to Cuban lightweight Orlando Zulueta, a stylist who meets Toweel in a 10-rounder. The winner hopes for a bout with world champion Joe Brown of New Orleans.

Boom-Boom Moves Up to Third Place

MONTREAL (CP) — Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, whose thunderous shots echo around the National Hockey League, is the latest threat to the scoring leaders.

The burly right - winger for Montreal Canadiens, who missed five games at the start of the season when laid low by Asian flu, blasted home five goals and collected three assists last week to move from fifth to third place. tion and upward climb gave Canadiens 1-2-3 billing in the league's official statistics, released today.

The spurge by Geoffrion, scoring champion three seasons ago, boosted his total to 44 points and knocked Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings out of third place.

MISSES ONE GAME

Howe, NHL champion last season and winner five times in all, scored two goals and now has 43 points. An injury put Howe out of one game last week.

Geoffrion now has 23 goals, one less than little Camille Henry of New York Rangers whose 24 tops the league's goal-getters. Howe has 22 and Moore 21.

Moore and Henri Richard lead on assists, each with 30.

Bronco Horvath of Boston Bruins, with one goal and three assists last week, is tied with Howe at 43 points but ranks behind him because of a smaller goal total, 17.

Andy Bathgate of New York collected five points on two goals and three assists and is sole holder of sixth place with 39 points, two more than teammate Camille Henry and Boston's Vic Stasiuk.

Henry's four goals and one assist lifted him from eighth to the seventh-place tie. Stasiuk had two goals and one assist. A single goal by Billy Harris of Toronto Maple Leafs was enough to move him from 10th to ninth place. He has 33 points, one more than Montreal's injured Jean Beliveau, a casualty since Dec. 12. Harris has 13 goals and 20 assists.

WIN STREAK SNAPPED

The league-leading Canadiens saw an eight - game winning streak snapped Sunday when they were walloped by the tail-end Chicago Black Hawk but the Montrealers still have an 18-point margin over Detroit Red Wings.

Wings won all three of their games last week, only team with a perfect record, and bounced from fourth to second place. New York Rangers squeezed out only a tie in three starts and slipped to third place. Detroit now has 41 points and New York 40, against Montreal's 59.

Boston also lost ground, getting two ties in three outings, and dropped from third to a fourth-place tie with Toronto at 37 points. Leafs, fifth a week ago, had a profitable week with a win and two ties. Chicago won once in three tries and is in the cellar with 34 points.

Trenton Cubs Tighten 3rd Spot Hold With 7-5 Victory Over Belleville

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Trenton Cubs scored two goals in the first minute of overtime here last night to give them a 7-5 victory over Belleville Lambert-Rollins in the most exciting junior "B" hockey game of the season.

The loss was a heart breaker for Belleville as Trenton gained two more points on the Construction crew in their battle for third spot. The Cubs are five points ahead of Belleville but have played three more games.

Both clubs went all out for victory last night, playing wide open, hard hitting hockey from the opening whistle. The score was tied 2-2 at the end of the first period and Trenton was in front 5-4 at the end of the second session.

Gord "Pork" Irwin finally sent the game into overtime at 17:15. The lanky ex-defenceman, playing his first game on the front lines, scored on a backhander following a faceoff near the Trenton cage.

Gordie Greeen was thumbed for hooking at 18:25 of the third and the losers fought hard in the dying seconds to preserve the tie. Green was just stepping back onto the ice in overtime when Arnie Burleigh slid the disc under Gilby's leg for the winning marker, his third goal of the night. The clock read 28 seconds. Twenty-five seconds later Harvey Scott took a pass from Burleigh to make it 7-5 in favor of the Cubs to complete the scoring.

Tony Scalette gave Trenton a 1-0 lead early in the first period with St. Louis and Titterson of Belleville both in the penalty box. The line of Goyer, St. Louis and Irwin took charge near the seventeen minute mark. Gary Goyer whipped home a rebound with both mates assisting at 17:41 and banged home his second just 17 seconds later with St. Louis again assisting. The lead was short lived however with Burleigh making it 2-2 at 18:55.

Burleigh flipped in a backhander after 18 seconds of the second period while B. Carradus completed a pretty passing play with Pshebnicky at 12:16 for a 4-2 Trenton lead.

Belleville roared to the attack with Scaletta and Jones of Trenton in the sin bin and Gary Rowbotham got one goal back with Jones still serving his sentence, Rowbotham evened matters a couple of minutes later when Moxam caught his hard drive over his shoulder and dropped it into his own net.

Trenton went out front again at 19.54 when Frankie Caume took an offside pass from Pshebnicky and went in alone to beat Gilby. The officials allowed the goal, despite protests from the Belleville club.

Frank Cris of Trenton suffered a slight head injury late in the game and was forced to leave the game for medical attention.

Burleigh was tops for the losers with three goals and one assist. Scaletta, Carradus, Caume and Scott also scored while Pshebnicky had two assists. Cris and Drake each drew one helper. Moxam booted out a lot of rubber as did Gilby.

Gary Goyer and Gary Rowbotham each scored twice in a losing cause while Gord Irwin had a goal and assist. Gordie St. Louis picked up a pair of assists with one each for John Brennan, Dennis Kerruish and Jerry Mann.

PHILLIES ON NEW YORK TV

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Phillies said Monday they are completing arrangements with station WOR-TV in New York to televise 77 home and road games during the 1958 National League season. A Phillies spokesman said the games would be mostly home contests, but some games with teams in the east and as far west as St. Louis would be included.

Tod Sloan Out of Action For 3 Weeks

BOSTON (AP)—Tod Sloan, Toronto Maple Leafs' right wing, suffered torn ligaments in Sunday night's game in which Toronto defeated Boston Bruins 5-3, and has been ruled out of action for 2½ to three weeks.

Dr. Edward Browne, physician for the Boston club, diagnosed Sloan's injury as torn internal collateral ligaments of the left knee.

Sloan suffered the injury in a crash with Bruins' rear guard, Jack Bionda.

Leafs ordered Sloan to return to Toronto for rest and treatment. No operation is planned.

The injury to Sloan will force a shuffling of Leaf forwards. He had been playing with Billy Harris and Frank Mahovlich.

His place will be taken by Gary Aldcorn. Barry Cullen will move in with Brian Cullen and Bob Pulford. George Armstrong, Rudy Migay and Dickie Duff will make up the other line.

Hamilton Cubs Whip Bilts 6-2

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Cubs moved to within one point of second - place Toronto Marlboros Monday night by defeating last place Guelph Biltmores 6-2 in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series game before 1,100 fans.

Gerry Sullivan, Brian Smith, Ed Cooke, Garry Luyben, Lloyd Haddon and Stu McNeil scored for Cubs. George Usitalo and Rod Gilbert were the Guelph marksmen.

Three Canadiens Are Named To Half-Way All-Star Team

MONTREAL (CP) — Three members of Montreal Canadiens and one each from Detroit Red Wings, New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks were named to the National Hockey League all-star first team in voting for the first half of the season.

Results of the voting, announced Monday, showed the Montrealers selected were defenceman Doug Harvey, centre Henri Richard and left - winger Dickie Moore.

Gordie Howe of Detroit was named to right wing, Bill Gadsby of New York to defence and Glenn Hall of Chicago to the goal-tending spot.

Another vote will follow the regular season and total points will be combined to determine final selections.

Voting was done by hockey writers, broadcasters and telecasters in the six NHL cities. The balloting is weighed to give each city equal voting strength.

Canadiens also placed three players on the second team—goalie Jacques Plante, centre Jean Beliveau and right-winger Maurice (Rocket) Richard. Both Richard and Beliveau have been laid up with injuries, the Rocket since Nov. 13 and Beliveau since Dec. 12.

Also named to the second team were Fern Flaman of Boston Bruins for one of the defence posts, Marcel Pronovost of Detroit and Ron Stewart of Toronto Leafs, who were tied, to the other; and Fleming Mackell of Boston to left wing.

Harvey, Hall and Howe were members of the 1956-57 first all-star team; Plante, Maurice Richard and Flaman were on the second team. Gadsby was also a second-team member last season. Beliveau was centre on the 1956-57 first team.

Points for each position: Goal, Hall 65, Plante 44; defence, Harvey 90, Gadsby 87, Flaman 29, Pronovost and Stewart 19 each; centre, Henri Richard 78, Beliveau 42; right wing, Howe 89, Maurice Richard 29; left wing, Moore 71, Mackell 25.

Hamilton to Seek Entry In Intercounty

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Beavers, finalists in the only season in which the defunct Great Lakes Senior Baseball League operated, will apply for membership in the Intercounty Senior League.

Owner Frank King said Monday: "Our chances of acceptance are excellent, since they asked us to apply."

It is believed Brantford and London, also member last year of the Great Lakes league, are interested in joining the Intercounty.

Manager Danny Lewandowski, former pitcher with St. Louis Cardinals of the National League, has been retained for 1958.

CARLING CONSERVATION CLUB

Now that the frantic rushing around is over for another year, it's about time we fishermen gave some thought to that mess of tackle we left uncared for after the last fishing trip.

That is, if we hope to be able to use it again next season.

Do you remember where you left it? Try looking in the trunk of the car. It just might be there! If it is, as I suspect, the sooner you get at cleaning it the better.

It's not as formidable a job as might be expected, either. All that is necessary is a little time, patience and some mineral spirits (or other cleansing agent), a small artist's brush, some fine oil and a small screwdriver. These few articles should suffice for anything other than a major repair job.

Taking a reel apart for cleaning is not a very difficult operation. Putting it back together and having it work properly can be difficult, but not impossible. I find that a clean piece of cloth or paper laid out in front of me where I can place the parts before and after cleaning prevents the tiny screws from dropping out of sight and becoming lost.

Here is another little stunt. As I remove each section or piece, I lay it alongside the previous one. In this way, when the job of reassembling commences you just work backwards from the last one removed. Simple, but effective.

Once the reel is cleaned and reassembled, oil it well and put it under wraps or in a cotton bag. This keeps the dust and dirt out.

Several years ago I came across a formula for keeping waders soft and pliable and it has kept them from leaking for a long time. Wash the mud and grime away and when they are dry use a small pad of absorbent cotton soaked with the following mixture to wipe them over well. The mixture consists of 1-3 glycerine and 2-3 alcohol—well shaken and emulsified.

Most bait casting lines these days are made from nylon. It does no harm to leave them on the reel, although one should check them over carefully to see that they are not frayed. If they are, reverse the line on the reel unless it is too far gone too far up from the end. Then be sure to check the guides — they may have caused the trouble in the first place.

While you are at this point, it will be a good idea to have a look at the guide windings. A little nail polish applied to each will not only stop fraying but will dress up the rods as well.

Wet fly lines are something different again. They just have to be removed from the reel. I find that washing them in lukewarm water in which I have added some of the new soap detergents cleans them thoroughly. Then hang them up in big loops (at least 3 feet of line to a loop). In February or March wipe them with a solution of boiled linseed oil, making sure of plenty of drying time before you want to use them again.

In the case of dry fly lines, particularly one that has often been dressed, it may take two or three washings to remove the surplus wax. Then proceed as outlined.

For metal lures I find that my mounted buffer is invaluable. I first remove the hooks, then buff the lures thoroughly. When they are bright and shiny, I dip them into some metal lacquer to hold the gloss. When dry, I replace the hooks. Net result — new lures.

Makes for a rewarding evening or two's spare time — profitable too!

KERWIN MATCHED AGAIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Matchmaker Billy Brown Monday signed welterweights Stefan Redl of Passaic, N.J., and Gale Kerwin of Ottawa for a 10-round television bout at Madison Square Garden Feb. 14. Redl, winner of all 16 of his pro bouts, recently finished serving six months in the army. Kerwin has a 25-6-1 record.

VICTORIA (CP) — British Columbia mineral production dropped $25,000,000 in 1957 from the record total of $190,084,000 set in 1956, Mines Minister Kernan announced.

Bank Clerk, 17 Sets World Bowling Marks

STONEY CREEK, Ont. (CP)—A 17-year-old bank clerk, who has been bowling in adult five-pin leagues since he was 13, Saturday set unofficial world league records for high three- and five-game totals.

Ron Evans, bowling at Thorold in the Niagara Intercity Bowling League, hit 1,140 for three games and 1,815 for five games.

T. W. Barlow, owner of the alley which Evans represents, said research into Ontario and Western Canadian league records established the total as highs in competitive bowling in this country, where most five-pin bowling is done.

The previous recorded highs were 1,128 for three games, set by Percy West of Ingersoll, Ont., and 1,720 for five games, set by Gord Patterson of Guelph.

Evans, whose best previous single-game score was 382, had 319, 418, 403, 265, and 410 in his record string. He missed perfect 450 games three times when he left a corner pin standing and struck out. He now has an average of 258 in inter-city play.

Marcel Paille Will Remain With Rangers

NEW YORK (CP) — Rookie goalie Marcel Paille is staying with New York Rangers despite a string of hard luck, the club announced Monday.

Detroit Red Wings defeated Rangers 3-2 Sunday night, which meant that the little netminder had yielded 42 goals in eight National Hockey League games.

But general manager Muzz Patrick said he thought Paille could not be blamed for the loss.

Coach Phil Watson said earlier that Paille would change places with Gump Worsley at Providence of the American Hockey League unless he showed improvement during the weekend. Paille replaced Worsley with Rangers earlier this season.

With Watson's ultimatum in his ears, Paille was bombarded in Montreal Saturday night, when Canadiens defeated Rangers 9-3.

But Paille seemed to escape blame for the debacle. After Sunday's game, Patrick said:

"I'm not going to make him the fall guy. I blame the defence, which is lousy. As an example Jack Evans was so bad he wasn't used in the second and third periods. How can you expect a goalie to stand up without help?"

Trappers Whip Greyhounds 4-2

SAULT STE. MARIE (CP) North Bay Trappers Monday night scored a 4-2 win over Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds to move into a third - place tie with Chatham in the OHA-NOHA Senior A League.

The loss was Greyhounds first on home ice this season in regular league play.

Trappers were led by left winger Bob Barlow and ex-Greyhound Cleland Mortson.

Barlow scored two goals, both in the third period, one into the empty net. Mortson assisted on three North Bay goals and teamed up with Barlow to kill penalties.

The teams split goals in each of the first two periods before Barlow took over in the third.

Other scorers for Trappers were Ken Gribbons and Chico Cahana. John Bailey and Tom Walker scored the Greyhound goals.

Hard to Beat Old Movies Shown Every Night of Week

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — For fruitful reflection in the field of entertainment it's hard to beat some of the old movies that are being shown every night of the week on television stations throughout the country.

Some that seemed great when you first saw them 15 and 20 years ago are duds when viewed again today. Others still seem fresh.

The one film maker whose works never disappoint me on rerun is Alfred Hitchcock, the old master of suspense. Considering that television these days seems to be devoting almost half its dramatic efforts to stories of suspense, it's interesting that no one has yet eclipsed Hitchcock in this basically artful form.

Incidentally, we're discussing Hitchcock the TV producer. While his CBS-TV Sunday evening drama program maintains a high level of entertainment, a half-hour is usually too short a time for his special talents.

GOOD EXAMPLE

These reflections are prompted by viewing Suspicion—not the NBC-TV Monday evening program, but the movie starring Cary Grant and Joan Fontaine which Hitchcock made in 1941 and in which Miss Fontaine won an Oscar.

Anyone trying to write TV suspense dramas could not get to a better school than the file of Hitchcock's old films. When he studied Suspicion he'd be struck by its basic simplicity of plot, its downright frugality of setting.

It's the story of a timid, near-sighted English heiress played by Miss Fontaine who falls in love with and marries a wastrel played by Grant. He's a gambler, a no-account—but charming. She comes to believe that he is capable of murder; that he murdered his best friend and plans to murder her. He didn't—and doesn't. Quick 30-second happy ending.

Doesn't sound like much, does it? But it held me as has no TV suspense drama, live or filmed, which I've seen in months.

AT THE BELLE — Ann Blyth, Paul Newman and Richard Carlson are heading a large cast in Warner Bros. "The Helen Morgan Story", in CinemaScope, playing for the last times tonight, at the Belle Theatre.

TV's MISTAKES

What television doesn't do—or hasn't in the efforts at suspense which I've seen recently—is to bother to build interesting characters whose fates concern you and so place you in a state of suspense over their outcome. This simply can't be done with shrieks in the night, shadowy figures in dark alleys, ticking clocks and all the trite paraphernalia currently so common.

Miss Fontaine created genuine suspense simply by loving Grant and caring so much what happened to him; as a result you loved her and cared what happened to her. Grant created genuine suspense by displaying ambivalence toward good and evil; as a result you suspected him of evil when he was being good and hoped that he would turn out well when seemingly bad.

Swiss Cupcake, Lilo Pulver, New Addition to Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The German film industry's latest contribution to Hollywood is a Swiss cupcake named Lilo (or Lisa) Pulver.

Pulver translates as powder, and she is indeed an explosive doll. As to her first name, there is some confusion. Universal-International, which is starring her in A Time To Love And a Time To Die, gave her the Lisa. She's trying to get it back to Lilo.

"I'm billed in Europe both as Lilo and Liselotte," she explained. "It would be ridiculous for me to be known by three different names."

NATURAL BEAUTY

Lisa is 28, with a ready laugh and natural beauty that requires no makeup. She looks slender, but she proves she has curves when she dons a bathing suit, as was inevitable when she came to Hollywood.

Her explosive qualities were evident when she discussed German film actors. She started by talking about American men.

"I have never seen so many beautiful men," she said. "Everywhere I go, I see them. They are so handsome and so muscular. They are shaped like this (indicating a V) instead of this, as in Germany (an upside-down V).

"The studios look hard for handsome men in Germany. If they are good-looking, they may be too short. If they are tall, they may have plain faces."

A NEW ERA

Miss Pulver is evidence of the new entertainment era in Europe. A leading player in German plays and movies, she was discovered for her role in the Erich Maria Remarque story via television. Director Douglas Sirk saw a kinescope of a TV version of The Lark.

She had also done our Town and a crime play on the state-owned German TV, she said. Her pay for the four weeks of rehearsals and the show: About $400, microscopic by American standards.

Germans now own more than 1,000,000 TV sets and the new entertainment is already cutting into theatre business, she reported.

"But I don't think TV will ever hurt movies in Europe as bad as it has here. People in Europe still want to go out for their entertainment."

AT THE PARK — George Montgomery tries to remain impervious to the blandishments of Marilo Earle in the crime drama, "Street of Sinners", a United Artists release, showing today and Wednesday at the Park Theatre. The picture also stars Geraldine Brooks and Nehemiah Persoff. On the same program second big action hit "Chicago Confidential" starring Brian Keith, Beverly Garland and Dick Foran. Both attractions are first showings.

BALMY BREEZES

NANTON, Alta. (CP) — Some tall tales of mid-winter Chinooks, the warm winds of southern Alberta, may have a backing of truth. One late - December Chinook had small shrubs starting to bud in this area.

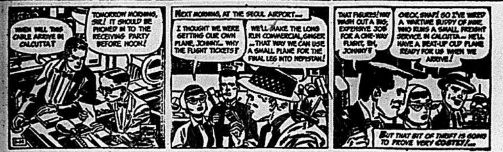
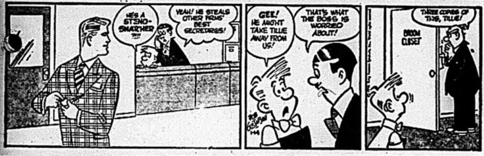
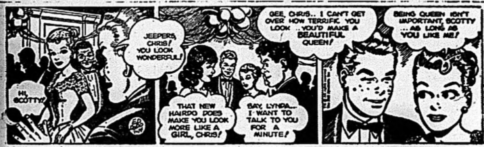
COTTON, REMEMBER TH' OLD DOGLEG COUNTRY CLUB?
SURE, SHERIFF...
...KNEW EVERY BLADE OF GRASS ON THAT GOLF COURSE WHEN I CADDIED THERE YEARS AGO!
WELL, THEY'RE BUILDING ON IT NOW!
NO KIDDING?... BET MOM WOULD LOVE A NEW HOME THERE!
HOURS LATER...
SLIP YOUR COAT ON, MOM... WE'RE TAKING A LONG WALK!
1-14



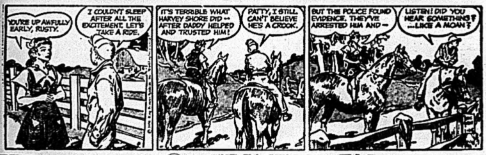
WHEN WILL THIS CABLE ARRIVE IN CALCUTTA?
TOMORROW MORNING, SIR! IT SHOULD BE PHONED IN TO THE RECEIVING PARTY BEFORE NOON!
NEXT MORNING, AT THE SEOUL AIRPORT...
I THOUGHT WE WERE GETTING OUR OWN PLANE, JOHNNY... WHY THE FLIGHT TICKETS?
WE'LL MAKE THE LONG RUN COMMERCIAL, GINGER ...THAT WAY WE CAN USE A SMALL PLANE FOR THE FINAL LEG INTO NEPISTAN!
THAT FIGURES! WHY WASH OUT A BIG, EXPENSIVE JOB FOR A ONE-WAY FLIGHT, EH, JOHNNY?
CHECK, SNAP! SO I'VE WIRED A WARTIME BUDDY OF MINE WHO RUNS A SMALL FREIGHT SERVICE IN CALCUTTA... HE'LL HAVE A BEAT-UP OLD PLANE READY FOR US WHEN WE ARRIVE!
BUT THAT BIT OF THRIFT IS GOING TO PROVE VERY COSTLY!...



HE'S A STENO-SNATCHER
YEAH! HE STEALS OTHER FIRMS' BEST SECRETARIES!
GEE! HE MIGHT TAKE TILLIE AWAY FROM US!
THAT'S WHAT THE BOSS IS WORRIED ABOUT!
THREE COPIES OF THIS, TILLIE!
BROOM CLOSET



JEEPERS, CHRIS! YOU LOOK WONDERFUL!
HI, SCOTTY!
THAT NEW HAIRDO DOES MAKE YOU LOOK MORE LIKE A GIRL, CHRIS!
SAY, LYNDA... I WANT TO TALK TO YOU FOR A MINUTE!
GEE, CHRIS.. I CAN'T GET OVER HOW TERRIFIC YOU LOOK ...YOU'D MAKE A BEAUTIFUL QUEEN!
BEING QUEEN ISN'T IMPORTANT, SCOTTY ...AS LONG AS YOU LIKE ME!



YOU'RE UP AWFULLY EARLY, RUSTY.
I COULDN'T SLEEP AFTER ALL THE EXCITEMENT. LET'S TAKE A RIDE.
IT'S TERRIBLE WHAT HARVEY SHORE DID — AFTER DADDY HELPED AND TRUSTED HIM!
PATTY, I STILL CAN'T BELIEVE HE'S A CROOK.
BUT THE POLICE FOUND EVIDENCE. THEY'VE ARRESTED HIM AND — LISTEN! DID YOU HEAR SOMETHING? ...LIKE A MOAN?

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Aries (March 21 to April 19)— Give heed to the words of a real friend today instead of listening to advice of someone who should have been a mortician and would take away your last vestige of courage. P.M. have a really joyful time long missed.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)— The ideas for your well-being expressed by an influential person [illegible] at variance with those of your associate, which are also fine. Don't make a decision in A.M. P.M. take a little trip with a friend.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)— Be careful you do not get so engrossed in daily small tasks that you neglect the fine opportunity which is presenting itself of real scope and size in the future. Tonight, get your financial position well placed.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) — You have a great desire for worthwhile pleasure that appears to be remote at present. Spend day hours preparing to attain it by increasing potentialities, pocketbook. P.M. take time out with fine comrade.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Several emotional squalls become manifest concerning self or others in the morning. Permit them to die out naturally before attempting to work, then dive in with vim and vigor and accomplish much on into the night.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Guard against a possible untoward event that may present itself in own activities that might confuse you. Attend to making purchases, etc., instead, P. M. a fine time for enjoying recreations, sports to your liking.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Every bit of willpower you have must be exercised today if you are to keep your hard-earned savings intact. Resist mate, fun-loving friends. Tonight, things will ease off and you can have inexpensive fun at home.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)— Don't be so depressive with close ties, look at holdings gloomily. They have a right to their opinions, too. P.M. you feel happy and can step out with congenial friends, express yourself in best fashion.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Secret anxieties could easily prevent your attending those excellent meetings, studies, etc., that mean so much to your happiness and success. Put worry aside and drive yourself. P.M. see how you stand in money matters.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — A sensible and positive pal today comes forth with fine suggestions for your better progress through economical measures. Then P.M. is fine for dressing to the hilt and going to swanky places, enjoying self charmingly.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Be certain to heed every standard rule that pertains to own job or family life in A. M. or you could get in trouble. Later you will then be in a position to be with those whom you most admire and have a serene soiree.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)— Shutting yourself in today because you feel sorry for yourself is bad. Read your newspaper, study things that appeal and then go out and make fine new friends. Get into a finer atmosphere. Tonight, be with tested pal for enjoyment.

If your child is born today . . . The delightful child born today is the type who will puzzle just about everyone with whom he or she associates. Understand quickly that your progeny has a composite nature, both very friendly, yet intellectually aloof. You must be your youngster's own guide and inspiration, therefore, for complete happiness and harmony. See which artistic qualities are paramount and give education in that field.

SOME EXPLAINING TO DO

Oui, oui, why in France . . .! Carmen, a four-year-old pure white French poodle owned by Dr. and Mrs. G. C. Jarrott of Stratford, Ont., guards over two of her jet-black pups. They may not be of the pure family strain but Carmen loves them just the same. These two are the hungriest of her litter of five. (CP Photo).

May Protest U.S. Bartering Farm Surpluses

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Gordon Churchill said Monday Canada might consider a protest against a United States plan for barter disposal of U.S. farm product surpluses.

He was replying in the Commons to CCF Leader Coldwell, who suggested the plan might interfere with any additional sales Canada might make. Mr. Coldwell said that could be a reason for lodging a protest to Washington.

"We might consider that," Mr. Churchill replied.

Earlier, the minister said that although the Canadian government will watch the operation of the plan closely, it did not consider it a contravention of a Canada-U.S. agreement last fall to limit U.S. barter operations for disposing of surplus U.S. wheat.

He said it appears to be an extension of the kind of barter deals which are permissible now.

Auto Firms Hit Union's Proposal To Share Profits

DETROIT (CP) — Leaders of the automobile industry's Big Three—Ford, Chrysler and General Motors—have greeted Walter Reuther's profit-sharing plan with sharp words that amount to rejection. United States government officials also are cool to the idea.

A Ford spokesman called the plan unrealistic General Motors President Harlow H. Curtice said it was "foreign to the concept of the American free enterprise system." L. L. Colbert, president of Chrysler, said it would be inflationary.

In Washington, government experts said that any big spread through American industry of plans to share profits with workers would cut deeply into federal tax revenue and probably require sharp changes in taxing policy.

That was their private reaction to the word from Detroit Monday that Reuther's United Auto Workers union has proposed that producers split a major share of profits before taxes with workers and customers.

CHANGES TAX

Government officials noted that profits thus distributed to workers would not be taxed, as they are now, at the 52-per-cent corporate rate but at the much lower individual income rate — around 15 per cent or less in auto workers income brackets, allowing for deductions.

If the plan were adopted in the auto industry and spread widely among other industries in the U.S., the result could lead to reducing federal revenues by billions of dollars. Corporate income taxes now yield the U.S. government about $20,000,000,000 a year.

In turn, the government would have either to reduce spending or boost tax rates somewhere along the line.

Although Monday's announcement by Reuther did not say whether Canadian car manufacturers would be asked to join the plan, it is assumed that whatever is done in the U.S. will be asked for the union in Canada. hour.

Daily Mirror Urges Macmillan To Go to Moscow

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's biggest - circulation newspaper has called on Prime Minister Macmillan to go to Moscow himself to break the deadlock on the issue of summit talks.

"Ike says he wants peace in outer space," says the left-wing tabloid Daily Mirror, which claims a circulation of more than 4,500,000. "But the human race is all for peace on earth."

Declaring that Macmillan has had an "outstanding invitation" to go to Moscow, The Mirror says he should go there directly after his return from his current Commonwealth tour.

"He should make it clear to the Russians that he will keep Ike and other Western Allies fully informed.

"FRANK EXCHANGES"

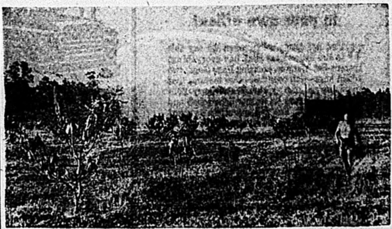
"He should have frank exchanges with the Russian leaders on the nature and timing of the summit conference."

The influential Liberal paper Manchester Guardian says the United States and Russia could find points of contact on the issue of nuclear bomb tests or on a non-aggression treaty.

"More significant, however, would be an agreement to remove foreign troops from a strip in central Europe.

"It's value to Russia would lie in the physical assurance that the Atlantic nations were not using their presence in Germany to prepare for 'imperialist aggression' eastwards or for the other 'evil designs' often alleged by Moscow."

FLORIDA GROWERS FIGHT TO SAVE FRUIT CROP



Mike Ryecheck walks through his Florida avacado and mango grove as a huge pump, background, sprays thousands of gallons of heated water over his trees in an effort to fight the damaging frost. A second cold wave gripped the citrus belt just four weeks after a killing frost caused $100,000,000 fruit loss. Ryecheck's spray outfit is mounted on a truck which he keeps moving to cover the entire grove.

Bacterial Ring Rot in Potatoes

OTTAWA — No method has yet been devised to eliminate the bacterial ring rot organism from the potato seed piece, but according to Dr. D. S. MacLachlan of the Science Service Division of the Canada Department of Agriculture, the disease can be prevented from spreading by the disinfection of all handling equipment and storage bins, and the use of certified or foundation seed.

Bacterial ring rot, an extremely infectious bacterial disease, is possibly the most serious of all potato diseases known today. Infection takes place through the seed piece, the only known way in which infection can occur. There is no evidence that the organism overwinters in the soil or can be spread by any insect. To a large degree the cutting knife is responsible for a high percentage of ring rot infection. As many as 50 to 100 potato sets may be contaminated by the knife following a cut through and infected tubor. For this reason the knife should be dipped in a disinfectant after each potato is cut.

Studies on the extent of disease transmission to potato sets from contaminated bags, indicates that from three to six per cent of ring rot infection may come from this source. This can be eliminated through the use of fumigants and heat treatments, but the search for a more rapid and efficient method of disinfection is continuing.

NEW DISINFECTANTS

Over the past three years, research in Ottawa has shown that certain newer type disinfectants are much more effective than older conventional types such as formalin or copper sulphate. These newer materials penetrate more rapidly through jute strands of potato bags and into cracks and splinters of storage rooms. Most of these newer materials such as Teramine, San-o-fec 25 and Ocean 101 are reasonably priced and readily available.

The development of resistant varieties is the obvious solution to the ring rot problem and for several years now research on this aspect of control has been done in both Canada and the United States. The variety, Teton, developed a few years ago, and the Merrimac variety, a recent introduction from the United States, both show some resistance to the organism. Unfortunately these varieties are now completely immune to ring rot and therefore present a certain hazard as symptomless carriers of the disease.

CHRISTIAN MESSAGE

Every messenger, Japanese or western, knows how the Christian message has been touching hearts of the people and the methods of communication are manifold. The local church is ever busy emphasizing evangelism and experienced women missionaries are carrying the Bible to the homes.

Intimate stories were related about Japanese workers who have achieved great success in their various fields of visitation. Dr. William Axling reports over 16,000 first decisions and 12,000 rededications by church members. A missionary ship plies the waters of the inland sea and conducts special services for the Japanese people.

The pastor, the Rev. W. G. Fletcher, B.A., conducted the installation service. The new president, Mrs. Herbert Smith, took the chair and spoke briefly. She outlined the plans made for meetings during 1958. Mrs. Will Potts will be hostess for February.

Mrs. Gale Moore read the Bible lesson. The past president read from "Missionaries Reporting," about the new missionary for prayer, Miss Hedwig; D. H. Bartlin, a community worker at Vancouver, B.C., who replaces the former prayer partner, the Rev. Florence Hunter, who has discontinued her W.M.S. associations and taken a pastorate.

Mrs. Eric Summers and Mrs. Carleton Potts sang a duet, "Rock of Ages."

Mrs. Frank Jeffs prepared a devotional paper on "Repentance," and Bible lessons on that theme were read by Mrs. Robert Merrick, Mrs. Harry McAdam, Mrs. Harvey Couch, Mrs. Grant Hubble, Mrs. Stanley Williams, Mrs. Ernest Spencer and Mrs. Frank Spencer.

The service closed with hymn of dedication and the pa tor offered prayer.

The hostesses served light refreshments and all enjoyed social half hour.

Ten Buildings In Midtown Levis Go Up In Flames

Blaze Being Fanned By 50 MPH Wind

LEVIS, Que. (CP)—A roaring fire, fanned by a 50-mile-an-hour wind, today gouged a large chunk out of the business section in midtown Levis. Ten buildings were reported destroyed and firemen were concentrating on trying to keep the blaze from spreading.

Levis is directly across the St. Lawrence River from Quebec City.

Levis Fire Chief J. A. L. Arsenault and Police Constable Robert Gosselin suffered burns while attempting to salvage a burning truck. Extent of their injuries is not yet known.

Pumping equipment from three Quebec City fire stations arrived at the scene. Firemen sprayed adjoining buildings — having decided there is no hope for buildings now burning.

Power and telephone service has been disrupted.

The blaze apparently started in a pile of papers in the rear of La Compagnie Legare, a three-storey wooden building housing a furniture store and warehouse.

It spread almost immediately to an adjoining grocery store, then to a service station. The service station was destroyed and its storage tanks apparently exploded, helping the blaze to spread

FOUR STILL ABLAZE

Three other buildings were destroyed and four more were reported burning.

Fire-fighting equipment was being rushed from Quebec City.

Buildings affected are clustered near the corners of Guinette and Begin streets, one of Levis' principal intersections.

Besides the furniture store, grocery store and service station, another store and two homes were reported destroyed.

Reported burning were a 1½-storey store, a barber shop with the barber's adjoining residence, another small building and Edifice Plante—a four-storey structure housing the community's Bell telephone offices, a physical culture studio, a dentist's office and two apartments.

Shopkeepers and residents nearby were preparing to evacuate their buildings.

Double Taxation Suggested by Financial Critic

OTTAWA (CP)—John Wintermeyer, financial critic for the Liberal opposition in the Ontario legislature, called today for a return to federal - provincial double taxation.

In a speech to the national Liberal convention he said the provinces should levy their own direct taxes—on personal and corporation income—and that the federal government should do the same.

The constitution gives the federal and provincial governments equal rights to collect in the tax field. Under current tax-sharing arrangements the federal government allows certain deductions from its own income taxes to enable provinces to share part of that field without the imposition of double taxation upon taxpayers.

The Kitchener lawyer, MPP for Waterloo North said the tax-sharing agreements under which the provinces now rent out those fields to the federal government are "equitable and just." But running its own financial house would enable each provincial government to set its own "objectives and initiatives."

"Such a program would have the added advantage of assuring that all governments would have their own autonomy."

Mr. Wintermeyer said his proposal would avoid "the bickering that always accompanies the division of a pie."

Italian Army Flies Soldier To Sweetheart

LONDON (Reuters) — A 22-year-old girl with a "hole in her heart" clasped the hand of her Italian soldier sweetheart and whispered: "Death means nothing to me."

Shirley Holmes, tiny English girl who has been warned by doctors that intense excitement might kill her, was reunited Tuesday in the quiet gardens of a suburban London hotel with 23-year-old Pte. Giulio Comparini.

Giulio arrived in Britain Monday on a 30-day "compassionate leave" from the Italian army to see the girl he met last June in an Italian Riviera resort.

Shirley, born with an opening in the wall of her heart, was originally given only seven years to live. She has been under the care of specialists all her life.

Newspapers today publish photos of the couple kissing, holding hands and exchange becalling it "the fragile love affair."

Recently she announced that she would defy doctors' orders by flying to Italy to see Giulio, who had just begun his compulsory military service.

Then Giulio's commanding officer gave him 30 days' leave to visit Britain and the Italian defence ministry helped out with a grant for a plane ticket.

Shirley one day will have to undergo a serious heart operation. Meanwhile, she cannot dance, do housework or become upset. It's too dangerous.

TORONTO (CP) — Thieves broke into three suburban homes Tuesday night and stole five fur coats valued at $3,370.

'Finest Hour' for Sarah Churchill Comes Just After Leaving Jail

LONDON (AP)—British newspapers have rallied to the support of Sir Winston Churchill's actress daughter Sarah, and praised her performance on a television show which followed her jailing in Los Angeles on a charge of drunkenness.

The London papers take Los Angeles police sharply to task for their conduct in arresting her, and some are indignant that the authorities were called in at all.

Miss Churchill spent five hours in jail on a complaint by the General Telephone Company that she used profane and obscene language over the phone. Sheriff's deputies said they arrested her after she climbed into their car with a glass of rum, resisted efforts to get her out, and cursed them also.

"The belief is growing that she was wrongfully arrested; that doctors, not police should have been called in," says The Daily Mail, a supporter of her father's Conservative party, in an editorial.

Lord Beaverbrook's independent but pro-Conservative Daily Express asserts that "Sarah Churchill's treatment at the hands of the Los Angeles sheriffs has come as a profound shock to the British people."

"Guilty or innocent," the Express editorial says, "no woman should be subjected to such treatment. In a free country, nobody —citizen or foreigner — should have to live in fear of police methods."

In a front-page cartoon The Express shows a bumptious, crew-cut American explaining to a British woman:

"The trouble with you Britishers is, ma'am, that you don't realize what life in Russia is really like—why, over there one unguarded remark on the telephone and the OGPU are right round knocking at the door!"

The Daily Herald, which backs the Labor party, carries a glowing review of Miss Churchill in the hour-long TV show, The Makropoulos Secret.

Describing her performance as "flawless," The Herald says in a Hollywood dispatch that it was "undoubtedly Sarah Churchill's finest hour."

In Hollywood, they were betting that Miss Churchill wouldn't make it.

But true to the tradition of the theatre, she gave one of the best performances of her life.

"It was one of the best performances I've ever seen Miss Churchill give," writes Cecil Smith, television critic of the Los Angeles Times.

AIR OF ELECTION GETTING THICKER AROUND HOUSE

Federal Contest Now Expected in April

OTTAWA (CP)—The air of impending election keeps getting thicker in Parliament.

Both Finance Minister Donald Fleming and Works Minister Howard Green made clear in the Commons Tuesday that an initial opportunity will be provided the new Liberal leader to test his wings at the start of next week.

Meantime, in the Senate the Liberal Opposition was showing its numerical strength while the government leader spoke of the great pressure on him to get legislation through fast.

Mr. Fleming apparently disclosed to opposition parties as well as the public the government's intention to bring a supply motion before the Commons Monday. This will give the new Liberal leader a chance to propose a motion of non-confidence in the government.

Should the new leader decide to take advantage of this opportunity, Canada could be in the middle of a new federal general election by April.

MANY REMINDERS

But while Parliament went about its business, there were plenty of reminders that the national Liberal leadership convention is in full swing in search of a successor to retiring Louis S. St Laurent.

When the Commons opened at 2:30 p.m. EST there were about 30 of the 106 Liberals in their seats. By nightfall, as Mr. St. Laurent made his farewell to the party at the convention, Liberal strength had dwindled to six.

Meantime, in the Senate the Liberal majority voted down 42 to 6 government objections to sending to a committee for study legislation authorizing a $30,000,000 loan to the New Brunswick government to cover costs of a hydro power project on the St. John River.

France Ends Defence Treaty Negotiations

PARIS (Reuters)—The French government decided today t break ff defence treaty negotiations with Tunisia.

This move follows the ambushing of a French patrol by Algerian nationalist insurgents near the Tunisian frontier last Saturday. Fourteen French soldiers were killed and five captured in the clash. One wounded soldier later died in a hospital.

Tunisia has rejected a French government protest over the incident and denied that it took place in Tunisia or that any armed groups or prisoners had crossed the border.

Sturgeon and salmon from Canadian waters which will be on display, alive, at the province of Quebec exhibition in a Paris department store arrived in the French capital in a state of sem-hibernation. At right is Dr. Gustave Prevost, director of the office of biology of Quebec, who devised the means of transport and supervised the first shipment. The fish, as shown, arrived in a special container — a long bag of transparent plastic material in which there was a small amount of water, at one degree above freezing, and pure oxygen. On delivery at the department store the fish were placed in water raised to the temperature of their natural haunts and within a few minutes they were alive and swimming.

Troops Rushed to Bahamas To Prevent Strike Violence

NASSAU, Bahamas (CP)—British colonial authorities rushed planeloads of troops to the Bahamas today in a bid to prevent violence in a general strike gripping this sunny resort city.

The planes, each carrying 40 troops, landed early today from Jamaica with men of the Worcester Regiment. About 150 troops are expected by nightfall. Police are on a 24-hour alert.

The strike has paralyzed the Bahamas tourist trade and dislocated plans of thousands of visitors, most of them Americans and Canadians. Hundreds are cutting short their winter vacations and attempting to leave the islands.

A transportation dispute touched off the strike, but its real cause is believed to lie in general political unrest among the Negro population.

Some hotels are already closed and the others planned to close today unless the strikers returned to work. Many visitors on their way here have been rerouted.

Police riot squads stood by today as workers roamed the town, picketing and holding mass meetings.

Skeleton crews are trying to keep the island's electricity supply in operation. Sabotage has been reported in several areas.

British Overseas Airways Corporation halted its flights from Miami Tuesday but Trans-Canada Air Lines, Pan American Airways and others continued to operate, carrying capacity crowds home. Four cruise ships visited the city Tuesday, but the S.S. Caronia did not send its visitors ashore.

British Explorer Now Hopes To Reach Pole on Saturday

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters) British explorer Vivian Fuchs today was reported 105 miles from the South Pole in his bid to confound critics of his plans and complete the first-ever overland journey across the Antarctic continent.

The British team, advancing from the South American side, has been making 20 to 30 miles a day over rugged terrain using tracked snow vehicles. Fuchs now hopes to reach the pole by Saturday.

Fuchs radioed New Zealand headquarters at Scott Base, his ultimate destination on the other side of the continent, that he abandoned another of his vehicles today.

Ten of the 12-man party now are travelling in five vehicles. The other two men are handling 18 dogs in two dog - sled teams. Since leaving the British advance base of South Ice on Christmas Day, Fuchs has abandoned three vehicles.

Fuchs Tuesday requested the Americans now based at the pole to fly out his 18 dogs when he arrives there. Although the dogs so far have been keeping up with the vehicles, Fuchs intends to make faster time on the 1,200-mile route from the pole to Scott base.

One American commented that "we would prefer to fly out the Fuchs party and the dogs together."

Sir Edmund Hillary, leader of a New Zealand team assigned to assist Fuchs over the last stage of his trans-Antarctic trek, earlier advised Fuchs to postpone his trip from the pole to Scott Base because of the danger of approaching bad weather.

Fuchs turned down the advice, and said he intends to complete the journey.

The Antarctic winter arrives in March, and Hillary said he fears Fuchs and his men may be trapped by bad weather in the icy wastes.

Fuchs now is weeks behind schedule.

Report AFL-CIO Abolishes 100 Organizers' Jobs

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times today quotes informed sources as saying the AFL-CIO has abolished nearly 100 organizers' jobs.

Some of the organizers are being retired involuntarily, some are being transferred to a new speakers' bureau that is being set up in the public relations department and a "substantial number" are being discharged, the newspaper says in a Washington dispatch.

The Times story says that in addition a number of other employees in the headquarters building are being laid off.

It adds that the sweeping entrenchment takes effect Feb. 1, about the time AFL-CIO leaders will be gathering in Miami Beach to consider a $1,200,000-a-year public relations program.

Official sources in the AFL-CIO were not available for comment, The Times says, adding that John Livingston, director of organization, snapped a sharp "no" to a reporter who asked to see him.

The retrenchment reflects, The Times says, the failure of an organizing campaign, at least in terms of a 225-man staff; a 10-per-cent cut in income as a result of the expulsion of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and other unions, and a shift in emphasis to public relations.

BUS CRASH FATAL

BEDFORD, Pa. (AP)—A Continental Trailways Pittsburgh-to-New York bus with 18 passengers aboard skidded on the ice-coated Pennsylvania Turnpike near here Monday night and crashed against a bridge abutment, killing two persos and injuring 17 others. The dead, a man and a woman, were not immediately identified.

Train Derailed, Bomb Damages 300 Feet Track

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian Pacific Railway's eastbound Kettle Valley train was derailed near Grand Forks, B.C., early today after a bomb damaged a section of track.

CPR officials said the train's engine, baggage car, and day coach remained upright. There were no injuries.

The derailment occurred 18 miles east of Grand Forks in the Kootenay district.

A CPR spokesman said a bomb had blown out two ties and left a hole 18 inches deep under one rail. The derailment damaged 300 feet of track.

RCMP found tracks leading from the scene and sent for a dog to attempt to trail persons responsible for the bombing.

Grand Forks is in the area where bombs were found in theatres in Nelson, Trail and Castlegar last weekend. Fuses on the theatre bombs had been lit but smouldered and went out. No arrests have been made.

Five Cancel Trips to Nassau

TORONTO (CP) — Five passengers cancelled reservations on a Trans-Canada Air Lines flight to the Bahamas today because of a general strike there, a TCA official said. He said eight passengers had been booked to fly to Nassau today. The three who remained aboard planned to stay with friends in Nassau.

No flights have been cancelled so far, he said, but all planes going to the islands have been rerouted through Tampa, Fla., for refueling before going to the Bahamas. The planes go on to Kingston, Jamaica.

"We are keeping our passengers informed of the situation in the Bahamas and warning them that the strike might affect hotel reservations," he said.

TCA operates five flights a week to the island.

Saturday She Gets Her First Kiss, Tuesday She Enters Wedded Bliss

BEVERLEY HILLS, Calif. (AP) Actress Debra Paget and singer David Street were married Tuesday night in a quiet home ceremony despite reports that his fourth wife—the one he married and divorced last month—might cause a ruckus.

Mrs. Maggie Griffin, mother of Debra, told a reporter dancer Sharon Lee had called her several times Tuesday threatening to disrupt the marriage.

"I wasn't the least bit nervous about losing a daughter," said Mrs. Griffin, "because I gained such a wonderful son-in-law. But I kept looking toward the door all during the ceremony for fear that Sharon would show up."

Both the shapely Debra, 24, and the 37-year-old singer said their friendship blossomed into love only last Saturday night while watching a late movie on TV. However, they have known each other since 1945.

"We started watching it just like any other movie," said Debra, "but we never did find out how it ended. He kissed me during the commercial and wowie, I knew then I was in love."

Debra long had been publicized as Hollywood's only unkissed starlet. This was because filmland never had seen her in public without her mother.

She is Street's fifth wife, although he says he has been married only four times—"One of my wives got an annulment instead of a divorce. That doesn't count."

Mrs. Mary Street, wife No. 1, served Street Tuesday with a court order demanding back support payments for their 14-year-old son.

Three Candidates File Papers For Party Leadership

Pearson Landslide Expected by Delegates

OTTAWA (CP) — Lbieral convention delegates plunged into a new policy-making session today, but the makin interest was in a back room where it became assured there would be three candidates—and no more—for the party leadership.

No "dark horse" aspirants turned up as the 11 a.m. nomination deadline passed with papers filed by Lester B. Pearson, Paul Martin and Rev. H. Lloyd Henderson.

The delegates will choose Thursday night—closing session of the three-day convention—between the former external affairs minister, the former health minister and the mayor of Portage La Prairie, Man.

Their papers were deposited with party executive secretary H E. Kidd. Formal announcement of the nominations was to be made to the convention tonight.

DISCUSS POLICIES

Meanwhile, the convention itself proceeded with hearing policies on a variety of subjects proposed by provincial groups across the country.

All were referred to committee for processing and for decision as to whether they eventually will be included in the refurbished Liberal platform to be presented to the delegates later in the convention.

One resolution would have all political parties disclose annually the amounts and sources of their funds.

Ray Tower of Toronto, on behalf of the Ontario Liberal Association, moved in the same resolution that legislation be enacted to limit the amount any candidate may spend in a federal election campaign.

PEARSON SWEEPING

Off the convention floor, rumblings of a Pearson landslide continued.

One candidate — Mayor Don Mackay of Clgary — withdrew Tuesday in favor of Mr. Pearson. The third man still in the field—was Rev. H. Lloyd Henderson, mayor of Portage la Prairie, Man.

Generally, delegates seemed to regard the leadership issue cut and dried—to such an extent that the convention, which opened Tuesday, generated little excitement.

The delegates paid homage to retiring leader Louis St. Laurent. The former prime minister gave his usual scholarly address and, as is his fashion, declined to heap abuse on the Progressive Conservative government. He talked quietly about national unity and NATO.

About the worst he had to say about the new government was that its policies were creating uneasiness and uncertainty in Canada.

It was left to Joseph (Joey) Smallwood, premier of Newfoundland, to put the convention in an "up-and-at-'em" mood.

It was no calamity, he said, that the Liberals had been turned out of office last June. After 22 years, it was time for them to be in opposition.

"The Tories will be a better Opposition soon, because after a long while they're finding out something about the cares and responsibilities of office," Mr. Smallwood said.

Reject Move For More Debate On Resolutions

OTTAWA (CP) — A protest from a Manitoba delegate, calling for more discussion of resolutions presented from the floor of the national Liberal convention, was promptly thrown out today.

Allan Cantor of Winnipeg, president of the Manitoba Young Liberals, was ruled out of order by Roy Power of Halifax, national president of the Young Liberals, when he tried to change the order of business.

Wearing a broad white stetson with scarlet band, Mr. Cantor got the floor on a point of order to claim that discussion of resolutions was more important than formal 10-minute speeches from the rostrum.

BOO REJECTION

Mr. Power's ruling was booed by four or five student-delegates from the University of Toronto Liberal Club.

The convention program called for three speeches of 10 minutes each by William Benidickson, Liberal Commons member for Kenora-Rainy River; Allan J. MacEachen, MP for Inverness-Richmond, N.S., and John J. Wintermeyer, MLA for Waterloo North.

A few scattered hisses greeted Mr. Cantor's proposal to postpone the speeches and deal with more resolutions.

Mr. Power said it appeared the convention's feeling was to stick to the program.

Named Candidate

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Henry M. Lang, Sault Ste. Marie lawyer, was named Tuesday night to contest the Northern Ontario riding of Algoma West for the Progressive Conservatives in the next federal election.

He was defeated in the last general election by George E. Nixon, Liberal.

Arts and Craft Classes Start Monday Night

Arts and crafts classes start Monday night in the basement of King George Public School, North Front Street. Well over 1,200 people have taken the courses since they began in the fall of 1953, and it is expected that another 300 folks will take advantage of them this year.

Two courses are run off each year. This is the first one in '58 with the second planned for this fall. However, there is a possibility of another session after Easter.

Mrs. G. Davies, a former pupil of the Recreation Commission sponsored classes, is teaching the ceramics course, beginning Monday night at 7.30. While people are taking the ceramics course others will be instructed by Mrs. A. McCreary in making pigskin gloves.

There are no classes on Tuesday.

Wednesday, though, is the starting date for weaving classes under the instruction of Mrs. A. Gilroy.

Art classes under well-known local artist Allen Cameron begin on Thursday, as do copper enamelling classes under Mrs. Jane Sheppard, and silk screening classes, with Mrs. Dorothy Heaven in charge.

Friday is D-Day for leathercraft classes under Mrs. A. McCreary and metal craft with Mr. J. Layton instructing.

One course — children's art — will be held Saturday under the supervision of Miss Mary Moult.

Dresden Council To Prosecute Construction Co.

DRESDEN, Ont. (CP)—Dresden town council decided Tuesday night to prosecute Keillor Construction Company, of St. Thomas, for failure to provide adequate shoring for walls of the Dresden pumping station excavation that collapsed Aug. 14, 1957 killing six Dutch-Canadian workers.

The charge will be laid under a section of the Trench Excavators Protection Act.

Alvin Keillor, company president, was with the six at the site when a section of the west wall suddenly gave way.

Keillor was caught in the cave-in, but managed to struggle free.

Grand Jury Recommends Many Repairs, Renovations To County Courthouse

A general refurbishing of the exterior of the Hastings county courthouse with repairs to sidewalks and property retaining walls as well as extensive renovation and refurnishing of the interior to improve conditions, has been recommended by the Grand Jury at the January Assizes of the Supreme Court.

At the opening of court on Monday afternoon Mr. Justice E. G. Moorhouse was extremely critical of conditions at the courthouse and directed the Grand Jury to inspect the building and make a report as part of their jury duties.

The report was presented to the court just before adjournment on Wednesday afternoon.

The Grand Jury in their report recommended that the two main entrance doors on the west side of the courthouse and the two doors on the east side of the building be replaced with new ones; that the stonework of the exterior of the courthouse be sandblasted or cleaned by some other means; that all exterior woodwork be repainted; that walks be repaired where necessary and that the stone retaining wall on the south side of the property paralleling Campbell St. be repaired.

All of the above items are necessary to preserve the building and property, the report submitted.

WANT APT. VACATED

The jury also inspected the interior of the building and recommended that the apartment on the main floor occupied by jail personnel be vacated and the space utilized for courtroom and office space.

Added toilet space on the ground floor was badly needed with no washroom facilities on the first floor for women employees. If the apartment was vacated it was suggested the present bathroom might be available for this purpose.

The report added that offensive cooking odors circulate throughout the entire building and noted that measures should be taken to remedy this situation.

A new carpet was recommended purchased for the office of Hastings County Judge J. C. Anderson and that new files be installed in the office of Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

New seating accommodation throughout the main courtroom on the second floor was recommended. The report noted that the present seating accommodation left much to be desired and more comfortable seats should be provided not only for the judge, but also throughout the entire courtroom.

A new heating system for the north section of the courthouse building and air conditioning throughout the entire court house was recommended.

Acoustics in the main court room were poor and steps were recommended taken to improve this.

ASK NEW WASHROOM

Improved facilities for the use of barristers were also recommended. A washroom for the use of lawyers was recommended installed adjacent to the barristers' room and that a telephone booth be installed in the barristers' room or adjacent thereto.

Retaining of an architect in an advisory capacity for consultation in the recommended renovations, was suggested.

Commenting on jail conditions the report indicated the jail and housekeeping and general conditions were clean and neat and reflected credit to the jail governor and his staff. There were no complaints from the inmates.

Following reading of the report by County Sheriff T. W. Solmes, Mr. Justice Moorcroft thanked members of the jury for carrying out their duties and directed that copies of the report be forwarded to the county clerk, to the Attorney General's Department and inspector of jails, also to local members of the Ontario Legislature.

THANKED FOR REPORT

In thanking the Grand Jury for its report Mr. Justice Moorhouse urged the jury members to follow up their report to see if the recommendations were being carried out.

"Undoubtedly other Grand Juries have made such reports, but have they followed them up with their local representatives?" the judge asked.

"They cannot have followed them up or else this long detailed report would not have been necessary.

"I suggest that you keep this matter in hand, and determine whether or not anything is being done about it," he said.

Mayor Hyde and Council Guests of Kiwanis Club

Belleville Kiwanis Club entertained Mayor Gerald B. Hyde and members of city council at an annual "civic day dinner" held at the Kiwanis Centre yesterday.

Prior to his address, Mayor Hyde introduced those of his 1958 council who were able to be present. They included aldermen George Wishart, Les Digby, Rob Collins, Doug Moxam, Ralph Graham, Benjamin Safe and Claude D. Tice.

In his address the mayor told local Kiwanians one of the main problems facing city council is the financing of a community centre suitable for the needs of a city of this size.

"The cost of building a community centre — one every citizen would be proud to occupy, and one suitable for a city such as Belleville — would be between $750,000 and $1,000,000."

It would be equipped for the presentation of drama, concerts, and other forms of entertainment, as well as hockey games, he explained.

"If one were to be built it would have to be financed in the same way as the hospital addition was financed," he said. "We could expect a maximum government grant of only $5,000 and about $200,000 from the city. The balance of close to $700,000 would have to be put up by local businessmen and I don't know how we can afford it."

COULD RENOVATE ARENA

He offered a suggestion from a local citizen that the present arena building could be altered at a cost of from $200,000 to $250,000.

"We would then have a community centre on a scale we are able to afford," he said.

The problem of renovating the front interior of the arena was also brought to the attention of local Kiwanians.

The proposed plan is to do away with the two side doors and to extend the canteen the full width of the front of the building. Since all patrons would be entering the centre door, late comers would not disturb those already there, and an extended canteen space would facilitate and speed-up business.

The canteen is operated by the Arena Commission, which took over about three years ago because the percentage received from the arena was too low. This year a profit in the neighborhood of $3,000 is expected, Mayor Hyde said.

The financing of the arena renovations would have to be made by a loan from city council, since the arena has no money to make these improvements, he stated.

The mayor also mentioned the second-floor renovations at City Hall which are rapidly nearing completion.

"We hope to have an "Open House" when the work is completed so the public can see how attractive and how much more efficient-looking the premises are," he said.

The mayor was introduced by Kiwanian Alderman Ralph Graham, and thanked by Ron H. Godden. He was presented with a token of appreciation on behalf of the club by president Charles Lusk.

Last night the mayor addressed the Belleville Council of the Knights of Columbus.

Phillips Seeks Approval for Subway Route

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor Phillips said today he will move at a metropolitan planning board meeting tonight that the Bloor-Danforth route be approved for Toronto's second subway.

His announcement came on the heels of action by metro council to delay a subway decision. Council voted 15 to 5 Tuesday night to cancel a special Jan. 21 meeting, when council was to have decided on the subway route.

The metro council last week heard arguments on the route of the subway from the metro planning board and the Toronto Transit Commission. The planning board advocates a u-shaped route running along Queen Street through downtown Toronto and the TTC backs a direct east-west line along Bloor and Danforth.

No Explosion Danger as Gas Pipelines Tested

John Irwin, speaking for Harold Coombs, superintendent of the Donovan Construction Co. of Kingston, announced Wednesday morning that gas pipelines which the firm has constructed here for Lakelands Natural Gas Co. Ltd. would be tested Wednesday afternoon.

There will be no danger in these tests of any explosion similar to those which have occurred in some other centres when pipelines were tested. Natural gas will not be used for the test. Instead a liquid, called "Stinko," will be placed in the pipes. It will turn to gas and any leaks will be revealed by an odor near the point of the leak. "Stinko" is not inflammable.

The Donovan firm constructed the pipelines on Dundas St. E., Front Street, Station Street and Cannifton Road, to College St. The line from the corner of College St. and Cannifton Road to the juncture of the trunk pipeline was built by another firm.

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market was irregular in quiet morning trading.

Industrials lost one-half point on index as a majority of issues used in the compilation of the index lost fractions. But considering all industrial changes, gains held an edge of almost two-to-one.

Western oils were one-quarter of a point higher on index but the bigger changes were losses. Base metals were narrowly lower and golds virtually unchanged.

The 11 a.m. volume of 403,000 shares was the lightest in six sessions and it compared with Tuesday's 734,000 at the same time.

Confederation Life, for the third straight session, moved higher with a 1½-point gain to 123½. The gain, however, was recorded on a 10-share sale. Imperial Life had the biggest change among industrials with a four-point jump to 58 on a 25-share sale.

The more active industrials moved in a fractional range. Among the winners were Bank of Montreal, B-A Oil, Consumers' Gas, Dominion Foundries, Interprovincial Pipe Line, Royal Bank and Union Gas. Price Bros., Power Corp., McColl, Dominion Stores and Aluminium lost some ground.

Hudson Bay, International Nickel and Noranda were down minor fractions among senior base metals. Uraniums were a shade lower. Placer lost 30 cents at $8.05 among other mines.

Canadian Export Gas was a 20-cent loser in oils and Hudson Bay Oil dipped ¼ to 16¾.

CBC to Appeal To High Court For Decision

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC plans to appeal to a higher court an Ontario Supreme Court decision that the publicly - owned broadcasting corporation is subject to prosecution under the Lord's Day Act in Ontario, Revenue Minister George Nowlan said Tuesday.

He said the officers of the CBC have advised him that they have consulted law officers of the Crown on the matter.

"They were advised to appeal to a higher court so that the very important matters involved in this case may be clarified, if not entirely settled," he said in a Commons reply to Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur).

The Ontario Court of Appeal by a 3-to-2 verdict last week refused the CBC's request for exemption from prosecution.

The judgment upheld a ruling last June by Chief Justice James C. McRuer of the High Court of Justice for Ontario.

The CBC contended that it should be exempt on the grounds that it is a Crown corporation and thus not liable under the provisions of any act unless specifically named in the act.

Exchange Hot Words at Meeting Of Parks Board

TRENTON — "If this man is hired again this year I will be through with this board. I will not be a part or parcel of a group that is being fleeced by an employee," R. J. Whitley told members of the Trenton Parks Board last night at their first meeting of the new year.

Mr. Whitley spoke during a discussion concerning the hiring of a gardener for the coming year and was referring to the present gardener. Mr. Whitley said he did not feel he (the gardener) was doing a satisfactory job and there had been many things which he had failed to do when asked by the Parks Board.

After considerable discussion by the members on the subject President E. M. Parker said he felt the whole matter should be left over to the next meeting and in the meantime board members should give it considerable thought. He said something had to be done and urged them to come to the next meeting with some definite decision of their own on what should be done.

He reminded the members the gardener was hired to do a job and was not hired on an hour by hour basis. "His job," he said, "is to look after the parks and have them in good condition. If he can work night and day for a week and have this done in a satisfactory manner and then have the next few weeks off then, in my mind, it should be all right because he has done as required by his contract."

Miss M. Baker said she felt it was not right to say the board has been "fleeced" without giving the gardener a chance to speak for himself on the matter. "If we have some concrete evidence," she said, "that this is being done, then he (the gardener) should be confronted with it and asked for an explanation."

It was also reported during the meeting that some of the new sod at Mount Pilion had been torn up and was believed to have been done by children. The police have been notified and asked to keep an eye on this. The board was told the road to this park has now been gravelled and is in good condition all the way. The posts have not as yet been painted and the cable has not been strung.

F. J. Aziz, secretary-treasurer of the board, reported the books are now in the hands of the auditors. He presented some bills to be approved for payment.

All members were present at the meeting.

Workman Loses Right Arm in Whirling Shaft

TRENTON — A 40-year-old worker lost his right arm following an accident in which his coat sleeve became entangled with the whirling shaft of a high-speed drill here yesterday.

Gerry Gauthier, who was working with an E. M. Peto drilling crew had his right forearm amputated at the elbow in St. Michael's hospital, Toronto, after being rushed there by ambulance yesterday morning.

It is reported Mr. Gauthier was working near the speeding shaft when his clothing caught and his arm was dragged into it and was badly mangled and broken before the machine could be stopped.

He was rushed by car to Trenton Memorial Hospital where he was given emergency treatment by Dr. J. V. Byrne. From there he was taken to the Toronto hospital where surgery was found necessary. It was reported his arm had compound fractures in several places.

The three-man crew was sinking test holes in connection with Trenton's new sewage disposal plant. They were working on the river bank near the new Canadian Legion hall at the time of the accident.

Skating Club Preparing for Splendid Show

TRENTON — Ninety-five local children, from the ages of six years to 19, will be taking part in "Icendella," the story of Cinderella on ice in the Community Gardens here on February 14 and 15.

The show will be sponsored by the Trenton Skating Club, and besides the majority of local talent, there will be guest stars from the Granite Skating Club in Toronto. Among these stars will be comedian Don Cribbar of Weston, Ontario, fast becoming famous for his antics on skates.

Carrying the biggest part of the load in organizing the show and training the children is Mrs. Isobel Adams, a professional instructress. Mrs. Adams won the Scottish championship in figure skating in 1946 and has taught professional figure skating in her native town of Paisley, Scotland. She came to Canada 11 years ago and after spending two years in Toronto came to Trenton where she has lived for the past nine years.

The Trenton Figure Skating Club, members of CFSA, have just organized and this is their first year. They boast a membership of 95 children and 33 adults, and their fee is only 50 cents per night. This gives the skaters 20 minutes of group instruction and the balance of the ice time in free skating.

At present they have lessons from 4.30 to 7.30 p.m. on Mondays and from 4.30 to 6.30 p.m. on Thursdays. They are hoping for more ice time as soon as it is available.

"Icendella" will be their first major show and the club will be making their own costumes by furnishing the cloth to the children who will have their costumes made. Tickets for the show are now on sale at $1 each and there will be no reserve seats. A policy of "first come, first served" will be held. They plan to hold a dress rehearsal shortly before the show day arrives and during the two days of the actual show are hoping for a full house.

The youngest soloist to take part in the show will be nine-year-old Wendy Falkenham, who has been skating since she was four and has been taking instruction for the past four years. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Falkenham, of 15 McGill Ave., Middleton Park.

Driver Admitted To Hospital After Collision

TRENTON — Harry Desjarden of 25 Kerr Crescent was taken to hospital yesterday following a head-on collision between the car he was driving and another.

Mr. Desjarden was driving a taxi at the time of the mishap and was treated in hospital for a twisted leg.

The other car involved was being driven by Joseph E. Sabourin of the RCAF station in Trenton and with him in the car was Joseph L. Boileau. Neither of the two was reported injured.

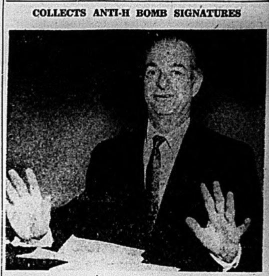
The accident took place near Gilmour Hill on Dundas Street East at around 12.30 p.m. and the roads were reported dry at the time.

Damage to the front end of the taxi was estimated at $200 and damages to the second vehicle's front end and along the left hand side of the car was estimated at $300.

There were no accidents reported after 5 p.m. yesterday despite the freezing rain which turned the streets of town slippery.

The mild weather has also kept furnaces and stoves turned down and it is felt this is an important factor in the scarcity of unwanted fires Monday and Tuesday. The local fire department reports no call since last Sunday afternoon when they were called out to two minor fires on the east side of town.

COLLECTS ANTI-H BOMB SIGNATURES



Professor Linus Pauling of the California Institute of Technology, a Nobel chemistry prize winner in 1954, tells of handing to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold of the United Nations a petition signed by more than 9,000 internationally known scientists to stop the testing of nuclear bombs by international agreement. The petition was prepared by Dr. Pauling as an individual scientist and was signed by other scientists as individuals. No organization was involved in the formulation of the petition or collection of signatures. On the petition were the names of 216 members of the Soviet Academy of Sciences.

QUALITY AND MASS PRODUCTION

If this were a "who-dun-it," instead of an editorial, it might well be entitled "The Case of the Revealing Parentheses."

Not long ago an M.P. called some Canadian-made goods "shoddy junk." This has aroused the ire of "Industry," the publication of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. It denies the allegation. Similar charges, it says, have been made in Britain and the U.S. regarding the quality of goods produced in those countries.

"What these criticisms really amount to, of course, is an attack on the whole system of mass production which, in the advanced industrial nations of the West, and in a matter of 20 years or so, has poured forth an incredible volume and variety of consumer goods - - and at prices which the whole population could afford," says "Industry."

"Certainly, few of the durables we buy will last a whole lifetime (our economy would soon be in a bad way if they did)," it continues. "They are not intended to - - and the North American consumer, at least, does not expect or want them to. It is enough that man's creative genius and our system of free enterprise have brought them within reach of nearly all of us. Research, invention, technological advances and new processes are continually out-dating the product of a few years ago."

There is the defence against what has been termed "built-in obsolescence."

Let us consider this defence. Firstly, it is freely admitted that so-called "durables" are not intended to last a lifetime. In many cases, we suspect, it would be impossible to produce such articles so that they would operate efficiently during the full life of the purchaser. In other cases, while this increased durability could be attained, it would be at a cost which would make the price prohibitive. Even where the useful life of the article could be greatly increased at a moderate cost, the article might be rendered practically worthless in a few years by the discovery of a more efficient machine.

The defence is good - - if it were not for those parentheses. Our economy, we are told, would soon be in a bad way if so-called durable goods did last a lifetime. This raises the suspicion that in some goods quality may be sacrificed not because of cost, but in order to make certain that the demand for a certain type of goods does not dry up. Insofar as this is true, critics of the quality of goods produced today have a good case. We can think of dozens of articles which are not going to be outmoded by research. Fountain pens and hammers, toothbrushes and doll carriages, wrist watches and marbles, are all likely to be in use a half century from now. If there is a way to make them better, at little cost, then they ought to be made better. Mass production or no mass production, it is still true that nobody was ever sorry they bought quality, if they could afford to buy it in the first place.

MUSIC, MAESTRO, PLEASE

"Music soothes the savage beast," is a familiar old adage.

There is little doubt that music plays a significant role in the daily lives of human beings, disregarding altogether its place in the animal kingdom. Modern man hears music through several media: the radio, phonographs, television, or at "live" programs he attends personally.

But, since Marconi invented the radio, think how man has been able to nourish his taste for music. He can listen to the harsh ratta-tat-tat of rock and roll and he can tune in on the sweet strains of chamber music. Or if he is one of those loyal supporters of grand opera, he can hear that, too, on his radio. He can listen to music from many parts of the world without even leaving his living room.

What is so wonderful about hearing music over the radio or television when the same thing can be heard "canned" or on records played on the master's high fidelity unit?

Simply this: Although on occasion it is pleasantly relaxing to hear hours of uninterrupted music on the hi-fi, to many people those hours without the sound of another voice, except the increasing monotony of a select group of vocalists, can become tiresome. It is amazing the number of people who, once relaxed, cannot summon the initiative to arise and switch off the machine, regardless of how monotonous the music becomes.

However, listening to music over the radio, which is broken sporadically by "commercials" or injections by the announcer, creates a homey atmosphere and thus sets an ideal environment for entertainment - - so long as the announcer does not get carried away with the sound of his own voice.

Migration Mysterious

BBC London Letter

"Perhaps of all the many aspects of Nature to be seen throughout the world, that of migration provides the most fascinating and most mysterious," said Eric Simms, the BBC's natural history expert and author of a recent book on migration, in a talk broadcast recently in the BBC's overseas service. Although there were similar movements in other forms of life, such as moose, caribou, salmon and eels, it was the migration of birds that revealed itself most clearly, he said. In its true sense migration had a regularity and a definite quality of direction which resulted in the complete evacuation of one territory for another.

The transfer of the breeding population from its area of summer distribution to a region inhabited in the winter was illustrated, Simms said, by the swallows that bred in Britain in summer and in the British autumn made their way to South Africa to enjoy a second summer. They made no attempt to nest in South Africa, although it was the breeding season there for local birds. The great continent of Africa provided a winter home for many birds from Europe, and there were many similar examples from America — for example, the little black-poll warbler, which bred in the spruce forests round Hudson's Bay and wintered far south in Brazil and Venezuela. Less was known about the migration of birds within the continent of Asia, but some migrants certainly East but some migrants certainly travelled to Australiasia and Africa— the needle-tailed swift, for example, which bred from East Siberia to Japan and travelled by China and Malaya to winter haunts in Australia and Tasmania.

There was no example of a land bird which bred in the southern hemisphere and journeyed to winter in the northern hemisphere, Simms said, but some oceanic birds did. "The great shearwater that breeds on Tristan da Cunha in the South Atlantic, migrates northwards considerable distances beyond the tropics. One of the largest ocean migrations is carried out by Wilson's petrel which nests in the Antarctic and moves north across the Atlantic to Labrador, Baffin Island, and sometimes the waters of the British Isles."

"Some species can carry out incredibly long journeys with great accuracy," Simms pointed out." The Bristle-thighed Curlew, an American wading bird that breeds on the Alaskan coast, flies 6,000 miles to Tahiti to spend the winter, and such a trip must involve unbroken sea crossings for 2,000 miles or more — an astonishing navigational feat. Another long-distance migrant is the Arctic tern. In 1944, Dr. A. A. Allen recovered near Churchill in Manitoba, and Arctic tern which had been ringed in the same area seven years before on July 10th, 1937. In the intervening period of time it had undertaken seven round trips to the Antarctic and had probably flown 22,000 miles on each trip, making a total of 154,000 miles in seven years. It had not, of course, made such extended sea crossings as the bristle-thighed curlew.

Although the different kinds of bird taking part in migration might be reckoned in thousands, Simms said, the individuals of even a single species might reach untold millions. By trapping migrating birds and ringing them before they were released, ornithologists had learned a great deal about where and when they migrated and how long they took on their journey, and as each year went by, more information was becoming available. At the same time, scientists had been applying themselves to the great problem of how birds navigated so accurately from place to place. The current theory was that the many day-migrants were capable of using the sun and its relative position in the sky to establish and maintain the correct course of flight, while birds that travelled only by night might have inherited a knowledge of the constellation patterns of the night sky. However, much remained unexplained and it was only by the persistent collection of more facts through the co-operation throughout the world that it might in future be possible to come nearer to the solution of one of nature's greatest mysteries.

Apostrophic Apology

Wall Street Journal

A Scottish school official has told a convention of educators in Glasgow that the apostrophe should be dropped from the English language.

H. J. Meehan, headmaster of St. John's School, Edinburgh, said, "The apostrophe is utterly useless and could be dispensed with." He added that although the apostrophe is not indicated in the spoken language there is no difficulty in recognizing the intended usage of a given word.

This ideas fine as far as were concerned. Well go along with Mr. Meehan if hell explain to reporters OToole and ORiley why theyre shorn of punctuation. Itll go over big with publishers wholl save newsprint. Therere editors whod never know the difference. And it wont bother linotype operators who are wont to drop them anyway.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

PRODUCE

Many years ago in preparation for a course in college, I languidly opened "Sartor Resartus," by Thomas Carlyle and began to read.

I read the chapter on "The Everlasting Yea" and my interest mounted as I read. At the very end of the chapter were these words: "I could now say to myself: Be no longer a Chaos, but a World, or even Worldkin. Produce! Produce! Were it but the pitifullest infinitesimal fraction of a Product, produce it, in God's name! 'Tis the utmost thou hast in thee: out with it, then. Up! Up! Whatsoever Thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy whole might. Work while it is called Today; for the Night cometh, wherein no man can work."

I arose from my chair and went out onto a campus which almost seemed to me to be suffused with light. I was in a new world, and old Tom Carlyle had created it for me. Since then I have always regarded that chapter as one of the most valuable gems of world literature.

But above all, I have come to believe that life is meant to be a productive, creative enterprise. I wince at the very thought of curtailing production with the idea that happiness and prosperity will result.

"Produce! Produce! Were it but the pitifullest infinitesimal fraction of a Product, produce it, in God's name."

We are here on the earth to get something done — to produce.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Soaring along the highway, which was pretty busy despite the snow, we overtook a car going about 35 miles per hour. Since it was a mere two lane highway, with lots of curves and hills, it was impossible to make a quick pass.

The driver was a man, who by the hunch of his collar, and the way his hat was set fair in the middle of his head, appeared to be middle-aged. His companion was a lady, leaning away from him close to the door on her side.

The driver kept turning his head to address the lady. Now and again, he would take one hand from the steering wheel to gesture eloquently.

"Yah!" we gritted indignantly. For he was only going thirty-five and holding up the whole parade Besides, he was weaving a little every time he took his hand off to gesture.

"I know who he is," said my wife. "It's the weekend. He is a country parson, rehearsing his sermon to his wife."

"No," I disagreed. "He is an old skinflint. He has mortgages on all the poorest farms for miles around. He is telling his sister, a maiden lady, how he has just announced a foreclosure. . ."

"I think," said my lady, "it is a husband and wife, just quarreling."

A clear place came in the road. We whipped past, with an ill-natured toot on our horn. The man turned a red, angry face at us, but it wasn't us he was mad a The woman leaning away to the far door, had her mouth shut like a nutcracker.

"See?" said my lady.

How do women know?

The four percent increase in freight rates granted the railways is disliked by just about everyone, of course, and the usual complement of outraged protests is now being heard.

But it's like taxes. Everybody curses them but nobody proposes a workable alternative.

Miss M. Minore of Lindsay is visiting relatives here.

The regular meeting of the Presto Music Club was held on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. K. Bird, Donald Street. Twenty members and four guests were present. At the close of the program delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Bird and Miss Ann Brown. The president of the club, Mrs. T. K. Franklin, presided.

Mr. R. T. W. Lewers, manager of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal will retire from active service with the bank on February 1st and will enter upon leave of absence for one year prior to entering upon superanuation. During his residence here Mr. Lewers has won a high place in the esteem of the business men of the city. He is well liked by the customers of the bank and by the members of the bank's staff. Many friends regret his departure from the city. Mr. Lewers has been in the service of the bank for thirty eight years. He came here from Chatham, ~~Ontario, in December 1882~~ to succeed Mr. George Weir who went on retirement. He will be succeeded by Mr. Thomas H. Dredge, who comes from Leamington, Ontario, where he has been ma~~nager for~~ some years.

There is a small flock of noisy crows spending the winter here in the western limits of the city.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A DEDICATED LIFE

To a greater or less degree each of us should live a dedicated life. We were not born merely to make ourselves happy and successful. We were put into the world to make others happy and successful. I like that thought as expressed by Michael Fairless in her beautiful brief book "The Roadmender." She said: "After all, what do we ask of life, here or indeed hereafter, but leave to serve, to live, to commune with our fellowmen and with ourselves; and from the lap of earth to look up into the face of God?"

Unfortunately, this beautiful soul, who wrote under a man's name, died before her book was put into print. (Her real name was Margaret Fairless Barber.) Year by year, however, her fame grows and her beautiful thoughts have influenced an endless number of human beings. Certainly this gentle writer lived a dedicated life. Each one of us can do the same. Such a life affords the only happiness that is genuine and worth while. A commentator said this about Michael Fairless, she "gave to the world not only an immortal classic, but a whole philosophy of refined gold." Michael Fairless was given her final resting place at her beloved Sussex. A simple wooden cross marks her grave. After the date, August 24th, 1901, are these words: "Lo! How I loved thee."

How precious are the words and deeds of a dedicated life! Its influence upon thousands of lives is endless. I am informed that over half a million of these small books — "The Roadmender" — have been sold. I have loved the book so much that I have collected every different issue and edition I could discover. The collection occupies an entire shelf in my library. God love Michael Fairless forever!

British Freedom

Hamilton Spectator

Since the last war 15 new nations have come into being, most of them as a result of wise British colonial policy. It is a record of which the British people might well be proud and it is a sharp contrast to the policies of the Soviet Union which has denied self-determination to millions of human beings.

Personal Health Talks

Keep On Breathing

A colleague who requests that I withhold her name, writes:

"After twenty years as an anesthetist, and a lifetime of deep breathing . . . I discovered through my work in anesthesia that I needed to conserve carbon dioxide: I must give up letting my emotions increase my ventilation; I must give up sighing; I must give up catching my breath after sudden exertion; I must hold my breath every time I over-breathe, to catch up with myself. I no longer was wheezy, my chest did not feel tight, my muscles co-ordinated well under stress, I could hurry without a feeling of strain, and wonder of wonders, I had control of my emotions — for the first time in my life, except for a short period in youth when I had felt completely secure, I need not weep when emotionally touched."

Hey, Doctor, wait for me! I've been far behind since you said you conserve carbon dioxide. I know administration of 5 or 10 percent dilution of carbon dioxide with oxygen or air is a great help in resuscitation, good treatment to prevent post-operative atelectasis and pneumonia and a good first aid remedy for obstinate hiccough (breathing for a minute or so in a paper bag). But the idea of conserving CO2 slipped by too fast. For the first time in a year I opened Haldane's Respiration, but as always Haldane merely makes the problem more complex.

"I have learned to associate muscular contraction with excessive loss of carbon dioxide. When one at rest breathes deeply, one becomes restless, in an endeavor to replace the loss, I think.

"So when I go to bed at night I pull the covers up over nose and mouth to rebreathe some of the carbon dioxide I am losing.

"Having used oxygen extensively for many years, I know how easily oxygenation is accomplished if there is any working lung at all, and I know that the feeling of shortness of breath is due to carbon dioxide loss, as everyone can demonstrate upon himself. Therefore, being convinced that oxygen is not my problem, I am mentally prepared and I do not work against what I once would have regarded as a hindrance to breathing, and soon my muscles relax and, if I'm too excited or over-fatigued, I am asleep.

Yours sincerely,
——— ———, M.D."

Physiologists still differ as to whether insufficient oxygen or too much carbon dioxide in the blood is the factor which increases breathing.

One thing I know is that American professional, clerical and "white collar" workers are generally shallow breathers. Most of them don't know how to breathe when they try. They generally imagine one "expands the chest" to take a deep breath. Because of shallow breathing, they suffer from numerous faults of poor circulation, such as varicose veins and hemorrholds.

Accent on the Negative

New York Times

It's a curious fact that negative acts usually fail to inspire enthusiasm. Negative acts are thought of as based on fear, resentment or jealousy and, by intent, impede constructive works, continue injustices and attempt to turn back the clock. Extremists who seek support for negative actions certainly succeed at times in inspiring their followers — but not to enthusiasm, which is a clean, health-flooded emotion. But rather to wrath and frenzy and fanaticism. By nature, the human animal seems to want to go forward, and the negative act by being antithetical to progress makes true enthusiasm impossible. This fact, unfortunately, is not always easily apparent. If it were we could, by simply observing the type of emotion called forth by an event or proposal, decide whether we were doing a positive or a negative thing. This would help make life more simple than it customarily is. A recent example of a clearly negative action occurred in the civil-rights field.

• • •

Soon Macon County, Alabama, will cease to exist — will be carved up and made part of other counties. A recent ratification by voters of a change in the state's Constitution makes this possible, and the only delay now will be to find the technical and legal means necessary to put the dismemberment into effect. Time — and changes in Federal civil-rights machinery — were having an effect on Macon County. It was inevitable with stronger guarantees of the right to vote, that Negro residents (who outnumber white residents seven to one) would shortly control the county government. No one suggested that Negro administrators could not run the county capably. Hardly did anyone suggest that for them to do so would be undemocratic. Opposition to the changes was not based on any objective reason.

• • •

Problem-solving is a constant activity in life and one of the most difficult. We learn soon enough that a problem doesn't yield by being stared at—that one must turn it about and look at it this way and that. If we aren't flexible-minded, if we do a rigor mortis sort of thinking we can't get at necessary solutions. A standard psychological puzzler—the so-called Gestalt-box is a simple square drawn on paper with six dots inside. Instructions are to connect the six dots with three straight lines without lifting pencil from paper. The puzzle seems impossible of solution until one realizes that there have been no instructions to the effect that lines must stay within the box. Once the mind shakes off the self-imposed limitation the solution to the problem comes easily. It is a technique that could be used with profit in some human situations one can think of.

• • •

The "problem' that Macon Couty was presenting to certain people has not been solved. A problem is not solved by eradicating it, no more than a problem in ill will is solved by murder. In Macon County the tides of change were working their effect—and if attitudes were keeping up with the times no "problem" would have arisen. In the existing unfortunate circumstances the only "solution" that appeared to those involved was the negative act of abolishing the geographic source. This technique has no future as a way of handling the race question in the South—and to think of it as such leads only to ludicrous images. There is a limit to the governmental units that can be dismantled.

• • •

By all appearances, it is interesting to note, enthusiasm for what they were asked to do was lacking on the part of the voters of Alabama. White supremacists in the area had contended that their stand would be supported heavily. Possibly because the voters were dissatisfied with the "solution" offered, they stayed away from the polls in large numbers. Only a quarter of those eligible to ballot did so on the issue in question. Another possible explanaion is that the voters of Alabama were not as concerned about the potential Negro voting strength in Macon County as white supermacists thought. This is the more heartening possibility—one that might indicate that attitudes are by degrees changing with the times.

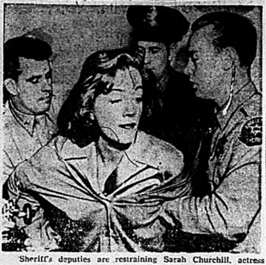
SARAH CHURCHILL IS ARRESTED



Sheriff's deputies are restraining Sarah Churchill, actress daughter of Sir Winston Churchill, after her arrest on a charge of drunkenness in Los Angeles. Miss Churchill was taken into custody when she tangled with officers who went to her Malibu Beach home following a complaint from the telephone company that Miss Churchill was using unladylike language over its lines. This photo was made in the Los Angeles Hall of Justice, where Miss Churchill was lodged in the women's section of the county jail.

Subway Decision Delayed by Surprise Vote

TORONTO (CP)—In a surprise vote as their meeting was about to be adjourned, Metropolitan Toronto council Tuesday lifted a Jan. 21 deadline for a decision on the location of a second subway route and did not set an alternate date.

The date had been set for the council's decision on which of two routes to approve—an east-west route along midtown Bloor and Danforth streets or a U-shaped line along Queen Street through downtown Toronto.

The vote came after Alderman Donald Summerville failed to get support for a request that the Metropolitan planning board be asked for its final recommendation in writing 48 hours before the Jan. 21 meeting. Councillor Ford Brand then moved the meeting be cancelled.

Fred Gardiner, chairman of the Metropolitan council which supplies certain services to Toronto and 12 suburbs, now has the responsibility of calling a planning board meeting for a decision.

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma went to a meeting of the Current Events and Bridge Club this afternoon, and after dinner she said to pop, William, I passed the ordeal with flying colors?

Congradulations, pop said. What ordeal? he said, and ma said, Well, the Club ladies have organized a class in impromptoo speeking. When our tern comes we select a slip of folded paper from a baskit and give a little unrehearsed talk on whatever subject is written on the paper. I was all prepared, she said.

Do you meen you slipped your own subject in the baskit and slipped it out again? pop said, and ma said, Sutch an idea. Certainly not. But I've never yet heard a public speeker who didn't begin by announcing that the subject, whatever it was, reminded him of a story, and then proceed to tell a joke to make the audience laff. Well my dear, I remembered a little book on Benny's bookshelf called Populer Minstrel Jokes, so I memorized about 9 of them so as to be prepared with at leest one appropriate story to fit the subject, she said.

And what was the subject? pop said, and ma said, Japanese Flower Arrangements. Well my dear, I couldn't remember a single minstrel joke about flowers or anything elts. So I merely said, Fellow members, Japanese Flower Arrangements remind me of a funny story, but as I see there are ladies present, I better not tell it, and as for the Arrangements themselves, I hope to be able to tell you all about them when and if I get back from Japan, if and when I ever go there. My dear, I wish you could of heard the laffter that went up when I sat down.

The result being pop laffed too and couldn't hardly stop, making ma feel still greater.

Churchill Glares When Reporters Seek Interviews

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill flew to the Riviera today for his annual winter vacation and gave airport reporters no chance to question him about his actress daughter Sarah's arrest for drunkenness in California.

Churchill's black sedan pulled up at London airport where reporters converged on him. As his chauffeur started to open the door, the 83-year-old statesman glared and shook his head, then slouched in the back seat and read newspapers.

When the plane was ready for loading, the chauffeur drove the car to the foot of the passenger stairway leading to the plane.

John J. Trudeau Named Chairman of H.S. Board

Member of the Boy of Quinte High School Board since its inception in 1952, Mr. John J. Trudeau was named chairman of the board at the inaugural meeting held Tuesday evening at the board rooms on John Street.

Mr. Trudeau succeeds Mr. Brooks Allen of Lonsdale, county council representative to the board. During his term on the board he has taken an active interest in committee work. He is the Belleville Separate Schools representative to the board.

In his inaugural address he referred to the problems which the board will face this year, greatest of which was said to be the need to bring a third high school into being. Expressing his appreciation for the honor accorded him in his election as board chairman, Mr. Trudeau asked for the co-operation of members during the year to come.

Captain C. J. Ivany of the Salvation Army pronounced invocation at the inaugural.

All of last year's standing committee chairmen were re-appointed. These were: School management, A. O. Drysdale; financial committee, John A. McArthur; property and supply, J B. Durrant; sites and accommodation, H. C. Seldon, and transportation, Roy Sills.

First meeting of the Advisory-Vocational committee meeting was set for February 4th.

The board passed a borrowing resolution authorizing borrowing up to $300,000. The budget meeting to strike estimates will be held later.

Asks Pointed Question

OTTAWA (CP)—Are members of the Russian embassy staff in Ottawa trying to help Canadian scientists overcome their inability to translate Soviet scientific papers?

Stanley Haidasz (L. — Toronto Trinity) Tuesday in the Commons asked Trade Minister Gordon Churchill whether the government is aware that embassy staff members are distributing English - Russian dictionaries at the National Research Council. Mr. Churchill reports to the Commons for the council.

Mr. Haidasz also asked whether the government is aware that members of the Soviet embassy staff have offered to teach the Russian language to NRC scientists.

Mr. Churchill said only that he has no knowledge that this is taking place.

Warm Weather Puts Soldiers In Hospital

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — A spell of warm weather has put 10 Canadian soldiers in hospital with frostbitten feet.

The victims, on winter exercises with the army in dense bush 40 miles north of this Northern Ontario gold-mining town, were evacuated to hospital here during the first five days of the exercise which began Thursday.

Lt.-Col. D. E. Holmes, commanding officer of the 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, said the warm weather caused frostbite because the 700 soldiers were wearing footgear designed for below-zero temperatures.

During balmy 30 - degree weather last week their feet perspired soaking their insoles and heavy socks. Many did not dry them out and in subsequent cold snaps the wet footgear froze, and so did their feet.

Supporting units are the 1st Airborne Medical Platoon from Camp Borden, the 1st Airborne Signals Squadron from Kingston, a unit of the Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers and an ordinance unit, both from Lakeview, near Peterborough.

Sudbury Would Annex 3 Towns, Six Townships

SUDBURY (CP)—Sudbury will proceed Feb. 10 with its application to annex three area towns, six townships and a school section.

A special meeting of city council Tuesday night voted 11 to 1 to adopt the 15-page report of its special amalgamation committee recommending the merger. Sole dissenter was Alderman James Cormack who contended the amalgamation is undesirable.

The new City of Sudbury would take in some 200 square miles including Sudbury, Copper Cliff, Frood Mine and Lively, the townships of Mckim, Neelon-Garson, Falconbridge, Snider, Waters and the Creighton and Snider school section.

The new area population would exceed 85,000 people. The population of the present city of Sudbury is 47,701 in an area of about 4½ square miles.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Let's continue from last Wednesday with a few more notes about general sales or sales in general. We noticed very considerable reductions in children's wear, both for boys and girls. Stocks are always augmented before Christmas; some are bound to be left, among them special merchandise. This is the time to fill out the children's wardrobes or even buy ahead for next year.

Another line in which you will find good bargains is men's shirts. Odd sizes and end of lines are way down in price; we also saw nylon shirts in white and colors cut nearly 50 percent.

Costume jewelry sales are worth checking, too; it is so nice to have all you want to go with all costumes.

A couple of particular items in another category that we saw for the first time are a new type note book and an implement for moistening envelopes or any gummed surface. The note book is in the form of a small roll of paper going from one small roller to another inside a small plastic case with an open space on top for writing. The other item has a good sized clear plastic handle which is to be filled with water. On the open end of this is a large rubber stopper with a small roller in it. The water comes out on the gummed surface as you move the roller along.

We must not neglect to mention that straw hats have already made their appearance in the millinery shops. This seems the earliest in the year that we have ever seen them, but we may be wrong in that. The favorite bright blue of winter seems to be still popular in the early straws, and other bright colors are much in evidence. Silly as it may sound, those first straw hats always seem to give the ladies a great lift.

We came across some information indirectly from our shopping excursions. It seems that in the world of reading and of books, Canada is not high on the list of heavy reading countries. But we are improving. Some, maybe a great deal of the credit for this goes to new Canadians and people from the Old Country.

Europeans as a whole are wide and steady readers, with Denmark having the highest reader level. Iceland is high on the list too, showing the Danish influence. The United States is improving. But the majority of people from European countries carry a book of some sort around with them. In Britain people read in restaurants while they have their meals, they read in tubes and buses, even on the street, certainly while sitting in the parks.

We were told that young boys are now showing special interest in science books, especially those dealing with astronomy and space.

The world of books is a wonderful, everlasting world waiting to be explored. Let's hope that Canadians put themselves high on the list of readership.

T & T would like to congratulate the Red Cross Homemaker Service on their tenth anniversary. We would like particularly to congratulate the society on their Homemaker Supervisor, Mrs. Buchanan. When these services were begun in various centres it was considered obligatory for the supervisor to be either a graduate nurse or a dietician. Ten years ago, a graduate nurse was obtained for this job but, due to ill health at the time, was not able to take over her duties. Mrs. Buchanan, who was on the committee setting up the service, agreed to fill in for a while. But, so efficient and valuable was her guidance and work, that she has been supervisor ever since.

Due to capable supervision, the Belleville Homemaker Service has always stood third or fourth in the 26 branches in the Ontario Division in service to the public and in collections. Mrs. Buchanan has made a total of 5,601 calls and has conducted 111 educational meetings for the Homemakers.

This great progress and this excellent record has been recognized by the Ontario Division by giving Mrs. Buchanan the honor of representing Homemaker services on the Ontario Welfare Council. This is a proof that initiative, self-reliance and fairness are good substitutes for specialized training. The Homemaker Service in Belleville has indeed upheld the motto of Red Cross: Service, regardless of race, color or creed in peace and war.

St. Andrew's E.A. W.M.S. Installs New Executive

The first meeting of 1958 of the Evening Auxiliary of the W. M. S. of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, was held at the home of Mrs. E. A. Craighead, 22 Wellington Crescent, on January 13. The meeting was opened by past president, Mrs. R. R. Brain, who, following the reading of the annual reports, called on Mrs. F. Parsons, president of the Senior Auxiliary to install the new executive: president — Mrs. F. B. Sheffield; vice-president — Mrs. H. F. Williamson; secretary — Mrs. J. Ganzeboer; treasurer; Mrs. J. B. Dundas.

Mrs. Parsons also gave a comprehensive report on the proceedings of the Presbytery meeting which she had attended that afternoon in Kingston.

Mrs. J. Ganzeboer led the responsive Scripture reading, and Mrs. A Cummins outlined some of the interesting articles in the "Glad Tidings" and stressed the importance of member's interest in reading the "Glad Tidings" each month.

BUSINESS MEETING

Mrs. Sheffield conducted a brief business meeting and turned the meeting over to the Study Group— Mrs. J. B. Pickard, Mrs. G. R Cameron, Mrs. G. E. Scott and Mrs. W. D. Richardson who presented an interesting discussion on the Korean Church in Japan and a comparison of Buddhism and Christianity.

Mrs. J. Dundas closed the study period.

Mrs. R. D. MacLean's invitation to have the February meeting at the manse was accepted and following adjournment of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Craighead and her committee, Mrs. Hay and Mrs. G. Scott.

St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. Sends 100 Overseas Relief Articles

This week an Imperial Order Daughter of the Empire relief shipment of 99 cases, weighing five tons, valued at $23,420.61, left Canada for refugee children in Europe, Africa and Asia.

Mrs. R. C. Latimer, national I.O.D.E. services at home and abroad secretary, said that the warm clothing, blankets, first-aid and X-ray supplies, powdered milk and handicraft material provided by chapters of the I.O.D.E. across Canada were destined for refugee camps, infants' homes, welfare centres, orphanages and T.B. hospitals in British Somaliland, Kenya, Soudan, Germany, Italy, Australia, Greece and Korea.

These I.O.D.E. supplies which left from ports of Vancouver, Halifax and Saint John will be distributed by field teams of the British Save the Children Fund, who have always handled I.O.D.E. relief shipments in these countries.

Since the war, the I.O.D.E. has sent continuous aid to the destitute children abroad. But, Mrs. Latimer said, "our overseas help is only 20 percent of the more than half a million dollars we spend annually from our services departments; 80 percent is spent in Canada on local projects such as: clinics, veterans' hospitals, sanitoria, senior citizens, immigrants, libraries, summer camps, nurseries, historic sites, Canadian disaster funds and emergency welfare.

St. Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E., Belleville, has contributed to these services. One hundred handmade and knitted articles for babies and several pairs of Korean socks have been shipped to headquarters in Hamilton for refugee children. Cash donations for welfare work include the following: the Lucy Morrison Memorial Fund; British and European Relief Fund; Seamen's amenities; Korean project; the upkeep of a cot in the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto.

The Chapter awards a bursary annually to a worthy student in Belleville Collegiate or Quinte Secondary School. A rural school has been adopted by the chapter; books are provided periodically and treats on special occasions. A letter has been received recently from Mr. Kerr of the Children's Aid shelter expressing their appreciation and thanks for the gift of two living-room chairs. Gifts are also sent to the Ongwanada Sanitorium in Kingston.

Two representatives of St. Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E., are on hand to help welcome immigrants on arrival and later to welcome them as new Canadians when they receive citizenship.

Woman Helps to Preside Over Liberal Convention

By CAROLYN WILLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Women are making their presence felt at the national Liberal convention.

For the first time in the party's history, a woman is helping to preside over convention sessions. She is 76-year-old Senator Mariana Jodoin of Montreal.

But the all-party precedent was established in 1956 when Elizabeth Janzen of Kitchener, president of the Progressive Conservative Women's Association, performed the same function at her party's leadership convention.

Indicative of women's growing interest in politics is the number of them participating in this week's convention. Among the total 2,452 voting delegates and alternates are 332 women.

PAYS TRIBUTE

Retiring Liberal leader Louis S. St. Laurent paid tribute to the large number of women delegates.

"The ladies have always held an important role in the Liberal party and that role has become increasingly important in recent years," he told the convention Tuesday.

Mrs. R. A. Kinnear of Port Colborne, a vice-president of the National Federation of Liberal Women, presented a dual resolution calling for old age pensions at 65, instead of 70, and a transferable pension plan based on a national loan fund into which both employer and employee would pay.

Mrs. Maurice Cormier of Montreal, also a federation vice-president, seconded the resolution, which went to the convention's resolution committee for consideration.

OVER THE TEACUPS

On the teacup side, federation President Mrs. A. L. Caldwell of Saskatoon and NFLW members were hosts to more than 400 women at the convention for late afternoon tea.

Canada's women senators—all five of them Liberals—are attending convention sessions and functions, including Senator Cairine Wilson, 72, of Ottawa.

Senator Wilson became Canada's first woman senator in 1930 after a court battle that defined women as "persons," and eligible for red - chamber appointments.

CENTENARY W.M.S.-W.A.

CENTENARY — The Centenary W.M.S. met at the home of the president, Mrs Byron Harder. The meeting opened with a call to worship and a prayer by the president.

The treasurer reported having sent $160 to the branch treasurer, while Mrs. Fred Edmondson reported for the Mission Band, of $135.25 having been forwarded.

A quilting was arranged for January 16 at the home of Mrs. Mac Nobes when two quilts will we quilted. Mrs. F. Aikens, as community friendship convener, read from the Missionary Monthly an account of the "Senior Citizens' Party" which the Society had sponsored last August. Besides the many calls, letters and baskets of fruit that had been sent and distributed last year, Mrs. Aikens believed the calls made through the sector plan had meant much to the society as well as to the church. Also in her report she suggested that as a society this year, the topic of "Peace" be stressed. Mrs. Robert Hart, citizenship convener, gave a reading on "Peace."

Mrs. Harold Hancock was appointed corresponding secretary and press secretary, resulting from the resignation of Mrs. W. Short.

It was announced that the World's Day of Prayer will be held Friday, February 21st.

Mrs. Harder welcomed Mrs. James Tomalty to the community.

Mrs. Fred Edmondson and Mrs. Lloyd Pearson favored the members with a duet, "O Little Town of David."

The topic, "Women of Japan," taken by Mrs. Roy Thrasher, assisted by Mrs. F. Aikens, was found most interesting.

"After the war, the women of Japan, many of them being widows, found themselves facing tremendous responsibilities for which they were totally unprepared. Without training, experience or precedent, they had to carry on in the face of immeasurable losses, a wrecked economy, disillusioned and disheartened people. Through the years the women have gone through a revolutionary change. They are now found in business offices, factories, professional [illegible], and holding government positions. They have found newly-gained freedoms which they are still not used to but which will take them far into the history of Japan."

W.A.

The W.A. met at the home of Mrs. Byron Harder with the president, Mrs. Reg Edmonson, presiding, and using a New Year's theme.

Letters of thanks, appreciation and best wishes were read from Mrs. J. Sargent, Mr. Robert Percival, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Roblin, Herb Brown and family, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Coon and Mrs. Dorothy Millar.

The annual congregational meeting will be held January 20. All members were given a special invitation to attend.

Mrs. Percy Sutherland led the devotional with a poem and prayer for the new year. Psalm 90 was read by Mrs. B. Harder.

Readings with thoughts for the new year were read by Mrs. R. Hart, Mrs. Lloyd Pearson, and Mrs. Keith Johnston. Mrs Sutherland spoke and compared life to a story book. Each of us is writing a story with his or her life ,and the story will be much more interesting and fruitful if God is in the life's story.

Mrs Sutherland closed with prayer for the new year and Mrs Edmondson pronounced the benediction.

JOHNSTOWN W.A.

JOHNSTOWN — The Johnstown Women's Association held their January meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Harry on Thursday afternoon with a fine attendance of 17 ladies.

Mrs. Clapp welcomed all, especially the guests. Mrs. C. J. Brunt read a prayer and "What Is the Coming Year?" was read by Mrs. Clapp. The Scripture reading, found in Revelations 21 was read by Mrs. Alec Vandervoort. Thank-you notes from Bob Bush and Mrs. W. Vandervoort, also a phone message from Mrs. F. Meyers thanked the W.A. for fruit sent to her mother at Christmas. A thank-you note was also received from a Trenton lady for a Christmas basket sent to her.

There was one new member, Mrs. W. S. Harry and Mrs. Glenn Stickle were requested to be this year's auditors. The secretary stated the W.A. had a successful year in 1957. It was arranged to have a quilting on Tuesday at 12.30 p.m. on January 12th.

Mrs. Douglas Harry had organized a CGIT group at Johnstown church. It was decided to help the girls to get a start, so $50 was donated to their cause, also it was decided to collect strawberry money, wash day money, have a bake table and birthday box as in 1957.

Several poems were read: "Ringing in the New," by Mrs. Doug Harry; "Appreciation," by Mrs. Ingram; "Somebody," by Mrs. Grant; "New Year's Day" by Mrs. Bonisteel.

A contest was put on by Mrs. Glenn Stickle and won by Mrs. Clapp.

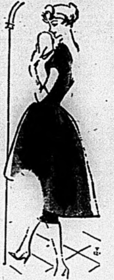
Short Elegance



By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

For gala goings - on, the floor-length evening dress is the thing this year. But for important "little" evenings of dining, dancing or theatre - go - ing, the short-skirted evening dress continues to shine, especially if it has an interesting hemline. Both neckline and hemline dip in this stunning short-length dinner dress. High draping across the throat terminates in a deep V in back. The tunic stands away from the slim underskirt in a dome shape held out by stiffened lining.

Squash Is High In Vitamin A

By Mary Moore

For 25c I bought one half a huge Hubbard squash. I enjoy squash but shy away from the thought of breaking one of those Hubbards. But here was one opened up for me, so I plopped it into Gary's stroller and made him walk home.

I wanted to steam it but was still too big for everything but the roasting pan. But that was ideal for steaming because it has a trivet. All I did was wash it and scrape out the seeds and stringy bits, add about one inch of water to roaster, put squash on trivet, put on lid and let it boil gently one hour. It may have been done sooner but Marianne was Christmas shopping and I had both babies to tend so the squash was on its own.

FLUFFY MASHED SQUASH 1:

On Marianne's return I had two hands free to scoop out and mash that squash until it was velvet smooth. Then I added butter aplenty and salt and pepper and reheated it in top of the double boiler. We had this with steak and a tossed salad containing tomatoes and avacado and I thought it was the best meal I ever ate — but chasing Gary is not child's play. Oh yes it is!

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

WEDNESDAY
(Guests)

Chicken Supreme (see Monday); Baked Stuffed Large Potato Halves; Diced Beets; Relish Plate: Celery Hearts, Green Onions, Radishes, Dill Spears, Ripe and Green Olives; Canned Pears in Mint Syrup; Shortbread; Coffee.

FLUFFY MASHED SQUASH 2:

Use any kind of squash and bake or steam it. When tender scoop out and measure 4 cups. Add ½ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons cream, 1 tablespoon sugar, ½ teaspoon each grated orange rind, nutmeg, dash freshly ground pepper. If you have an electric beater, beat this as you would mashed potatoes — until no lumps remain. Reheat in baking dish or in top of double boiler.

SQUASH SOUFFLE:

(If using Hubbard squash, you may in desperation have to resort to using your husband or your hatchet or both to break it open!) Two cups well packed cooked summer or winter squash, 3 tablespoons each butter, flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup each milk, grated cheese, ¾ cup bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon catsup, 2 teaspoons grated onion, 2 eggs, separated. Melt butter. Remove from heat. Stir in flour and salt. Gradually stir in milk, mixing until smooth and well blended. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thick and smooth. Add squash, cheese, bread crumbs, catsup, onion and the well-beaten egg yolks. Mix well. Fold in egg whites beaten until stiff but not dry. Pour into greased baking dish. Set dish in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven, 375 deg. Fahr. for 45 to 50 minutes or until est. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Margot Fonteyn Splendid in Sleeping Beauty

By PETER SYPNOWICH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Prima ballerina Dame Margot Fonteyn came back to cavernous Maple Leaf Gardens Monday night and if she didn't like it the audience did.

About 7,000 assorted patrons demanded six curtain calls from the renowned, 38-year-old dancer as London's Royal Ballet opened a three-night run with The Sleeping Beauty.

During her last visit in 1955 Dame Margot described the giant 12,586-seat arena as "fine for sports but unfit for ballet."

She didn't seem bothered Monday night by the knowledge that when the ballet moves out Wednesday, hockey and wrestling move back in. Her performance in the title role won unanimous approval from critics.

Herbert Whittaker of The Globe and Mail said her third-act pas de deux with Michael Somes as the prince "reminded us vividly of her pre-eminence in the ballet world."

Hugh Thomson of The Star said she turned in a "musical" performance, closely attuned to the large orchestra under Hugo Rignold.

"Her sensitive phrasing showed an intimate knowledge of the Tchaikovsky score."

The audience, a mixture of students in sweaters and social figures in tiaras and tails, brought back the dancers for several mid-act curtseys and bows.

Included in this attention were Svetlina Beriosova as The Lilca Fairy and Annette Page and Brian Shaw as the Blue Birds.

The 80-member company had two Canadians in the corps de ballet, Margaret Mercier of Montreal and Arnott Mader of Kitchener.

This is the Royal Ballet's first visit to Canada since its name was changed from Sadler's Wells a year ago. Five previous visits included a world attendance record of 9,332 for its production of Swan Lake here in 1953.

Swan Lake will be the ballet's presentation tonight. Wednesday night the company will perform Les Patineurs, Petrouchka and Birthday Offering.

The company goes to Cleveland from here and closes its North American rail tour in Montreal with four performances starting Jan. 20.

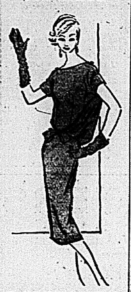
Back Interest



By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

The all-important back interest is achieved in this dress by a soft blouson which is buttoned on at the back of the shoulders. In front it terminates in a bow that ties at the waist. Removed, it reveals a simple chemise with seaming to shape the front slightly from bust to waist.

Neighbors' Aid Holds Euchre

2ND THURLOW — The Neighbors' Aid euchre was held at S.S. No. 4 Thurlow on Friday night with ten tables in play. Mrs. Harry Thomson and Mrs. Jack Chumbley were in charge and donated the prizes which were won by the following:

Ladies — Mrs. J. Morris; Mrs. Milton Crawford; consolation, Miss Agnes Milne. Men — Jack Cogar; Jack Chumbley; consolation, W. Gray; lone hands, Mrs. Milton Crawford, on lucky draw. Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

The next euchre will be convened on January 24th., with Mrs. Cecil Keene, Mrs. Earle Keene in charge, at S.S. No. 3 Thurlow.

Bay of Quinte W.I. Hears Talk on 'Food'

The Bay of Quinte Women's Institute held its January meeting on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hogle of Trenton, with the president presiding.

It was decided that the conveners' bill be paid and that dues to the district be paid also. A New Year's letter from the Provincial president, Mrs. Haggarty, was read.

Thank you letters were received from Kay Stickle and Mrs. J. Sandercock; a letter was received from the Unitarian Service asking for layettes for Arab refugee babies and pullovers for children in Korea from three to 15 years. These are greatly needed and do not have to be new.

Arrangements were made for a party to be held on the 12th of February at Bayside School. Mrs. Arnold Ketcheson and Mrs. Frank Sandercock to be conveners.

The meeting was turned over to the convener for the evening, Mrs. John Reid, who is responsible for historical research and current events. This part opened with a poem, "A New Year's Wish," by Mrs. Reid, who spoke on the "History of Something to Eat," saying food is a fascinating topic, and that she was interested in the background of foods.

FOODS

"The tomato is a native of South America; the cow was domesticated in England, and primitive man thought at that time if he ate certain parts of the cow it would be of great use to him (it would make him brave to eat the heart.) Potatoes were first planted in Canada in Acadia. Onions are the oldest vegetables cultivated and are as important to the Egyptians as rice is to some other countries. They are considered a good food. In the last war, the Russians had them once a day as a sort of disinfectant.

"Wheat has been grown for 40 centuries in China. Canada's climate makes Canadian wheat the best in the world.

"Butter was discovered by the nomadic tribes of the East, long ago. They put milk in their containers on the backs of their beasts of burden and the walk of them gently churned the milk into butter.

"Apples have been cultivated for 3,000 years; ice cream has been known for ages; coffee and tea have been used for a long time but tea is the most widely-known beverage."

A couple of poems were read, "Lost Chances," by Mrs. A. Meyers; "Miss Lydia's Furniture," by Mrs. J. Reid.

A couple of contests were put on by Mrs. Reid. First contest was won by Mrs. A. Meyers, second by Mrs. Clapp.

The hostess, Mrs. Ted Hogle, and conveners, supplied refreshments and the social half-hour ended a pleasant evening.

HUMOROUS PEER

LONDON (CP)—Lord Mancroft is giving his London house a name instead of a number. "I have decided to call it 'The Lurch' because my wife Diane is left in it so often," said Lord Mancroft, a busy public figure.

Easy Glamor

By TRACY ADRIAN

The mobile look is a popular one in fashionable clothes this season; here it is translated into long, golden, drop earrings.

The ones pictured are as comfortable as they are chic because they use a clasp that can be adjusted to take the squeeze play off the earlobes, making the earrings seem weightless. With them is worn a golden star that swings from a rhinestone-circle fob pin.

60 Attend Springbrook W.A. Dinner

About 60 people at down to a pot-luck dinner in the basement of Springbrook United Church last Thursday with Mrs. Delbert Fleming and Mrs. Reg McKeown as hostesses.

Proceeds from the dinner amounted to $30.75

Following the dinner, 21 members of the Woman's Association assembled for their regular meeting. The president, Mrs. Carman Sine, was in charge and opened the meeting.

The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Gordon Webb, the theme being "The Abundant Life." The Scripture, taken from Matthew 2:1-12, was read by Mrs. Murney Mason; Psalm 119 was read responsively, led by Mrs. Reg McKeown, and the theme thoughts were read by Mrs. Ed Bateman, followed by a prayer for the missionary, Miss Gould, by Mrs. Beare.

The members reported 11 calls made and 31 cards sent. The correspondence read included four "thank-you" cards and literature on World's Day of Prayer on February 21st.

Mrs. Delbert Fleming reported for the December visiting committee and it was agreed to continue the monthly visiting committees for the new year, using the calling cards. Mrs. C. Sine and Mrs. K. Thompson volunteered to act on this committee for January. Special missionary envelopes were distributed among the members for use in their missionary project.

The treasurer, Mrs. F. Cosbey, gave the financial report of catering to the Elaine Shoe Factory banquet on December 13.

A short discussion on new built-in cupboards in the basement followed with Mrs. D. Fleming, Mrs. R. McKeown and Mrs. K. Thompson to act as a committee to make inquiries re estimates. This concluded the business and the following program was enjoyed:

The topic on "New Year's," by Mrs. Clayton Burkitt; readings by Mrs. Gordon Bateman, Mrs. Frank Cosbey and Mrs. Harry Haslett.

The president moved a vote of thanks to the hostesses for the day.

The February meeting will be in the same manner with a pot-luck dinner at noon. Hostesses will be Mrs. Fred McKeown and Mrs. Florence McKeown.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. R. D. — Ellen should help her sister.

Eleen M. — Terry is jealous.

• • •

Mrs. R.D. — I am very much concerned about my two married daughters.

Ellen is married to a successful businessman. She is very well off. She and her children have beautiful clothes and all kinds of luxuries. Terry is married to an ordinary workingman. They have barely enough to get by. Terry workes her fingers to the bone and can't even take a day off for a little fun.

The girls were always good friends as children, but they have grown far apart. I feel that Ellen should make more of an effort to do things for her sister. It would mean nothing to her to take Terry out occasionally. She could also do things for the children. Why shouldn't sisters help one another when they are in a position to do so?

• • •

Ellen M. — I'm sorry to have to say a thing like this, but I do feel that my sister is jealous of of me.

For a long time I have tried to get her to come out with me to a show or to some little function given by my club. She always refuses, saying she is too busy. Yet I know that she goes out occasionally with one or two of the women from her neighborhood.

When Terry and her children come to my home, I always feel some kind of restraint. She seems to be in a hurry to get away. She doesn't seem to even listen when I tell her things. She never invites me to her home.

My mother seems to think I should shower Terry and her children with gifts, but I don't think she would like that. She is much too proud.

• • •

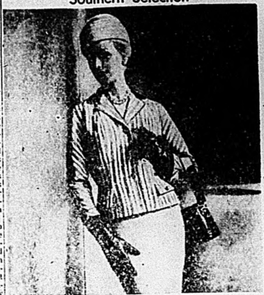
The Council: We agree with Ellen that Terry would probably prefer not to be showered with gifts. This mother is a little too anxious to equalize her children's material positions. She fails to realize that Terry may have quite a lot of contentment, despite her economic hardships.

We think, however, that Ellen is rather harsh in her judgment of Terry's "jealousy." It is quite possible that Terry is a little uncomfortable with her sister because she feels she cannot afford to pay her own way to the shows or functions Ellen attends. She probably feels that Ellen inhabits a different world socially. Terry's clothes, her lack of time, her heavier home responsibilities prevent her from participating in this world on an equal basis.

Nevertheless, it is a shame to let this economic difference drive a wedge between the sisters. Ellen should make an effort to find a basis for coming together with her sister that will cause no embarrassment She might suggest they get together for simple, family occasions. She should show that she is eager to have her children know their cousins better. She could invite Terry's children on simple excursions which involve little or no expense.

Of course, the effort can't be one-sided. Terry will have to lose some of her self-consciousness and try to bridge the gap.

Southern Selection



By ALICE ALDEN

The suit of fine linen, superlatively tailored and detailed, is a favorite with well-dressed women at smart southern resorts. Such a suit, if carefully chosen, should do a full tour of duty later in the year. Huntliegh does one with a skirt of solid oatmeal-beige Moygashel linen co-ordinated with a charcoal-striped jacket. Three-quarter dolman sleeves allow for arm ease. Hip-buttoned pockets and a velvet collar provide detail.

PLACE OF CHEESE BOARD ON BUFFET TABLE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For Christmas we received several wonderful presents of different kinds of cheese, and we are planning to serve two or three of these on a cheese board at the buffet parties we are going to give. Where should a cheese board be placed on the buffet table? — Hostess

A cheese board is usually placed conveniently near the salad at one end of the table.

Worthy G.M., O.E.S. Pays Official Visit

TWEED — A highlight in the activities of Tweed Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, was marked Thursday when an official visit was paid by the Worthy Grand Matron of Ontario, Mrs. Lillian B. Turriff.

Previous to Chapter a banquet was held in St. John's hall under auspices of the W.A. This was attended by 140 people, with visitors coming from Madoc, Marmora, Colborne, Belleville, Trenton, Ottawa, Port Hope, Picton, Campbellford, Havelock, Bancroft, Smiths Falls, Napanee and Warkworth.

Guests at the head table included Worthy Grand Matron, Mrs. Lillian Turriff; Past Worthy Grand Matrons Mrs. Belle Linehan and Miss Helen Ross; Grand Officers Mrs. Audrey Elliott (Associate Grand Conductress), Mrs. Eleanor Ferguson (Grand Marshal), and Mrs. Eleanor Blackburn (Grand Warder); District Deputy Grand Matron, District No. 12, Mrs. Marion Thompson; Worthy Matron, Tweed Chapter, Mrs. Margaret Geen; Worthy Patron, Tweed Chapter, Mr. Charles Porritt; Associate Worthy Matron, Mrs. Kathleen York; Associate Worthy Patron, Mr. Jim Taylor; Worthy Matron, Belleville 55, [illegible] Olive Jones; Past Matron Mrs. Ethel Dafoe and Past Matron Mrs. Irene Coulter (secretary).

In response to the toast to "The Grand Chapter of Ontario" proposed by Mrs. Marion Thompson, Mrs. Turriff noted the Grand Chapter was first formed in 1915. Since that time the number of delegates attending the annual session has greatly increased, and the last Grand Chapter, in 1957, was attended by 2,000 delegates.

"Grand Chapter," she added, "should be an example and a guiding light to the subordinate chapters."

In a beautiful and impressive ceremony, the official inspection of Tweed Chapter took place in the Tweed high school, approximately 200 members were present.

In her remarks at the completion of Chapter, Mrs. Turriff [illegible] special compliments to the W.M., Mrs. Margaret Geen, and the W.P., Mr. Charles Porritt and their officers for the efficient and impressive way in which they carried out the work of their office, and to those who were responsible for the business side of the chapter. She added a few points of guidance and procedure for the benefit of all the chapters assembled.

Refreshments were served following the ceremony.

These are the officers of Tweed Chapter No. 148, as follows: W.M., Margaret Geen; W.P., Charles Porritt; A.W.M., Kathleen York; A.W.P., Jim Taylor; cond., Ethel Slingerland; A. cond., Ruth Taylor; chaplain, Eileen Coulter; marshal, Vera Ingles; organist, Marie Morton; secretary, Irene Coulter; treasurer, Ella Bowers; A[illegible] Eleanor Dickinson; Ruth, J[illegible] Green; Esther, Eileen Geen; Martha, Margaret Foster; Electa, Grace Thompson; warder, Annie Thompson; sentinel, Clarence Thompson.

By VERA WINSTON

Rich silk crepe in black or dark brown is well used in this dress for important activities. The boat neck is banded with satin with a small bow in front. The satin is also used to create a high-waisted look terminating in a button band all the way down the front. Semi-fitted, the easy line is a compromise between the two prevailing silhouettes.

STILL WORKING

SHAWINIGAN FALLS, Que. (CP) —A sewing machine purchased by her grandmother in 1880 is in constant use at the home of Mme. Fernand Cliche. "I use it to make my four children's clothes and most of my own," she says. "I guess I'll go on making use of it until my husband buys me a new one."

River Valley W.I. Holds Open Meeting, Enjoys Travelogue

STIRLING — River Valley Women's Institute sponsored an open meeting at the school house on Thursday evening with Mrs. Glenn Morrow as hostess. Approximately 65 peopel were in attendance and this included 17 men.

The first vice-president, Mrs. Ernest Carr, opened the meeting and Mrs. Phil Conley officiated at the piano.

Mrs. J. R. Donohoe gave a full financial report and read several messages of thanks. About 20 members answered roll call based on "Community life."

Plans were made for another open meeting in February and an extra committee appointed.

The Friendship Link secretary, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, displayed the greetings received from Abbott's Leigh W.I. members in England, and read an article from their yearly report re John Chard's visit while sightseeing in England.

The balance of the calendars were distributed to the Institute members. These were a Christmas gift from the Link Institute in England. Printed reports of Abbot's Leigh Institute November and December meetings, the latter a birthday meeting, were shown, also a special greeting from A.C.W.W.

The program was centred around "Community Activities and Public Relations," under the convenership of Mrs. Jack Bush and Mrs. Stanley Irven.

Miss Adeline Bush read an article based on the motto, "Your Community is the reflection of the majority of your homes." The article said in part: "A home is a place of rest and a sacred refuge. Every community has its leaders and the children's attitude toward community gatherings is usually what they hear discussed at home. Community gatherings where one and all, adults and children are able to enjoy the evenings together is a nation's bulwark."

SERIES OF PICTURES

Mr. John Chard, River Valley, took time out of his busy life to show his series of pictures taken on his recent trip overseas. The scenes began with the steamship on the St. Lawrence River; views of life aboard ship while crossing the ocean, and then lovely views of important spots in Scotland and England. The historical scenery in Chester; the rugged and beautiful North Wales, reminding one of the words of the poet, Wordsworth; the country roads were like winding lanes but all were paved and lovely hedges surrounded the farmland. The flower gardens were beautiful. The scenes of Stratford-on-Avon, the home of Shakespeare; the old historic church with its ancient setting; the grammar school over 400 years old and still in use, and beside it a beautiful restful home for senior citizens.

BEAUTIFUL GARDENS

The English gardens were a mass of beauty with roses predominating. The out-of-the-way resorts were picturesque. The castles of Warwick and Windsor with their cathedrals and towers, the Queen Victoria monument, scenes at Buckingham palace, Piccadilly Square, the changing of the guard, were all realistic.

The scenes then followed showing interesting places in Paris, France; Austria and Switzerland.

The extreme grandeur of Napoleon's tomb; the famous Mona Lisa; the various industries, also the famous milk pipe line bringing milk fresh to the city.

The covered bridge at Lucerne, and the famous buildings at Geneva were all clearly portrayed.

John gave a description of his brief visit to Abbot's Leigh W.I. Friendship Link secretary, and said, "Mrs. N. Coombs was anxious to hear more of River Valley W.I. In England the Institute is held in high regard."

Mrs. Ralph Utman voiced appreciative thanks to John for his lovely entertainment and said all had greatly enjoyed the travelogue.

Mrs. Glenn Brooks delighted with two vocal selections which included, "Let the Sun Shine In."

Mrs. Gerald Brooks gave an interesting paper on Current Events. She told of the lampshade class; the return of the Heasman family and then brought up to date items from farther afield and closed with an appropriate poem, "God Bless This Year."

Mr. Jack Bush conducted the assembly sing-song.

Bountiful refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

ROSTHERN, Sask. (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. John Michel observed their 70th wedding anniversary by attending a church service at the invalids' home at the Mennonite Youth Farm here. Mr. Michel is 95, his wife 88.

Chumbley and family, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mattis and family, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Chumbley and son, Plainfield; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sheridan and family, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Chumbley and family, Belleville; Mrs. J. MacFarland and son, Harrowsmith, a daughter, Mrs. John Burleigh and Mr. Burleigh of Perth, were also present.

This proved to be a most happy occasion as it was the first time all had been privileged to be together for a period of about 34 years ago.

Jury Clears Naturopathic Physician of Responsibility In B.C. Malnutrition Death

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — A coroner's jury has returned a verdict of death by malnutrition in the case of Mrs. Margaset Masy Howard, 30, who died in hospital after being placed on a diet by a naturopathic physician.

The jury Tuesday found malnutrition was due to "her failure to carry out to the fullest her doctor's advice." and attached no blame to anyone for her death. Mrs. Howard, mother of three children, died Christmas Day.

In a rider to the verdict, the jury recommended that an investigation be held to ensure that a patient may be treated in hospital "by a doctor of his or her own "choice."

naturopathic physician James A. Boucher, who said he treated Mrs. Howard for two months before her death, testified that naturopaths are forbidden by present regulations to put patients in hospital.

He said he first examined Mrs. Howard Oct. 24. She had "a palpable mass the size of an egg in the abdomen" and he ordered a special diet. Mrs. Howard was unable to take the diet, so he told her to eat nothing until she felt able.

He visited her again Nov. 30 and found she was still not eating. She vomited several times a day and night during a six-day crisis which followed.

On Dec. 5 he called in Dr. E. E. Rogers, described as a diet specialist, and Dr. Rogers gave her insulin "to break the sympathetic hold and start her eating," Boucher said. She continued vomiting until Dec. 17 when she took her first food.

By Dec. 13 she was eating fresh vegetables, but four days later she stopped eating again. On Dec. 23 Howard phoned to say his wife had been put in hospital, Boucher said.

Examined by his counsel, Boucher said Mrs. Howard did not follow his instructions, neither resting nor following the diet he prescribed. He said his training included four years in a school of professional naturopathy.

Dr. Peter Bell-Irving, who was called in as an internal specialist after Mrs. Howard was taken to hospital, said it was unusual to see "such a profound case of starvation."

Dr. Gordon Stranks, who had her admitted to hospital, said Howard told him his wife had been to a naturopath who diagnosed a cancerous growth in her abdomen and put her on an elimination diet which she kept up for a time, then went on starvation diet voluntarily for weeks at a time.

British Chancellor Says West Must Prove Itself

TORONTO (CP) — Britain's Lord High Chancellor says the West must prove its way of life worth the sacrifice necessary to match Russia's power of destruction.

Viscount Kilmuir, who as Sir David Maxwell Fyfe was chief British prosecutor at the Nuernberg war crimes trials, said Tuesday the foundation of the Western way of life must be a morality which can keep the world from nuclear disaster.

In the first of two Sir Robert Falconer Lectures, he told an audience of more than 700 at the University of Toronto the nuclear age emphasizes for importance of the need for qualities of mind and spirit necessary to eliminate "the misuse of scientific achievement."

The standards of conduct of the British Common Law were a worthy basis for world confidence, particularly since "it continues to govern more than a third of the world today."

But, he said, "we must make clear our basic thoughts and underlying beliefs to those who sympathize with us as well as to those with whom we disagree."

Misunderstanding of aims and motives was one of the greatest dangers to world peace. He found it difficult to understand use of the word "colonialism" as a term of abuse when applied to Britain.

"Since the last war 500,000,000 people in the British Commonwealth have received independence. During the same period, over 100,000,000 people have been brought under domination of Russian communism."

He said Britons not only applied a system of freedom of the individual to themselves, but encouraged its adoption among those whom they governed.

He also urged a greater sense of personal responsibility to the community.

"What I should like to see is a community where membership of any professional or commercial society or trade union is a guarantee that as a matter of loyalty to the association as well as a duty to the client, customer or employer the member will on all occasions do his everyday work as well as he possibly can and according to the highest standards of the job."

Hush-Hush Part of A-Bomb Missing on Training Flights

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government has cast high secrecy about any details on its brief admission that on at least one occasion a United States Air Force plane carrying a nuclear weapon crashed without exploding the weapon.

The defence department, apparently acting after consultation with other government agencies, has refused to say where or when the accident occurred, or to say whether more than one such incident might have occurred.

However, there is a growing belief that the accident mentioned by the air force Monday occurred within the last year in the continental United States and involved a B-47 medium bomber.

Air force spokesmen declined Tuesday to answer a question about that possibility and had a general "no comment" when asked about other accidents in which a nuclear weapon might have been aboard a crashed aircraft.

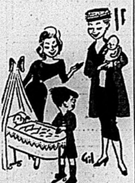
The pilot and co-pilot of a B-29 which crashed and burned Aug. 5, 1950 in California confirmed Tuesday that their craft was carrying the outer casing of an atomic bomb. But they could not say whether it was to that crash that the air force announcement referred.

The pilot, Lt.-Col. E. O. Steffes, said "there was no possibility of an atomic explosion and there was none."

The co-pilot, Capt. Carter W. Johnson, said the weapon lacked the vital component to explode it Johnson, now a B-52 bomber pilot, said the explosion and fire which followed the plane crash stemmed from the fuel tanks, and added:

"You can assure everybody that while the shape and weight of atomic bombs may be carried, there is no danger of a nuclear explosion because that hush-hush part is always missing on training flights."

"Jest a Second"



"See, Tommy, the stork has brought Mrs. Jones a baby, too."
"Heavens, aren't there ANY natural births around here?"

Missile Tested

CAPE CANAVERAL Fla. (AP) The U.S. Army launched a Redstone missile—the first stage of its forthcoming satellite-bearing space vehicle—Tuesday night.

The largest and heaviest of the army's ballistic weapons, the 69-foot-long, six-feet thick Redstone appeared to make a successful flight.

The Redstone will be used as the first stage of the Jupiter-C vehicle with which the army plans to establish a small earth satellite in orbit.

Deep Remorse Voiced by Killer Of Taxi Driver

TORONTO (CP) — Nicholas Rebalkin, 40, who said he shot a taxi driver in an abortive holdup attempt to get rent money, Tuesday night was convicted of murder and sentenced to be hanged April 15.

Sebastian Giardetti, 58, was cut down on a north Toronto street Nov. 30 by a blast in the back from a shotgun after refusing to turn over his receipts of $15 to a holdup man. He died later in hospital.

Police testified Rebalkin surrendered to a patrolling constable the night of the slaying. They said Rebalkin told them he had just moved to Toronto and was desperately short of money.

HAD TWO CHOICES

Detective-sergeant George Sellers testified Rebalkin said he had two choices—"shoot myself or make a holdup."

Rebalkin, an itinerant laborer, was born in Nelson, B.C. Most recently he had lived in Virginiatown, in Northern Ontario.

Asked by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer whether he had anything to say before sentence, Rebalkin replied:

"I want to say I still have human feelings. I am not deeply concerned with what will happen to me in the future. But I am deeply sorry for the grief I have caused Mrs. Giardetti and her family. I feel remorse beyond words."

French Note Backs U.S. View On Summit Talks

PARIS (AP) — Premier Felix Gaillard has given Russia's Nikolai Bulganin a hedged reply to the Soviet proposal for a new East-West summit meeting.

The 38-year-old French leader said a top-level session must be preceded by a foreign ministers' conference to draw up a program—a demand the Russians already have rejected.

The Gaillard response in many ways followed the idea of President Eisenhower's reply to the Soviet premier — a reply the French foreign office had said conformed to the French view.

In a relatively brief and chilly note delivered to the Kremlin Tuesday by Ambassador Maurice Dejean, Gaillard also insisted that any new conference must not reopen decisions taken at the 1955 Geneva summit conference.

A spokesma stressed at a press conference that this specifically meant the agreement for reunification of Germany through free elections—an agreement on which the West says the Russians broke their word.

Gaillard also said he does not see how France and the members of NATO could "seriously think peace and security would be consolidated by new non-aggression pacts."

It would be more useful, he said, if the Soviet Union would agree to abide by United Nations decisions in cases of aggression.

Police Seeking 22-Man Leader Retaliatory Raid

ST. JOHNS, Que. (CP)—Police of three forces are seeking an Italian immigrant alleged to have led a 22-man retaliatory raid on his girl friend's house after their marriage had been cancelled.

One man was shot in the thigh and three arrested following the raid Friday night on the home of notary L. Desmarais in this industrial centre, 25 miles south of Montreal.

The 22-year-old Italian suitor allegedly threatened the family after they called off the wedding which was to have been performed last Saturday.

Mr. Desmarais had asked for police protection and Constable Robert Filion was assigned the job. But the 22 men overwhelmed the policeman, broke into the house, pushed aside the seven-member Desmarais family and wrecked $1,500 worth of furniture.

Constable Filion fired several shots into the air and took one shot at a gang-member as he clambered into a car. Two men were captured on the porch and a third was discovered hiding under a table.

SOVIET SCIENTIST DIES

MOSCOW (AP)—The death of S. V. Orlov, 78, noted Soviet astronomer and expert on comets, was announced today. Orlov, a member of the Soviet Academy of Science and director of the Comet Research Institute, was one of Moscow University's oldest faculty members.

TAGS, SLOGANS AT LIBERAL CONVENTION

With nearly 5,000 delegates in Ottawa for the Liberal convention, campaigns for the candidates for party leadership have taken the form of tags, slogans and private persuasion. Leading candidate Lester "Mike" Pearson is not seeking a vote here. He is talking to Mrs. Paul Martin, wife of his leading opponent.

WE CAN WIN WITH MARTIN

Hon. Paul Martin has a "We-Can-Win-With-Martin" tag pinned on him by Mrs. Guy Richard of St. John, N.B. The delegates came from all provinces by plane, train and automobile.

Believe Look Of Rejection Caused Slaying

HAMILTON (CP) — Two psychiatrists testified Tuesday at the murder trial of John Willis that he was in a state of deep depression at the time of his wife's slaying.

Neither could say whether he was legally sane.

Dr. W. J. Walsh said a gesture of rejection by his wife may have moved Willis to hammer his wife to death. The 38-year-old laborer is charged with murder in the slaying of his 33-year-old wife, Elsie, Dec. 3.

Dr. Walsh said Willis told him that his wife wakened, looked at him with a tear-stained face, then turned away. She was beaten to death with four hammer blows.

FAILURE AS HUSBAND

"I feel that that look of rejection may have brought out to him what he felt as his failure as a husband, as the head of a family and as a man," Dr. Walsh said.

Dr. George Stone, another psychiatrist, agreed.

Crown counsel Harvey McCullough said he intends to call a psychiatrist in rebuttal today.

Blaming the slaying on debts due to heavy gambling in statements admitted Monday, Willis described the slaying and said he intended to commit suicide.

Crown and defence witnesses both testified to Willis' debts, amounting to more than $5,000.

Rocketeers Stick To Claim Rocket Fired 8,500 Ft.

WALLACEBURG, Ont. (CP)—Wallaceburg's amateur rocketeers, John Thompson, Jr., 16, and Bob Janssen, 17, stick by their claim that a rocket they fired reached a height of 8,500 feet. But they won't be able to duplicate it for a while.

An RCMP constable called on the two boys Tuesday night and told them they must stop their experiments until they get permission from the department of mines and technical surveys to handle explosives.

"I read over the explosives act tonight," John, son of Wallaceburg's mayor, said, "and it says in so many words that you can't even light a match."

He hopes however, to go to Ottawa soon to talk to the National Research Council about the slow-burning fuel he and Bob have developed and will try to get the necessary permission then to continue the experiments.

Told that John Percival, 17, of West Vancouver, who Tuesday fired a three-stage steel rocket to an altitude of 10,000 feet, doubts their single - stage aluminum rocket could have gone 8,500 feet, John said:

"Our figures were checked by the Institute of Aerophysics at the University of Toronto and that's what they showed."

The boys calculated the height by measuring the distance the rocket fell from the launching site—three-quarters of a mile—and the angle of firing—83 degrees.

"A 20-inch aluminum rocket like ours could go to Alpha Centauri (the nearest star) if it had the proper fuel," John said.

He said a second rocket, an experimental model, the boys fired New Year's Day disintegrated at 500 feet.

Says Election Saved Commons From Impotence

KINGSTON (CP) — Professor J. R. Mallery, professor of political science at McGill University says in the Queen's Quarterly that from the point of view of the future of parliamentary government in Canada, the results of the Dominion election could not have been better.

"The House of Commons has now become the centre of decision. It has become important, when before it was in danger of rivalling the American College of Electors in impotence. If government is to be carried on, the Opposition has to be both effective and responsible. Her Majesty's loyal Opposition now shares the big decisions, and we can now see how it can rise to the occasion," he says.

St. Laurent Says Liberals' Great Days Ahead in His Farewell Speech to Party

OTTAWA (CP) — Louis St. Laurent, cheered to the rafters by the Liberals, says the party's greatest days are still ahead.

The retiring leader, in his farewell speech to the national Liberal convention, told his party Tuesday night to look forward, not backwards to post-mortems of its election defeat last June 10.

And he gave the Liberals a boost in their coming election battle by aiming some shafts at the Progressive Conservative government.

The new administration, he said, has created uneasiness and uncertainty among Canadians by lack of clear and firm policies.

The Conservative party which ended his eight years as prime minister had in most fields nothing to substitute for Liberal policies. Only in the trade field had it tried to create the impression it was offering something new.

"No one can find out what is to be expected from the conferences, and rumors of still more conferences about trade," he said. "Meanwhile there is growing uneasiness in the country.

"There is growing uneasiness about defence, about trade, about investment, about unemployment, about the state of the national budget and the lack of clear and firm policies for the future."

The former prime minister was given four standing ovations.

The first came when he entered the coliseum behind three kilted pipers. The second occurred when Lionel Chevrier, MP for Montreal Laurier, quoted former trade minister C. D. Howe that Mr. St. Laurent "stands in the shade of no man, living or dead."

The third was two minutes of cheering and singing when Mr. St. Laurent rose to deliver his farewell speech as party chieftain. He stood alone on the rostrum, obviously moved, as the cheers beat down on him.

PERHAPS HIS LAST

The fourth ovation, perhaps the last of his political career, came at the end of his half-hour speech.

The speech of the 75-year-old Mr. St. Laurent—quiet, almost dispassionate—was in contrast to the ringing tributes he received from the convention which will choose his successor.

In speeches throughout the day praise was heaped on him. But perhaps his greatest accolade came from the convention floor.

A great demonstration broke out when the old leader rose to speak.

There was a roll of applause, punctuated by cheers. Mr. St. Laurent smiled at first, then his lips set more firmly as he appeared to be holding back his emotions while the cheers went on. The crowd sang For He's a Jolly Good Fellow and that song's French equivalent: Il a Gagne ses Epaulettes.

After two long minutes the demonstration subsided and Mr. St. Laurent moved into his speech.

As expected, he gave no indication of special approval to any of the leadership candidates. He said only that he gives up the leadership "with regret but without anxiety . . . for I am assured it will be in capable hands."

Nor did he say whether he will be a candidate in his Quebec East constituency at the next general election. He will reach his 76th birthday in a month.

He drew one lesson from the Liberal election defeat last June. He said he believes the people really had no fault to find with Liberal policies, though at some points the application of those policies had not been too well understood.

"That was a fault we should try to avoid in future."

He said many sincere Canadians were worried about the effect on the parliamentary system of having one party in office for so long—22 years. He added with a smile:

"That fear will not exist next time."

He said, firmly, that he has always believed in the judgment of the people.

"And I carry that belief to the point of believing that when we do not carry the judgment of the people, the fault is in ourselves and no in the people. When that happens it means we need to get closer to the people."

Liberals should "hold fast to the Liberal faith; to plan for a larger future, to promise only what we believe we can perform and benefit Canada by performing; to trust the people and to deserve their trust."

If this were done he had no doubt the party "will give even greater service to our beloved country in the future than it has in the past."

His speech, in both English and French, emphasized national unity which he said had been nurtured by the Liberals. He said one of his greatest satisfactions was that he had contributed to the growth of that unity.

He defined the Liberal ideal as:

Recognition of the equal rights of all Canadians; an ardent desire to ensure for all a fair share in development of natural resources; acceptance across the country of the consequences of the diversity of Canadian racial origins, cultures, languages and religions; and application of those principles in the field of social security and social well-being.

Mr. St. Laurent said national unity is more than the absence of friction between different races and religions.

"Liberal policies have created a positive unity based upon social security and social justice which have brought us closer to the ideal of equality of opportunity and have made Canadians realize more than ever before that it is good for us and our families that we are Canadians."

'Space Age Budget' Designed To Re-Establish U.S. Position

by GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President Eisenhower's so-called "space age budget," allocating just under $40,000,000,000 for military spending, is designed to re-establish the U.S. position of strength for the continuing diplomatic struggle between Washington and Moscow.

The $73,900,000,000 budget, biggest peacetime outlay in U.S. history, proposed increases of $1,118,000,000 in defence expenditures and $1,000,000,000 in foreign aid. Civilian programs were cut back slightly and tax rates left untouched.

The emphasis Eisenhower placed on modern arms was to counter dismay at the way the U.S. has lagged behind Russia. The president called for a $3,800,000,000 step - up in spending for missile and nuclear weapon research and production:

There will be criticism over the fact the president, in concentrating on rocketry, decided to cut back on conventional forces. The army, which has been whittled down to 15 divisions from 19 in the last two years, is to lose still another. The air force will lose 12 wings, including one in its Strategic Air Command. Six warships and one carrier air group will be placed in reserve.

Some military observers feel that since the missiles to be substituted for convention arms won't be ready for two years, these reductions may impair U.S. capacity to meet a limited war should one develop in the interim.

Eisenhower appears also to have scrimped on outer space projects. He asked for $340,000,000 for the newly established advanced research projects agency but half of the money will go into anti-missile projects, not strictly within the scope of outer space development.

At a time when the Soviet Union is wooing the uncommitted countries with offers of economic aid, the president may have underestimated the need for foreign assistance. His $3,940,000,000 foreign aid program includes only $2,275,000,000 for economic aid and this is almost certain to be the target of economy - minded congressmen. The remainder of the foreign aid bill goes for military expenditures.

Though his administration has talked of "sacrifices," Eisenhower didn't quite carry that thought through when it came to cutting domestic programs. His domestic budget of $27,593,000,000 represented a drop of only $319,000,000 from current spending. This may be accounted for by the fact Congress faces an election this fall and will be under fir from domestic pressure groups through much of its current session.

Panicky Gunman Surrenders to FBI at Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — A panicky gunman, hunted by nearly every policeman in the city for the slaying of an off-duty patrolman, surrendered to the FBI Monday night, saying he feared he "was going to be shot on sight."

George Starcevic, 23, his hair combed carefully into a ducktail, was turned over to Chicago police.

All day long the streets were alive with patrols searching for Starcevic, implicated by a companion in the fatal shooting of patrolman John Quirk, 23, early Monday.

Police said two men forced their way into Quirk's parked car. They forced the patrolman and his date, Caroline Smith, 18, to give up money and jewels.

They ordered Quirk to drive into an alley. Quirk rammed his car into a parked car, whipped out a pistol and started shooting. The gunmen returned fire and killed Quirk.

DESERONTO

Mayor McVicker, New Council Are Inducted

DESERONTO — The inaugural meeting of the 1958 Council was held at the town hall on Monday morning at 11.00 A.M. In his opening address Mayor McVicker advised council that they were there to represent the people and not to air some petty grievance of their own. He stressed the fact that they were to govern as a body for the welfare of the people and not as a one-man council. He referred to the unfortunate incident which occurred during last year, when a member was expelled from the council chamber and advised the new members that the expulsion was enforced because of the use of profanity in the council chamber and not as some people thought for spite. The mayor also referred to the welfare problem and asked the council to keep working for the erection of the causeway between Hastings and Prince Edward counties. He referred to the education of the younger citizens and asked if council could not assist in the establishment of scholarships to encourage education.

When the mayor asked the older members of the council to retire to strike the committees there was some slight objection from one of the new members, Councillor A. Marks, on the ground that others of the newly-elected had had some council experience. The mayor added Councillor Howard to the three already selected, Reeve Walker, and Councillor Knight and Councillor Neal.

The following were selected as chairmen of the committees. Fire and Police — P. Knight; Finance — Reeve Walker; Streets — H. Howard; Welfare — A. S. Stubbs, Property — J. Neal; By-laws and Printing — A. Marks; Industrial and Publicity — H. Sweetman.

Council then adjourned until Monday, January 20th at 7.00 P.M.

Member Wants Floor Price On Pulpwood

J. W. Baskin (PC — Renfrew South) argued it was when agricultural price supports legislation came up for discussion in Commons Tuesday night. And no one disputed him.

Mr. Baskin said he wanted to see consideration given in the legislation to farmers in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes who depend "on a reasonable sale price for their agricultural crop of pulpwood."

He asked that pulpwood be added to the list of commodities which would be covered by price supports.

Mr. Baskin said farmers have supplied from bush lots during the last year more than 2,000,000 cords of pulpwood "at ridiculously low prices to the pulp industry."

FLOOR PRICES

The bill proposes floor prices on a variety of agricultural products. Not included are grains produced by Prairie farmers.

L. H. Lewry (CCF — Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) described the bill, sponsored by Agricultural Minister Douglas Harkness, as the "Harkness howler." He said it should be known as "the bill most likely to move more farmers off the farm in the shortest time in Canadian history."

The legislation would put mandatory price floors under key farm products and give the government discretion to set levels of price guarantees on other products.

Oliver, Reaume Make Peace

OTTAWA (CP)—Ontario Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver and Arthur J. Reaume, Liberal legislature member for Essex North, have patched up differences that resulted in Mr. Reaume being barred from party caucus last fall.

The two shook hands Tuesday at the national Liberal convention and Mr Oliver said the misunderstanding is ended. Mr. Reaume will be readmitted to caucus.

Mr. Reaume and Albert Wren, legislature member for Kenora, were barred from caucus Oct. 17 on orders of Mr. Oliver who charged them with "disloyalty and insubordination."

He said the two members had called for his resignation, citing stories published in the Windsor Daily Star and Toronto Globe and Mail.

Mr. Wren, 40, who has represented Kenora riding since 1951, later denied he or Mr. Reaume were disloyal, insubordinate or had asked for Mr. Oliver's resignation.

Mr. Wren said: "Mr. Oliver is aware of the real issues which we sought to have discussed before a full caucus. He refused to grant that request." Mr. Reaume was not available for comment.

Can Wear Dress Only Once at Student Parties

OSHAWA (CP) — An Oshawa auto worker Tuesday night criticized dress and grooming rules he said are enforced at the Peterborough Teachers' College.

Robert Spencer told the Oshawa and District Labor Council that girls at the schools are told what hair-do they must wear and are expected to wear new dresses to all social functions.

"The same dress may not be worn on more than one occasion and this imposes a great expense on the students," Mr. Spencer said. He said one girl was admonished by school authorities because her complexion was pale.

"This added emotional stress results in many of the young students becoming discouraged and some are crying themselves to sleep."

The Oshawa council referred to the matter to the Peterborough District Labor Council for investigation.

Reuther Thinks Profit-Sharing Misunderstood

DETROIT (AP) — Walter P Reuther says spokesmen for the automobile industry's Big Three either don't understand his profit-sharing and customer-rebate proposals, or they tried wilfully to distort them.

The United Auto Workers chief referred to his union's 1958 contract demands, which were made public Monday and promptly criticized sharply in statements from General Motors, Ford and Chrysler Corp.

In a letter Tuesday to GM President Harlow H. Curtice, with leaders of the other two companies marked in for copies, Reuther said his plan was "based upon the right of workers and consumers to share in the fruits of advanced technology."

The letter was made public by Reuther's office several hours after another auto executive, George Romney, president of American Motors, joined the verbal attack. Romney called Reuther's proposal a "subterfuge."

COPIES TO OTHERS

Reuther said copies of his letter to Curtice were sent to L. L. Colbert, Chrysler president, and Ernest R. Breech, Ford board chairman, both of whom previously had, in effect, rejected the UAW proposal.

The UAW president accused General Motors of opposing profit sharing for hourly-rated workers while maintaining a bonus plan based on dividing excess profits for top executives.

Reuther estimated that Curtice and other executives received a total of $635,000,000 in the 10 years between 1947 ant 1956 under that plan.

He questioned whether public confidence can best be built by a small group of General Motors executives sharing in the excess profits of the corporation while denying workers and consumers their rightful share."

SAVES CHIHUAHUA

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Fireman Ed Williams saved the life of a tiny Chihuahua dog by using one finger to apply artificial respiration after it was found unconscious from smoke poisoning. "I held him in the palm of one hand," Williams said, "and kept pressing on his chest with a finger and then releasing the pressure."

Gardiner Favors All Indians Having Votes

OTTAWA (CP)—Veteran parliamentarian James Gardiner says he favors all Indians having the right to vote.

The former Liberal agriculture minister said Tuesday in the Commons some people feel the Indians are not ready for the franchise. He added, however, that he had met many people who were not Indians and wondered why they were entitled to vote.

The principle of a measure, introduced by Frank Howard (CCF Skeena), won support from several members, including government supporters. But it was debated to the end of the hour devoted to private members' bills and therefore no vote could be taken on its second-reading stage.

"I don't understand why we can't find a way to give them all the vote," said Mr. Gardiner. "They can no longer be considered any different from the rest of us."

John Charlton (PC — Brant-Haldimand) said that if the Indians could be assured they would lose none of their rights, they would probably show more interest in the franchise.

Many Indians felt they were not part of the Canadian people but a separate colony subject only to the Crown. There are Indians who would be suspicious of the white man's motives in granting this voting right, he added.

Will Support Minor Leagues In TV Squabble

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two members of Congress say they will do all they can within the U.S. anti-monopoly laws to prevent major league television leagues.

But the two, Representative Emanuel Celler (Dem. N.Y.) and Kenneth Keating (Rep. N.Y.), made clear they would prefer that major league clubs act independently to protect the minors.

Celler, chairman of the House of Representatives anti-trust subcommittee, and Keating conferred Tuesday on baseball's TV dilemma with commissioner Ford Frick and a trio of major league officials.

Baseball leaders requested the meeting when the minors declared a TV network's plan to beam a major league "game of the week" every Sunday threatened them with destruction.

ISSUE STATEMENT

After the closed meeting Celler and Keating issued a statement saying they were "deeply sympathetic" and would be "as helpful as possible within the law."

After talking with Frick for an hour, Celler and Keating heard the minors' case from George Trautman, president of the minors; Frank Shaughnessy, head of the International League, and Frank J. Horton, president of Rochester Red Wings of the International.

Frick has supported the minors in their complaint against the Columbia Broadcasting System's plan to televise Sunday games next season. Both CBS and NBC televised separate Saturday games last year and intend to continue those programs in 1958.

Eastern Senior 'A' Division Standings, Scoring

Bobby Attersley of the Whitby Dunlops, working to build a comfortable cushion before he leaves for Europe on January 29th, leads the OHA Eastern Senior "A" scoring race by eight points. And he has three more games to play in which to add to that total. Attersley has 59 points on 26 goals and 33 assists, while Linemate Bus Gagnon is second with 26 goals and 25 assists for 51 points. Charlie Burns, also of Whitby is third with 48. Billy Colvin of Kingston, is fourth with 41 points, while Bob Boucher of Ottawa-Hull is but one point back in fifth place. Sid Smith, Whitby playing coach, and Don Bellringer of Kingston, follow with 38 points; Ted Toppazzini, Kingston, has 37, while Dunlops' George Samolenko and Tom O'Connor complete the top ten with 36 points. Gagnon and Attersley share the goal lead with 26 each and Attersley's 33 assists gives him the top spot in that department.

Russ Kowalchuk, of Belleville, is the leading penalty man with 134 minutes served.

Long John Henderson, Whitby, saw 12 pucks go by him in two weekend games, including six while playing against his mates for the Ottawa-Hull baby Habs. His 3.18 average, however, is still tops. Roy Edwards, also of the Dunnies, has a 3.20 mark but has played only five games while Gordie Bell of Belleville, has a 3.66 mark in 30 contests. Lynn Davis of Kingston, leads in shutouts with two.

Basilio Wants Another Crack At Robinson

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK (AP) — After a night of being feted as the 1957 "fighter of the year," middleweight champion Carmen Basilio turned to serious business today.

The 30-year-old former marine and his co-managers, Johnny DeJohn and Joe Netro, will confer with Jim Norris, head of the International Boxing Club, regarding terms for a return title bout with Sugar Ray Robinson. He dethroned Robinson with a split 15-round decision in their torrid scrap last September.

Although Robinson currently is involved in legal troubles, the return bout is regarded as virtually set for Chicago sometime in March. The dates of March 18 and March 25 have been mentioned.

"I want this fight more than anything," declared the craggy-faced former onion farmer from Chittenango, N.Y., after he had received the Edward J. Neil Memorial Plaque as "fighter of the year" at the Boxing Writers Assn. dinner Tuesday night.

"I want to beat Robinson more than any fighter I ever met," Basilio continued. "I want to win decisively so that there will be no question about it."

Basilio received the Neil award named in memory of the Associated Press boxing writer killed in the Spanish Civil War 20 years ago, before a marine color guard.

He bowed his head modestly as Maj.-Gen. James P. Riseley, director of marine personnel, former heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey and other celebrities praised him. It was the second time Basilio has received the Neil award. He won it previously in 1955 when he was welterweight champion.

Dempsey, voted the No. 1 fighter in the 1950 Associated Press mid-century poll, received the James J. Walker Award for "long and meritorious service" to boxing. The former Manassa Mauler, who received the first Neil award in 1938, called for a plan that would bring back the small clubs in boxing.

Kingston Nearly Grabbed Win Whitby Got It in Overtime

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Playing coach Sid Smith of Whitby Dunlops Tuesday night foiled a bid by Kingston CKLCs to succeed Pembroke Lumber Kings as victors over the high-flying Allan Cup champions.

Kingston, leading 4-2 at the end of the second period of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A eastern division game, were ahead 6-5 with three minutes remaining. Then Smith took over.

At 17:33 he laid down a pass to Sandy Air who levelled the score. And at 2:53 of overtime he notched the winning goal.

Dunlops, who lost 6-4 to Pembroke during the weekend after winning 11 games in a row, lead the league by 18 points.

Other action in the series saw Belleville McFarlands defeat Pembroke 5-2, while in the OHA-NOHA Senior A series Windsor Bulldogs edged Chatham Maroons 3-2.

Charlie Burns paced Dunlops scoring twice as his team fired 45 shots at Kingston goaltender Lynn Davis. CKLCs managed 37 at Long John Henderson in the Whitby goal.

Dunlop's other goals were scored by Bobby Attersley, Eddy Redmond and George Samolenko. Kingston marksmen were John Gauthier, with two, Roy Partridge, Gerry Moore, Andy Anderson and Billy Colvin.

Belleville built up a 4-0 lead by the end of the second period against Pembroke. Then Lumber Kings burst into life, scoring two goals in 59 seconds.

The McFarlands' sharpshooters were Barton Bradley, Floyd Crawford, Eddie Marineau, Minnie Menard and Weiner Brown. Bert Giesebrecht and Jimmy Maxwell scored for Pembroke.

Windsor came from behind a 2-0 deficit against Chatham to score three unanswered goals in the last 15 minutes.

After scoreless first and second periods, Chatham went ahead with two goals by Jim Connelly. Defenceman Lionel Henrich and Frank Bathgate levelled the scores, then Windsor captain Lou Bendo banged in a sizzling 30-foot drive to clinch the game.

Lopes Verdicts Jimmy Carter

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Joey Lopes, a Sacramento lightweight, unanimously outpointed ex-champion Jimmy Carter Tuesday night in a 10-round bout.

Lopes, making his first appearance since his Dec. 4 knockout at the fists of champion Joe Brown of Chicago, stayed on top of Carter nearly all the way in the rough match.

Carter, weighing 138 against 137 for Lopes, had Lopes in trouble in the fourth round and at the close of the fifth. No knockdown was scored.

Tom Tibbs Wins Over Willie Pep

BOSTON (AP)—While Tommy Tibbs savors his victory over Willie Pep the former featherweight champion proclaims he is not going to retire.

Tibbs, the 23-year-old newsboy from Boston, won a close split 10-round decision over Pep Tuesday night at Mechanics Building.

"I thought I won by a bigger margin," Tibbs said after the bout in which he was adjudged winner by 98-97 and 97-96 ballots on the cards of judge Joe Heirty and referee Eddie Curley, respectively.

Judge Joe Santarpio voted for Pep, 96-95.

"I'm not thinking about retiring," Pep said in his dressing room. "If Tibbs had beaten me solidly, I might have given retirement more thought—but I'm not going to retire. I thought I won the fight by a slight margin."

Tibbs weighed 131 and Pep, listed at 135, weighed 129¾. The bout snapped Willie's unbeaten string at 21. Pep's overall record is 214-8-1 compared to Tibbs' 46-42-2.

Quebec Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals took over disputed possession of fourth-place in the Quebec Hockey League Tuesday night by edging the lofty Chicoutimi Sagueneens 5-4 on a goal by defenceman Jack Bownass with 62 seconds left in the game.

Ken Mosdell, Gene Achtymichuk, Kelly Burnett and Lulu Denis shared in the Montreal scoring before a hometown crowd as Royals moved two points ahead of Trois-Rivieres Lions, who were idle.

At Shawinigan Falls, Cataracts cut Chicoutimi's first-place bulge to eight points by blanking third-place Quebec Aces 8-0, with goalie Eddie Johnston gaining his fifth shutout of the season, a league high.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Don't look now—but Long John Henderson may be playing second fiddle in the Whitby Dunlops' goal section come playtime at Oslo, Norway, in February.

JOHN HENDERSON

Strengthening of the Dunnies on both sides of the blueline which has been the concern of not only the management but the critics as well, seems to be of secondary nature at the moment. Wren Blair's immediate worry is his between-the-pipes representative.

This came to light during the Dunlops' visit to Hull last Sunday, where the Dunnies were held to a 6-6 tie by the ambitious young Ottawa Canadiens who had Long John in the nets when sickness overtook their only available goalie, Eric Reid.

Blair made no bones about his concern. "We may as well face it," he told newspapermen. "We're not satisfied with Long John's work in the nets lately. And so far as I am concerned right now, Roy Edwards has the job for the overseas trip. I don't say that Henderson couldn't take it back. That is up to him. We aren't just satisfied with his attitude, and this is entirely too big a task ahead in the world tournament to permit anything to interfere. We used Henderson in Pembroke on Saturday night, and he wasn't good."

Later during the game with Ottawa, Blair remarked: "Long John is out there putting on a real display against us for Canadiens. But that is because he's mad at us and he knows some of our players are annoyed at him, too."

Perhaps the Voice of the Dunlops was passing off the 6-4 defeat handed the Dunlops Saturday night by Pembroke, with his references to Henderson, and there is the possibility that disciplinary action against the goalie is being exercised merely to sharpen him for the big things ahead. It is only recently that Long John was benched in favor of Edwards, but the former Boston Beanpole roared back into action with his usual outstanding performance.

He hinted, too, that the Dunnies could be playing a little possum inasmuch as they do not want to incur serious injury at this important stage of the game. The memory of Freddie Etcher is still sharp in their minds.

"Frankly," said Blair, "and it is understandable, the players now seem to be concentrating on not getting hurt. It is definitely on their minds not to go out there and pick up a serious injury. Each has his heart set on this trip to Europe and the job it involves. Naturally they do not want to get an injury that would make them miss it."

Both Henderson and Edwards will make the trip to Europe, says Blair. Both have good records thus far in the Eastern Senior "A" League. Long John leads the loop goalies with a goals against average of 3.18 for 22 games, with 70 goals scored on him. He has recorded one shutout. Edwards has played five games and has let 16 goals slip by him for an average of 3.20. Henderson's record includes the six goals scored against him in the Dunlops-Ottawa game.

The Dunlops make their final appearance here on Friday night before proceeding overseas. But as far as the Macs are concerned they are just another hockey club good for two points if beaten. And that's just what the McFarlands intend doing, if it is within the realm of possibility.

However for a few brief moments' ice rivalry will give way to national pride. The McFarlands' Booster Club, and the Macs, we understand, are making special arrangements for a "Best-of-Luck" sendoff for the Dunnies, and it is hoped Memorial Arena will be packed to the rafters for the occasion.

Special "good luck" ceremonies will take place on the ice and afterwards a large number of the Whitby Boosters Club, and, if possible, some of the Dunlops' team, although that is doubtful, since they are in rigorous training, will be the guests of the McFarlands Booster Club at a social get-together. This will be for Booster Club members (adults) only, who must show their membership card at the door.

Patrick Figured Goalie OK But Box-Office Voice Strong; "Baby Face" Plays Thursday

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Harry Lumley, 31-year-old journeyman netminder, adds a fourth National Hockey League team to his skein of experience Thursday night.

Lumley, a round-faced 200-pound native of Owen Sound, who has done time with Detroit Red Wings, Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs, will step into goal for Boston Bruins when they face New York Rangers in Boston Gardens.

It's a tough spot for anyone, and particularly tough for a goaltender who preferred to stay in the American Hockey League last season rather than return to the NHL for a few games with Chicago because he liked the relaxed AHL atmosphere.

For Lumley is replacing Al Millar, himself a substitute for regular Don Simmons, and Lynn Patrick, Bruins' general manager, admits Millar was sacrificed on the altar of fan-pressure.

SLIP BADLY

Bruins have slipped badly since Millar took over for the injured Simmons New Year's Day and the crowds have laid most of the blame at Millar's skates, though Patrick says the forwards are at fault.

"Personally, I think Millar is a good goalkeeper," Patrick said Tuesday. "He showed a lot of promise, but somehow the fans got down on him and that can hurt you in this town.

"It wouldn't make any difference in Montreal or Toronto, but in Boston if we didn't have a new goaltender for Thursday's game it would cost us, in gate receipts, from $7,000 to $10,000 for one game. And if we didn't make the playoffs it could cost us $100,000."

BOUGHT HIM OUTRIGHT

Lumley was called up from Springfield Indians of the AHL, a Boston farm club, where he has been on loan from Buffalo Bisons, a Chicago farm team.

Bruins were forced to buy him outright from Chicago before calling him up and Patrick said "I'm ashamed of the price. But what could we do?"

Lumley could not hold a regular job with Buffalo this season but Patrick points out that "he has proven major league ability."

He has, 12 seasons of it. Six with Detroit, beginning in the 1944-45 season, then two with Chicago, then four with Toronto.

It was with Leafs he had his best years. During the 1953-54 season he won the Vezina Trophy for the lowest goals-against average and was named to the first all-star team. He repeated the latter honor the next season, his second-last in the NHL, and still holds the season record for shutouts—13 the year he won the Vezina.

He will be Boston's fifth goaltender since the beginning of the 1956-57 season. Terry Sawchuk opened that season, was replaced by Norm Defelice, who gave way to Don Simmons, who was followed by Millar.

Boston is tied with Toronto for fourth place and the Leafs will be up against it to improve Thursday as they meet the powerful Canadiens in Montreal. Detroit, who have climbed to second-place, are host to last-place Chicago.

International Rules Suit Western Fans

By RICHARD ANCO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CALGARY (CP)—Western Canada hockey fans took a look at Internatinal Hockey rules in action Tuesday night and the general feeling was decidedly favorable.

The biggest weekday crowd this season turned out to see Southern Alberta's Big Six Intermediate Hockey League initiate regulations of the International Ice Hockey Federation in a twin bill. The seven-team league is the first in Canada to adopt IIHF rules.

A wide majority of fans, players, coaches and executives agreed the stricter rules provided a faster wide-open game, better stick-handling, sharper passing patterns and cleaner play.

WILL CONTINUE USE

The Big Six decided to adopt International hockey rules as an experiment following the reaction of eastern fans who saw the Moscow Selects play Canadian teams under such regulations. The league will continue with them for the remainder of the season and will revert to Canadian Amateur Hockey Association regulations for the playoffs.

Nearly 1,500 fans were at the Stampede Corral to see Calgary Beavers 6-4 in the first game of the experiment while Calgary Adderson Hustlers whipped Okotoks Oilers 7-3 in the second. The largest weekday crowd previously was 850.

STUCK TO HOCKEY

Aubrey Winter, referee in the opening game, said he found the game cleaner, freer and faster. Players stuck to playing hockey instead of bruising each other, they didn't freeze the puck against the boards and because of the "no icing the puck" rule had to use more stick-handling and passing. Only two boarding infractions were called.

Less enthusiasm came from Al Rollins, former National Hockey League netminder now with Calgary Stampeders of the professional Western Hockey League, and Gus Kyle, Stampeder coach. They felt some of the color and thrills were taken from the game.

Generally, the fans liked the new rules. One said that after a few more games, to get players familiar to the change, the higher standard of stick-handling and accurate passing attacks would be "much more crowd-pleasing than the old style."

MEET IN HAVANA

NEW YORK (AP)—Lightweight champion Joe Brown of New Orleans will meet Orlando Echevarria, Cuba's 135-pound champ, in Havana Feb. 26, the International Boxing Club announced Tuesday. The non-title 10-rounder will be the first boxing match ever televised in the United States from a foreign country.

McFarlands Extend Third-Place Margin With 5-2 Win Over Pembroke

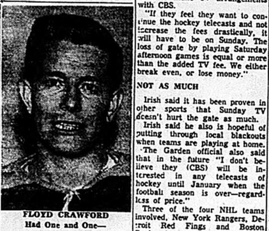
Score Four in Two Periods Before Kings Hit in Third; Power Plays Good for Three

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The vaunted third-period power of the Pembroke Lumber Kings, except for a two-goal flash, failed to materialize here last night and the northerners went down to a decisive 5-2 defeat at the hands of the McFarlands.

The Hildebranders clicking in all departments rammed home two goals in the first period, two more in the second, and scored a single in the third after the Kings showed a temporary flash of power with two markers in 59 seconds.

The victory stretched the Macs' third-position margin over the Kings to three points. However the northerners meet Kingston and Cornwall during the week while the Belleville club entertains Whitby on Friday night.



FLOYD CRAWFORD
Had One and One—

The game, while a hard-checking affair at times, was productive of ten penalties with the teams splitting the take. Both were handed a misconduct sentence. Three of the Kings' bobbles proved costly for the Macs scored goals on each occasion with their power-plays clicking neatly.

The McFarlands came up with another fine two-way performance. Their defensive work was [illegible] outstanding, holding off the driving Kings on the five occasions they were a man short through penalties.

The winners' goals were divided five ways with Bradley, Menard, Marineau and Crawford getting a goal and assist each and Weiner Brown getting a goal. Payette, MacDonald, Goyer and Benoit each drew assists. Maxwell and O'Connor scored for the Kings with Bert Giesebrecht, Chiarelli and Limoges drawing helpers.

Despite the fact they were assessed the only three penalties of the period, the Macs had an 11-3 shooting edge on the Kings in the opening frame.

Gordie Bell was playing with strapped back and Bep Guidolin was absent through illness.

Weiner Brown scored the first goal of the game on a passing play with Bart Bradley and Eddie Marineau. "Weiner" took the pass, raced in, deked Plumner Craig neatly and poked the puck in the net.

Joe Lepine was heaved at 11.14 but the Kings couldn't penetrate the Macs' defence.

At 14.16 Floyd Crawford crossed over to left wing and blasted a waist-high shot at Craig. The puck struck Bart Bradley and ricocheted high into a top corner of the net to put the Macs two up.

Goyer got hoisted for interference but again the defence held. Botley was chased 33 seconds before the period end.

BART BRADLEY
Five Points In Two—

Penalties paved the way for the two McFarland goals in the second period with both being scored when the Kings were a man shy.

Joe Lepine got the gate early in the period, being tabbed with a misconduct for shooting the puck rink-length after a whistle.

Crawford followed with no damage done then Douglas was nailed with a minor and misconduct. The Macs threw on the power and a minute later Crawford blasted the puck past Craig with Menard and Payette assisting.

The Kings missed an open net on two occasions but Bell was tossing everything else aside. Farelli was chased with 16 seconds to go and on the first play of the Macs power attack, Eddie Marineau blasted a slapshot from the point past Craig to put the Macs four goals up. MacDonald and Goyer were given assists on the play.

The Kings started the third period with their customary last-heat drive and at 4.11 O'Connor broke their scoring egg when his shot ricochetted off Bert Giesebrecht to spoil Gordie Bell's bid for his second shutout. Fifty-nine seconds later Maxwell broke away from a McFarland ganging attack, raced into the clear and beat Bell from close in.

Sparked by their success the Kings applied heavy pressure and gave Bell and his defence some anxious moments. Then Fildes took the sting out of their offensive by getting chased and the Macs unleashed their power drive. A minute later Minnie Menard scored the final goal of the game climaxing a neat inside-the-blueline passing play with Moe Benoit.

The Kings battled hard in an effort to whittle the margin down, outshooting the Macs 10-6 on the period play. Maxwell went in alone on Bell and his drive blasted off a goal post. The Macs' defence tightened and they protected their lead until the final siren shrilled.

The line-up: Pembroke — Goal, Craig; defence, Fildes, O'Connor, Douglas, Limoges, Plamondon; forwards, Buchanan, Menard, Bert Giesebrecht, Bruce Giesebrecht, Maxwell, Farelli, Chicarelli, Clark, and Campbell.

Belleville — Goal, Bell; defence, Benoit, Crawford, Lepine, Botley; forwards, Marineau, Brown, Hildebrand, Payette, Menard, Goyer, Bradley, Murctich, MacDonald.

Referee—Stan Bosier, Toronto.

Linesmen — V. Goyer, D. Hurst, Belleville.

Wants Hockey Telecast Moved To Sunday

NEW YORK (AP)—Ned Irish, vice - president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, says the National Hockey League has conferred with the Columbia Broadcasting System regarding the possible shift of televised games from Saturday to Sunday afternoons next season.

Live TV is hurting the gate, Irish said Tuesday.

"We don't draw half the money on Saturday we could on Sunday," added Irish who, with Gen. John Reed Kilpatrick, Garden president, is authorized by the NHL to make TV arrangements with CBS.

"If they feel they want to continue the hockey telecasts and not increase the fees drastically, it will have to be on Sunday. The loss of gate by playing Saturday afternoon games is equal or more than the added TV fee. We either break even, or lose money."

NOT AS MUCH

Irish said it has been proven in other sports that Sunday TV doesn't hurt the gate as much.

Irish said he also is hopeful of putting through local blackouts when teams are playing at home.

The Garden official also said that in the future "I don't believe they (CBS) will be interested in any telecasts of hockey until January when the football season is over—regardless of price."

Three of the four NHL teams involved, New York Rangers, Detroit Red Fings and Boston Bruins have gone on record with CBS that they don't want to continue the TV program on the present basis.

Chicago Black Hawks did not express an opinion. The two Canadian teams, Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs, are not involved. They have their own TV setup.

New Quinte Curling Club Opens for Play Next Week; Famous Curler to Come Here

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

If present plans materialize, the Quinte Curling Club's new $70,000 building will open for play on Sunday or Monday, President Bill Gault said today.

The handsome structure located just west of the grandstand in the Fair Grounds, is humming with activity as workmen and artisans rush the work necessary for play, to completion.

Joe Roberts, veteran ice-maker with twelve years experience with the Oshawa Curling Club, is in charge of creating the first sheet of ice on the four - rink surface.

Yesterday electricians were installing the last of the five strips of lights which run lengthwise, and cast shadowless light on the playing surface.

Brine was in the process of making. Workmen were levelling sand on the five miles of pipe preparatory to the first flooding.

The four large plate glass windows which panel the partition between the upstairs lounge and the rink proper have been installed. The duck-walk encompassing the rink has been completed.

The new club is a diamond-in-the-rough as far as overall completion is concerned, but as President Gault pointed out, "we have time to complete the finer details. Right now we want to get play started. A lot of the boys are getting itchy curling hands."

Mr. Roberts took time out from his ice - making supervision to agree with the president and an enthusiastic executive that the city's new curling club will be one of the finest of its kind in Eastern Ontario.

ANTICIPATE VISIT

Members of the club are looking forward to the visit of Garnet Campbell, member of the famous Avonlea, Saskatchewan rink of brothers, rated tops in the nations curling circles. They have won many bonspiels and championships including the national MacDonald Brier Trophy.

Sponsored by the Labatt Breweries, Mr. Campbell is touring the country, giving theoretical and practical instruction to curling clubs. He will be in Belleville for a three-day visit from February 3rd to 5th.

The official opening of the club will take place around the middle of February. Besides the opening ceremonies, two days of club play will mark the event.

Rinks representing twenty-four clubs of Ontario will be invited to take part. It is expected play will begin on a Friday evening, with winners declared the next day. Handsome prizes will be awarded.

The club at present has a membership of 200, but with the opening of the new building, and as play gets under way, this number is expected to increase. Officials are confident some 300 will be enrolled before the grass shows on the Fair Grounds infield.

PREDICTS FINE SEASON

Games chairman J. E. McArthur predicts a fine inaugural season for the club. "In the present membership of 200 curlers" he said, "we have 36 experienced skips that I know of. I expect there are more I do not know of, and that will give us a good start."

He expects some forty rinks will take part in opening play next Sunday or Monday.

Plans for the seasonal future, he said, call for a club championship series. This should take some seven weeks to run off.

"Invitations for club play will be sent to the Kingston and Trenton Curling Clubs," he said. "These clubs were very kind to us while we were 'orphans' so to speak, and we want to show our appreciation."

Various nights will be set aside for club play with special dates arranged for mixed curling.

If curling appeals to the younger population of the city, there is a strong possibility the club will adopt measures to promote a minor division, perhaps within the next couple of years.

New Mile Mark Ignored by Athletic Brass

LONDON (AP) — The fastest mile ever run in the world, the 3:57.2 performance by Derek Ibbotson of England, got the cold shoulder in a listing of 33 track and field world records ratified Tuesday night.

The International Amateur Athletic Federation announced acceptance of 14 world marks set by Americans and of seven by Russians.

Ibbotson's remarkable time, turned in against world class opposition in a London meet last summer, was not mentioned. Neither were several other record-breaking feats which have been questioned for one reason or another.

Ibbotson struck official snags after he admitted publicly over television that another British runner paced him over the first half-mile. This is frowned on by international athletic officials—one of whom said that Ibbotson's claim now will come before the IAAF rules and records committee in August.

FIRST CHINESE WOMAN

Americans won acceptance for six individual and eight relay records. China's Cheng Feng-Jung became the first Chinese woman ever to hold a world record with a high jump of 5 feet, 9½ inches.

Olympic decathlon champion Milt Campbell has his 13.4 time for 120-yard hurdles last May ratified. Bob Gutowski got into the listings with his pole vault of 15 feet, 8¼ inches.

Other individual American marks ratified were 9.3 seconds for 100 yards by Texas sprinter Bobby Morrow; Tom Courtney's 1:46.8 for 880 yards; and times of 22.2 seconds for 200 meters and 220-yards hurdles by Ancel Robinson of Fresno State College last June. In three cases the IAAF accepted relay marks which later were bettered by other U.S. teams.

Martinez Is 6-5 Favorite To Win Over Turner Tonight

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Depending upon where you live, tonight's bout between Philadelphia's Gil Turner and Vince Martinez of Paterson, N.J., is or isn't a fight to earn a shot at the welterweight championship of the world.

If you live where the jurisdiction of the World Boxing Championship Committee is accepted as law, you'll merely be watching a televised 12-round bout which is one of a series of eliminations to determine a title-holder.

In Massachusetts the bout is listed as just another fight of top welterweights.

NBA ELIMINATION

In states where boxing is under the banner of the National Boxing Association, the fight will be the semifinal elimination in the 147-pound title series. The winner has been ordered by the NBA to fight Isaac Logart for the title vacated by Carmen Basilio after he won the middleweight crown from Sugar Ray Robinson.

The confused state of welterweight affairs was brought about this way:

The NBA says it will recognize the winner of a Turner, Martinez, Logart, Gaspar Ortega elimination series as champion. Logart beat Ortega and thus already hs fought his way into the final.

The world committee, headed by Julius Helfand, New York State Athletic Commission chairman, says nothing doing. They will recognize the winner of a Martinez, Turner, Logart, Ortega, George Barnes, Virgil Akins elimination series as a champion.

NOT HAVING EITHER

Massachusetts isn't having either the NBA or the world committee eliminations. They already have a welterweight champion of their own. He's Akins, who defeated Tony DeMarco in Boston for the New England version of the title. Just to prove it means what it says, Massachusetts seceded from the NBA when the latter refused to go along with Akins.

The NBA is going with its four title nominees because Turner defeated Akins last summer and Barnes has refused to leave his native Australia to compete in an elimination bout. The NBA group, however, has served notice that the winner of its series must fight Akins in his first defence of the crown.

Martinez, clever boxer-puncher who has won 58 fights and lost only five, is the favorite at about 7 to 5. Turner has won 55, lost 15 and drawn once.

Peg Fans Fete Billy Mosienko

WINNIPEG (CP)—It was Billy Mosienko Night here Tuesday night and the season's largest crowd of 8,991 turned out to honor him.

Although Warriors lost the scheduled Western Hockey League game 5-2 to Saskatoon-St. Paul Regals, everything else was to the fans liking.

Mosienko, veteran captain of Warriors, slammed in both Winnipeg goals and got thousands of dollars in gifts, including a car and a pair of gold-plated skates.

Both goals scored by the ex-National Hockey League great came as a result of his heady playing. He intercepted a Regals' clearing pass to race in unmolested for the first goal and he flipped in a loose puck from outside the crease for the second.

The 36-year-old veteran who scored 268 goals in his 14 NHL seasons proved he has lost little of his magic as he netted his 22nd and 23rd goals this season.

ROTE WINS AWARD

NEW YORK (CP) — Quarterback Tobin Rote of Detroit Lions Tuesday was named winner of the December award in the S. Rae Hickok pro athlete of the year poll. Rote filled in for injured Bobby Layne and paced Lions tq the National Football League championship.

Dream of 9 Years Realized When Prince Edward County Opens Community Centre

County today joins the ranks of Ontario communities which can boast of a modern arena with artificial ice. Prince Edward Centre, as it is officially called, was opened this afternoon when several thousand school children took part in brief opening ceremonies and were the first to enjoy use of the ice surface. The day was fittingly dedicated to the younger generation since they have been among the greatest booster and fund raisers. Later there will be an official opening as a number of features planned are yet to be completed.

Given the honor of cutting the ribbon to signify the opening of the recreation centre was Peter McLean, president of Picton Public school council. He was flanked by representatives of the rural areas and the Army camp.

Phil Dodds, chairman of the campaign committee, which raised the funds to purchase and install the ice plant, presided. He stated that this day was the culmination of nine years of planning. First, the County Fair was enlarged to become rated as Class 'B' and this made government grants available for erection of a building suitable for an arena. This was erected and paid for by the County agricultural Society with the aid of a few donations. The public itself was asked only to make the ice plant possible since there are no grants available for this. They have contributed $40,000 and the Centre will start debt-free.

The Centre is one on which no actual price can be set. Every bit of material used after the exterior of the building was erected, was given at cost by local dealers. Labor worth thousands of dollars was donated. An example of the fine co-operation received in making a dream come true occurred last week when ten trucks and 130 men gave their services to haul crushed ice 12 miles from Lake Ontario shores and spread in over the ice pipes. This meant a saving of more than a thousand dollars.

Actual value of the Centre is about $150,000, and a noteworthy fact is that no appeal of any kind was made to municipal councils for support.

The Centre is owned by the Agricultural Society which has agreed to turn it over to a Centre Commission for operation as an arena during the fall and winter months. This commission is representative of various groups. Present members, to be added to, are Mike Finnegan, chairman; E. W. Henderson and Phil Dodds, Agricultural Society; Arthur Hamblin, treasurer and Kinsmen Club representative; Sam Gentile, secretary; Chris Lockyer, Kiwanis Club; Barry Anderson, Rotary Club; Mrs. Douglas Porter, Business and Professional Women; Councillor Randolph Clapp, town.

The Centre is 240 feet by 100 feet with ice surface of 80-180. There is seating for 1200. The upstairs hall at the front is 63 by 38 feet and has windows overlooking the ice surface. It is a popular meeting place and crowded each Saturday night for dances.

Beneath the hall at the front are two entrances and lobby; the heating plant in the centre. Wash rooms and dressing rooms are on both sides. The engine room with ice plant installed by Creamery Package, of the brine system, is at the north end.

Seats are painted red and blue and altogether the interior presents a most attractive appearance.

Plans are now being made to install a concrete floor in the main area so that it may be used for other sports in the summer months.

The Centre here is the only one in the district built under the auspices of an agricultural society and therefore entitled to seventy-five percent of building costs covering everything except that which relates to hockey, so that much credit for the Centre being available today goes to Prince Edward Agricultural Society and its hard-working directors who have labored several years to make this Centre possible.

That the centre, designed for use by the whole of Prince Edward, will be a popular place is revealed in the requests received for its use. The Commission is sponsoring an Intermediate OHA team. Eight teams have entered a county league. Picton army camp will use it three afternoons a week and also sponsor children's leagues. Service clubs and others are sponsoring hockey leagues for all ages.

Curling enthusiasts are planning to use the Centre until they take over another building near by. This was erected by the Agricultural Society this year as a cattle barn and planned as a curling rink. The same artificial ice plant will serve both buildings.

Faced with tremendous expenditures for new schools and other needed services, the erection of the Centre has been delayed but today it is open for use by the public and stands as evidence of what planning and co-operation can accomplish.

PEARSON

"When they come back to where they (the Conservatives) belong they will be a better Opposition . . . not just carping critics and tormentors of the government. Canada will be better for having a better government and better opposition."

SOME OF THE SIGNS

These were some of the signs that Mr. Pearson, 1957 Nobel Peace Prize winner, was taking a long lead over Mr. Martin, former health minister:

1. In addition to Mr. Mackay, J. W. Pickersgill, former immigration minister and reputed strong man in the Liberal party, came out publicly for Mr. Pearson.

2. Reports circulated that the Quebec delegation, with about one-quarter of the convention's voting strength, was giving heavy backing to Mr. Pearson.

3. It was reliably reported that at least 140 of the 155-member Toronto area delegation will vote for Mr Pearson. This delegation represents one-twelfth of the convention's voting strength.

4. A survey indicated that most former Liberal cabinet ministers, with the exception of veteran James G. Gardiner, endorse Mr. Pearson.

ISSUES STATEMENT

Mr. Martin's committee took cognizance of these straws in the wind. It issued a statement Tuesday night saying that if the Liberal party brass is opposed to Mr. Martin's bid for leadership, then it is time the party changed the brass.

Jim Brown of Brantford, Martin committee chief and former Commons member, said:

"I know and so does every delegate that it is time the people and not the brass is heard if the Liberal party is to come back to power."

The statement was issued with approval of the 54-year-old Mr. Martin. It added:

"If the brass in the Liberal party feel that the party can survive only through their dictates as a closed corporation by telling delegates how they should think, then the time has come for a new leadership with an ear to the ground and especially to the future."

CANDIDATE UNDISMAYED

Mr. Henderson, meanwhile, appeared undismayed.

"The tortoise is moving up," he said laconically. "The victory in the race is not always to the swift and the strong."

Mr. Henderson, however, appeared to have about as much chance as Prime Minister Diefenbaker of winning the leadership.

However, he is seeking to overcome the first hurdle—getting 10 signatures on his nomination paper.

When the leadership convention adjourned for supper, he had only one name.

Later he signed up a second. The two names were those of Edward J. Schmalz of Kitchener, and Stuart Smith of Montreal, who will move and second his nomination.

Later, movers of resolutions were paid scant attention on the convention floor.

In the late afternoon, and again in the evening, the chairman had to appeal for quiet so the speakers at microphones on the floor, might be heard. But the chairman was ignored. In the late afternoon, delegates left in droves while resolutions were being discussed.

Premier Douglas Campbell of Manitoba, moving a resolution calling for federal equalization payments to less wealthy provinces, said apparently only Manitoba delegates were listening to him and that, consequently, he would be "mercifully brief."

The afternoon discussion on resolutions was adjourned seven minutes early, the evening debate 13 minutes early. The resolutions were aimed mainly at a reappraisal of party policies and there was no absence of self-criticism.

Resolutions from the floor proposed special federal development programs, increased tax sharing benefits for so-called have-not provinces and backing for the principle of equalization payments under present fiscal arrangements.

Delegates were not asked immediately to vote on the resolutions as they, and others from the floor to come later, go to a 150-man resolutions committee for consideration and consolidation.

One influential supporter of Mr. Pearson predicted privately that his man would get more than 1,000 votes on the first ballot Thursday night. There are a maximum 1,520 voting delegates.

Mr. Pickersgill said he is backing Mr. Pearson as "incomparably the best person available."

Mr. Pickersgill made his announcement to reporters away from the convention floor. He was angry about an article in a pro-Martin publication distributed to delegates which he said misrepresented him as boosting Mr. Martin for the leadership.

He had been quietly working for Mr. Pearson but said he had not intended to announce his backing until the article appeared.

COLOR LACKING

So far as the convention floor was concerned, there was little evidence that the gathering was called primarily to select a new leader.

Placards or lapel badges supporting any of the candidates were hard to find. One enterprising vendor did a brisk business in polka-dotted bowties — the Pearson trade mark—but that was about all.

In all, the opening sessions were almost altogether lacking in the customary hoopla and color except for the garish decorations of the assembly hall, parades by Manitoba and Prince Edward Island delegations and an anti-Conservative demonstration by a half-dozen placard-carrying delegates from Saskatchewan.

Shirley Temple Was Charming Hostess in Beauty and Beast

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Beauty and the Beast was a delight. Surely this first in the Shirley Temple's Story-book series on NBC-TV was the most enjoyable fairy tale on television since Peter Pan.

It would be difficult to imagine a more enchanting Beauty than Claire Bloom or a more compelling Beast than Charlton Heston. E. G. Marshall, June Lockhart and Barbara Baxley helped a make-believe world become most credible entertainment in this live color production from Hollywood Sunday evening.

Beauty and the Beast combined superb acting and producation with a third virtue that has been all too rare in television's previous attempts in never-never land: Fidelity to a story that has endured for centuries. For this we presumably are indebted to Joseph Schrank, who adapted it, and to director Kirk Browning and producer Alvin Cooperman.

CHARMING HOSTESS

Those who saw it in color were especially fortunate. Let us note, too, that Shirley Temple makes a charming hostess.

Cast, production, color, Miss Temple—all might have been wasted if someone had tried to tamper with the familiar story.

On this fragile tale, the TV medium might have trampled heavily, as it has done with other tales. But nobody tried to make a musical of it, load it with esoteric psychological meanings or give it a new beginning, middle or end.

So the television version of Beauty and the Beast was genuinely a creative effort that utilized the best technical effects of the medium.

Shirley Temple's Storybook has set a high standard with its first production. Let's hope that it maintains it.

Toweel Wins Over Zulueta

LONDON (AP)—South African Willie Toweel, British Empire lightweight champion, outpointed Cuba's Orlando Zulueta Tuesday night over 10 rounds. Both fighters weighed in at 135 pounds.

Toweel proved the heavier puncher. By the third round he was matching left for left with the wily Cuban stylist and showing a greater variety of punches all round.

British promoter Harry Levene said he now will try to line up a match with world lightweight champion Joe Brown for the 23-year-old South African.

SIGNS CONTRACT

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Don Blasingame, St. Louis Cardinal second baseman, today was the 26th Cardinal to sign his 1958 contract.

General manager Bing Devine did not announce Blasingame's new salary. He said it was a substantial increase over his last year's pay, estimated at $9,000. Guesses on the new salary ranged around the $14,000 mark.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was reeding my new Atomic Comics book on the living room floor, and ma came in from the kitchin, saying, Benny I'm almost out of sugar, how would you like to run around to the market and get me a cupple of pounds?

G, ma, do I have to unless I'd like to? I said. I meen I just got comfortable, I said, and ma said, Oh dear, I ask you to do one little thing and you act as though I was piling the labors of Hercules and the tribulations of Jobe on you. You apparently haven't the slightest conception of the hundreds of things I'm continually doing for you to make you comfortable and keep you cleen and see that you are helthy and happy, she said.

Sure I have, ma, I've got a big conception of it, I said. I appriciate it. Heck, ma, if it wasn't for you my manners would be even werse and I wouldn't have any buttons on my clothes and I might not of got born, even, I said, and she said, You mightn't indeed. And now maybe you'll go to the market willingly and feel thankful for the chance of being a little help to me, she said.

Sure, G, ma, only the market is open till 8 o'clock, and you said you were only almost out of sugar, so if you dont expect to use it till tomorrow I could get it just as willingly after dinner, I said, and ma said, You'll go this minute no matter if I never intend to use it, and if you're not out of this house by the time I count Jack Robinson I'll applaud your willing spirrit with the palm of one hand.

The result being I hurry up went, feeling pritty willing.

AT THE McCARTHY — Cary Grant appears as Commander Crewson, devil-may-care Naval flyer in Jerry Wald's CinemaScope comedy "Kiss Them For Me", for Twentieth-Century-Fox. The film opens Thursday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre and co-stars Jayne Mansfield, Suzy Parker and Leif Erickson.

'Disney's Folly' Has Turned Into a Rousing Success

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Now that the 10,000,000th visitor has passed through the gates of Disneyland, Walt Disney can afford to be satisfied with the figures in the first 2½ years of operation.

"Disney's folly" has turned into a rousing success. Critics had said too much money was being sunk into an amusement park far away from metropolitan centres. Time has proved that people will come from everywhere to the park — from 65 countries, in fact.

Nor has the place proved to be merely for the kiddies, as was predicted. Adults outnumber children 3½ to 1. The average amount spent by visitors is $2.61, including parking, admission, rides and souvenirs.

The publicity value of Disneyland cannot be denied. Virtually all the film stars with children have been there, and it is also a mecca for visiting VIPs. The King of Morocco was so intrigued on his official visit there that he returned incognito for another whirl.

Among other notable visitors: Former president Truman, President Sukarno of Indonesia, the prime minister of Pakistan, Vice-President Nixon, the Begum Aga Khan, the prince and princess of Liechtenstein.

The girls may be missing from the Motion Picture Herald's poll of the 10 top box office stars, but Kim Novak, Deborah Kerr and Debbie Reynolds are Nos. 11-12-13. Marilyn Monroe had better get back to work. In the top 10 last year, she didn't make the first 25 this time.

Red Skelton was in good form when he met the press at hospital following his near-fatal asthmatic attack. He picked up a stack from the great pile of letters in his room and asked: "How come they're all addressed to Wyatt Earp?"

The James Dean fans are still active. From a Gas City, Ind., reader: "I don't know why you chose The James Dean Story as the least-needed picture of 1957. In my opinion, which is shared by others, it was a monumental presentation to an extremely magnificent personality. Many who didn't now James Dean found him through this picture."

SOVIET BRASS FAILS TO FROWN AT WESTERN DANCE

Communist authorities frown — in print anyway—on adoption of Western habits among Soviet youth. But at this student ball at Grand Kremlin palace in Moscow, dancers swayed to Western music while top Soviet officials looked on without frowns.

NEHRU GREETS TOURING BRITISH PRIME MINISTER

Compulsory Car Insurance Seen As Certainty

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Telegram says Queen's Park officials consider compulsory car insurance for Ontario motorists a certainty by 1959.

The paper says provincial transport department officials have worked out most of the details of the scheme. When ready, the plan will go to the legislature probably during the 1959 session.

The story says the scheme is expected to work this way:

A motorist must show proof of insurance to the limits of $10,000-$20,000 public liability and $2,000 property damage before he is issued with new licence plates.

If a motorist has insurance when he renews his registration but later allows it to lapse, his licence will be suspended.

However, the story says the province will continue the Unsatisfied Judgment Fund as a protection against drivers who fail to remain at the scene of an accident, non - Ontario motorists and motorists who have cancelled their insurance but have not been ruled off the road by the department because of the time lag.

AIR OF ELECTION

After the committee study today, the legislation was expected to get speedy final approval. The Commons has already passed it.

UNCERTAIN SITUATION

As the dispute arose, Senator John T. Haig, government leader in the Senate, said the uncertain situation, in which the government is "faced with the possibility of defeat on the floor of the House" and a new election, makes it necessary for fast legislative action.

"I would not last 50 minutes as leader if I did not press for legislation to go through," he said.

In the Commons, the CCF started the day off by attempting to move adjournment of its regular business to debate the unemployment situation. Speaker Roland Michener ruled the motion out of order.

It was during discussion of this motion that Mr. Fleming said a supply motion Monday would give members a chance to debate unemployment.

Moving on, the Commons eventually gave second reading—approval in principle—to legislation enabling federal financial aid for steam power plants and transmission lines in the Atlantic provinces. It also provides for a federal freight rate subsidy on Maritimes coal used for industrial power generation.

Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton said the federal government is prepared to help any province finance publicly-owned power developments — thermal or hydro — if need can be shown.

Chunks of Rocks Fall Into Gorge

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) For the third time in five days chunks of rock fell Tuesday from the top of the Niagara River gorge at the site of last Friday's 40,000-ton fall.

State park police did not estimate the size of today's fall but said "a sizeable piece" fell into the gorge about a quarter-mile north of Whirlpool Bridge on the American side.

Arthur B. Williams, chief engineer of the Niagara Frontier State Parks Commission, said the area was "unstable."

"More of it is going to go," he said. "There are cracks throughout the area."

The area has been roped off to visitors since Saturday when the 40,000-ton slide was discovered. Officials said the latest rockfalls would in no way affect plans to develop Niagara River power.

THICK ICE

Altitude of 9,200 feet at the South Pole has been shown to consist of 8,300 feet of ice atop 900 feet of rock.

Jury Returns Five True Bills In Criminal Cases

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—A grand jury Tuesday returned true bills in three murder and two rape cases listed for the Sault Ste. Marie spring assizes.

A true bill was returned against Fred Montgomery, 41, and his son Rodney Montgomery, 17, charged jointly with the Oct. 9 slaying of J. J. Walter Bridges, manager of the Royal Bank of Canada branch in Blind River, the uranium mining town midway between here and Sudbury.

C. T. Murphy, counsel for Rodney Montgomery, has made application for a separate trial for his client. A decision is to be handed down Thursday.

True bills were also returned against Lyle Hart, 31, of Elliot Lake, Ont., charged with the Sept. 26 slaying of James William Taylor, 41, a draughtsman at Algom - Quirke mines, and against 15-year - old Anthony James Mumfort, known as Tony Murphy, charged with the Nov. 4 slaying of his mother, Patricia Murphy, 33, at their home 18 miles north of here.

Arthur Louis Ferris, 25, of Sault Ste. Marie, was committed for trial on a rape charge as were Joseph Corbiere, 23, of Manitoulin Island and James Clark Foster, 42, of Toronto, jointly charged with rape.

Hart's trial opened after the grand jury returned.

The only witness heard was Corporal Walter Etamski of the provincial police. He described the discovery of Taylor's strangled body on Highway 17, east of Blind River, and Hart's arrest later in Montreal.

School Teacher Retires After 45 Years

OTTAWA (CP) — Is schoolteaching monotonous? Never, says Cecilia Rowan, who has just retired after 45 years as a teacher and school principal.

"Teaching has been many things to me," Miss Rowan told a reporter. "But it has never been monotonous. The children are too full of surprises."

Time brought changes in teaching salaries and in curriculum. But children remained "interesting and lovable" in any generatio.

Miss Rowan said friends expect her to have a sense of fulfillment after teaching so long. But she doesn't believe a teacher's job ever ends.

She spent the last 27 years at Canadian Martyrs Separate School here, where she was principal and, until three years ago, also taught a grade eight class.

Miss Rowan said a teacher holds a sort of quasi - parent position—she should work with a father's firmness and a mother's understanding.

A school principal's job is to be fair and just, said the native of Fitzroy Harbor, Ont. The child wasn't always wrong. He should be given a chance to tell his story and teachers shouldn't be hasty in judging.

KNOCKS OUT TRAINS

IRA ACTIVE

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort
Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids
Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.
In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.
Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.
And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!
In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.
All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) — the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.
This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Residents on Arctic Islands Thin Advance-Warning Line Against Hostile Aircraft

MONTREAL (CP) — The scattered residents of Canada's barren Arctic islands constitute a thin advance - warning line against attack from hostile aircraft.

Eskimos, traders, RCMP and weather men have been re-organized by the RCAF into the vast network of the Ground Observer Corps, the volunteer body charged with detecting and reporting unidentified aircraft.

The Arctic section comprises a first defence line behind which are the Distant Early Warning line on the Arctic mainland, the Mid-Canada line and the Pinetree line to the south.

Outmoded by inter-continental ballistic missiles, the lines are still capable of detecting and pinpointing speedy aircraft or missiles.

TRAINED RECRUITS

The RCAF recently toured island outposts and FO Norman Dick, Vancouver, worked out new corps recruits. His trip ranged from the weather station at Alert, on the northern tip of Ellesmere Island and about 400 miles from the geographic North Pole, to points in the Eastern and Western Archpelago.

John Sookacheff, 26, of Calgary, in charge of the Canadian-United States weather office at Alert, would get first crack at warning of hostile bombers in any attack from the direction of the North Pole. Alert is the last bit of land between the Pole and Canadian territory.

He reports by radio to Vancouver, via Edmonton, the corps' western Canadian headquarters. These reports are checked against the aircraft known to be operating in the area and, if necessary, the entire North then can be put on the alert.

'At many outposts, conditions are too barren to support Eskimo populations. Animal life, sparse at best, varies from the little rodents called lemmings to Arctic hare, seal, fox, fish, wolves, bear, and musk ox.

AT HOLMAN ISLAND

About 1,200 miles southwest, and roughly the same distance due north of Edmonton, lies Holman Island off Victoria Island. FO Dick worked out a new observation establishment at this Hudson's Bay Company trading post. Factor Jim Cumming, 23, of Winnipeg, is chief observer. His only white companion is Rev. Henri Tardy, Roman Catholic priest from France, and there's a small Eskimo settlement.

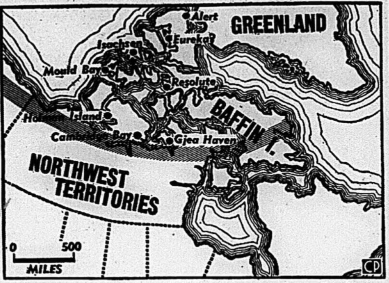
To the east lies Gjea Haven where George Washington Porter, an Eskimo Hudson's Bay factor, is a corps spotter. He's a short, smiling man who served with the United States Army during the First World War.

Other points in the archipelago were spotters are located include Mould Bay, Isachsen and Eureka—all Canadian-U.S. weather stationed manned by eight - man teams—Sachs Harbor and Cambridge Bay.

Another is Resolute Bay, located 1,700 miles north of Winnipeg on Cornwallis Island. Resolute, a larger weather station and RCAF base, is called the civilized centre of the Arctic, with a barber, bingo, motion pictures and rationed beer.

HURT IN CRASH

LONDON (CP) — Two men were hurt in a head-on collision Tuesday night east of London. Jovan Pelcsh, 25, of London suffered severe face lacerations. Fred Turner, 30, Brantford, received a broken left leg.



Scattered traders, Eskimos, RCMP officers and weather observers at isolated posts in Canada's barren Arctic have been organized into a network to detect and report unidentified aircraft.

Should an enemy attack against North America be mounted over the North Pole the men at the eight posts shown on this map may have first crack at warning of the approach of hostile aircraft.

Northernmost post is at Alert, 400 miles from the North Pole and far north of the multi-million-dollar DEW (Distant Early Warning, line (shaded) set up to detect enemy aircraft. Exact location of DEW line stations is secret.

The men at the eight advance-warning posts have been organized by the RCAF into the Ground Observer Corps charged with reporting to the corps' western headquarters at Edmonton on unidentified aircraft. Conceivably, a warning from one of these outposts could put the whole North American air - defence mechanism on the alert.—(CP Newsmap).

T. S. Aicken Cheese Champ

HAMILTON (CP)—T. S. Aicken of Belton, Ont., won the grand championship and reserve championship in the cheese exhibition being staged in connection with the annual conveton of the Dairyme's Association of Western Ontario.

His top cheese scored 98.45 points and a second cheese scored 98.40 for the reserve championship.

In the butter exhibition, the Bashaw Creamery of Bashaw, Alta., won the grand championship.

Highest scoring Ontario butter was entered by Silverwood's Dairy, Caledonia. Highest aggregate score was received by Briar's Dairy, Sutton.

DOUBT WANT HIM

ANKARA (AP)—Turkish officials said Tuesday Archbishop Makarios, exiled leader of the Greek-origin majority on Cyprus, has applied for a visa to visit Turkey. He is generally regarded by the Turks as an enemy of Turkish Cypriot minority rights on the British-ruled eastern Mediterranean island and there thus was doubt that he would be allowed entry.

General's Prediction

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Maj.-Gen. Robert J. Wood predicted here Monday night that "the armed forces will have a satellite up within 30 days."

The criticism was made at a meeting under the auspices of the Ontario division, Canadian Red Cross, called to discuss how to cut boating fatalities.

Boating accidents in Ontario last year resulted in 144 drownings, 10 more than in 1956.

Pearkes Says CF-100 Match For Any Type of Red Bomber

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Canadian-built CF-100 jet fighter, described in some circles as obsolete following recent missile developments, is "capable of defending this country today against any type of bomber the Russians might send," Defence Minister Pearkes said Wednesday.

"But the Russians are not fools," he told a press conference. "They're not crazy enough to start a war when they know our power to retaliate.

"We're not behind the Russians—we are way out ahead of them.

"Sputnik was a great scientific breakthrough but I still maintain that we are strong and that we are getting stronger now that Western nations are permitting missile launching sites at strategic points."

Mr. Pearkes also said the Western world's only deterrent against the intercontinental ballistic missile is the retaliatory power of the United States.

He said that the man who "presses the button" to bring the retaliatory power into play is the president of the United States.

"Under the present system of things," he told reporters, "the president of the U.S. is the one man who could start our retaliatory forces going."

He added: "But that does not mean that he is the one man who could start our defence forces going if Russia attacked."

Heavy Snowfall Covers Trail Of Saboteurs

GRAND FORKS, B.C. (CP)—A heavy snowfall Wednesday covered the trail of saboteurs who blew up a section of the Canadian Pacific Railway line near here, derailing an early-morning train with 25 persons aboard. No one was injured.

Police added it to the list of unsolved recent bombing incidents in this area of south-central British Columbia, home of most of the province's radical Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, long associated with arson and dynamite.

Officials said the charge which blew out a section of the CPR Kettle Valley branch line was strategically placed around a sharp turn above a 100-foot drop and at the bottom of a steep incline.

Track was torn up for 300 feet, but the train—engine, baggage car and day coach—remained upright.

Wife: "The paper says schoolteachers make the best wives. I wonder why that is?"

Husband: "Probably because they have learned to ask questions and keep quiet long enough to hear the answer."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — The air moving across Southern Ontario is quite moist so that cloudy skies should persist both today and Friday. The disturbance which has brought occasional light snow to localities north of Lake Superior is weakening rapidly so that no appreciable accumulation of snow should be expected. As this weakening storm moves off skies will tend to clear and temperatures turn somewhat colder.

St. Lawrence Will Produce Power in July

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Hydro reports that progress on the St. Lawrence power project in 1957 was the greatest in the project's three-year history.

The project now is 80-per-cent complete, the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission said Wednesday, and will produce its first power in July. It is scheduled to be completed in 1960.

During 1957, diversion of the Cornwall Canal and dike, most of the channel improvement work and 85 per cent of the construction of the St. Lawrence transformer were completed.

The Iroquois control dam was turned over to Ontario Hydro by a U.S. contractor and 40 miles of track for relocation of the CNR main line and diversion of about 25 miles of Highway 2 were also completed.

Two new communities—Ingleside and Long Sault—were established and Iroquois and part of Morrisburg were relocated in preparation for flooding to provide a head pond for the power project.

Other Hydro achievements last year included installation at the Sir Adam Beck Niagara generating station No. 2 of two additional units. Two more to be finished this year will boost the plant's capacity to 1,370,000 kilowatts.

Among the biggest projects announced in 1957 was the plan for construction of the first of two of the world's largest thermal-electric plants in the western Toronto suburb of Lakeview.

It was decided earlier to build a similar plant at the Lakehead. A third is to be constructed in the Burlington Bay area at Hamilton. Both Southern Ontario projects are expected to be completed by 1968.

Trophy Awarded

MONTREAL (AP) — Air defence command at nearby St. Hubert announced today that a communications efficiency trophy has been awarded No. 3 communications unit at St. Hubert as the top unit in the RCAF's coast - to-coast teletype network.

Bob Hope Nearly Ejected Himself From Jet Bomber Over Pacific

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bob Hope has disclosed that he nearly ejected himself — minus parachute—from a B-47 jet bomber flying at 600 miles an hour 18,000 feet over the Pacific.

The incident occurred on his recent 18,400-mile tour to entertain American troops during the Christmas holidays.

"The only thing that saved me from taking the biggest dive of my career was a lack of sleep," the comedian told a reporter.

"We were at Yokota air base, outside Tokyo, when a general asked me to include some lonely soldiers at Guam on our itinerary. I took the jet in advance of our troupe to set up the show.

"They sat me in the co-pilot's seat with oxygen mask, crash helmet and parachute. We weren't in the air long before I got to feeling very uneasy, a real claustrophobia. I couldn't see anything but a panel of instruments.

"I started sweating, took off my parachute and then asked the pilot if it were possible to make my seat go up so I could see out the blister. He told me to pull a little lever, similar to the kind on power seats in your car.

"I was a little groggy from lack of sleep and gave a weak pull—at the wrong lever. The pilot, watching me in a mirror, screamed: 'Get your hand off that!'

"It was the automatic pilot ejection seat. We were a good 800 miles out in the Pacific. I shudder to think what would have happened if I had given the lever a strong pull and a squeeze.

"How could I ever top a finish like that?"

Hope said no one but the pilot knew how close television came to losing another comedian this season.

"I got off the plane in my crash helmet swinging a golf club, but my swing was shaky."

COMMONS TAKES DAY OFF FOR CONVENTION

Liberals Accused Of Filibuster

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament took today off while Liberals attended the final and decisive sessions of their national leadership convention.

Before adjourning Wednesday until Friday morning, the Commons pursued matters of power development in the Atlantic provinces and the spending plans of the citizenship and immigration department.

J. W. Pickersgill (L — Bonavista-Twillingate) and some other Liberals spent a good part of the sitting repeating demands that the power legislation be expanded.

In the end it wasn't, and both Revenue Minister George Nowlan and Finaknce Minister Donald Fleming accused Mr. Pickersgill and his fellows of putting up a deliberate filibuster to delay passage of the legislation.

CLAIMS TRYING TO GAG

To this, Mr. Pickersgill replied that Mr. Fleming was trying to gag debate on the measure.

The legislation finally won final approval — unanimously, without a vote.

It provides for federal financial aid in construction of steam power plants and transmission lines in the Atlantic provinces and for a freight rate subsidy on Maritimes coal used for production of industrial power in the same provinces.

The Liberals throughout had fought to have the legislation broadened to include hydro power developments. They said only in this way would it be of any real benefit to Newfoundland. Government spokesmen disagreed.

The Senate, meantime, gave final approval to a federal loan of $30,000,000 for New Brunswick to pay off bank loans used to finance the Beeohwood hydro power project on the St. John River.

In the citizenship debate, compulsory Canadian citizenship for immigrants who do not "upset the balance of our social life" was proposed by George McLeod (SC—Okanagan-Revelstoke).

PROPOSES DECLARATION

He proposed that newcomers to Canada be compelled to sign a declaration that they intend to become Canadian citizens. Later they should be obliged to study the obligations and rights of citizenship before applying for citizenship, he said.

Mr. McLeod also said the government must give consideration to the religion and political background of immigrants.

"We believe that all men are born equal regardless of race or creed," he said.

"But we believe that our immigration department must be careful to have our admissions regulated so as not to upset the balance of our social life."

Bitten by Mouse, Man Has Lockjaw

TORONTO (CP) — William Thompson, 18, of Kapuskasing, flown here Monday in critical condition after being infected with lockjaw Friday by a mouse-bite, was reported "improving" by Western Hospital authorities.

Thompson was bitten by a mouse he picked up from the floor of a farmhouse he was visiting near his home. Within 10 minutes his hand turned blue and infection spread up his arm.

Liberal Party's Platform Prepared for Next Election

OTTAWA (CP) — A face-lifting of the Liberal party's platform was well in progress today as the national convention prepared the party for a prospective general election.

New or refurbished policies on such key issues as trade, economic development, fisheries, housing and aid for the Atlantic provinces already are in the platform, and others would go in at today's closing sittings of the three-day session.

By the convention's end late tonight, Liberal policy will have been completely rewritten — at least reworded — from the platform that failed to hold the party in power at the 1957 general election.

Apart from specific policies adopted Wednesday, the convention also rephrased basic Liberal philosophy in a declaration of "faith" that gave high priority to international peace and "full" employment.

On the issue of trade, which promises to be a big fighting ground in the next election, the Liberals came to grips directly with the Progressive Conservatives over the present government's apparently cool attitude towards Britain's offer to join in gradual evolvement of Anglo-Canadian free trade.

They gave qualified approval, promising "sympathetic" consideration but stipulating this would take into account the importaice of maintaining existing Canadian industries.

At the same time, they promised to move for the reduction of international trade restrictions generally, and specifically among Commonwealth and North Atlantic treaty countries.

For a more vigorous economy, they pledged a country-wide program of economic development, federal public works, tax reductions, "adequate" unemployment insurance benefits and aid to "all hard-pressed groups."

Policy on federal-provincial relations would include the principle of special consideration for provinces with less than the national average per capita income.

As a protection against "abuses" of consumer credit, the conventin decided the Bank Act should be revised to bring small loans and finance companies under its control.

For housing, the party promised to make it easier for Canadians to own their own homes. It would reduce down payments on National Housing Act loans and extend the time for repayment.

There would be more federal aid for the construction of subsidized low-rental housing, an increase in the supply of mortgage money, revival of the long-dormant municipal grants assistance act to provide federal aid in installing essential municipal services, and more federal help in slum clearance.

U.S. Slump Leads Govt. To Lower Inflation Barrier

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government has lowered another anti - inflation barrier—the margin requirement on stock purchases—after breaking bad news on both American production and income.

Effective today, the Federal Reserve Board cut from 70 to 50 per cent the margin, or down payment, required for purchase of shares on the currently sluggish stock exchanges. The 70-per-cent requirement had been in effect for nearly three years.

(The margin requirement on Canadian exchanges has been 50 per cent for some years.)

The reduction was hailed by Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange, as giving the market a desirable added "liquidity" which should help industry raise new funds for working capital and expansion.

Other reaction from financial circles was mixed, with some experts sharing Funston's optimism, others viewing the action as having only temporary effects on the market, and still others saying they think the impact will be negligible.

The first effects of the margin-reducing action were felt on the Pacific Coast Stock Exchange in San Francisco. It was still open when the reserve board's action was announced, and prices spurted ahead in active trading.

Two announcements late Wednesday revealed that U.S. business ended 1957 with a harder-than-expected bump.

1. Personal income, said the commerce department, dropped to a $342,800,000,000 annual rate in December, down more than $2,800,000,000 from November.

2. Industrial production sagged in December to the lowest level since July, 1956, when a steel strike hobbled output.

The federal reserve index of physical output from mines and factories dipped three points in the month to 136 per cent of the 1947-49 average. Auto assemblies declined 10 per cent and steel mills further slowed their operations to a rate of 40 per cent below a year ago.

Timmins Pastor Says Religion May Foster Common Law Tie

TORONTO (CP)—A Timmins clergyman says religion can contribute to common-law relationships.

If a married couple has broken up for some reason which does not allow a legal divorce, said Rev. E. Gilmour Smith Wednesday, they can have another home with someone else "only on a common-law basis."

"Religion can actually be a contributing factor to this deplorable condition, for it is most prevalent with people who have been associated with churches which rigidly ban all divorce."

He was addressing the conveners of Christian education, evangelism and social services of Ontario presbyteries and conferences of the United Church of Canada.

TIMMINS SITUATION

Dr. Smith said it was stated recently in Timmins that there were more than 700 common-law partnerships in the 7,000 households there. He blamed certain magazines books, movies and plays for the situation.

It was idle to believe a tightening up of divorce laws would maintain the stability of marriage once a large segment of society rejects Christian morality.

The church must do more in preparing young persons for marriage and give more help to marriages now approaching the breaking point, Dr. Smith said.

PRESENT PETITION

Earlier Wednesday, a delegation of ministers and laymen presented a brief to Premier Frost urging the Ontario government to impose further restrictions on the sale and advertising of beer, spirits and wines.

The brief sought in particular a curb on the "legal fiction" of certain large-circulation magazines which, it said, opened offices in Montreal in order to operate within the law and advertise liquor in journals sold in Ontario.

Farquhar Oliver Says Farmers Disappointed

OTTAWA (CP) — Farquhar Oliver, Ontario Liberal leader, today called on the Liberal party to win back the votes of farmers "bitterly disappointed" with the Diefenbaker government's agriculture program.

"There never was a greater betrayal of the farmer's cause," he said, referring to the Progressive Conservative government's bill on farm product price supports.

"The Diefenbaker crowd promised the farmer pie in the sky" in last spring's federal election campaign, he said in a speech to the national Liberal convention. Yet the Conservative price support bill was "only a poor imitation" of what Liberal governments had been doing for many years.

Mr. Oliver said the Liberals can't run on their past farm record in winning back farm votes "that left them in great numbers on Junt 10."

Farmers' votes could be won only by a new policy. It should recognize that agriculture is entitled to a fair share of national income and that farm income should be related to farm production costs.

MOTHER AND TWO CHILDREN, WOMAN BURNED IN SLEEP

Fire Destroys Home In Bear River, N.S.

BEAR RIVER, N.S. (CP)—A mother, her two children and a woman boarder died early today in a fire that destroyed their two-storey frame home here.

The victims, trapped in their sleep when the fire broke out at 5 a.m., were Mrs. Arnold Banks, in her 30s, her children, Marilyn, 3, Barbara, 1½, and Mrs. Dorothy Forrester, in her 40s.

Mrs. Forrester's son Robert, 14, escaped by jumping through an upstairs window.

Mr. Banks, a civilian employee at the nearby Cornwallis naval base, was working a night shift. When he arrived at the scene, the house was burned to the ground.

Firemen poked through the ruins at daybreak but it was not known immediately whether any bodies were recovered.

Cause of the fire was not known. A strong wind kindled the flames despite a driving rainstorm. One firemen said the house "was ablaze in a matter of minutes."

Alberta Man Added to Energy Resources Body

OTTAWA (CP) — An Alberta engineering professor familiar with the development of Canada's oil and gas industry was added Wednesday to the royal commission studying this country's energy resources.

Apparently bowing to criticism that the commission lacked a member from the province where the oil and gas industry is centred, Prime Minister Diefenbaker named Dr. Robert M. Hardy, dean of the University of Alberta's engineering faculty, as a seventh commissioner.

Dean Hardy, a 51-year-old consulting engineer, is assistant director of research for the Alberta Research Council.

Commission chairman Henry Borden, 56, of Toronto, has announced that the commission will start its job of mapping a natural energy policy with hearings in Western Canada.

Sputnik's 'Dad' Explains to French Girl

RABAT, Morocco (Reuters) — Prof. Leonid Sedov, known as the "father of the Sputnik," has written to Danielle Hermellin, 13-year-old French girl living in Rabat, to explain why he cannot offer her a ride in an earth satellite.

Danielle wrote to Sedov early last month saying that she would like to go for a ride in a Sputnik.

Sedov wrote back in French: "It is a great pity, but I must disappoint you. Our Sputniks at present are not able to come back to earth. They end by being destroyed in the atmosphere. That is why, dear young lady, I cannot now take you as a passenger in the Sputnik."

Say Well-to-Do N.B. Family Tied 2,500 Begging Notes to Yule Trees

BATHURST, N.B. (CP) — The weekly Northern Light says hundreds of New Brunswick residents make a Christmas racket of tying pleading notes to Christmas trees shipped to the United States.

The newspaper says "big-hearted Americans dug into their pockets to the tune of several thousands of dollars in 1957 to send Christmas presents to . . . many who are better off than their neighborly benefactors."

Thousands of parcels are said to have poured into customs offices in this province and more are reported coming.

The Northern Light says some families started as early as July to prepare their notes.

The paper says "greedy grown-ups" took up the idea after a few deserving children tied pathetic notes to Christmas trees in the early days of the industry.

"One family is known to have placed 2,500 notes on trees being shipped from this county. According to the source, the members are comfortably well off and have no need of asking for any assistance to celebrate the birth of Christ."

The Northern Light says some recipients of gifts travelled by taxi from distant villages to pick up their parcels at the local customs office. Many had to pay high duties to get the gifts.

Revolt Against Party Brass May Cut Pearson Lead

Leadership Candidates Given Wild Reception

OTTAWA (CP)—The first evidence of a grass - roots revolt against party brass may have chipped off a bit of Lester B. Pearson's great lead in the Liberal leadership race.

Both he and Paul Martin were reported working feverishly behind the scenes today to gain last-minute votes before balloting takes place shortly after 7 p.m. EST at the party's national convention.

The third candidate, Mayor H. Lloyd Henderson of Portage la Prairie, Man., has conceded he personally hasn't a chance.

A jam - packed Coliseum of chanting, cheering supporters showed beyond doubt that the 60-year-old Mr. Pearson had a hefty lead over Mr. Martin before the candidates delivered their personal appeals to convention delegates Wednesday night.

CHEER MARTIN

But the prolonged cheering that went up after the 54-year-old Mr. Martin was through indicated to observers that his speech had hit home.

To some observers it appeared after the speech-making that the enthusiasm for Mr. Martin was a bit stronger than for Mr. Pearson. Mr. Martin was carried out on the shoulders of his supporters.

Then came a moment when it appeared the former health minister had scored a point. He had maintained all through the campaign that the former external affairs minister was the choice of the party brass, but that he himself was the choice of the back-concession delegates.

As the convention resumed policy discussions, rank-and-file discontent from the floor forced convention organizers to withdraw their political organization committee's report for reconsideration.

Demands were heard that the federation presidency, now held by Duncan MacTavish of Ottawa, be moved from province to province every three years; that MPs and senators "be not qualified to be officers in our association."

Mr. Pearson, accorded a rousing reception as he walked down the centre aisle to the speaker's platform, pitched his vote appeal to a program of peace and prosperity.

Liberal Briefs

OTTAWA (CP) — One of the more active Liberal delegates to the party's national convention, John C. Marshall of Edmonton, is totally blind and has a crippled leg. He is rooting enthusiastically for leadership candidate Paul Martin. He and a group from Edmonton East constituency had 2,500 special buttons made, reading "Paul Martin for prime minister.

Roy M. Morrison of Ottawa, elected the convention's sergeant-at-arms, described the standards he has set for order during speeches: "We wouldn't stop hecklers but if it reaches the point where people are throwing tomatoes we will ask them to leave."

Jim Brown of Brantford, who nominated leadership candidate Paul Martin, has a momento from the time his grandfather nominated Ontario Premier Sir Oliver Mowat for re - election, some 60 years ago. It's a black ribbon watch fob, which Sir Oliver gave to grandfather E. H. Brown.

British Columbia delegates, assiduously plugging their province's centennial this year, capitalized on a television broadcast of the afternoon proceedings to present a bowl of B.C. apples and a newly-minted centenary silver dollar to retiring leader Louis S. St. Laurent.

The Queen Elizabeth Wednesday night sent a message of appreciation to the national Liberal convention for its resolution of allegiance adopted at opening sessions Tuesday.

The resolution had expressed "the warmth of the feelings cherished towards Her Majesty by the members of the Liberal party of Canada."

The Quebec Provincial Liberal Federation Wednesday night introduced a resolution from the floor of the party's national convention aimed at cracking down on Liberal members of parliament who "collaborate" with Quebec's Union Nationale government. The resolution proposed that "the few federal members who collaborate tacitly or openly with the Union Nationale be excluded from the Liberal caucus of the House of Commons."

Tempers Flare Over Proposed Cut in Pensions

PARIS (AP) — Tempers flared high today as the National Assembly moved toward a vote on Premier Felix Gaillard's plans to trim veterans' pensions. He is staking the life of his government on the economy measure.

The young premier feels he cannot retreat on even a small section of his budget economies while his chief economic expert, Jean Mommet, is in Washington pleading the soundness of Gaillard's financial management as an argument for more credit.

Gaillard called for a vote of confidence when the issue erupted almost as soon as Parliament reconvened Tuesday...

The vote was due late today, but there were prospects that it might be postponed until Friday.

Gaillard's government came to office only 2½ months ago. A defeat on the pension issue almost certainly would force it to resign.

N.E.S. REPORTS 2,600 UNEMPLOYED

Arthur Murray, temporary manager of the National Employment Service in Belleville, said today that about 2,600 men and women have ben registred as unemployed in Hastings County. However, exact figures will not be available before Friday afternoon.

Mr. Murray said there was no mass influx of unemployed people this week, which might be a good sign that the peak has been reached. Barring sudden lay offs of great numbers of employees, the employment office is quite able to handle the unemployment situation.

WANT PLOWING MATCH HELD IN COUNTY

At a meeting of 30 district agriculturists and representatives of agricultural organizations held Wednesday afternoon at the Kiwanis Centre, it was decided to make a recommendation to Hastings County Council to apply to the International Plowmen's Association to hold the 1961 plowing matches in Hastings County.

The group consented to calling themselves, temporarily, the Hastings County Plowing Match Association, with Dr. Russell Scott, president; Ben Bleecker, treasurer, and Robert Hamilton, secretary pro-tem.

The 1957 plowing matches were held at Brooklin, Ont, with about 250,000 people visiting that community during the four-day run.

An hour later Mr. McLuskie again called the police station to report that the "thief" had brought the car back to the place from which it was taken.

Stolen Auto Driver Eludes Roadblock

The driver of a stolen car reported missing from the Boyce Used Car lot over the weekend, escaped capture by police Wednesday night when he eluded a roadblock set up by city and provincial police.

Provincial police picked up the car on the Foxboro Road and chased it toward the city. It swung west along College street and drove into an autowreckers' lane. City and provincial police set up a road block but the driver of the stolen car eluded capture by swinging into the ditch and disappearing along West Moira street where police lost his trail.

The car was stolen from the used car lot some time Saturday night or Sunday. Sunday evening the car was driven into a district gasoline station where gas was ordered, the driver driving away without paying.

Bruce H. Smith Again Heads Conservation Authority, Budget of $19,526 Approved

Mr. Bruce H. Smith was re-elected chairman of the Moira River Conservation Authority at the organization's annual meeting held Wednesday afternoon at the Cannifton township hall. It will be Mr. Smith's fifth term as head of the Authority.

The annual meeting saw about 30 members present and besides election of officers saw passing of the 1958 budget and heard plans outlined for development of a multi-use project on the Moira River near Thomasburg to be known as "The Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater Conservation Area."

The area has been previously known by the Authority as the Moira Gorge and was recommended in the original Authority report as a splendid park site. A Foxboro site, which had previously been suggested as a memorial area for Col. Vanderwater, was found not to be available at terms suitable to the Authority.

Mr. Herbert Crown, representing Mr. A. H. Richardson, chief conservation officer for Ontario, was present at the meeting and outlined the organization of conservation work in the province. Mr. Crown presided over the election of officers.

Re-elected as vice-chairman of the Authority, was Reeve Earl Sager of Madoc township, while field officer Michael Chubb was re-named secretary-treasurer.

CHAIRMEN NAMED

Advisory board chairmen are as follows: Public Relations, Cecil Ketcheson, Thurlow township; reforestation, T. C. Graham of Tweed; flood control, Bruce H. Smith, Belleville; parks and recreation, Murray Smith, Madoc village; soils and water, Bernard J. Hunt, Hungerford township.

Membership in the Authority has few changes from last year, the only two exceptions being George Wishart for Belleville, and Leslie McLaren for Tyendinaga.

The Authority executive meeting was held at Cannifton on Wednesday morning with members welcoming T. C. Graham of Tweed still recuperating from his serious illness.

Chairman Smith in his chairman's address urged more activity on the part of advisory board members and hoped that 1958 would see board members take an active part in planning the various Authority projects.

The auditor's report for 1957 was adopted. The capital fund balance sheet shows assets of the Authority at December 31, 1957 as being $112,158.66.

These assets include the Deloro Dam at $51,621.65; the O'Hara Mill and property, $18,209.53; reforestation $31,022.96.

Just over $3,000 has been expended on the Col. Roscoe Vanderwater Conservation Area, while preliminary costs for the proposed College street dam amount to $3,125.85.

BUDGET APPROVED

For 1958 a budget of $14,164 general account and $5,362 for the reforestation account or a total of $19,526.00 has been approved.

Half of this amount is raised by levy against the participating municipalities, with the other 50 per cent to be received by way of grant from the province.

Of the participating municipalities, the city of Belleville, with its higher assessment, this year will pay $4,416 toward the Authority expenses. Thurlow will pay $2,088, Sidney $519, and Tweed village $408. The levy against participating municipalities is based on the assessment on properties lying within the watershed.

Municipalities in the watershed include Belleville, Deloro village, Elzevir and Grimsthorpe, Hungerford, Huntingdon, Kaladar and Angelsea, Madoc township and village, Marmora and Lake, Rawdon, Richmond, Sheffield, Sidney, Thurlow, Tudor and Cashel, Tyendinaga and Tweed.

There was a brief discussion regarding the development of the Col. Roscoe Vanderwater Conservation Area and also on maintenance details of the Lingham Lake dam. Colored slides of the Col. Vanderwater Conservation Area were shown by field officer Michael Chubb

AREA OUTLINED

Mr. Chubb outlined the location of area as lying along the Moira River in the 1st, 2nd and third concessions of the township of Hungerford and approximately 14 miles north of Belleville.

The area was comprised of marginal land, including many particularly scenic spots along the river which could be developed into ideal picnic and recreation areas, as well as providing boat landings for fishermen. Three parcels of the proposed site which is hoped to eventually comprise about 560 acres, have already been purchased.

Southern boundary of the ultimate area will commence a short distance north of Chisholm's Mills.

First development of facilities, however, would be from the north end of the area with provision of a road leading from the 4th concession east of Thomasburg, south along the east bank of the river to what already is a natural picnic site above the rapids.

FINE PICNIC SITE

Here a picnic site would be developed complete with picnic tables and open fireplaces.

Future development would include provision of a sand beach for swimming, a change house, a rustic pavilion to provide shelter for group picnics, etc., trails through the woods and a refreshment concession.

Conservation demonstrations would also eventually be included in the area development.

Estimated total cost of the project is $18,600, including purchase price of the land.

The area would be developed over a period of years with monies to be set aside each year by the Authority for this purpose. Fifty per cent of the total costs would be paid by way of grant by the province.

Quinte IRE Discusses Transistors

The Quinte section of the Institute of Radio Engineers met last Tuesday. Speakers were W. D. Russell and J. Y. Perron, both of the semi-conductor development department, Northern Electric Company, Montreal. They discussed factors involved in the design and construction of transistors. Forty members and guests from the Kingston-Belleville-Peterborough districts attended the meeting.

Delegation Will Seek Grant Aid For Control Dam

A three-party delegation from the Moira River Conservation Authority and the city of Belleville will go to Ottawa on Friday seeking grant assistance from the Federal government for the construction of the proposed College Street ice control dam.

The delegation consisting of Mayor Gerald Hyde, Authority vice-president Earl Sager of Madoc, and field officer Michael Chubb will meet with the Northern Affairs and National Resources department.

Construction of the College Street ice control dam to avert spring time flooding in downtown Belleville was recommended in the Authority survey report in 1950 at which time it was expected both the federal and provincial governments would pay grants toward its cost.

Since then the federal government has indicated it was not interested in paying grants toward flood control projects costing less than $5,000,000.

Since then the provincial government has raised its grant to 50 per cent on such projects but without a federal grant the city of Belleville feels its share of the remaining cost would be too great. Latest estimate of the proposed cost of the flood control dam is in the neighborhood of $450,000.

Salesman Goes For Change, Not Back Yet

Moral of this story is not to trust magazine salesmen too far.

Yesterday a salesman taking subscriptions for magazines called at a John Street residence. The lady of the house signed for a subscription but did not have the right amount so proferred a $20 bill with the request that he go to a nearby store for change and to bring back a loaf of bread.

You guessed it. The salesman disappeared with the money and has still not returned with the change.

The salesman signed a receipt for the magazine subscription giving his name as John Godwin.

Quinte U.E.L. Members Meet To Hear District History

Over 100 members of the Bay of Quinte Branch of the United Empire Loyalists' Association and visitors from the Hastings Historical Society, the Historical Society of Napanee, and the Picton Chamber of Commerce gathered at Shire Hall last night to hear a detailed and educational address by Mr. A. J. H. Richardson.

Mr. Richardson, who is chief of National Hitsorical Sites of the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources, spoke on "The Quinte Country —A Canadian Frontier in Three Centuries.

The speaker disclosed Belleville was one of the chief centres of the pottery industry in the province during the 19th century. Although no listings of a pottery in Belleville were found in old directories before 1869, Mr. Richardson believes there is a possibility one was in existence during the 1830's. There were no listings of potteries in any directories before the 1850's, he said.

The earliest listing of a pottery merely mentioned the existence of one at Picton in 1850, he said. In 1869, James Bryce was listed as a potter at Cannifton. The directory of 1864 listed a pottery at Picton, owned by S. Skinner.

The earliest listing of a pottery in Belleville was found in the directory of 1871, Mr. Richardson said. It was owned by James S. McCuaig of Picton, and managed by J. C. Lake of Belleville. It was known as "Belleville Stoneware Works."

"McCuaig's Pottery at Belleville, listed in the 1870-71 directory had a yearly average of seven employees, using 400 tons of clay worth $2,800. They produced by manual labor stoneware worth $16,000," Mr. Richardson said.

Mr. Richardson disclosed other details of Belleville's pottery business contained in letters from local residents to Phil Shackleton of Ottawa, Ont.

Mr. Ewart Touse, of Toronto, writes that his grandfather, Samuel Hart, who came to the United States from England in 1832, started a pottery in Fulton, N.Y. A daughter married George I. Lazier, who with his father-in-law, established a pottery in Picton. It was known as "Hart Brothers and Lazier Pottery. When Mr. Lazier died the pottery was then moved to Belleville.

T. G. Wrightmeyer, of Belleville, writes that he worked in Hart's Pottery as a boy after it was moved to Belleville. He disclosed Morrell's Directory of 1884 listed the local pottery, as well as one in Picton, both owned by Hart and Lazier. Prior to this, he writes, Lazier was in business alone both in Belleville and Picton.

"None of these pottery works produced anything but crude pottery, such as churns, jugs, flower pots, cuspidors, five and ten-gallon crocks, and tile and rough kitchenware" Mr. Wrightmeyer related.

W. C. Pepper writes that as a young boy he used to play around the Hart-Lazier pottery on Mill Street. "It was situated on the south side of the street just before taking the turn to Tweed. I remember the show windows filled with all sizes of crocks, water holders for offices and schools, fancy urns, churns, and various sizes of white and dark brown jugs."

He recalled that the clay was ground in a shed by "horsepower." It was then taken upstairs where men spun it on a turntable, using foot pressure. Lumps of clay were then handworked by the potters to fashion urns and jugs. These pieces of pottery were then baked in a large wood-burning kiln.

A letter from Mrs. Bessie Handley, of Belleville, who was "born into the pottery business," states that as small children, she and her brothers and sisters used to work in the Belleville pottery, weighing the clay and making it into balls for the flower-pot machine.

Mrs. Handley writes that her father started work with the local pottery in 1885. She still has in her possession some of the urns, jars, figurines, and watch-chain ornaments made at the Stone-ware Works.

In his lengthy address Mr. Richardson also described the Sulpician Mission at "Kente", headquarters of missionary endeavor in southern Ontario during the late 1660's and 1670's and the life of the missionaries who were forced to live "as the Indians did." He described the filthy squalor of Iroquoian villages, early white settlements at Kingston (1783) and Adolphustown, and the municipal life of these towns; the log houses popular around 1785 which could be built in three days, and the social life of the eighteenth century, when partying and public balls were as popular as they are today.

He also touched on the important pioneer industries of the province, particularly in Hastings County from the 1820's to 1850's. Chief among these industries were the square-timber industry of the Trent, the Marmora Iron Works, and the Belleville Potteries.

Both the lumber trade and later the Marmora Iron Works were under the control of the Peter McGill clan, who emigrated from Scotland, he said.

"They were the 'big operators" of the day, who extended their lumbering activities also to the Saguenay, on the Ottawa, and even in New Brunswick. They had establishments in London and a fleet of close to 100 vessels on the Atlantic.

"The casting capacity of the Marmora Iron Works in the 1825's was around two tons daily, and by 1864 close to $300,000 was sunk in this venture," he said.

Another member of the clan, Allen Gilmore established a steam saw-mill at Trenton, Mr. Richardson disclosed, which employed over 100 men.

"The history of the Gilmore enterprizes is practically a history of Trenton," he said. "When the saw mill was liquidated at the end of the century, Trenton became dead."

"Now little concrete remains of the Loyalist period — the big corporations then in existence are gone, and only a few pieces of pottery now remain," Mr. Richardson concluded.

The speaker was introduced by John Chard and thanked by acting secretary, Miss Kay McFarland, of Napanee.

Prior to the meeting which was chaired by branch president, Dr. Gerald Allison, of Picton, a minute of silence was observed in memory of the late Mrs. R. S. McLaughlin, of Oshawa, who died January 9. Mrs. McLaughlin was senior honorary vice-president of the Bay of Quinte Branch.

A special memorial to Mrs. McLaughlin, a United Empire Loyalist descendant, prepared by past-president Claude Young, was made an official document to be preserved for posterity.

Among the distinguished guests was the Honorable Mr. Justice Moorhouse who in a brief address, urged members to keep a close eye on what is now going on in courthouses throughout the province.

"There is a movement to destroy priceless records to make room for new ones," he said. "I suggest you UEL associations do something about it or your history will be lost," he added.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market followed Wall Street's upward surge but on a smaller scale.

While the New York market was experiencing heavy buying demand which pushed the ticker-tape behind, the market here moved up in heavier-than-usual trading but buying was not enough to slow the tape.

Actually, the opening was the busiest and after the first half hour trading eased off. Investors at first interpreted the 20 per cent reduction of margin requirement to 50 per cent on American stock markets as a bullish factor and demand for interlisted stocks was heavy

But as the session progressed many investors returned to the sidelines to wait and see what happened at New York. Much of the buying was from the United States.

Volume at 11 a.m. was 892,000 shares, heaviest since Oct. 31 when 947,000 shares were exchanged in the first hour. During the same time Wednesday 403,000 shares were traded.

Industrials, led by issues listed both here and on Wall Street, jumped 3½ points on index. Utilities, steels and pipelines were among the stronger issues with gains ranging to more than a point. There were few losses and most of these were confined to lightly-traded stocks.

Mines and western oils moved upward on a more moderate scale with low-priced stocks moving in a 20-cent range and senior issues adding fractions. The oil index gained 1½ points and base metals early a point.

Historic Irish Hotel Collapses Taking 8 Lives

ENNIS, Ireland (CP) — Eight persons died Wednesday and 30 were injured in the collapse of a historic hotel in this County Clare village.

The floor of a crowded second-storey room gave way under the weight of a crowd attending the auction of furniture and equipment from Carmody's Hotel, which was sold recently.

The hotel became famous as the headquarters of Daniel O'Connell, 19th-century Irish Republican leader in his struggle for independence from Britain.

Would Cut U.S. Price Supports For Farm Crops

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today called for lower government price supports for major farm crops and dairy products, and an easing of production restrictions.

In a special message to Congress, Eisenhower laid out what he termed a "progress program" and said it would let farmers benefit more from "their own unparalleled ability to produce."

The program held out the prospect of eventual lower food costs for consumers.

In outlining his recommendations, he said it is essential that they be accepted this year to improve the status of rural people in greatest need, to aid agricultural adjustment, provide more freedom, expand markets and, thereby, to help raise farm-family income.

Rail Strike Called Off

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP)— Minutes before the deadline for a strike against the New York Central Railroad, a top official of the Order of Railway Conductors and Brakemen today issued an order postponing the walkout.

The strike was set to begin at 6 p.m. EST today against the Central's lines between New York City and Buffalo, N.Y. It was believed to have been the result of a conductors' protest over lay-offs.

J. A. Paddock, senior vice-president of the union, said 10 minutes before the deadline that "I have sent out instructions to all our people to postpone the strike pending further negotiations."

Paddock said union and railroad representatives would meet this afternoon at Syracuse, N.Y., in further talks about contract provisions. He did not explain what developments had caused the sudden order to postpone the strike.

Shriners and Ladies Enjoy Hospitality of Islam Caravan

A social event, unique in the history of this city, was held at Columbus Hall on Wednesday evening. The members of the Mystic Shrine and their fair ladies were the guests of Islam Caravan No. 109 and their Sultanas at a sea food buffet dinner. The intermingling of the two fezes, red and white, worn by the members of fraternal orders of different religions, was an example of how differences can be solved.

Eddie Lee, Grand Commander of the Islam Caravan, conceived the idea shortly after his election to the high office. His council highly approved the idea and the invitation went forth and the Shriners most readily accepted and at the close of the evening, the event was voted one of the most successful and amiable in a long line of splendid social events in this city. Not only did the Shriners from this city respond to the invitation, but members from Kingston, Trenton, Tweed and Madoc were on hand to participate in the fun and frolic.

The members of the Caravan, in their beautiful white fezes, were everywhere around, extending the hand of fellowship and seeing that everyone had a grand time. A cocktail hour preceded the main dinner and this was also an enjoyable affair. As the evening wore on, it was hard to tell the Shriners from the Caravan members as fezes were freely exchanged.

DELICIOUS DINNER

The sea food dinner was prepared by Murray Hunter and to say the table on which it was spread was a picture would be putting it mildly. Lobsters, shrimps, salmon were in abundance with all the trimmings, and gracing the centre of the table were a large-sized salmon, as he came from the water, but cooked, and a beautiful turkey, gaily decorated for the occasion. There were salads, sauces, fresh vegetables and everything that goes to make a delicious meal. The main course was topped off with ice cream and coffee.

To say that ample justice was done to a delicious dinner would be putting the facts simply. Good-natured banter was heard around the festive board and Paul Mercier and Doc Myles of Kingston led the sing-song, which was heartily enjoyed.

Mr. Lee extended the official welcome to the visitors in a brief but simple statement: "I have wanted to hold such a social evening between the two orders for a long time and this evening has proved my point. All I wish and it is the wish of every member of my Caravan is that everyone present has a real good time" John A. Weese, president of the Shrine Club; John R. Bush, Potentate's Aide and Orliff "Boiler" Lloyd, expressed the thanks of the Shriners and hoped that such social evenings would be held more often. Frank Domenico, Past Grand Commander of the Islam Caravan, said this evening only proved what a bunch of new and young officers in an order can do, and they are to be congratulated for the fine arrangements.

One member of the Caravan, Ken Fox, who is Master of the Oasis, came in for special praise. Ken, with his energetic committee, made all the arrangements for the affair and they were perfect in every detail. After the addresses, it was announced another social affair would be held, this time a dance, at which time all again would be invited. The date for the dance was set for February 7th.

After the tables were cleared, the happy assembly enjoyed dancing to juke box records until the early hours. It was a most delightful social evening.

Bahama Isles Virtually Bare Of Tourists

NASSAU, Bahamas (CP) — These British resort islands, whose population normally is doubled at this time of year by sun-seeking Canadian and American tourists, was virtually bare of visitors today as a general strike continued to grip the colony.

Efforts were being made to arrange a meeting between taxi drivers, whose walkout last Sunday touched off the general tieup, and the opposing transport interests the drivers accused of taking away their livelihood.

Meanwhile armed troops of the British Worcester Regiment, flown in Wednesday from Jamaica, patrolled the streets to continued on a 24-hour riot alert and all liquor outlets were closed by order of the governor.

CLOSE HOTELS

Every one of the 16 major tourist hotels in this capital of the group of some 700 tiny islands lying some 100 miles east of the southern tip of Florida had closed its doors by Wednesday night. A count Wednesday afternoon showed only 24 tourists in the capital, and most if not all of them are believed by now to have left the island.

Trans-Canada Air Lines, which has five flights weekly from Canada to Nassau, had no scheduled flight today. Officials in Toronto said Wednesday's flight was normal and there was no immediate indication that the next flight, Friday, would be cancelled..

Canadian travel agents, however, were advising their clients not to go to Nassau until the situation is clarified.

Many businesses along Bay Street, in the heart of this city of 20,000, boarded up their windows with hurricakne shutters. Food stores did a brisk business in canned goods.

TO AID POLICE

The government said in a statement that the 150 troops were brought in to relieve police for roving duty to prevent sabotage and intimidation of workers staying on their jobs.

Scattered attempts to sabotage some facilities have been reported, including dynamite attached to a power switch at the water supply and temporary interruption of some electrical services.

But there has been no outbreak of violence, and strike leaders have told their followers to avoid disturbances.

Four Goals in Final Ten Minutes Give Cubs 8-6 Win Over Kingston

TRENTON — The Trenton Juniors scored four goals in the final nine minutes and 45 seconds last night to defeat the Kingston Frontenacs 8-6 in the Community Gardens here.

The game was a thriller all the way and kept the 383 fans attending the game on the edge of their seats and cheering wildly. The win puts the Trenton team in a second place tie with the Kingston boys and 13 points behind the league leading Peterborough squad.

Guy Austin was the big gun for the winners, getting five of the Trenton goals and assisting on one other. Gerrard Vickers scored once and assisted in three others. Beatty and Scalleta were the other goal-getters.

For the losers Bill Gibson performed the hat trick with Bud Aylesworth nabbing a pair and Doug Senior sinking a single.

BEARCUBS SCORE FIRST

The Bearcubs took a 2-0 lead in the first seven minutes of the first period but Kingston tied the score at the 15.36 minute mark. Two minutes later Austin scored his third goal to put the Cubs ahead 3-2 at the end of the opening frame.

The Frontenacs came back fast in the second and with the period less than a minute old had the game all tied up for the second time. At 1.27 Beatty scored the only Trenton goal in the period to put his team in front again. However, Aylesworth and Senior teamed up to put the Kingston squad out in front with a 5-4 count at the end of the middle stanza.

At 5.10 of the third the Frontenacs picked up their sixth goal to give them a 6-4 lead. But from the middle of the period to the three-quarter mark Trenton scored three times to give them a one-goal lead in the game. With less than a minute to play the Kingston coach pulled out his goalie in favor of another attacker in a last ditch attempt to get the tying count. With the off-side deep in the Trenton zone Guy Austin found the puck, broke away and coasted in on the unattended Kingston net to sew up the game for the local squad.

During the rough-and-ready third period Bob Carandus and Kingston's Bob Kerey decided to take up boxing and when the referees got them apart they gave them five minutes in the penalty box to cool off. They were two of the six players who served time during the final frame. In the second three penalties were handed out and in the first only one.

To give example of the excitement of the game, two fans said they were at home listening to the C.J.B.Q. broadcast of the game but things became so exciting they dressed and came down to the rink to see it.

Injured Player Back in 2 Weeks

TRENTON — LAC "Buzz" Haugh of the Rockets, who was injured in last Monday's "historic" game with the F.I.S., is expected to be back playing with his team in another two weeks.

Haugh injured his shoulder running into the boards during the fast and furious third period when the Rockets whipped the officer team 6-2.

It was previously believed Haugh had dislocated his right shoulder, something that had occurred three times previously. However, on reporting to the RCAF station hospital the same night, it was found that his injury was not of a serious nature and he would be back in a hockey uniform after resting the shoulder for a couple of weeks.

Tonight six teams of the RCAF will meet at the Community Gardens here with the Falcons meeting Headquarters in the first game, Sparks and Rockets playing in the second and Combines meeting F.I.S. in the third.

Baby Is Born While Father Phones Doctor

TRENTON — It's not often the stork beats the doctor now-a-days, but it happened yesterday in nearby Smithfield, and "dad" had to assist in the birth of a new son without the aid of a doctor or nurse.

George Wright, projectionist at the Odeon theatre in Trenton, said his wife felt a sudden pain about 8 a.m. and told him to call the doctor just in case. Mrs. Wright was not expecting the baby for another two months.

He said he left his wife, "for the time it takes to call the doctor but when I returned to her bedside my family had increased."

Calls from a frantic husband were answered by a neighbor, Mrs. Betty Bannab who called a friend of hers, Mrs. Breeze, a registered nurse. The doctor arrived about 25 minutes later.

"Sure," Mr. Wright said, "the wife and my new son are coming along fine, but me, I'm a wreck."

The Wrights now have three boys, Bruce, 3; Gary, 18 months and the baby.

No Accidents, Fires

TRENTON — Police and fire department official books show nothing but blank pages for the past 24 hours.

Firemen have not been called out since last Sunday when two fires between 1 and 1.30 p.m. brought them on the run. Little damage was reported.

Town police have reported no burglaries or thefts for the past month.

Officials of the Trenton Memorial Hospital also report yesterday as a free day with no accident victims reported.

On Tuesday a local taxi driver was admitted and X-rayed for leg injuries following a head-on collision with another car. However, the leg was not broken.

Hunt for Captain, 2 Stewardesses After Ship Sinks

ALGIERS (CP) — Search continued in the western Mediterranean today for the captain and two stewardesses of the broken Norwegian tanker Seirstad, but it was feared they were lost.

French admiralty spokesman said messages received in Algiers clearly indicated that the three fell into the sea when the tanker broke apart during a storm early Tuesday.

Earlier it had been hoped that they might still be aboard the floating bow section of the ship.

The rest of the crew of 38 were rescued Wednesday from drifting sections of the ship near the Balearic Islands, off Spain's northeast coast.

Trainer Project Is Abandoned, Cost $6,000,000

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence department spent $6,000,000 on an electronic trainer project which was abandoned, Auditor-General Watson Sellar disclosed Wednesday.

His audit of the public accounts of Canada for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1957, was tabled in the Commons by Finance Minister Fleming.

Mr. Sellar cited the case of the trainer for the joint Maritime warfare school at Halifax as an example of projects which are abandoned after considerable development work and expenditure.

Mr. Sellar in his report questioned 27 other government financial transactions.

But he added: "Generally speaking, it was found that accounts were being faithfully and properly kept."

Some of the irregularities listed:

1. The works department paid an architect $48,675 for professional services in October, 1956, although the architect had died the previous July. The money was subsequently paid to the architect's firm but no release was obtained from the deceased's estate.

2. A foreign service officer in the external affairs department was granted 18 weeks' sick leave with pay though he had resigned from government service.

3. The Queen's Printer paid $5,730 for some supplies ordered from two commercial firms for the post office, which protested the billing as unreasonably high. The Queen's Printer then calculated it could have done the work itself for $2,856 less.

ASKS SPACE TALKS

RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP)— The president of the United Nations General Assembly called Wednesday for a meeting of world scientists and diplomats as soon as possible to consider "the future of man in a spatial world." Speaking at Fairleigh Dickinson University, Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand said such a meeting would lay the groundwork for a session of the UN General Assembly on space for peace.

THREE CENTS FOR GOVERNMENT

It is the fashion to talk about the high cost of government.

In the U.S., at least, it just isn't so. Running the government costs only three cents of the tax dollar.

Wars, past, present and future, take 75 cents. Of this total, 64 cents is for various national security programs, for arms, for the Atomic Energy Commission and for foreign aid and similar expenditures. Another 11 cents is required to pay the interest on the national debt, most of which is the result of past wars.

Of the remaining quarter, 22 cents is spent for civil benefits, a figure which foes of the welfare state may contend is high when compared to the three cents spent for running the government, but which would certainly be no real burden if mankind could devise some way to live in peace.

RUSSIA AND THE WORLD FAIR

Russia is reported to be planning to use this year's world fair in Brussels for propaganda purposes. It will endeavor to arrange such an impressive exhibit that it will "prove that it excels the United States in virtually every phase of human activity, from the technical to the artistic."

That is a tall order, but the Russians might just possibly fill it if the U.S. does not take the challenge seriously. The New York Times says that "whether we will actually do justice to ourselves in Brussels seems to rest largely on a decision Congress must make soon," when it decides whether an original appropriation of $15,000,000 for this purpose is to be cut to $12,000,000, as the government proposes.

The Times observes: "The competition Moscow proposes to give us is certainly one of the best and most constructive kinds imaginable, certainly better than many other types of Soviet competition."

There is that word "competition" twice in one sentence. Was that not once a dirty word in the lexicon of some, if not all, socialists? Believers in capitalism, though, have always regarded competition as one of the merits, rather than among the drawbacks, of the system. It follows that, if this theory is sound, competition from Moscow in the long run will benefit, rather than harm, the free world's economic system. Incidentally, the Russians will benefit too from the operation of a capitalistic principle, although they will probably dub it "socialist competition" just to make a former dirty word fit for use in polite Communist circles.

SPIKED CHOCOLATES

Watch out! That liquer chocolate you are reaching for will make you an offender under the Liquor Control Act.

A few days ago the Liquor Control Board of Ontario cleared the shelves in Ontario stores of some imported bon-bons which were reported to contain about seventeen per cent alcohol.

The LCB is not against the selling of chocolates providing they contain no more than 2.5 per cent alcohol. Any more than that violates the LCA and subjects both consumer and dealer to possible court action.

It was estimated that a person would need to eat a pound and one half of the seventeen per cent alcohol candy at one sitting to get the equivalent of an ounce and a half of alcohol. That would require someone with a very strong stomach and a terrific sweet tooth.

Sale of the chocolates was said to be causing concern in Toronto and even prompted a British couple in that city to write a letter to the editor of a newspaper asking: "Can we be assured that the sale of the above to minors is illegal and that persons driving on the Queen's highway with an open box of these intoxicants will be severely dealt with by the law?"

Maybe the letter writers had their tongues in their cheeks, but according to a dictionary, an intoxicant is something which causes a person to become drunk. Are these spiked chocolates intoxicants? Technically yes, but practically no. It would be interesting to watch someone eat enough of these candies to become intoxicated. Chances are that before he reached a mild glow he or she would be very ill, indeed.

With so many easier ways for getting a glow on it is almost impossible to conceive of anyone eating the liquer chocolates for that purpose alone. How silly can we get in enforcing some of our laws?"

THE LEADERS

The world is full of men who rush
To deeds that are but commonplace;
The trials men have faced before
And shown the way, they bravely face.

The plans that other men have thought
The thousands build on, day by day;
And fights that other men have fought
The thousands fight the self-same way.

But he who to the top would climb
Must join his fortunes with the few,
Must patiently abide his time
And learn to think as well as do.

The Land of Omar Khayyan

By Rex Keating in UNESCO Features

When the alarm clock rang, I tumbled out of bed straight away But with no reluctance — not even at 6 a.m. Sunlight streamed through the wide windows of my hotel bedroom in Teheran, capital city of Iran. The light sparkled and danced. It drew me irresistibly towards the windows and there, glorious to behold, were the Elburz Mountains, with the cone of Demavend rising in perfection to 18,000 feet. The sun was draining the last purple shadows out of the rocky folds and valleys, and through the open lattice a breeze blew down from the snow that glittered along the mountain tops

Below me was a small villa, flat-roofed as are all houses in these parts. And on the roof was a woman. She was unveiled and her dark eyes were lifted towards the mountains, drinking in the interplay of light on sky, snow and colored rocks. What was passing through her mind? Was she thinking perhaps of her remote ancestors, the Zoroastrians, who worshipped in fire temples and paid homage to the sun? Or was she wondering what to prepare for breakfast?

Which reminded me that I wasn't out of bed at 6 a.m. to admire the beauty of a Iranian dawn. No, I wanted to hear the getting-up exercises broadcast every morning by Teheran Radio. So on went the switch of my little portable wireless and on went the tape recorder.

• • •

The point is this. The exercises are traditional and the words chanted were written by a famous poet who lived close to a thousand years ago — Firdaussi. Iran must be the only country in the world where the morning programs begin with a recital of heroic poetry. So intriguing was this broad cast that I determined to investigate. And, as a result, some two weeks later I was privileged to witness the strangest athletics display I have ever seen, and the most exciting.

It took place in a famous athletic club in Teheran — but an athletic club with a difference. It is a lofty room, its walls painted with heroic scenes from Persia's 3,000 years or so of recorded history. The room is eight-sided and benches surround an octagonal ring sunk below floor level. The drummer is the Master of Ceremonies, and he sits high above the spectators with a drum on either side of him. He is naked from the waist up.

Suddenly there is movement from one side of the room and the spectators— there are about 60 of us — lean forward expectantly as ten men file into the ring, led by their captain — a huge figure of a man. The strong lights suspended from the domed ceiling throw back reflections from their muscles as they progress solemnly round the octagonal space. Each man wears nothing but a pair of breeches buckled below the knees and richly embroidered in traditional designs. They look magnificent. The drumming pauses and the Master of Ceremonies strikes the bell. As he does so, the athletes turn towards him and raise a shout in praise of God and of the Shah — their King. And so it begins. The Master of Ceremonies, in a great voice, declaims verses from the classical poets as the athletes seize great bars of iron and whirl them in time to the rhythm of the drums and with all the grace and precision of ballet dancers.

These exercises were laid down some 1,200 years ago to strengthen the muscles of Persian soldiers in their ceaseless struggle against barbarian invaders. And they have remained unchanged to the present day. Another interesting point; the members of the club are drawn from all levels of society; among them was a very senior Government official, while the Master of Ceremonies who played the drums and declaimed poetry was a taxi-driver in Teheran. The national sport of Iran is truly democratic.

• • •

Perhaps at this point I should explain what I am doing in Iran. With a portable tape recorder, I was collecting some of the fascinating sounds which form part of a country's pattern of life. And one of the commitments of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, commonly known as Unesco, is to do all in its power to preserve, or at least record, those parts of a country's culture threatened with extinction by the spread of industrialization.

A poet, and every Iranian writes or quotes poetry, once described the city of Isfahan as "half the world". But he died several hundred years ago and the greatness of Persia's former capital is no more than a memory. Yet so much of its beauty remains that I dare not begin to describe it in these few short lines. Instead I'd like to tell you about a brief visit I paid to Isfahan's broadcasting studio. There I found the "Children's Corner" in full swing. Crowded into a room, twenty tiny tots, pink-cheeked, grey-eyed — like so many Iranian children—sang their little songs with enormous solemnity. The oldest couldn't have been more than eight, and as each child finished, the teacher bent down and kissed it. Then she lifted up to the microphone a tiny boy, only three years old, not much bigger than a doll, yet he sang his little piece manfully — indeed we had difficulty in stopping him, I remember. With the snow falling outsile, he sang a nursery rhyme telling of the happy spring days to come.

As I left the studio, a jeep passed with all 20 children aboard, and as it passed a score of tiny hands flickered in the darkness and from twenty little throats came a concerted "Good-bye!" These children know not a word of English, yet their teacher had carefully coached them in this one word as they left the studio. An exquisite politeness is one of the most endearing of Iranian characteristics, that, and an almost unbelievable intensity of feeling for beauty, whether it be a rose tree beside a tiled fountain or a love song by Hafiz, the beloved poet.

• •

I was to see this demonstrated on the eve of my departure from Iran. We had been invited to the house of Iran's leading santur player. The santur is an instrument of ancient origins—it's described in manuscripts from the 10th century. In shape it is not unlike a zither but with a great many more strings, which are struck by tiny flexible hammers held in each hand Unlike occidental music, the santur is tuned to quarter tones which make it sound strange to Western ears.

Hussein Malik was a young man, lean-faced, with great dark eyes which could light up with astonishing intensity. To accompany him in his santur playing was a famous "zarb" player. The zarb is a drum, somewhat like a largish earthenware bottle with the bottom knocked out and with skin stretched across. The player uses the tips of his fingers, palms and knuckles — mostly of one hand.

Hussein Malik sat himself cross-legged in front of the santur, picked up the two little hammers and in a moment the room was filled with sound. He played a classical melody, improvising a system of modes. He played with eyes closed and his fingers flew over the strings with such speed that at times it was impossible to follow them.

I looked around the room. Some ten or twelve Iranian guests were present and they were leaning forward with shining eyes. Malik himself was transported, lost in the music he was creating. Four foreigners had been invited, a Canadian, a Frenchman, a Dutchman and myself. To our ears the music was strange, bizarre, yet we, too, were caught up in the wave of intensity that flowed through the room. Something flowed out of that young musician which was irresistible.

• •

We stepped out into the cold night air. At this late hour Teheran was deserted. A half-moon shone from a sparkling sky and along the street the snow tops of the mountains seemed to hang in the air. The spell was still upon us when down the street came padding a caravan, some twenty of the shaggy short legged camels of Iran, laden with merchandise. The bells at the camels' throats swung back and forth to the motion of the ungainly beasts. This, I felt, was Iran, the land of the miniature paintings, the land of Omar Khayyam. The caravan moved past, heading for the desert beyond the city, and we stood silent as the bells died eerily in the darkness.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE MIRACULOUS

Never will I cease to wonder. There are forces in the world that are forever in movement. I read Emerson because of his inspirational power. In one of his writings, called "The Hidden Source," he said: "The heart which abandons itself to the supreme Mind finds itself related to all its works, and will travel a royal road to particular knowledges and powers." There is a unity in the working of nature that inspires this in human beings. I feel like saluting everything beautiful, no matter where I meet it. We could not long exist if the earth did not constantly serve its food and treasures to us all. I have read that the negro scientist Dr. George Washington Carver "talked with flowers." I see nothing strange about this, for I do the same thing. I also bow to many a gigantic tree, like those Redwoods in California. You feel insignificant before them. When I look into the bloom of a rose I feel myself within it. I converse with the hills! I am a silent poet as I look out upon the sea, as it washes itself upon the sand, tossing shells that are a work of art, no matter how small they may be. There is something hidden within each shell that reminds us of the secrets within us, that they have been concealed by the Infinite. How can anyone doubt the existence of an Over-seeing Father as Creator upon this earth? You can read the evidence in a drop of dew upon any Springtime flower! You can see miracles anywhere if you will but cast your eye upon the commonest creations. Count the needles upon one pine tree, then upon another variety of pine. Why do the number of needles vary? I have often wondered. All Nature is a miracle.

Role in Education

Toronto Star

Our universities must have more money from government, a great deal more. If the federal government took over the main burden — and there is no real constitutional barrier against it, there is present usage for it — the provinces would then have more money to devote to elementary and secondary education. Public education can properly be a provincial matter. Let higher education be fully national and supported to the hilt by the national, Ottawa Ottawa, Government.

Baldness Is No Joke

Ottawa Citizen

On top of all the other hazards that bedevil modern man, a Russian physician, Dr. B. Doberskikh, has announced that tobacco, smoked in even small amounts, can cause baldness, among other disorders. This statement cannot be brushed aside as mere propaganda, designed as part of Russia's war of nerves against the West. For it was made in the article published in the Moscow newspaper. Young Communist Dr. Doberskikh must believe that what he says is true.

Even though it has evoked so much wry humor, baldness is a serious matter. A bald man jokes about his condition, only to hide his true feelings, which are revealed in the infinite care he takes to brush the sparse locks, or lock, remaining to him in such a way as to hide his baldness, if only partially.

Why should this be so? Baldness has existed, in one place or another, throughout recorded history. Statues and drawings of Greek philosophers and Roman politicians reveal baldness in some of its most acute forms. In the lusty Elizabethan age, Shakespeare wrote, "bald as pard." Since then, baldness has been apparent everywhere. Men should be used to it by now.

Yet they are not, perhaps because at no point is a man's vanity so easily injured as in the appearance of the top of his head. Consider the extraordinary lengths to which some young men go with their hair. The intricate patterns they achieve make a woman's coiffure seem dull. In mentioning baldness as a consequence of smoking, Dr. Dobarskikh has hit where it hurts. All the evidence indicates that smoking has nothing to do with baldness. But it is enough simply to mention baldness to raise uneasy doubts in the minds of smokers. Dr. Dobarskikh has undoubtedly caused some anxiety. It is to be hoped he goes no farther, returns to his practice and stops dabbling in research.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

Thyroid Is Iodin Cloaked With Mystery

In most cases persons with hypothyroidism (functional deficiency of the thyroid gland — the gland just under the Adam's apple that is enlarged in goitre) have to take their daily ration of desiccated thyroid — one or two tablets — or if not daily then at least once or twice a week, permanently. But in some cases, according to a Wisconsin physician who has studied the problem for many years, only a temporary lift with the thyroid seems necessary.

Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan lie in the Great Lakes basin and are in the very middle of the goitre belt that stretches across United States just north of the Mason-Dixon line from Boston to Seattle. In this basin and belt, the soil and water are deficient in iodin; and simple goitre, evidenced by more or less swelling or enlargement of the neck, is prevalent in school children who for one reason or another don't get enough iodin.

Although physicians and health authorities have long recognized the striking similarity, if not the identity of iodin deficiency and hypothyroidism and the necessity of a suitable iodin ration for growing children — to prevent goitre — there is still considerable doubt in the medical mind whether iodin is more or less effective than desiccated thyroid in the prevention or treatment of simple goitre, exophthalmic goitre, hypothyroidism or cretinism.

Now I have my notion about this — but let's keep calm, I won't say they're all out of step but Brady. Suffice at the moment that I can't see the sense of relying upon iodin alone to prevent the conditions mentioned, yet insisting of desiccated thyroid for treatment. Can it be because the doctor is so fond of mystery?

The Wisconsin physician says: "A symptom of hypothyroidism not mentioned often in the literature is headache. The most frequent cause of daily headache is hypothyroidism, and treatment of the hypothyroid condition" (that is, daily doses of desiccated thyroid) "oftel gives dramatic relief."

Much of the thyroid given to patients in the United States and Canada has stood on drugstore shelves not for months but for years. Thyroid becomes inert over three months old. So the doctor sees to it that freshly made tablets are supplied to patients. He observed in a case of myxedema (hypothyroidism with dropsy-like swelling of face and hands) that response to thyroid therapy would be good for a while, then the patient would relapse. Then a change to freshly prepared desiccated thyroid and the response would again be satisfactory. Perhaps desiccated thyroid preparations, like insulin, antitoxin and other organic products, should bear a date.

Thyroid therapy may be unsatisfactory because the patient fails to take his daily or weekly ration regularly, or because the hyroid "extract" or other preparation has lost its potency. Iodin therapy has the advantage that iodin in any form does not lose its potency with age.

KEEP YOUR LIGHTS ON

Reflector signs on the highways have proved a great blessing to drivers. The car headlights illuminate signs painted in such a way as to make the lettering stand out vividly.

But reflector signs are of no value unless you have headlights and have them turned on. You have to throw light against the signs before they show up the directives. You have to have light proceeding from your car before the reflectors prove of any value. Your light is essential.

The great truths that humanity has discovered — mostly at the cost of hard experience — stand out as warnings, directives, and encouragement along life's pathways. Some are inscribed on the pages of world history. Some are held within the covers of our literary classics. The Bible is the greatest of all such repositories. But much of life's greatest wisdom is also carried about in the minds and hearts of everyday people. It is all available to us — but on condition. We must bring eagerness and understanding to bear on this body of knowledge and experience if it is going to be of any help to us.

There must be light in our minds and souls before we can interpret what the world's wisdom has to say to us. Reflector lights probably save the lives of thousands of people every year. But they are of use to us only if we keep our headlights on.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

What would we do if, on answering a ring on the front door bell, we found a well-dressed gentleman standing there who, on our opening, burst into a loud, clear commercial.

At the top of his well-modulated lungs, he would start reciting the merits of some soap powder in each and every package of which there is a premium in the shape of a sterling silver table napkin ring.

Supose the door bell kept ringing all day, from about 7 a.m. to midnight. And every time we answered, there would be the well-dressed gentleman facing us, shouting his spiel.

It is the most astonishing thing about radio and TV, the people we not only don't slam our doors on, but actually invite in to sit with us.

The fall-fair, midway, circus spielers are bad enough. Even if it isn't kitchen gadgets, fabulous paring knives or miraculous food choppers our announcers are selling, most of them sound like side-alley pitchmen. But when it comes to entertainers, how many of the actual performers would we admit into our homes in person? Jazz molls, corner boys, hot and hep. There is a song now fading from the air called, as far as I can make out, "Rockabilly." The quartets and soloists who perform it hardly ever pronounce it Rockabilly. They call it Rackabilly. Real tough. Rack-rack-rack, they shout. Rackabilly.

Ya gatta be tough to sing Rackabilly Out of the side of your mouth. That is, to get on the big networks, or in the million class of records.

We'd send for the police if they called at the door. But we let them come in through the magic box and sit on the sofa with us.

Dr. Russell Scott Elected Fair President for 4th Year; Fine Reports Given Meeting

Members of the Belleville Agricultural Society, who met last night in the city council chambers for the society's annual meeting, voiced unanimous approval over the 1957 Belleville Fair, the way it was organized and the exemplary manner in which co-operation was extended by everyone concerned with it.

Dr. Russell Scott, president of the society, briefly addressed the handful of members present. He "sincerely enjoyed working with all of you during the past three years as your president. We have had a good fair and a good society. I must say your co-operation in everything has been exemplary.

"Last year's fair was better than the one of the year before, much better."

A financial statement prepared by J. R. Dickey, C. A., and submitted by the society's treasurer Robert Phillips, showed the society ended 1957 with $4,681.03 in the bank after expenditures of $33,735.65 for permanent improvements at the fair grounds. The expenditures included monies received from federal and provincial and municipal grants.

ELECT OFFICERS

In the election of officers and directors for 1958, Dr. Scott was re-elected for his fourth term as president. Ben Bleecker, secretary for the past two years, was re-elected and granted a car allowance of $500 per year to add to his annual honorarium of $1,200. First vice-president is Carl Thompson, who last year, was a junior director. He replaces Fred Wilson who gratefully declined nomination to make room "for a man who someday may be called on to fill the president's chair."

The second vice-president is John R. Bush. Treasurer Robert Phillips was re-elected and given a $100 increase to his previous $650 annual honorarium. The president still gets $100 per year.

The directors are James Barber, Dr. Harry Burns (DVM), Erle Denyes, James Garbutt, Corah Howard, Jack McArthur, Sam Nicolson, Harry Rollins, W. D. Reid, Elmer Sandercock, M.P.P., Harry Smith, Don Spencer and Fred Wilson. Mayor Gerald Hyde is a director, ex-officio, by reason of his office as mayor.

Junior directors are Douglas Harry, Douglas Rollins, Carl Reid, Harvey Homan, Robert Burkitt and Delbert McComb.

J L. Dickey was again retained to audit the society's books.

Dr. Scott announced that about 20 new horse stalls at the fair grounds were completed yesterday and that all were rented before completion.

The president described Mr. Bleecker, the secretary, as being a "wonderful help . . . he's on the job all of the time . . . and he does great work." He also paid tribute to Mr. Phillips, the secretary, who does "great work at a terrific job."

"Ben Bleecker and Bob Phillips are a good team. The fair couldn't have gone over so well without such men," said Dr. Scott.

The Parks Board, city council, district communities and the press were also thanked by the president for their support and co-operation.

Sidney MacDonald, the new Department of Agriculture representative, who replaced A. O. Dalrymple, was introduced to the society and acted as returning officer for the elections.

Mr. MacDonald said he was "looking forward to working in Hastings County and, in particular, working in Belleville." He said the Belleville Fair was looked upon by residents of Northumberland County, in particular, as a fine annual exhibition.

COMMITTEE REPORTS HEARD

Mr. MacDonald congratulated the president, committee members and other officers for organizing and running such fine fairs in the past few years.

Reports from various committee chairmen were heard. Fred Wilson, of the horse committee, pointed out that many exhibitors came to the '57 fair from distant points. This, he felt, was a good sign toward statements already made that the local fair need take second place to none in Ontario. He suggested signs be posted to direct exhibitors and visitors to the various displays at the 1958 fair.

Don Spencer, of the 11-man cattle committee, remarked that 202 head of cattle were exhibited last year at the fair, in addition to the "fine" 4-H Club display. He said the cattle barns can accommodate another 100 head.

"The prize money," he said, "is as good here as at any other fair of comparable size in Ontario. All in all, we had a good cattle exhibit. I hope this year we have an even larger one."

Carl Thompson, who was chairman of the junior show, said that the new junior building was certainly an asset to the fair. "Next year," he said, "we hope to have a better exhibit."

Dr. Scott pointed out that many people have said the junior show was the best they had seen anywhere in the province.

Mr. Thompson spoke briefly about a plan the Hastings County Junior Farmers' Club is implementing. The club will send a truck anywhere in the county to pick up cattle for exhibit at the fair and it will pay someone to exhibit those cattle if the owners cannot attend.

The society's president was pleased to learn that several cattle men in the northern part of the county are "interested" in exhibiting at Belleville. However, Dr. Scott felt that if they chose to do that, they should look on the Belleville fair as a county fair and still patronize their local fairs in the north.

KEEP BREEDS TOGETHER

James Garbutt, chairman of the sheep and swine committee, said it would be "nice" to designate certain pens for specific animals and adhere to keeping animals of one species separate from others.

J. R. (Judge) Messervey, chairman of poultry, said: "Last year we had the finest and strangest poultry show ever exhibited in Ontario. We had sheep and cattle mixed with our poultry."

Livestock, especially cattle, were penned in the poultry building to fulfill an agreement between the fair board and the provincial government. If no cattle were in the building, which was intended to house cattle, then the provincial government would only allow the fair 75 per cent of the provincial grant. As it was, with a few cows penned there, the fair received 100 per cent of the provincial grant.

Mr. Messervey said several of the birds exhibited were champions at Ottawa and Toronto.

"We want quantity and quality," he said, "but no cattle."

Dr. Scott assured him no cattle would be penned alongside the poultry exhibit this year.

Harry Smith, chairman of the track and maintenance committee, would like to see a "proper top" added to the grandstand.

The president said Mr. Smith did a "tremendous job. Harry saw to it that every nickel of the $33,000 spent in improvements to the grounds was put to proper use."

Sam Nicolson, head of the fruit committee, would like to see fruit and baking exhibits protected from children "sniping" them "at least until after the judging." Dr. Scott suggested coarse mesh chicken wire be placed around those exhibits in keeping with what is done at many other fairs.

FINE GRANDSTAND SHOW

Ridley Wallbridge, chairman of roots and vegetables, said last year's display was of "good quality."

In the absence of the chairman of the flower committee, Harry Rollins reported on behalf of that group. He cited the exhibit last summer as "the greatest exhibit of flowers we have ever had in Belleville."

Chairman of the attractions committee, Mr. Rollins said that for $9,563.29, "we had the best attractions — outside of the RCMP Musical Ride — that we've ever had here. But I think we had things in reverse. The Lone Ranger and Lassie should have been brought on during the first day to attract more people. As it was, we lost out. The George Hamid production, "Stairway to the Stars" was the greatest production we have ever had. It was a shame that so many people missed it."

Jim Barber, chairman of horse racing, thought it was a good thing that the fair was limited to two days of horse racing. He said the track was in excellent repair.

Dr. Scott mentioned that only the other day a 2.20 class horse paced a mile on the track in 2.10.

SPLENDID HORSE EXHIBIT

William Reid, chairman of programming and announcing for the horse show, said that the Belleville Fair was visited last year by a Canadian champion, a best-horse-of-the-year, and a world champion, in addition to a number of animals that had received many first and second place ribbons at Ottawa and Toronto.

Corah Howard predicted the "best horse show ever" to come to Belleville this year with strong competition from stables at Brooklin, Ont.

Suggestions were made to increase prize money in the light horse class; to differentiate between a pony and a horse; to have a parade of horses every day of the fair in front of the grandstand; to provide more prizes for children. It was also suggested that the directors consider hiring a Peterborough man to run a tractor-drawn train around the fair grounds as a special treat for children. John Bush made the suggestion that a light lunch be prepared for exhibitors during which fair officials could become acquainted with them.

The meeting lasted three hours and 45 minutes.

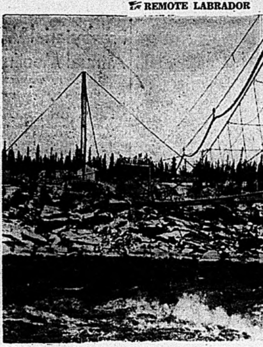
REMOTE LABRADOR



British Newfoundland Corporation workers cross a recently erected footbridge over the Hamilton River in Labrador, a quarter-mile upriver from the Grand Falls. The footbridge provides access to the spot where the corporation is exploring the power potential of the river and falls, estimated as high as 6,000,000 horsepower. In this photo, taken late last year, can be seen to the left of the bridge part of a cableway which will enable loads of 25 tons to be moved across the turbulent river. Grand Falls are 250 feet high and 1 1-2 times as high as Niagara Falls. They are 250 miles west of the Labrador coast and 80 miles from the big northeastern Quebec iron-ore project at Knob Lake. The corporation is a syndicate of major companies exploring the area. (CP Photo).

Gift to Ceylon May Be Illegal

OTTAWA (CP) — The possibility arose Wednesday that Canada's $3,000,000 gift of flour to Ceylon as a flood-relief measure is an irregular government financial transaction.

In the public accounts for the 1956-57 fiscal year, tabled Wednesday in the Commons, Auditor-General Watson Sellar classed a similar government transaction in 1956 as irregular.

The gift to Ceylon is being made under the Colombo plan for economic aid to South and Southeast Asia, the government announced Monday. Mr. Sellar said the Colombo plan is for economic aid, not relief.

Wedding

SPENCER — HERAULT

On Friday, January 10th, at 2.30 p.m. a quiet wedding linking two countries, took place in the City Hall, Toronto, when Colette Herault, of Paris, France, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Herault, of Paris, France, was united in marriage to Flight-Sergeant Carmen Stewart Spencer, of Camp Borden, Ontario, son of Mrs. James C. Spencer, of Kingston, and the late Mr. Speancer. The magistrate performed the ceremony.

The bride was attractively attired in an imported gown of pink French lace over satin with imported white satin hat, and accessories. She was attended by Mrs. James C. Spencer, of Kingston, mother of the bridegroom, while Mr. Arthur Harding, of Toronto, attended the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, where the guests were received by the bridegroom's mother, wearing a pink sheath gown with black topcoat and matching hat, and corsage of pink carnations.

For travelling to the southern United States, the bride travelled in a pale blue ensemble, with shortie muskrat jacket, and matching pale blue hat.

The bride is a graduate in philosophy and law.

Guests were present from Toronto, and Kingston.

Alliance A.F.G. Holds Social Get-Together

Thirty - two happy members and friends of the Alliance Tabernacle Adult group met for a social get-together last evening in Trenton, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Simmons, 196 MacLellan Avenue, with the pastor, the Reverend Sackville Palmer, presiding.

Following the invocation by Mr. Harold Ward, a time of favorite hymn singing was enjoyed, with Mr. Palmer leading, and Miss Grace Veley presiding at the piano. After the singing, a few precious promises were voiced for the ensuing days of the year 1958, followed by a brief but impressive talk by Mr. Palmer on the "Value of Prayer".

A short business session was held, and a nominating committee chosen to elect the new executive, also the designating of those for "K.P." duty and for those who would serve at the close of the meeting.

The program, under the direction of Mr. H. J. Vasselin, of Middleton Park, consisted of games of skill, and the testing of one's orientation when blindfolded, all of which were amusing and interesting. The lucky winners were awarded with suitable prizes for the prowess shown.

Appreciative thanks were expressed to the host and hostess for their kind hospitality; to the program convener for the contests and games of skill, to Mr. Palmer for his helpful talk, and to all who had assisted in making the evening so enjoyable.

Bounteous refreshments of sandwiches, cake, coffee and tea were served.

Contact Club Welcomes 3 New Members

The first 1958 meeting of the Contact Club of Christ Church took place on Monday evening in the parish hall. President Helen McCormick welcomed three new members, Doreen Chambers, Gladys Clare and Thelma Stefan, and also introduced the group leaders for the year, Barbara Bertram, Dorothy Green, Trudy Sands and Nadine Thorne.

Treasurer Molly Kerr gave her report and Catherine Roulet told the club about the last vestry council meeting. Members were reminded of the Bible classes being held each Sunday after the evening service.

Extensive plans for both work and social activities during the new year were discussed — final decisions to be arrived at during next week's business meeting.

The evening was brought to a close with a game under the direction of Evelyn Clarke and refreshments served by hostesses Marjorie Bunnett, Margaret Niles and Mary Rompen.

Dr. G. Currie To Speak Here

Dr. G. A. W. Currie, administrator of the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, will address the Women's Hospital Auxiliary at their annual luncheon held at Hotel Quinte on Tuesday, January 21st, at 1.15 p.m. on the topic, "Hospital Administration."

During World War II, he served with the R.C.A.M.C. and rose to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel. After the war, he enrolled at Columbia University, from which he graduated with his M. A. degree in hospital administration, later accepting an administrative post at the Colorado Medical Centre, University of Colorado, Denver. Subsequently he became administrator of the University Hospital, at the University of Texas, Galveston, Texas.

On September 1st of last year, Dr. Currie assumed his new duties in Toronto, and will bring to his audience a wealth of interesting information on the running of hospitals.

Kinette Club Presents Pins to New Members

The regular meeting of the Kinette Club of Belleville was held Monday evening at St. Thomas' parish House. Edna Brenot acted as Sergeant-at-arms. The song leaders were Isobel Miller and Eileen Fitzpatrick, assisted by Marg Hallam as pianist. Thirty members were present.

Mary Atkinson collected birthday money from three members while "Happy Birthday" was sung.

Betty Sullivan read the secretary's report, and the treasurer's report was given by Elsie Smith.

Mary Stark reported that the draw on the Christmas doll and wardrobe was a success and Norma Bacon that the sale of Christmas cards, though hard work, was worthwhile and successful. The books for the Easter draw were distributed and the prize is a Government bond.

President Phyllis Fraser invited three new members to come forward, Mary Atkinson, Jackie Stewart and Leween Bartleman. The past presidents, Mary Lang, Helen Wilbur, Marg Hallam, Maude Rollins, Jean Smith, proceeded to acquaint the new members with Kinsmanship from the description of the Kinsman Crest, and its meaning; highlights of the National Kinsmen Club since its inception in 1920, and the Kinette Clubs which began in 1939, down to the local Kinsmen Club which has been active since 1933, and the local Kinette Club which was sponsored by the Kingston Kinette Club in 1949.

As the nine candles were lit representing each year of the Kinette Club, President Phyllis presented each new member with a Kinette pin and a copy of the by-laws. The rest of the members joined hands to form a ring around the new members and sang the Kinette song.

President Phyllis asked Jackie Stewart, the newest member, to cut the birthday cake.

Jean Sisler demonstrated how the coin boxes were to be assembled for the "March of Dimes."

The remainder of the meeting was spent in completing the display. When the project was completed, tea was served with a piece of the birthday cake.

Mrs Keith Bray sang "Around the World I Search for You."

Edna Tanner gave a paper on "How We Got Our Emblems," describing how the Dominion, also the provinces of Canada, got their crests, arms and floral emblems.

Sharon Wickens sang "Tammy" and Miss Margaret Wright read an interesting paper on "The History of Wales." The convener, Mrs. Vinnecombe, said that she had been born in Wales, so that was the reason she chose the subject on "Wales."

Mrs. W. French read a poem, "Don't Quit."

Mrs. McInroy conducted a contest.

Mrs. Fleming and her assistants served refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

ELDORADO BANNOCKBURN W. I.

Mrs. Irwin, the district president from Rylstone, took charge, bringing greetings from the Provincial Board. She also gave a fine talk on "Women in the World Today", and the great work they were doing, encouraging the Institute to keep on in their good work. She brought many points where they could improve the society. This was much enjoyed by all present.

A gift was given for the new baby in the community, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Evans.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistant, and a social half hour enjoyed.

STIRLING W. I.

STIRLING — On Monday evening Mrs. Doug Ackers opened her lovely new home to the officers, members and visitors of the Stirling Women's Institute for the January meeting.

Mrs. E. Foster, president of the society, conducted the business of the meeting. Thank-you's, correspondence, for the Christmas treats distributed by the W.I., also for fruit sent to the sick, were read.

The president outlined the work of the sewing committee, as on a previous day some of the members attended an all-day quilting with a potluck dinner and supper at the home of Mrs. W. H. Cooke, James Street. Two quilts have been completed, ready to give assistance to "burned-out" families.

The president is asking for print patches to start another quilt and have in readiness if the occasion arises for help. This is work the W.I. has been doing for years in assisting the Salvation Army.

The oncoming card party has been arranged and prizes have been cheerfully donated.

The next meeting was discussed and arrangements are in the making for another successful night.

Mrs. Doug Ackers staged several games which needed skill to win.

Mrs. L. Bronson gave the topic, "Canadian Activities and Public Relations." Communities Activities can be such a thanksgiving undertaking, forgetting the object of self praise and Public Relations starts with that old saying, "To have good neighbors, we must be a good neighbor."

Mrs. E. Foster gave a reading entitled "Driver's Manners."

The closing number was the showing of colored slides on the screen by Mrs. L. Bronson. "All around us is beauty," the sloping hills, the lovely flowing creek, and a beautiful sunset.

Light refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. S. McMurray and Mrs. C. Wright.

A lively sing-song was conducted by John Deacon, the new song leader, assisted by Dave Vice, one of the guests.

When the dishes were cleared away thanks were extended to the ladies who assisted with the supper, by Phil Allcorn.

On behalf of the social committee, greetings were extended to Art Marshall, Joe Shortt, Glen Shaver, Vic White, and W. J. Morrison who celebrated birthdays in the month of January, and to Don and Mrs. Leslie, and Frank and Mrs. Ruggles who celebrated wedding anniversaries this month. Greetings and well wishes were also extended to Harry Ackerman, presently ill in the Belleville General Hospital.

OFFICERS INSTALLED

The installation of the officers for 1958 was made by the Rev. Robert Sherwin, who also presented the president's gavel to Mr. Raymond Gunsolus. The following is the list of the executive members for 1958:

Honorary president, the Rev. Harry Davis; past president — Taylor Franklin; president — Ray Gunsolus; vice-president — Everett Fairman; chaplain— the Rev. Robert Sherwin; secretary — Rex Chaplin; treasurer — Danny Cox.

COMMITTEE CHAIRMEN

Club extension — Taylor Franklin; fellowship — Glenn Shaver; boys and youth — Vic White; attendance — Stan Reston; bulletin editor — Bryson Leslie; program — Everett Fairman; song leader — John Deacon; membership and reception — Art Clare; finance and projects — Bill Deline; house — Dave Thompson; social — Don Leslie; public relations — A. Banting; community service — Stuart Robb; and bulletin dispatcher — Wilfred Holmes.

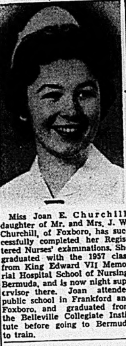
The speaker of the evening, Dr. Harold Swann, of Albert College, was introduced by past president Taylor Franklin. Dr. Swann spoke on the subject "Foundation of Federation in the West Indies."

For many years Dr. Swann was in the work of establishing and building schools, churches and missions in the West Indies. His work there commenced in 1928 and continued until a few years ago when he returned to Canada.

COLORED SLIDES

The talk was illustrated with numerous beautiful slides which he had taken in Jamacia, Barbados and in Trinidad and around the Caribbean Sea. Slides of the exotic flowering trees and shrubs, coca and coffee trees and of the cocoanut palms prouded an interesting and informative background for his talk on the location, climate, and products of the Islands. This was followed by additional slides and a talk on the work of the Christian Church in the West Indies.

In co-operation with the government, the Canadian Missions during the past 90 years have provided many public and high schools and churches which now include on their curriculum, as well as regular subjects, such as music and household science. These schools are working hand in hand with the churches to provide Christian leaders for a solid foundation for the Federation of the West Indies.



Miss Joan E. Churchill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Churchill, of Foxboro, has successfully completed her Registered Nurses' examinations. She graduated with the 1957 class from King Edward VII Memorial Hospital School of Nursing, Bermuda, and is now night supervisor there. Joan attended public school in Frankford and Foxboro, and graduated from the Belleville Collegiate Institute before going to Bermuda to train.

Presbyterial WMS Holds Annual Meeting in Kingston

By WILHELMINA GORDON

The Kingston Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society, Presbyterian Church in Canada, held its annual meeting on Monday in St. Andrew's Church, Kingston. On that beautiful winter morning members of Auxiliaries travelled from as far as Gananoque and Trenton, Amherst Island and West Huntingdon, and gathered in the William Gill Memorial Hall. The meeting was preceded by an executive meeting, at which Mrs. Parsons, Belleville, and Mrs. Williamson, Trenton, were appointed delegates to the synodical meeting in Toronto in April and Mrs. Sankey gave an invitation to hold the summer rally at Gananoque on May 28.

After the president, Mrs. C. A. Smart, opened the annual meeting, Mrs. George Williamson, Trenton, led a short, beautiful service, and Mrs. P. M. Macdonnell, Kingston, cordially welcomed the delegates. The various secretaries presented reports of work in their departments; then the members divided into three groups, under Mrs. Craig, Mrs. Macdonnell and Mrs. Williamson to discuss three related subjects, stewardship, bringing in new members, and interesting and training young people in the work of the church.

Miss Ruby Walker, regional secretary, and Mrs. H. Keefer, Trenton, vice-president of the W.M.S. Council, both admirable speakers, presented the results of these discussions. "Stewardship as a principle and a policy is working well, they agreed, but we must remember that stewardship applies to time and talents as well as to money. They urged each member to influence others to join the auxiliaries, and they stressed the importance of "schools for training in leadership" and of forming in each congregation a Christian education group, including the minister, the Sunday Schol superintendent, and two members from each organization; they pointed out, too, that each leader of a young mission group should herself be on the executive of an adult auxiliary.

BOOK DISPLAY

Miss Tena Watt, Foxboro, called attention to the interesting display of books; Mrs. Yorke of Belleville gave the closing prayer, and the meeting adjourned to the church hall to enjoy refreshments provided by the Women's Home Association, under the direction of Mrs. W. G Elder and Mrs. Kinnear Reid, who were heartily thanked at the afternoon session.

This session was held in the church, where Mrs. Preston played the organ to accompany the hymns and a solo by Mrs. Lusby. Mrs. Clark and Mrs. McLean, Pittsburg, led a fitting short service, and Mrs. Sankey, Gananoque, in an especially beautiful "In Memoriam" service, mentioned the nine members of the Presbyterial, and the three ministers in the Presbytery, who had died within the year.

After the recording secretary, Mrs. Penwarden, had called the roll of Auxiliaries, the treasurer, Miss M. Nesbitt, gave her clear and encouraging report; even apart from a most helpful legacy, giving had increased. The president referred to the recent appointment of Miss Louise Reith, as W.M.S. director of organization; she is outstanding in ability, background, and experience, as all know who have used her study programs and who have heard of her work on church and inter-church committees.

OVERSEAS WORK

Miss Mary Whale, W.M.S. executive director of overseas missions, addressed the meeting. She had brought typed copies of an outline of the overseas work, which were distributed by Miss McFarlane, president of the Evening Auxiliary. This outline indicated clearly the work done by the missionaries in British Guiana, India, Nigeria, Japan, and Taiwan, as well as grants given for other work. Miss Whale spoke of their important educational and medical service in training teachers and nurses, of the Christian influence exerted by hospitals and mobile units, and also by individual Christians through their way of life. She spoke of young Christians in Korea and Taiwan, learning the administration of churches and hospitals, of Agnes Gollan in Nigeria and Helen Acton in India, who by their teaching, nursing and example are showing many girls how to live a Christian life.

Mrs. Weir, Belleville, thanked the speaker; Miss Fleming, Ivanhoe, thanked the hostesses; Mrs. MacDonald, Pittsburg, named those nominated for office; these were elected, and were installed in a brief service of dedication by the Rev. Dr. Gordon, who also pronounced the benediction. The Catherine Fairlie Auxiliary, helped by the Evening Auxiliary, gave the members a delightful tea; and all went their several ways.

The picture that flashed on was of a dandiefied, turn-of-the-century tycoon eating a boiled egg and a colored waiter hov[illegible]ng over him.

[illegible] made me realize I was hungry and without waiting to see why an egg-eating scene was included in the unfolding drama, I turned off the machine, carried the baby to the kitchen and made a poached egg on toast—with one hand. His little eyes followed my every move and I would not have changed places with the Queen.

For this time of year eggs are low in price. If you use your imagination you can lower the budget, raise your nutrition standard sand improve the complexion of your meals — and husband and children.

COUNTRY POACHED EGGS

One tablespoon butter, ¾ to 1 cup light cream, 4 eggs, 4 slices hot buttered toast, salt, pepper and paprika. Melt butter in frying pan, add cream, and heat to bubbling. Slide the eggs in one at a time and cook [illegible] low heat till whites are [illegible] around the edges. Cover and cook until done as you like them. Arrange eggs on toast on plates, season, then pour over the hot cream from the frying pan.

SUPPER SCRAMBLE

Six eggs, 6 tablespoons milk, ½ teaspoon each celery salt and salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons fat, 1 cup drained canned peas or mushrooms (sliced.) Beat the eggs till light. Ad dthe liquid, seasonings. Melt fat in top of double boiler, and eggs, peas or sliced mushrooms and cook over hot water, stirring occasionally, until eggs are set. Be careful not to mash the peas when stirring. Serve on toast and garnish with paprika and parsley.

DEVILLED EGGS

[illegible]ve hard-cooked eggs le[illegible]nwise or crosswise, remove yolks and mash yolks with salad dressing to molsten and season as desired. Refill egg whites. Various suggested Seasonings to be used in addition to salt and pepper: — 1) a little dry mustard or prepared mustard, 2) finely crumbled bay leaf, dash of curry powder, rosemary, thyme, oregano or celery seed; 3) grated or scraped raw onion or garlic powder; 4) finely diced celery, green pepper, pimento, chopped nuts, olives or chopped pickle, 5) mashed sardines, anchovy paste or chopped shrimp. Also note chili sauce or catsup may be used in place of salad dressing.

FINE CLOTH

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Sally T. — The child would be better off with me.

Myra M. — She adores me and I adore her!

• • •

Sally T. — My brother and sister-in-law were killed in a tragic accident not long ago. They left a 4-year-old little girl.

Since that time the child has been living with my mother and my unmarried sister. My mother is ailing and my sister goes to work. As a result, she has put the child in a nursery school during the day.

My sister, Myra, says she wants to keep Dorothy and bring her up as her own. Now Myra is nearly 40 and unmarried, so it doesn't look as though she'll ever be able to make a proper home for the child. I have three boys and I would love to complete my family with a little girl. I really feel that the child would be better off with an experienced mother like me.

• • •

Myra M. — Why do people assume that a single woman would not make a good mother? Dorothy has been thriving with me, in spite of the shock of her parents' death. She adores me and I adore her and she says she wants to stay with me.

I have a very good job and can give Dorothy the best of everything. I am prepared to devote myself to her welfare.

It is true that I have had no experience in motherhood, but I don't feel that my sister is so wonderful, despite her experience. She does not have a happy home. She and her husband fight a lot and have separated twice. I think she has done a very poor job with her own boys. In any case, I don't see why she should have everything she wants.

• • •

The Council: Despite their genuinely loving motives, these sisters have a great deal of self-interest in this matter. They should recognize that the child's welfare is the only important question.

Since they do not have the objectivity to determine this, they should be willing to let one or more competent outsiders offer their recommendations. A family service bureau would probably be best equipped to delve deeper into the matter and give advice.

Myra should realize people do not "assume that a single woman would not make a good mother." They do assume that in most cases she cannot provide the best home conditions for a child. A home with a businesswoman and an ailing, elderly woman, such as Dorothy now has, would not be considered the best choice by most persons concerned with child welfare.

On the other hand, Myra's accusations about Sally's home would have to be seriously looked into by unbiased parties. It is possible that they could offer a third alternative.

In any case, a decision by competent outsiders might take some of the bitterness out of this struggle between the sisters. Whatever happens, it is important for this unfortunate child to have loving relatives. She should never be made to feel like a bone of contention. Each sister should contribute in whatever way is open to her to Dorothy's welfare.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

THEIR HOUSEWARMING SHOULD BE GIVEN IN THEIR HOUSE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have just moved into a very simple little one-storey house which we bought We are so happy about it, and were planning to give a housewarming to welcome our relatives and close friends. I thought it could be a very "cozy" party. Now my husband's brother and his wife, who live near us and who have a much larger house with a big basement-room they use as a game-room, are insisting that we invite our guests to their house, say about 3 o'clock on a Saturday or Sunday afternoon, they to supply the sandwiches, cookies, and so forth, and we to supply the drinks, and then, about 5 o'clock, invite the guests over to show them our new house. My husband thinks this would be a good idea, but I'll be heartbroken if I have to do this, although I realize these relatives mean to be very kind and generous. What is your advice? — Reader

You just must have the housewarming in your own house . . . certainly that's the idea of a housewarming. Assure your husband that you are grateful to his relatives for their wonderfully kind and generous suggestion, but that you and he must give the house-warming in your own house. If your house may be too small for the number of guests you wish to invite, you might do what many new owners of small houses do now . . . give two housewarmings, one on Saturday afternoon, the other on the following afternoon or on the following Saturday afternoon. Indeed some hosts give a series of housewarmings, very simple parties for very small groups.

ARRANGING FOR FLORAL DECORATION OF ALTAR

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Ours is to be a simple, rather small, semi-formal wedding in the lovely little church to which I belong. The only flowers I would like in the church would be some flowers on the altar. Should these be white flowers? May my florist arrange them in his own vases? Should I consult with anybody about the arrangement of the flowers?

First, courtesy demands that you consult the clergyman or the sexton about the rules of the church concerning floral decoration on the altar. Practically all churches provide their own altar vases, (often in two or three sizes) and ask that your florist use these. White flowers are very effective, and most appropriate, for a wedding.

AFTER THE WEDDING, ADDRESS GIFT TO "MR. AND MRS."

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I were in Europe for some time, travelling for his company's business. When we returned, we found invitations to two formal weddings of friends very dear to us. The weddings are over, but we want to send the two couples presents as fine as we can possibly afford. We'd like to know this, please: when we send these presents should we address them to the bride, as we would have if we had been here at the time of the wedding? — T.R.

No. When a wedding present is sent after the wedding has taken place, it should be addressed to both bride and bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs.

TELEPHONE HANGER-ON CAN BE A PEST

Are you a telephone hanger-on? Is it your maddening habit to overdo your telephone calls, hanging on . . . and on . . . and on? Watch it, please . . . for your friends, particularly the busy ones, will dread your calls. Better learn to end your telephone talk before the person on the other end wonders how in the world he or she (particularly he!) can politely, or even possibly, maneuver to bring the call to an end.

QUESTIONS ABOUT NAMES ON ENVELOPES AND CARDS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Here are three questions which I have never seen asked in your "Good Manners" column. I would appreciate your opinions about them.

1. When acknowledging a wedding invitation, is the envelope of the reply addressed only to the mother of the bride — Mrs. John Smith — or to Mr. and Mrs. John Smith?

2. Greeting card envelopes are now addressed to both the husband and wife, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith. If their names are mentioned on the enclosed card, whose is written first: Dear John and Mary or Dear Mary and John?

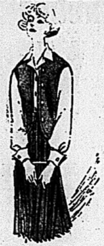
3. When a letter of sympathy is sent, to whom should it be addressed? For example: if the husband's mother has died, is the envelope addressed only to Mr. John Smith or to both, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith? — Interested Reader

1. The envelope of the reply to the wedding invitation should be addressed to Mr. and Mrs. John Smith.

2. When names are mentioned on the enclosed greeting-card, the order is Dear Mary and John.

3. The letter of sympathy would, in this case, be addressed only to Mr. John Smith. But just before the close of the letter the writer should include a message to the wife.

Chanel Look



By VERA WINSTON

The chanel look, which has influenced fashion so strongly for three decades, is still going strong. This is because it makes for ease, a youthful line and crisp charm, all well geared to a busy way of life. It is nicely demonstrated in this sleeveless boxy jacket and pleated skirt of bright red worsted flannel. With it is a white silk classic shirt with long, French-cuffed sleeves. Each piece is interchangeable.

Mrs. C. Cole Entertains at Unique Party

DESERONTO — One of the happiest and most unique tea parties held in Deseronto took place on Thursday afternoon, when Mrs. Charles Cole entertained at her home in honor of Mrs. Agnes McVicker, who is visiting her sons, Jim, the postmaster, and D.C., the doctor.

All the eight ladies present had spent most of their lives in Deseronto and the youngest was Mrs. M. Luffman (Maggie) who is 71, and the eldest was Mrs. Thomas Sweanor (Bridget) who celebrated her 90th birthday on Saturday, January 11th.

Mrs. Sweanor was born here when the town was known as "Millpoint" and has lived here all her 90 years. Mrs. F. Covert (Maude) and Mrs. A. Joyce (Nellie) were born here, too, and have always lived in Deseronto. Mrs. E. Robinson (Carrie) came here when she was seven years of age; Mrs. Thomas Naylor (Sara) came to Deseronto as a bride 61 years ago — the day of the big fire. Mrs. James Cole (Eliza) also came as a bride.

All those present are still active, keeping house and always ready with a helping hand and a smile for the children, grandchildren and great grandchildren. One cannot help but wonder what sort of a town Millpoint or Deseronto would have developed into without these eight ladies.

The gathering was a happy one and the house echoed with stories of days gone by — excursions up the Bay of Quinte; going to parties at the Foresters' Home on the Island. (Bridget claims she once danced with Oronhyatekha—and who would doubt it); good times at the Parish Hall when Milt Hunt treated all the ladies. There were many laughs over pranks of Deseronto boys; events in Naylor's Opera House; at the rink; at Galt's Livery Stable; the "Big Mill"; in Granny Fraser's ice cream parlor; harness racing on the ice of the bay; the pretty girls at the Officers' Mess at Camp Rathbun and Camp Mohawk; Irene Castle and her pet monkey; the building of the post office, and the fire at Clapperton's. The Maloneys, Hunts, Nafins, Whittons, Coles, Joyces, Macdonalds, McVickers, Coverts, Bruyeaus, Galts, Hoppings, Howards, Ed. Roach, Tom Warren and Clare Malley all came in for their share of glory with each mother topping the last story with a better one. And every so often Bridget, 90 years young, would break into a step dance and everything would stop while old friends hugged and kissed each other.

When tea time came the eight ladies sat around a table centered with a birthday cake for Bridget, who sat at one end, while Mrs. Naylor poured tea at the other. Each was presented with a carnation and a picture was taken of the group. They sang "Happy Birthday" to Bridget, and all joined in "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow" for Mrs. Margaret Cole. It was truly a memorable meeting of the friends and citizens of Deseronto.

Novel Neckline

By ALICE ALDEN

The sweater, once relegated to the classroom or the country, now has become a major wardrobe item. Richly befurred and trimmed, it appears at the smartest gatherings. Even the daytime sweater has undergone a transformation with new touches and detail. Hadley does a neat back-to-front sweater of luxurious cashmere, featuring the cuffed, bateau neckline. It is shown here with the ties in back, but can be turned about and worn with ties in front and the high, cuffed neckline in back.

Women's Activities

EGGLETON W.M.S. and W.A.

MADOC JCT. — The January meeting of the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A. and the W.M.S. membership tea was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Carl Bridges.

The WMS president, Mrs. Bruce Stapley, presided, and opened the meeting with a prayer on the theme "Seek Thy Truth."

Mrs. Robert Danford read for the Scripture lesson Philippians 1: 1-8, and also gave the meditation from the "Devotional Guide." Miss Joyce Stapley presided at the piano.

The secretary, Mrs. Clarence Fitchett, read the minutes and called the roll, showing 16 adults and two children present, with 13 members paying their dues.

The pastor, Mr. G. Dyson, rendered a lovely solo, "I Walked With My God."

Mrs. Bruce Stapley introduced the new study book, "Cross and Crisis in Japan," written by Charles W. Iglehart. She also dealt with the first half of the book, "This is Japan," written by W. Axling and gave short descriptions of the various schools and universities, showing their location on the large map of Japan.

All enjoyed the solo "Give Me Thine Heart," sung by Mrs. Maurice Clancy.

The W.A. president, Mrs. William McMullen took charge for the business period.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. McMullen with Mrs. Warren Harlow preparing the program.

A motion was made that the treasurer send W.A. dues to the Presbytery treasurer. It was again decided to have a bazaar again this year, each member to bring an apron to the February meeting.

The date set for the congregational meeting for Eggleton church was Tuesday night, Jan. 14th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clancy.

A meeting for reorganization of the Sunday School for 1958 was held on Saturday night, Jan. 11 at the church.

The annual board meeting for Thomasburg circuit will be held this year at Eggleton United Church on Tuesday, January 21, with the ladies of the Eggleton W.A. serving dinner at the noon hour.

It was decided that members of the W.M.S. and W.A. would call on Mrs. G. Jervis on Wednesday afternoon of next week.

Mrs. Bridges gave a donation to the W.A.

Mr. Dyson expressed thanks on behalf of Mrs. Dyson and himself for Christmas gifts and cards received.

A couple of letters of thanks were read from those who had received cards and fruit during their illness.

Mrs. C. Fitchett, supply secretary, read a letter, stating the 1958 allocation for the Eggleton Auxiliary.

Discussion was held on number of members able to attend the Belleville Presbyterial meeting being held on February 7 at Napanee.

Mite boxes are to be ordered for Associate W.M.S. members; Mission Band members and Baby Band members.

It was decided to use the travelling bank boxes again this year to raise money for the W.M.S.

The hostess served a refreshing cup of tea, sandwiches and cookies, also a prettily decorated cake with candles was brought in and "Happy Birthday" was sung for Mrs. Forde Stapley, who was celebrating a birthday on Thursday.

Members had a chat with Mrs. A. Andrews, who greatly enjoyed hearing the meeting and seeing and visiting with her friends of Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A.
